Elected or appointed?

Should oversight of the Water Commission and Sewer Commission be run by an appointed board that would handle both?

That is one question that is up for consideration as a result of the recent audit report of both the water and sewer departments.

Here at the Cohasset Mariner we are not going to advocate to have two elected commissions become appointed because we think – as Selectman Fred Koed ably stated this week – that would be taking away the voice of the people.

However, with that being said, our government only works if the electorate is engaged and involved. That means the voters need to pay attention to the issues at hand and cast informed votes. Also, government only works if interested citizens who want to become involved stand for election.

Cohasset has plenty of appointed boards and commissions that work quite well – ranging from the Zoning Board of Appeals and Conservation Commission to the Advisory Committee. The town, in our view, has the right balance with appointed and elected boards. Changing an elected board to an appointed one centralizes the source of power too much. Appointed board members can be asked to resign by the appointing authority – removing an elected official requires an election where the people decide.

Cohasset is a fortunate town in so many ways. Many who grew up here have chosen to stay and others who move here quickly adopt Cohasset as their hometown and have no plans to leave.

Over the years the town has been blessed with so many volunteers, who either opt to run for an elective office or seek appointment to one of the appointed commissions or committees.

In addition to trying to ferret out some of the financial issues facing the water and sewer departments – the audit has also made recommendations that provide food for thought. That is a good thing.

Disagreement and debate, when conducted with civility, can open minds and tap creativity. Taking a new look at old ways of conducting business is beneficial.

To that end, please let Town Hall know your thoughts on the recommendations in the audit.

Written letters can be sent to the Town Manager's office at Town Hall, 41 Highland Ave. E-mails can be sent to any member of the Board of Selectmen or Advisory Committee. Their email addresses are listed on the town website, www.townofcohasset.org.

The Cohasset Mariner always welcomes letters to the editor as well. Send an e-mail with your letter to the editor Mary Ford at mford@cnc.com.

Teachable moment

It was not a friendly letter written by a Mashpee mother about last week's boys basketball game. She felt strongly enough about unsportsmanlike behavior during and after league championship game at Cohasset High that she drafted a long, detailed letter to the Superintendent of Schools.

Just like any "eye-witness" report, perceptions and experiences are going to vary depending on one's vantage point.

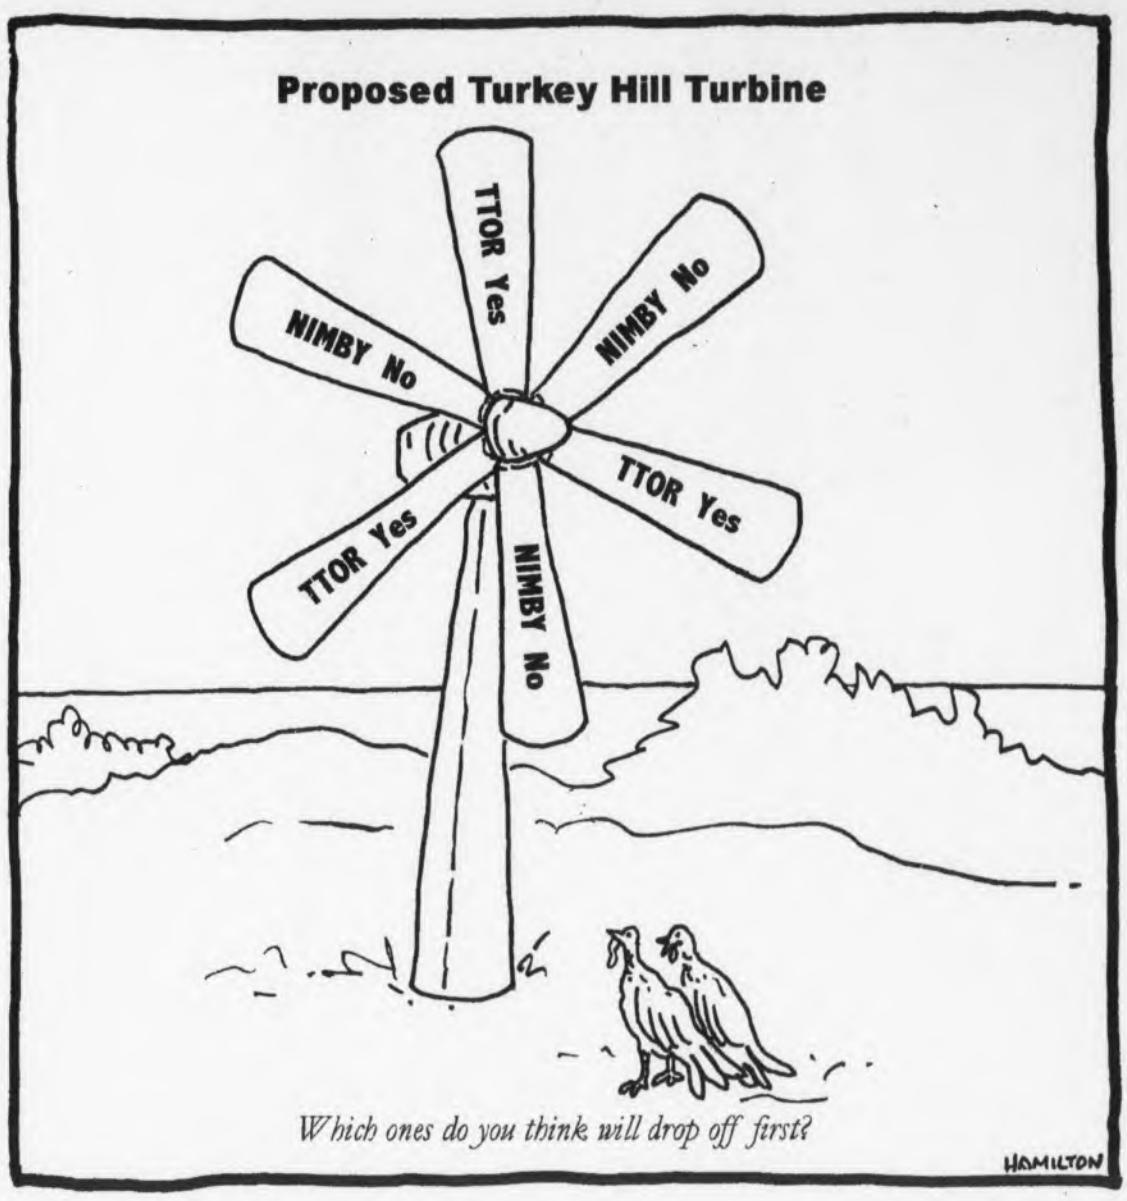
Athletic Director Ron Ford has shown the appropriate reaction in our view.

"I don't want anyone to feel there is a lack of sportsmanship at Cohasset or feel they were mistreated in any way," Ford said.

Therefore, Ford is taking steps to build up the relationship between Mashpee and Cohasset. The schools are league rivals and play each other frequently in most sports. He said is working with the Mashpee athletic director Michael Horne to address some of the issues brought up in the letter.

There can be a fine line between hometown exuberance in a hotly contested game and going over the line into unsportsmanlike behavior. Good can only come from reviewing what conduct is appropriate and what is not, so when out-of-town guests come to Cohasset they leave with a positive impression.

New wish list for Food Pantry



The pantry has come a long way in filling their shelves over the past few months – thanks to the generosity of the community. Yet, there is a constant need, especially for certain items, see list below.

Donations can be dropped off at the rear entrance of St. Anthony's Rectory on South Main St. from 8:30 to 9:30a.m. on Tuesdays, at Stop & Shop, or at local churches on Sundays. To give a monetary donation, the food pantry mailing address is Cohasset Food Pantry, P.O. Box 297, Cohasset, MA 02025.

To contact the food pantry call 781-383-0219, ext. 25. Someone will return your call.

The Cohasset Food Pantry does not accept expired or already opened food.

- Chicken broth
- Canned fruit (with splenda)
- Jams, jellies
- Coffee, regular ground
- Mayonnaise
- Canned carrots & white potatoes
- Fruit juice
- Shampoo & conditioner
- Paper goods (paper towels, toilet paper, napkins, tissues)
- Laundry detergent

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanks for African program

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank Rich Fitzpatrick, the Cohasset Rotary Club and Heather Collins at the South Shore Art Center for reaching out to the Cohasset Middle School and offering us the opportunity to participate in two interesting and hands-on experiences. Every Cohasset sixth grader spent one Social Studies period learning the basic rhythms of Cape Verdean drumming and two classes learning the art of Ghanaian block printing. The Mariner did a wonderful job documenting both these events.

Our study of Africa was enriched by these classes and gave the students the opportunity to move beyond textbooks and atlases and experience first hand the arts of this great continent. I am grateful to all those who made the experience possible.

Secure foundation needs to be built

COMMENTARY

STEVE GAUMER

In management, that foundation includes developing processes intended to expose potential risks, quantify expected outcomes and provide accurate information in a timely fashion.

A copy of this letter to the Board of Selectmen and Advisory Committee was provided to the Cohasset Mariner.

The following comments on the independent accountant's report, water and sewer departments.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

This responds to request for comments on the draft report noted above. These comments are made as an individual member of the Capital Budget Committee and Water Planning Group.

Background

As the reader is aware, the referenced audit conducted by Melanson and Heath, resulted from a recommendation to Town Meeting from the Water Planning Group. The group was formed to deal with a water department budget shortfall, identify its causes and recommend short and long term remediative action. The group believed that an audit exercise was fiscally warranted, and might assist in identifying management practices needing improvement, or establishing proper practices if absent.

Summary

The draft report effectively summarized the historical operation of both departments, and as well, those departmental interactions with town government. Additionally, the draft report accurately summarized the capital improvement campaign at both departments, their root causes and financing procedures used to enact them. Finally, the draft report details the historical interactions between the water department, sewer department, various other town departments, and their contractors.

Throughout the draft report, many incidents are identified in which line item budgetary authority is exceeded, payables are rolled into a following fiscal year, simplistic budges are constructed, inaccurate demand is forecast, financial reporting is inconsistent and inadequate manpower was available.

The problems found by the Water Planning Group, and further detailed in this report can be summarized as follows:

- Lack of process
- Project definition and oversight reporting from a qualified source
- Timely budget reconciliation reporting
- Inefficient financial reporting system
- Unstructured contract review process, w/o financial impact analysis
- Town Meeting has few specific "checks" over an elected board which administers and enterprise fund

Role definition

- Define the specific role of a Water/Sewer commissioner
- Define which officials had/have responsibility for oversight of the commission, and which for the enterprise funds

Discussion

The capital project undertaken by the water department was admirable in its ambition and scope, and in my now retrospective opinion, likely to expose procedural shortcomings from the outset.

As undertaken, the water commission appears to have acted as project manager, environmental manager, bookkeeper and invoice payment clerk, in addition to its normal duties. Additionally, and also noted in the report, the size and scope of the project strained supporting town resources, particularly the town accountant (finance director).

It now seems clear that the town lacked the disciplined management processes needed to address the project undertaken. The larger concern is that as a town, we misunderstand the lesson, and confine the learning to the water department only.

In fact, the town itself has been cited regularly by its own auditor for lacking disciplined financial and management processes in addressing the daily functions of government. For example:

- No process or standards exist for the collection and processing of cash receipts at the department level;
- The town has no investment policy for its cash accounts;
- We have been consistently unable to reconcile departmental budgets on a monthly basis.

The inadequate management processes are not confined to the water department, and rather point to an overall area of concern in town government at large.

'Settling into life of order and peace'

LETTER FROM KENYA

COURTESY PHOTO

Mrs. Burbank says she has come to believe that there is no greater work on the face of the earth than to give these children a place to call home.

We are being blessed mightily here at Oasis of Peace Home For Orphans in Kenya. The children are beginning to change. They are settling into a life of order and peace. It has taken four months to bring about any changes in them from wild, disheveled, undisciplined, abandoned little darlings to peaceful, obedient, orderly children who are learning that they are loved so so much by all of us here and also by God, their Father in Heaven. We have impressed upon them that they will never be alone again...never. We are there for them, and we will even fight their battles if they need us to. They love to hear us tell them that we will not let anyone harm them again. What a privilege to serve these little hug bugs.

Abraham Mutembei still wants to roll in the mud and eat dirt, but he has finally figured out that homework is meant for him and not for someone else. Every page of his workbook is filled with strange shapes that he is very proud of. He thinks they are ABC or 123 but they are not. Once in a while I may see a real letter or number emerge from the page. The real letter or number is either lying on its back or standing on its head. Mutembei has HIV/AIDS and I want him to grow more, but he is not growing much at all. We are plying him with fruits and vegetables and even a children's supplement, but there is something about AIDS that slows down the growth of a child. I need to study more about this dreadful disease. I do not want to find out in two years that I could have done something to make little Abraham Mutembei grow. He is now 3-years-old, and he is a peanut.

Eric leans on me more that the others. He was found as a baby abandoned in a nearby slum and he has no history. No history at all. Not a name, not a birth date, not a mother, not a father, not a soul in the entire world to claim him as his own.

We have another peanut, and her name is Cynthia. She too has HIV/AIDS. She thinks she is a Massai, a member of a tribe who have earned the dubious distinction of being able to jump higher than any other tribe. Every time she sees me, she has to show me how high she can jump. She is a peanut with a spring. She is absolutely not gaining an ounce; in fact, the more she eats, the more she loses weight. I love that child with all of my heart. She is so wonderful, but I want her to live, live, live, and I want her to grow, grow, grow, but I am feeling so powerless.... so I turn to God. "O God," I say, "have mercy on these two little peanuts. Can't you see how much I love them? Please let them live." I know He heard me, and I know He will do it.

Now what about the others? All I can say is how many runny noses can a normal person stand in one day? Each of them is taught in school to carry a real handkerchief, not a Kleenex, but a real handkerchief. The little ones are forever dropping them and losing them, but they are not that hard to find. Just slip your hand in between the cushions as you relax on the sofa and you are bound to feel something damp tucked in there somewhere. The runny noses come from either malaria or typhoid. So many have one of those two diseases, and if they don't have malaria or typhoid, they have worms.

We spend one day a week waiting in long lines at clinics with a mound of hot little bodies leaning on us. There is no air and no money for deodorant. The benches we wait on have no backs to them so the children need to lean on us because they are hot and tired. It finally dawned on me that the clinics and hospital emergency rooms are not designed for humans.

Eric leans on me more that the others. He was found as a baby abandoned in a nearby slum and he has no history. No history at all. Not a name, not a birth date, not a mother, not a father, not a soul in the entire world to claim him as his own. He belongs to no one. But now he belongs to us. I ask him, "Eric, do you know that you belong to me? Do you know that you belong to Mama and Uncle Paul, and that you are ours? You are our boy, and you always will be. You have us, and you will always have a family and people who love you. God has sent us to be your parents, and to take care of you till you grow up to be a man, and then you will get married and have children of your own, but we will always be your parents. Are you my boy, Eric? Are you my boy? "Yes !" he says with a toothless smile.

Kelvin is 4-years-old, and he loves to eat. He is so serious about eating that he has furrows on his forehead from getting serious about eating. He doesn't socialize at the table. He just cleans his plate. The children are just getting out of the habit of picking up food off the ground and gobbling it down, but Kelvin just couldn't help himself. He saw a half empty bottle of strawberry yogurt discarded on the floor of the emergency room. Before we could say "Don't eat that!! " Kelvin had slurped it down. I knew he had because I saw a pink dribble making its way down his chin. When he is not eating, Kelvin loves to press buttons that mess up mechanical things.

Kelvin's mother was in the eighth grade when she discovered she was pregnant and had AIDS. She became so despondent and ashamed that she refused to take the medicine and allowed herself to die. I have a picture of her in Kelvin's file. She was a beautiful little girl and when I look at Kelvin, I see the face of his mother looking up at me. It makes me sad sometimes, and because of that feeling, I seem to favor Kelvin more than I should. He is a very loving and affectionate child. His grandmother must have given him a lot of love. When she comes to visit, she keeps telling me over and over again how beautiful her daughter was.

If God is touching your heart right now, and he is telling you to give to our orphaned children here in Kenya, please send a tax-deductible donation of any amount to the address below, and you will be blessed.. Jesus said, "Whatever you do for the least of my little ones, you do for Me." Surely Kelvin, Cynthia, Mutembei, Eric, and all 18 of our children can be considered the least of His little ones.

Our address is An Orphan's Dream, Inc., P.O. Box 692727, Quincy, MA 02269.

God bless you.

Virginia Burbank, is the chief executive officer of An Orphan's Dream, Inc.

Editor's Note: Mrs. Virginia Burbank is a former Cohasset High School English teacher. She retired in 1996 after 32 years of teaching in the district. In 2006, she traveled to sub-Saharan Africa, to Nairobi, Kenya, to visit her missionary sister and saw thousands of children living in poverty and filth — and without parents to watch over them. She felt she was called to do something about it. For the past four years, she has worked endlessly to build an orphanage – An Oasis of Peace – in the heart of Kenya.

We are here for you

FOR THE RECORD

GREGORY MATHIS

Back in September I wrote about a new feature we were adding to the newspaper called public service journalism. It's taken us a little longer than expected to actually get it up and running, but we are now at the point where you should start to see what it's all about.

To refresh your memory, public service journalism (PSJ from here on out), is designed with you in mind. We want to know what you're curious about in your community, what you might be having problems with, and what you want fixed in the community.

Many of us got into journalism because we want to make a difference. We want to right the wrongs, bring injustice or corruption to light and provide answers to questions that inform and educate the public. We don't always have the time to dig as deep as we'd like on a regular basis, but that shouldn't stop us from providing this type of public service.

As I said back in September, PSJ is a step — albeit a small one — in that direction.

So what can you expect from PSJ in your hometown newspaper? Here's what we have lined up:

What's The Problem? We're asking readers to send us a problem they see in the community and we'll use our resources to get answers. Potholes are a big problem this time of year. We started hearing rumblings a few weeks ago, but the complaints are getting louder as the potholes grow in size and number, causing serious damage to vehicles. Let us know the problem areas in your community and we'll find out what the department of public works plans to do. And if potholes aren't a concern, let us know what concerns you by sending an e-mail to the editor of your local newspaper.

What's Going on Here? You're driving home from work, or passing through the downtown on the way home from the grocery store, and you notice something you haven't seen before. It might be new construction — perhaps a new store or restaurant, but you're not sure. Send us an e-mail with the location and we'll look into it for you.

Budget Breakdown: This is the perfect time of year to be rolling this out. Most towns are well into the budget process and many heads (including mine) are spinning trying to figure out what it means. What we're trying to do here is take specific budget line items and break them down in plain English. Sometimes that's easier said than done, but we've already seen some excellent examples.

Like many of our recent reader initiatives, the success of this will depend on you. We're here for you, so hopefully we'll hear from you.

I know many people are sick of winter and there are some who I know are sick of me complaining about winter, but I did want to report the results of a recent poll I've had up on my blog.

The question was: What's troubling you most about this winter?

The results:

- 33.33%: Getting around the piles of snow
- 23.81%: Getting around on covered sidewalks
- 19.05%: Trying to get to work
- 14.29%: The amount of shoveling
- 9.52%: Nothing's troubling me. I love it!

No surprise that "nothing's troubling me" came in last, but I am surprised that shoveling was a distant fourth and out of the running for the top spot. That's been my nemesis this winter. (Now I'm done complaining, I promise.)

HEALTH NOTES

Bill for payment not what it seems

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Retaining Your Fiscal Health — According to reports from the media, "high on the list of consumer complaints are businesses that mail out solicitations disguised as bills, a favorite for scam artists. Shocking, therefore, that National Grid, a major provider of natural gas and electricity for the region, would allow its name to be attached to such a practice." The suspect mailing revealed yesterday came from HomeServe USA, which bought National Grid's service contract business and retained the right to use the utility company's name and logo through 2011. The mailing to former service contract customers of National Grid Energy Services looks for all the world like a bill. A "Pay this Amount" box with the sum of $191.20 appears prominently next to the National Grid logo. The midsection of the mailing outlines services that include an annual tune-up of the heating system and access to a 24-hour emergency line. A disclaimer on the back "in small print" indicates that HomeServe USA is not affiliated with National Grid. Participation in the program is not necessary for satisfactory services from National Grid.

Spokesmen for the two companies argued that the mailing does not resemble a bill. But many consumers have been fooled by the format into thinking that payment is required and have paid the full sum. The same consumer, who tosses a solicitation for aluminum siding or carpet cleaning into the trash, wouldn't be so quick to discard anything with the logo of a utility company. National Grid after all, has the power to terminate gas or electrical service for nonpayment.

State law requires "clear and conspicuous disclosures in advertising materials" and Federal law specifically requires solicitations disguised as invoices to bear a prominent notice in large, bold capital letters clearly identifying the missive as a solicitation.

The recommended language for such mailings from the US Postal Service: "This is not a bill. This is a solicitation. You are under no obligation to pay the amount stated above unless you accept this offer."

The product being offered by HomeServe USA is an "insurance policy" which it avers that National Grid has with all its customers, when, in reality, National Grid has, in the past, offered a similar policy which some of its customers may have accepted but many have not.

National Grid is a large successful international company providing electricity and gas and is one of the largest investor-owned energy companies in the world. Their core business is the delivery of electricity, natural gas and associated services. Such an important and successful company has no business coming within smelling distance of this proposal and should strongly disavow any connection with the HomeServe USA solicitation for services.

If you have received the solicitation from National Grid Home Services instructing you to pay $191.20 or any other amount, call your electric or your gas service provider and ask that they provide a full explanation of the bill.

'Race to Nowhere' to be shown at St. Stephen's

"Race to Nowhere" takes a critical look at the pressure today's teens feel to succeed in what some are calling the one-size-fits-all achievement-oriented world.

St. Stephen's Church will host a showing of "Race to Nowhere," the documentary about the harmful effects of stress on today's teens, at 7 p.m., on Monday, March 14. Produced by mother-turned-filmmaker Vicki Abeles, "Race to Nowhere" takes a critical look at the pressure today's teens feel to succeed in what some are calling the one-size-fits-all achievement-oriented world.

"I am hardly an expert on the situation in Cohasset," said the Rev. Margot D. Critchfield, Rector of St Stephen's Church, "but I do know that nationwide, the way our culture defines success today is often unhealthy, if not immoral.

"We have become mono-dimensional," Critchfield said, "with far too much emphasis on one, and only one path, to living a life that is rewarding, fulfilling and that contributes to the betterment of our world. My hope is that by offering this film to our community, we can begin to have a dialogue about how we're preparing our kids socially, academically and spiritually, to take their place in the world and make it a better place.

As the mother of a college student, Critchfield said that when her own daughter was growing up in Washington, D.C., the pressure on kids to succeed was extraordinary. "My husband and I used to joke that we were the only parents in the city telling our teenager to quit doing homework and to watch TV for a while instead. But I'll never forget her breaking into tears one day in her junior year and sobbing, 'Mom, I don't even like learning anymore, and I used to love learning!' It was absolutely heartbreaking."

"Race to Nowhere" focuses on the high-pressure culture that has invaded so many children's lives. Featuring the stories of young people in all types of communities who have been pushed to the brink, educators who are burned out and worried that students aren't developing the skills they need, and parents who are trying to do what's best for their kids, "Race to Nowhere" points to what its creator calls a "silent epidemic in our nation's schools and cheating has become commonplace; students are disengaged; stress-related illness and depression are rampant; and many young people arrive at college and the workplace unprepared and uninspired."

The film's creator, Vicki Abeles, was inspired to make "Race to Nowhere" out of concern for her own children. A mother of three and a former Wall Street attorney, Abeles interest in this issue developed when her own 12-year-old daughter was being treated for stress-related illness.

Tickets for the March 14 showing at St Stephen's are available online at www.racetonowhere.com/screenings/st-stephens-church. For more information, visit www.racetonowhere.com.

Town election update

DeCaprio to seek water three-year term

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The only position without at least one candidate is the one-year seat for the Water Commission. Only one potential race has emerged: a possible three-way contest for two seats on the Board of Selectmen.

With a little less than three weeks to go nearly all the seats up for election in May have candidates.

This week, Peter DeCaprio indicated his intent to run for the three-year seat on the Water Commission, incumbent Sewer Commissioner Wayne Sawchuk pulled papers to retain his seat, Dan Evans will seek another term as Town Moderator, and Mary Lou Lawrence will seek re-election to the Library Trustees.

The only position without at least one candidate is the one-year seat for the Water Commission. Only one potential race has emerged: a possible three-way contest for two seats on the Board of Selectmen.

Citizens have until Thursday, March 17 to obtain nomination papers.

DeCaprio was appointed to the Water Commission in the late summer to fill the seat vacated by long-time water commissioner John McNabb.

"I made a commitment to (water commission chairman) Chris Seebeck that I would stay on and help him until the situation at the department is stabilized. Since we obviously can't do that by this April, I need to stand for election," DeCaprio said in an e-mail.

If elected, DeCaprio said there are three major issues to deal with on the commission. First is to find a lower cost way to operate the plant whether by negotiating a new contract with the plant operator or staff the plant independently. Second is to work with the finance director at Town Hall to develop a budget and operation plan. Third is to put a plan in place for future capital expenditures that is flexible.

"We may or may not have big capital needs ahead, a lot depends on how efficient and effective we are at operating the plant while meeting standards for water quality, which is, of course, our highest priority," DeCaprio said. "Whoever pulls papers for these two open slots (on the water commission) is going to be very busy if elected."

Library Trustee candidates Rodney Hobson and Carolyn Coffey have had their nomination signatures certified so they are officially running for office.

The following is a list of open seats for the May 7 election

Important dates:

Thursday, March 17	Last day to obtain nomination papers
Tuesday, March 22	Last day to submit papers for signature certification
Monday, April 4	Last day to withdraw
Friday, April 8	Last day to register to vote for town meeting and town election
Saturday, April 30	Annual Town Meeting
Saturday, May 7	Town Election

Community invited to comment on superintendent candidates

The School Committee conducted interviews with the three finalists in their superintendent search. As a part of the interview process the candidates also visited all schools where parents and staff had the opportunity to meet with them in an informal setting.

People who were able to see the interviews on the local cable station or visited with candidates at the schools, are encouraged to direct comments on these individuals to the School Committee. Candidate evaluation forms are available in each of the schools, or via email from jeanneastino@gmail.com. Complete a form and submit it via the school business office, Attention: Dr. Helene Lieb.

Democrat embarks on first term in Congress

By Mary Jane Hanron
MJHANRON@CNC.COM

"Not only is it important that we get certain things done, but that we be sure people are aware of our progress."
— U.S. Rep. William Keating

After Democrat William Delahunt's 14 years in office, Massachusetts' 10th Congressional District has new representation in Congress, and U.S. Rep. William Keating of Quincy has been settling in to his new position in Washington, D.C.

"We are doing our best to stay in touch with the people in local communities," said Keating, a Democrat who defeated Republican Jeff Perry and independents Maryanne Lewis, James Sheets and Joe van Nes in last November's election on a night when Democrats lost their majority in the House of Representatives. "The district is one facing many challenges and opportunities. It is an area consisting of many small cities, towns and small businesses. The campaign gave me a great vantage point for how best to reach out to people. It was clear that so many are very interested in what is going on federally and how that affects them locally. Not only is it important that we get certain things done, but that we be sure people are aware of our progress."

The district encompasses much of the South Shore through Cape Cod and the Islands, and Keating and his staff are maintaining contact with constituents through his district offices in Quincy and Hyannis, which will serve as a resource for residents with personal or individual concerns. Keating said he plans to schedule as many "Congress on Your Corner" events as possible.

In addition to establishing staff and offices, Keating has been immersed since early January in legislation.

"I am doing my best to become educated about the way things can be done most effectively," he said. "First in my mind is that the climate for creating jobs is addressed. For example, one of the first bills I sponsored was to get rid of the requirement for businesses to complete 1099 forms for certain transactions. It was creating a burden for business owners they didn't need. In this fragile climate coming out of the recession, we must find ways to make things easier for companies to grow."

Keating has opportunities to establish relationships with representatives facing similar issues in other parts of the country, such as fishing, tourism, agriculture and small businesses.

"Members representing coastal communities working together is a way to get things done," he said. "For example, there is great concern that scientific regulations are placing great restrictions on the fishing industry. Environmental safety is important, but we must balance it with the needs of local fishermen. This is easier to do when a group of us facing similar concerns, even though it may be in different geographical areas."

Keating has been appointed to the committees on foreign affairs, homeland security and small business, and he said he is pleased with the assignments.

The House Committee on Foreign Affairs will likely place Keating in the spotlight as the group tackles duties heightened by unrest in various parts of the world, and he is already on several homeland security subcommittees. Keating is busy with cybersecurity legislation to protect American software used in foreign countries from misuse by hostile regimes. Noting the recent activities in Egypt, the role of social media in alerting the world to the situation and allowing communication among those within the nation, he hopes that American software is still purchased without being abused by foreign entities.

Work with the House Committee on Homeland Security also will keep Keating connected to his interest in tarmac security, which developed during one of his last investigations as district attorney, probing a death in Milton believed to be caused by a fall from a plane descending toward Logan Airport.

Regarding his work with the House Committee on Small Business, Keating spoke of several areas where work at the federal level will have an impact on local cities and towns, including the development of the former South Weymouth Naval Air Station. Ground has been broken on the project, known as SouthField, and according to Keating, it has the potential to bring 10,000 jobs to the area.

Keating noted he is learning of some of the frustrations of the job.

"The slowness of the FDA (U.S. Food and Drug Administration) inhibits legislation," he said. "Massachusetts in particular is affected because of the amount of business based on technology. Technology depends on research. This needs to be a focus because it helps keeps jobs here."

Among Keating's experiences since being in Washington have been White House visits.

"The 10th District does have a special bond with the president," he said. "We have been his chosen destination for family vacations."

Keating described what he hopes to accomplish for the district.

"I am doing my best to see that the climate for jobs is addressed. We have the advantage in Massachusetts of a bright, educated, skilled workforce. We are ahead of the curve for jobs, but still have a way to go. People sometimes forget this, but the United States is still the No. 1 place in the world. We are the land of opportunity. This is something government can't stifle and education must support," he said. "As I head off each day to work past the once Congressional offices of JFK and see names and statues like Daniel Webster and John Quincy Adams, I'm honored that I am here."

Are you patient with your patience?

PUSHING THE EDGE

GLENN MANGURIAN

Being more patient with your patience requires you have a "trip switch" in the wiring from your buttons to your instinctive reactions.

I consider myself a pretty patient guy, but recently I have grown impatient with my patience. In the 1990s, I had to learn to be patient with my teenage children. Of course, my children would say they had to be patient with their "clueless" parents.

Short fuse

While older age has brought new sources of wisdom, it has also shortened my fuse. For example, I get annoyed with people who don't listen. Do you remember when a conversation was two way: make a point, listen and respond? Occasionally, I meet "fast-triggers" who respond before I finish making my point. Is listening becoming a lost skill? Maybe these people have lost their patience with me. Maybe it takes me too long to make my point. Patience is, after all, a two-way street.

Pushing our buttons

I'll be the first to admit that I have "buttons" that people push. Some people are masterful at pushing my buttons. Over time, I have become aware of some of my buttons, and I discover a new one now and then. You know the feeling when a button is pushed. Your instinctive response starts to kick in. If you could play it all in slow motion, you could watch it unfold. Unfortunately, it doesn't play out in slow motion. Rather, pushed buttons usually create an immediate response.

Install a trip-switch

Although sometimes difficult, patience can be learned. Being more patient with your patience requires you have a "trip switch" in the wiring from your buttons to your instinctive reactions. Someone once said to me, "The secret of patience is doing something else in the meantime." For example, I have a practice of never hitting the reply button after I receive irritating emails. It's amazing how less annoying these same emails feel the next day. Similarly, I would often count to three after someone said or did something that pushed my buttons. Now, if I count to five, I feel better. Remember, patience is our challenge not the other guy's.

What would Larry do?

I'm trying to be patient with my patience, but sometimes I feel like Larry David in an episode of the television program "Curb Your Enthusiasm." Wouldn't it be nice if life were more like watching television? We could use the Pause button on our personal remote controls for patience.

Pushing the edge of your thinking

- What actions by others challenge your patience?
- What can you do to increase your patience?
- What habits do you have that try the patience of others?

FROM GAUMER, PAGE 10

STEVE GAUMER

Without formal process and balanced oversight in place to guide project vetting, financial reporting and management, contract supervision and qualified management, citizens should be rightly concerned and anxious for the diligent use of their tax dollars.

Next, it is also apparent that the role of an elected water or sewer commissioner may be perceived to be very different depending upon the audience. This lack of clarity leaves commissioners, and their constituent ratepayers on disparate planes of understanding as to the commissioners' responsibility and expertise. It creates similar confusion, I believe, between commissioners and other areas of town government.

I suggest the role of a commissioner might effectively be akin to the role of a trustee or company director. The role is one of strategic oversight, moral and financial direction, identification and achievement of objectives. This model sees the commissioner as a guide and mentor rather than a manager. Our (water) commissioners have historically acted in a more managerial way, despite having few supporting structures in place to assist with the task.

In addition, the commissioners have had no real check/balance structure inside of town government until very recently. The purpose for check and balance is to uncover problems before they are encountered. The reclassification of operating expenses to capital accounts was initially identified by a member of the Water Planning Group who noted that for the same fiscal year, two differing versions of the same report existed.

The existence of two separate reports indicates questionable veracity. More concerning is that the irregularity was not identified within normal town government operations.

Summary

One cannot build a sturdy house without a secure foundation. In management, that foundation includes developing processes intended to expose potential risks, quantify expected outcomes and provide accurate information in a timely fashion. The processes, once established, can be adapted to evolving needs, though will outlive the individuals that employ them. Our town currently lacks this fundamental management tool in any organized fashion.

The draft report addresses governance primarily through restructuring reporting lines, and politicizing appointment power. Interestingly, for a report that so effectively details shortcomings in management, process and financial structure, no recommendation specifically addresses these shortcomings.

So, to endeavor to restructure the water department, sewer department, and add management personnel without addressing these most basic needs, is akin to building the living room before the foundation is set.

Additionally, let all recall that while the water department and sewer department are town assets, they are not town-wide assets. In fact the enterprise funds, if properly managed, are fully supported by ratepayers rather than tax payers. Accordingly, disenfranchising the ratepayers, by eliminating the elected commissioners, eliminates the rights of the ratepayers to the benefit of non-rate payers. This amounts to a power grab. Under the proposal offered in the report, it would also politicize the role of a commissioner, given the appointment by the Selectmen.

Cohasset's Thomas Flibotte won the Div. 3 State Championship in the 171-pound weight class over the weekend at Holliston.

WRESTLING

Top of the world

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The Cohasset wrestling team helped continue Cohasset's tradition of titles this week with Thomas Flibotte winning the 171 weight class at the Div. 3 State Championship over the weekend in Holliston.

Flibotte, a senior, won four bouts to help lead the Skippers to a fifth-place finish out of the 53 teams represented.

"It was a great tournament," Cohasset coach Torin Sweeney said. "It was our 13th top-10 finish in 20 years, but we haven't been in the top-10 in States since 2007."

Flibotte is Cohasset's 11th champion in the past 19 years, according to Sweeney, and the first at 171.

Flibotte, who had the tournament's second seed, beat Dedham's Frank Mahoney in the final.

Mahoney was the No. 1 seed coming into the tournament and was 41-0 this season.

Flibotte also beat Triton's Bryan Gilbin 9-1 in the semifinal round. Gilbin was also ranked in the top-10.

Cohasset teammate Derek Froio will also be in action this weekend, courtesy of a fourth-place finish in the 152 class.

"Derek wrestled very well," Sweeney said. "He lost 4-1 in the semis to the champ, Jacob Emond (Tyngsboro). Derek beat a really good kid, Philip Bishop from Lynnfield/Reading to get into fourth."

Gus Helbock finished fifth in the 119 class to punch a ticket to the next level.

"Gus lost two one-point matches," Sweeney said. "He lost his quarterfinal 1-0, and in another he was ahead and lost after a five-pointer late."

Alex Kinnealey, who won the 215 class at Sectionals, won two and lost two at the State Tournament, and Graden Foley had a nice showing with a win at 140.

"Graden wrestled a great tournament," Sweeney said. "He won his first match, lost his second and then beat the No. 3 seed in the other bracket. He knocked him out of the tournament before he lost to a kid from Mt. Greylock.

"Alex wrestled a great tournament too. He lost 3-1 in the match to get in the medal round. It was a tough loss for him. He got a draw that was tough."

The Cohasset wrestlers have stayed active to get ready for the All-States.

"The guys are excited," he said. "They've been working out. We went to Weymouth and Marshfield to work out."

Sweeney said that when wrestlers get to the top levels, they tend to cheer each other on.

"You like to pull for your own area, even the coaches," Sweeney said. "You want to see the south do well. Kids see each other and forge friendships."

SWIMMING

First title

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The MIAA Div. 2 State Swim championships were good to Cohasset swimmers, especially sophomore Hope Kissick, who swam away with a state championship in the 100 breast stroke at Harvard University.

Kissick came into the meet with a No. 8 seed and bested her own time and the field on the way to the title with a 1:07.82 time.

The win was the first state swim title for a female swimmer in school history.

Kissick is no stranger to the competition.

Last year as a freshman she finished third at the same competition.

Kissick has been swimming competitively since she was five.

She also finished ninth in the 200M Individual Medley and Cohasset's 200M Freestyle Relay Team (Moira Donohue, Aniko Haber, Hope Kissick, and Maggie Littlejohn) finished 12th.

On the boys side freshman Clarke Indek finished 10th in the 100M backstroke and 13th in the 200M Individual Relay.

"I've swam at Harvard before," Indek said. "I like the atmosphere. One of the kids I raced there broke a state record the week before. That was exciting. It was a tough field."

Indek said he felt good.

"The 100 back is my best event," he said. "I dropped some time. It was my best time. I enjoyed it. I

BOYS BASKETBALL

League champs

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

With a huge crowd, television cameras and radio on hand, and a South Shore League title on the line, the Cohasset boys basketball team came up huge, beating visiting Mashpee 60-49 at Cohasset on Friday night.

The Skippers got 18 points from Shane Haggerty, 13 from Robert Jones and 12 from Sam Richardson, and the Skippers got a huge game on the boards from Kyrel Jaundoo to notch the win that gave Cohasset a share of the South Shore League title with Mashpee.

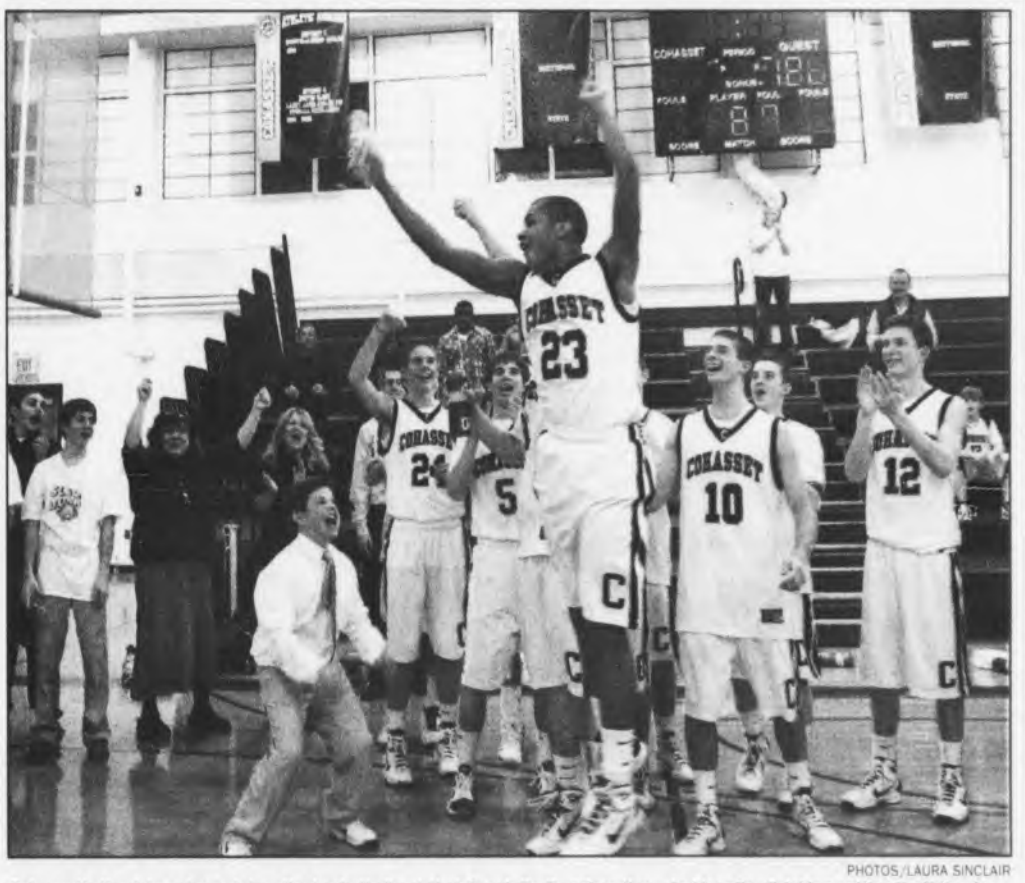
The Skippers won it outright on Sunday when Norwell edged Mashpee 47-46 in Norwell.

The game was close into the fourth quarter, with Cohasset clinging to a 47-45 lead with 4:12 left to play.

A three-pointer by Richardson, followed by a steal and layup by Jaundoo gave Cohasset a 52-45 lead with 3:41 to go.

The dagger came with 1:30 when Haggerty drained a three off an inbound pass with one second left on the shot clock to give the Skippers a 57-47 lead.

Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero was pleased with the win, and his team's intensity.



"The answer is very," Ruggiero said when asked if it was an exciting win. "This is a deserving group of players.

"The atmosphere was tailor made. It was a tribute to the game. The radio, press, TV were fantastic. The crowd was spirited and under control."

BOYS HOCKEY

Valiant battle

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The Cohasset boys hockey team battled valiantly to the end, but couldn't overcome a big first period deficit as they fell 5-4 to Rockland on Monday in a matinee at Rockland Ice Rink.

Rockland's Matt Kimlin Kevin Sheehan each scored two goals for the Bulldogs as Rockland jumped to a 4-1 lead in the first period.

Cohasset, who has already made the MIAA Tournament and has a 12-6-1 (9-4-1 South Shore League) gave it a battle, getting a goal from Sam Leahy with 13:09 left in the second period to cut the lead to 4-2.

Rockland upped their lead to 5-2 with 7:47 left in the third period, but Cohasset responded with two goals by in a ten-second span with just more than four minutes to play.

John Collins scored the first and Chris Cohen potted the second.

Cohasset finished with their goalie on the bench, but just missed out on tying it up.

"Late in the game we had four forwards going to the net," Cohasset coach Bob Walsh said.

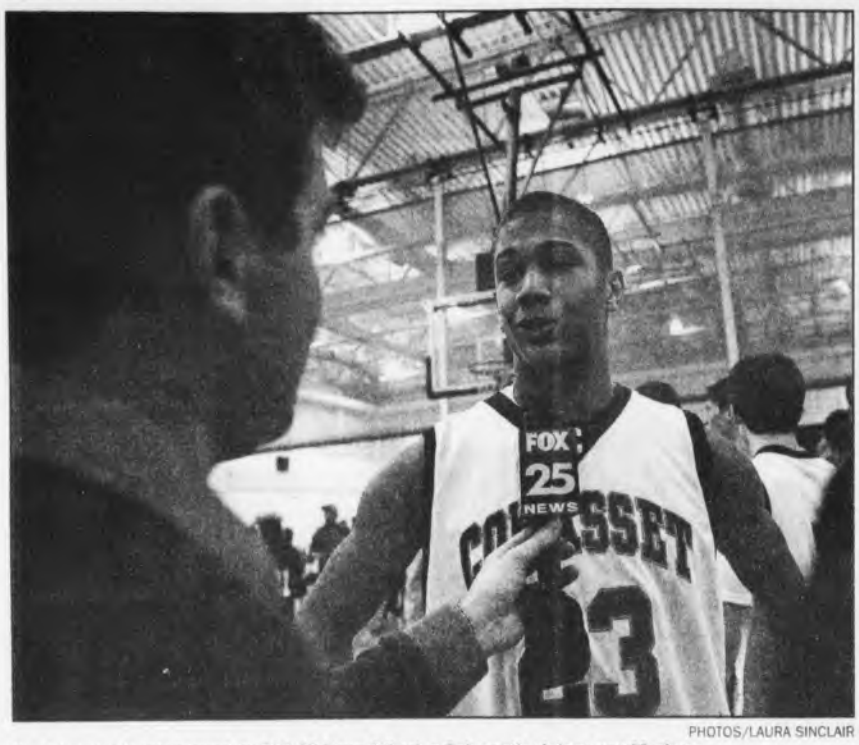
The Skippers played Old Rochester yesterday at Tabor Academy with a potential preliminary game at stake in the playoffs. A victory may keep Cohasset out of the preliminary round.

For Cohasset, it was a tough start.

After falling behind, Walsh made a change in net and brought in freshman Brandon Winn, who played extremely well, allowing just one goal.

At the same time last year, battling a rash of injuries, Cohasset was struggling to get a final point to make the tournament.

They fell short.



"It's a little comforting to have 25 points," Walsh said. "We've been playing well. We're hoping to get a better seed now. There are a lot of really good teams in our division. We actually played one of our best games of the season against Mansfield (4-1 loss to the upper division power). They only

For Jaundoo, the game was huge.

"This was the biggest game of my career in any sport," he said. "I couldn't be happier."

The first time the two teams played, Mashpee won at Mashpee.

"The last time we played them, they got the boards all night," Jaundoo said. "We watched films and felt like we didn't put in enough effort. Tonight I was just jumping my highest to get those balls over our heads."

Ruggiero was impressed.

"Kyrel was absolutely a raving daredevil using his athleticism and skill to grab rebounds," he said. "We got aggressive rebounding off the glass from Kyrel, Robbie and Shane. That caused them to foul."

The win wasn't perfect though.

Cohasset made just 11 of 29 free throws.

"If we're going to continue to win we have to put people away at the line," Ruggiero said.

After the game, when the opponent had left the building, a jubilant Skipper team celebrated and cut down the net in front of their big crowd.

They'll have a day to enjoy the win, then it's time to prepare for their next challenge.

The Skippers picked up the victory with a 74-43 win over South Shore Christian at home.

Jones scored 24 points for Skippers and Jaundoo chipped in with 13 points in the victory.

Cohasset finished up the regular season last night at Ashland.

The girls made a case for one of the top seeds with a 33-32 win in their regular season finale at Harwich on Wednesday to improve to 17-3 for the season.

Carli Haggerty had 11 points and 13 rebounds and Lindsey Davis added 7 points with 6 assists to lead the Skippers to a come-from-behind road win.

Cohasset trailed by 8 in the second half.

The Lady Skippers will now defend their Div. 4 State Championship.

Seedings for the boys and girls Div. 4 MIAA basketball tournament will be released today.

Opening Opportunities for Youths

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

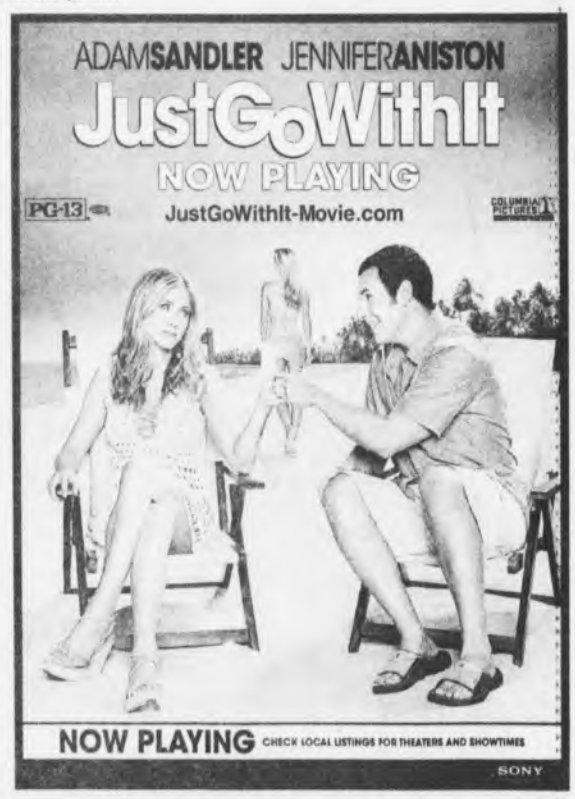
As one of five children raised by a single mother in Pittsburgh, I had plenty of opportunities to be up to no good. Fortunately, I also had role models and mentors at every turn who encouraged me to do better.

If I happened to be standing on the corner after school with friends, there were men who would ride by and tell me, "Get off the corner." My friends' fathers would check our behavior if they saw us doing something wrong. And in high school, I participated in Upward Bound through the University of Pittsburgh. The mentors I met through that program opened up worlds of academic and social success to me; their influence in my life was tremendous.

I know I owe my success to the mentors I had as a young person – and I believe that all youths deserve the same chances that I was given. So I'm proud that the University of Massachusetts Boston provides similar mentoring opportunities for our underserved youths through programs like Upward Bound, Urban Scholars, Success Boston, and Freshman Success Communities.

Because this is an issue so close to my heart, I'm truly excited to share that UMass Boston has launched a partnership with Washington, D.C.-based nonprofit MENTOR, which helps children by developing and delivering resources to mentoring programs nationwide, in addition to conducting research on effective mentoring.

I announced this partnership last month at the 2011 National Mentoring Summit in D.C., which was attended by leading mentoring organizations and researchers, along with government and civic leaders. First Lady Michelle Obama was keynote speaker.



The new UMass Boston/MENTOR Research Alliance will facilitate an exchange of mentoring research among scholars and policy makers, and use its findings to change the lives of our country's youths for the better. UMass Boston Professor of Psychology Jean Rhodes, a nationally recognized expert on youth mentoring, will serve as the Alliance's first research director and will hold the MENTOR/National Mentoring Partnership Endowed Chair.

MENTOR serves young people between the ages of 6 and 18; its work over the past 20 years has helped millions of youths find the support and guidance they need to build productive and meaningful lives. The UMass Boston/MENTOR Research Alliance will help MENTOR further develop standards for mentoring at-risk children.

At UMass Boston, we are dedicated to the success not only of our own students but also of the children in our communities. This new partnership will uncover even more ways to be involved in their lives. Personally, I can't think of a better way to "pay forward" the many advantages that I received from mentoring.

If you'd like more information on our new partnership, I encourage you to visit www.umb.edu/news. And if you'd like to learn firsthand what it's like to belong to a university that is committed to and invested in the success of all children, it's not too late: Prospective students have until April 1 to submit their applications for the fall semester.

Hoop it up

As coaches we always preach to our teams to play 32 minutes, to play until you hear the whistle. Well last Thursday the Weymouth Wildcats were listening. Down 5 points with less than 30 seconds left we rallied back for a 63-61 win to claim the Bay State League title for the first time since moving into the league 15 years ago. Congrats to all the league champions and to everyone who will be playing in the state tournament. Seedings will come out this Friday and in next weeks notebook we will preview the tournament teams.

Outstanding performances

Barrett Murphy had 27 points in Marshfield's win over Bridgewater - Raynham
Amanda McKenney scored 21 points in Braintree's win over Weymouth
Peter Marchetti poured in 20 points in Norwell's 47-46 win over Mashpee
Brenna Diggins had another double-double (22 and 21) in Norwell's win over Harwich
Erin Doherty scored a career-high 33 points in Marshfield's win over Sandwich
Dante Bittle had 26 points in Holbrook' victory over Norfolk Aggie
Jared Terrell had 19 points (5 in 5 seconds) in Weymouth's 63-61 win over Braintree
Jon Perez of Weymouth hit a buzzer beating jumpshot to beat Braintree 63-61
Nicole Beresford had 36 points in Marshfield's win over Nauset

Top SS Scorers

Barrett Murphy of Marshfield leads the Atlantic Coast League with 24.4 ppg
Curtis Owen of Duxbury leads the Patriot League with 16.5 ppg
Jared Terrell of Weymouth leads the Bay State League with 15.1 ppg
Nick Volpe of Norwell leads the South Shore League with 19.8 ppg
Damien Wilson of Abington is second in the South Shore League at 19.4 ppg
Amanda McKenney of Braintree is second in the Bay State at 15 ppg
Carli Haggerty of Cohasset is third in the South Shore League at 18.4 ppg

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse U9 program

CYL is excited to announce we will be offering a boys and girls U9 (1st/2nd grades) program for the spring 2011 season. Building off of the success we have had with the 1st/2nd grade clinic, we will be enhancing the program to include both an instructional skills/practice component as well as organized game action.

Here are some highlights for the program:

· Practice will be 60-90 minutes once a week

· Games will be on Saturday or Sunday with neighboring towns including Hingham, Norwell and Duxbury

· The girls and boys will have separate practice sessions and games to ensure the proper skills are being taught

· The season will start in early April and finish in early June

No experience is necessary and everyone is welcome to join. You can register by clicking on the link below:

https://www.sportspilot.com/register/regbegin.asp?asoid=105759

Fees for the U9 program are $150 per player, with family pricing of $120 for each additional family member. The price includes the field fee of $10 per player that the town charges to CYL. Scholarships are available for families facing unusual circumstances or financial difficulty. Please check the appropriate box on the on-line form.

If you have any issues with on-line access, or registration related questions you may contact Joe Fitzgerald at fitzpj8@aol.com.

If you would like to volunteer to help coach or administer the U9 program, please contact David Burke for the girls dburke@mpcprinting.com and Chris Arnold for the boys coarnold@comcast.net.

knew a lot of the kids I was racing. I finished second in my heat."

As a freshman, Indek has a long career ahead.

"A lot of kids who beat me this year are seniors," he said. "Some of them will be gone next year and I'm getting faster."

Along with his high school career, Indek hopes to have success with USA Swimming.

"I'd like to win the USA Swimming Nationals," he said. "I practice all year long, seven days a week. I practice before school."

scored three on us and an empty netter. I thought that game was the best three periods of hockey we've played."

Monday, Walsh liked the fight his team showed.

"The guys on the ice at the end I was really proud of the way they played," he said. "They didn't quit. They didn't give up. They played right to the end."

Cohasset was coming off a 5-3 win over Mashpee on Saturday night.

Five different players scored in that one – Sean McKenna, Anders Goetz, Terence Doonan, Vinny Calorio and Tommy O'Brien.

One big difference, aside from making the tournament, between last season and this season, is health.

This year's group looks ready to roll.

"We're healthy now," Walsh said. "In some ways it's tough because guys who are healthy might not get as much playing time as they used to, but it is good to be healthy."

Seedings for the MIAA Tournament will be announced on Saturday.

Gabe Synnott, 4, and his mother, Amee, take cover after the snowy owl explodes out of its birdhouse in a flurry.

Marcia and Mark Wilson read from the book, Owl Babies, before their program at the library on a recent Saturday.

A snowy owl shows off its brilliant coat and piercing yellow eyes to the parents and children at the Paul Pratt Library.

Kids connect with owls in library program

Nelleh Huxtable, 9-1/2 months, sports an owl hat while getting a closer look at an Eastern Screech Owl with the help of her mother Kelley.

Claire Murray, 4, rests in the lap of her mother, Sara Muciforo, while watching the Eyes on Owls program at the Paul Pratt Library.

Mark Wilson holds up a skull of a great horned owl over the head of a live great horned owl to show how much feathers surround the skull.

Dave Dugan and his son, Paul, 4, laugh at the call that an Eurasian Eagle Owl makes. Attendees practiced hooting skills, saw live owls close up and learned what owls prey on.

Kyle Peterson, 9, eyes an Eastern Screech owl before imitating its call. Mark Wilson of Eyes on Owls is holding the microphone.

SCHOOLS

Informative workshop for parents Tuesday

The Cohasset Special Education Parent Advisory Council presents "Brain Mapping and a Drug Free Approach to ADHD." The presentation will be held on Tuesday, March 1st at 7 to 9p.m. at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Parents of children on the Autistic Spectrum, kids who struggle with ADD/ADHD, Oppositional Defiance, OCD, Anxiety, and other special needs will benefit from this workshop.

Dr. Jolene Ross will be conducting the workshop. She has found that there is a large body of research supporting the effectiveness of neurofeedback, including its use in treating special needs children. A sample of this research will be presented. Attendees will see pre- and post-treatment brain maps and hear about the improvements these children experienced as a result of neurofeedback.

This workshop will also discuss that research has uncovered a little known brain mapping technique that allows us to diagnosis and treat difficulties when most every other technique has failed.

Ross is a licensed psychologist and is the director of Advanced Neurotherapy, PC, Foundation for Wellness Professionals.

Please go to our website at www.cohassetsepac.org for more information on upcoming events in Cohasset and throughout the South Shore. Attendance is free and refreshments will be served.

Pilgrim Arena offers scholarships

Applications for ten $5,000 scholarships are available at the Pilgrim Skating Arena, 75 Recreation Park Drive in Hingham.

This is the 37th consecutive year that the Pilgrim Skating Arena is awarding scholarships to area high school seniors planning to further their education.

Interested seniors must pick up and sign for the application in person at the arena pro shop. Completed applications must be returned by Friday, April 15.

Applicants will be judged by members of the Scholarship Committee of the Board of Directors at Pilgrim Arena.

For more information, please call Hoby Taylor, 781-749-6660.

Rockland Trust announces annual scholarships

Rockland Trust will award five $2,500 college scholarships to graduating high school seniors, in their annual scholarship competition. Students graduating from high school in 2011 and who are residents of Plymouth County, Barnstable County, Bristol County or the towns of Cohasset, Stoughton, Randolph, Braintree, Weymouth, Quincy, Wellesley or Watertown, are eligible to apply. Applicants must be in the top 50 percent of their graduating class and will be scored based on academic achievement, community involvement and an essay question. Five winners will be selected.

Applications will be accepted until March 18. Applications and complete guidelines are available in all 70 Rockland Trust branch locations. For more information, call 800-222-2299 or visit www.RocklandTrust.com.

Kindergarten registration

Kindergarten registration for the 2011-2012 school year is at the Osgood School daily from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Parents registering for kindergarten will be asked to indicate interest in full-day or half-day kindergarten at the time of registration, but they do not have to commit at this time. Parents are encouraged to register early to facilitate planning for programs. A birth certificate and proof of residency are required for kindergartners in order to register. Call the school office at 781-838-6117 for more information.

Cohasset Education Foundation needs your input

The rejuvenated CEF has entered its fifth year. Thanks to the enthusiasm and support of the community, school administration, teachers and board, the CEF has been able to positively impact the quality of education in Cohasset.

Grants from the CEF impact every student in the Cohasset Public Schools every week. In the past five years, the CEF has awarded over $550,000 in grants to our schools. Our Endowment Fund, which secures the long-term health of our schools and our town, has grown to over $450,000.

As they look ahead and plan for the next five years, they would like to hear from you, the stakeholders. As part of their strategic planning process, the CEF will be conducting a series of focus group discussions during the first two weeks of March. Your input is important. Only with broad community support will the CEF continue to be able to award the high impact grants that have made such a difference for our children's education.

If you are interested in participating in a focus group, contact CEF President Mary McGoldrick at info@cohasseteducation.org.

Garden Club Federation offers scholarships

Scholars from Cohasset and other Massachusetts communities can look to the Garden Club Federation of MA, Inc. (GCFM) for a helping hand with tuition. The GCFM is currently accepting scholarship applications from qualified high school seniors, college students, and graduate students for 11 different scholarships. And its parent organization, National Garden Clubs, Inc. (NGC), is offering additional scholarships to Massachusetts college juniors, seniors, and graduate students sponsored by the GCFM.

Scholarships are available for students majoring in agronomy, biology, botany, city planning, conservation, environmental studies, floriculture, forestry, horticulture, land management, landscape design, and allied subjects. Three of the scholarships require that the student attend the University of Massachusetts, while the rest are unrestricted.Applicants must reside in Massachusetts, have a minimum grade average of B (3.0 on a 4.0 scale), exhibit good character, and demonstrate financial need. Applications and financial aid forms can be obtained at http://www.gcfm.org/Education/Scholarships/GCFMA.aspx. The deadline for submitting applications is March 1, 2011.

For further inquiries, email gcfmscholarship@aol.com or contact the GCFM scholarship secretary, Kathie Jones, at 413-458-2886.

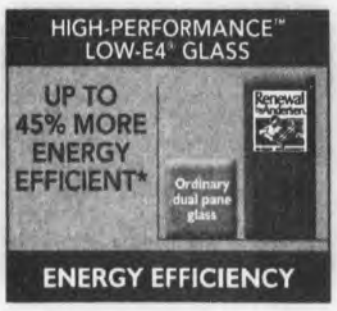
Right now, our Thermal Leak Detector Analysis is FREE

During our Winter Window Diagnosis, our Thermal Leak Detectors:

- Use an infrared thermometer to help find those energy-wasting cold spots.
- Identify your most drafty windows, so you can then choose the six you want replaced and SAVE $1,000.
- Are most effectively used in the cold months, therefore schedule your FREE Thermal Leak Detector Analysis now.

During the winter, nobody wants to replace all of their windows, but for a limited time, save $1,000 when you replace just your six most-drafty windows.

And our Thermal Leak Detector Analysis will help identify your six worst windows—the ones you hate because they make your house so cold!



Most people don't realize that winter is actually one of the smartest times of the year to have new replacement windows installed. In the frigid, dry air, the wood framing surrounding your windows completely contracts, thereby creating the largest window frame openings. Your windows are then custom built to those specific dimensions and will have the tightest fit possible when installed.

REPLACE YOUR 6 WORST WINDOWS AND

NO INTEREST FOR 5 YEARS![1]
WHICH MEANS SMALLER PAYMENTS FOR 5 WHOLE YEARS![2]

Slash your energy bills.
You'll save money because each of our double-hung windows has up to 14 weather seals, and our High-Performance™ Low-E4® Glass is up to 45% more energy-efficient in the winter.* In addition, this glass blocks 83% of harmful UV rays from getting inside, while keeping your expensive heat from escaping outside.

You don't need yet another negative experience with a home improvement company.
A positive home improvement experience is rare, but from the get-go, we'll provide you with an exact price—not a loose estimate. And even after the installation is complete, your job isn't done until you sign off on our Zero Defect checklist. Over the last three years, 98.7% of our customers have gladly signed the checklist right away!

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
MARCH 7, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might feel more encouraged about changes in your personal and/or professional life. However, it might be best not to rush things but rather work with them as they evolve.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's business sense is especially keen this week. But remember that it's always best to investigate before investing. Make sure there are no hidden factors that can rise up later on.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Working on a family project could create tension between and among those concerned. Your good sense and your patience can help reduce bad attitudes and raise positive feelings.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You should be seeing more progress in the development of your plans and more supporters joining in. News from the past could help change someone's long-held position.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With personal aspects strong this week, Leos and Leonas might want to spend more time with family and others who are especially close to them. Also expect news of a possible career change.

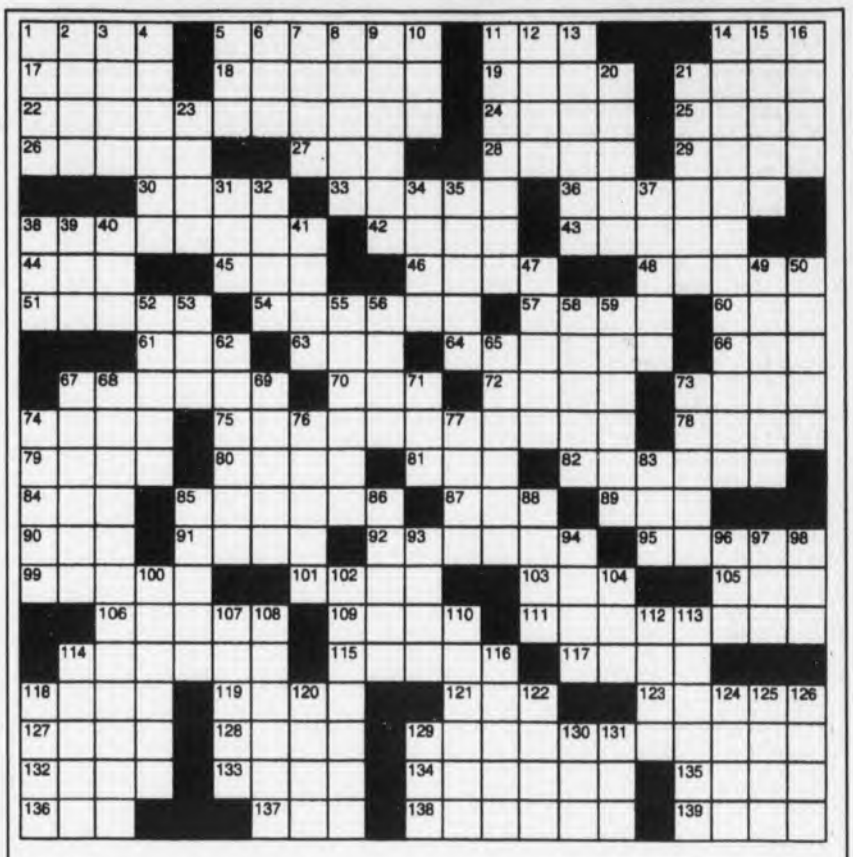
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Taking a strong stand can be helpful this week. But be careful you don't cross the line into obstinacy. Best to take a position on facts as they are, not as you want them to be.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have a strong sense of the needs of others. This week, turn some of that sensitivity into an honest self-appraisal, and let it find places where you can help yourself.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creating an emotional comfort zone to handle a personal problem helps at first. But by midweek, you'll realize you need to deal with it directly or it could linger for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Turning the page on a mistake to start fresh might not be the thing to do. Better to go over each step that led up to the decision you made and see which one misled you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Goats enjoy a varied diet, but eating crow isn't on the menu — at least not this week. An embarrassing situation might have gone wrong before you got into it. Check it out.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your sense of honesty might impel you to speak up about a situation you disapprove of. That's fine. But do so without sounding accusatory. You might not know all the facts behind it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Being asked to create a reassuring attitude in the middle of chaos isn't easy, but you can do it. Support for your efforts comes slowly, but it does come. Enjoy an arts-filled weekend.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Food drive to replenish pantries

As the current economic crisis deepens for many South Shore families, a consortium of Unitarian Universalist congregations has organized a food drive, to take place on March 5, that will help replenish area food pantries.

On a recent afternoon, at the Stop & Shop in Hingham, Peggy Ulrich-Nims of Norwell, and Jane Shute of Hingham, explained that the group is appealing to the greater community to join this effort by purchasing — between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. — nonperishable food items, which will be donated to local food pantries.

Participating stores include Stop & Shops in Norwell, Pembroke, Hingham, Braintree, Plymouth and Cohasset; Shaw's in Braintree, Cohasset and Plymouth; Foodies in Duxbury; Village Market in Scituate; and The Market at Pine Hill in Plymouth.

Groceries will be distributed to food pantries in Scituate, Norwell, Hanover, Duxbury, Cohasset, Braintree, Holidays/Friends and Marge Crispin Social Services Center in Braintree, the Greater Plymouth Food Warehouse and Wellspring in Hull.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families, often through the services of a funeral director.

Brian Brennan

COHASSET – Brian Brennan of Rustic Drive, Cohasset passed away suddenly on Saturday, the 19th of February at the age of 54. He was a world traveler, an amazingly determined worker, and an all-around brilliant man. He was a loving and supportive husband and father, and his warmth and vitality was matched only by his selflessness. Brian was exceedingly musical, and never without a smile. His wisdom and kindness was felt by all those he surrounded himself with, and his presence and enormous personality will surely leave behind a void in each of our lives. A memorial service will be held at the First Parish Church on North Main Street in Cohasset on Monday, February 28th at 4 pm. As a survivor of prostate cancer, Brian's family asks that in lieu of flowers, donations in his memory be made to: Dana Farber Cancer Institute, 10 Brookline Place West, 6th Floor, Brookline MA 02445.

CAMP, SCHOOL AND ACTIVITIES DIRECTORY

DAY CAMP MAY MEAN TAX CREDIT

By Bette Bussel – Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

Day camps provide an excellent and educational way for children to spend the summer months. In addition to the physical, mental, and social benefits of the camp experience for their children, there's an additional bonus that parents who work or attend school can cash in on.

Many people don't realize that summer day camp tuition may qualify for tax credit. In this challenging economic climate, this little known fact is especially relevant. Parents want their kids to enjoy a summer at camp while having fun and gaining skills that prepare them for college and adulthood. This tax credit may make that a little easier for some families.

To qualify for tax savings, parents must have dependent children under the age of 13 enrolled in a day camp and must either be employed or a full-time student; because the day camp allows parents to work or attend school, its fees can be considered dependent-care expenses. In 2010, some parents received a tax credit for up to 35% of the cost of day camp ($1,050 for one child or $2,100 for two or more children). Tax benefits vary depending on household income and other factors; parents are encouraged to consult a professional accountant or tax advisor to find out if they qualify and for how much. Jasper White launches Celebrity Chef series at Hingham Summer Shack

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Jasper White serves up classic New England seafood in relaxed style at his Summer Shack restaurants, but the legendary Boston chef plans at least a temporary return to his fine dining roots next month when he launches a Celebrity Chef series at his newest Summer Shack at Hingham's Derby Street Shoppes. Joining White for the March 2 kick-off will be Ming Tsai – owner and chef at Wellesley's Blue Ginger and star of PBS-TV's "Simply Ming."

White has given only a few up-front stipulations to Tsai and his other guest chefs – including Jody Adams of Rialto in Cambridge, March 16; Barbara Lynch of Boston's No. 9 Park, March 30; Jason Santos, a 2010 finalist on NBC-TV's "Hell's Kitchen" and chef at Somerville's Gargoyle's on the Square, April 13; White's one-time dining room partner at Providence's Biltmore and Boston's Parker House, Copley Plaza, and Bostonian hotels Lydia Shire, who now presides over Boston's venerable Lock-Ober and the recently opened Towne at the Hynes Convention Center, April 20; and, rounding out the series on a date not yet determined, Todd English, who has branched out from his original Olive's in Charlestown to New York, Los Angeles, and Las Vegas, and regular stints on HSN-TV selling his eponymous cookware

Chef Ming Tsai will kick-off Jasper White's Celebrity Chef series at Summer Shack in Hingham's Derby Street Shoppes.

"They'll all be creating seafood-inspired menus of their own food. Each chef will do three savory courses plus dessert. And there will be special wines to go with each course. I'm planning to visit each of them in advance to make sure that we plan everything that they will need," explained White by telephone recently from his Summer Shack at Mohegan Sun in Uncasville, Conn. "Ming is doing hamachi sashimi, Thai-spiced mahi mahi, his Blue Ginger surf and turf of lobster and steak, and bittersweet chocolate cake with cardamom ice cream for dessert."

White believes diners will like what they taste, but cautions them not to expect a menu.

"These events are for food lovers who eat everything. The menu will be set by the celebrity chefs and there will be no choices. I think there are a lot of people on the South Shore who may be experiencing these chefs for the first time. There will be some glimpses of the kitchen and the chefs will be in the dining room explaining each course."

The 50-something White, a graduate of the Culinary School of America who operated Jasper's Restaurant on Boston's waterfront from 1983 to 1995, says he has great respect for his guest chefs. He doesn't hesitate, however, when asked what celebrity chef – living or dead – is his personal favorite.

"It would definitely be August Escoffier, the father of classical French cooking. He is the person who codified French haute cuisine. His 'Le Guide Culinaire' was and is the book on French cooking. He died a long time ago, but I often think how much I would like to have met him."

And what if Escoffier were to have invited White to dinner?

"I would eat anything he wanted to cook."

Jasper White will present his Celebrity Chef Series at Summer Shack, 96 Derby Street Shoppes, Hingham. The March 2 event, featuring Ming Tsai, is already sold out. For more information, visit summershackrestaurant.com or call 781-740-9555.

TOWN COMMONS

FEB. 24 - MAR. 4, 2011

This time, S.O.S. means 'Save Our Symphony'

ATLANTIC OVERTURES

ROY HARRIS

Atlantic Symphony Orchestra with Maestro Jin Kim.

After a series of columns in which I've trumpeted the glorious, well-attended concerts of the South Shore's Atlantic Symphony Orchestra – and the wonderful professional musicians who make it such an audience favorite – I fear this Atlantic Overtures must sound a starkly different theme.

Music is a kind of language. And we who love the ASO often live in the afterglow of its great performances. So, if this column were a Schubert symphony, its "first movement" would offer a rousing depiction of this year's programs so far. You'd hear the enthusiastic children crowding Braintree's Thayer Academy, delighting as popular Maestro Jin Kim led a Jan. 30 Discovery Concert that featured Rob Kapilow's enchanting Green Eggs & Ham. Then there would come the chatter as they engaged ASO musicians in conversation at the annual "instrument showcase" – a rare opportunity for students whose schools have cut arts programs, not to mention Boston field trips to Symphony Hall.

There'd be a passage on "Angelo" Yu's talk at Bridgeman's Restaurant in Hull, where the ASO's young violinist described his career path from Mongolia to New England. The highlight: how he won Norway's 2010 International Menuhin Competition, after being grounded in Iceland by a volcano and nearly missing it entirely. (He only "escaped" because a friendly pilot miraculously provided him with a cockpit seat on an overbooked plane.) And the column's opening movement would end with a flourish about last Sunday's time-warping ASO Chamber Concert, filling Hingham's historic 17th-Century Old Ship Church with Stravinsky's 20th-Century masterpiece L'Histoire du Soldat ("A Soldier's Tale.")

Several ASO Board members and Trustees already have stepped up with additional four-figure checks, and this could inspire others – and perhaps even one or two philanthropic "angels" – to join in the S.O.S. campaign.

But unfortunately, the inspiring opening strains of this newspaper "symphony" end here. Now comes the brooding and mysterious second movement – where the outcome is decidedly uncertain.

Last week, stern-faced ASO volunteer Board members and Trustees met to discuss an ominous development for the South Shore's premiere, 14-year-old all-professional orchestra (formerly known as the Hingham Symphony.) Put simply, last fall's Annual Appeal for financial support from traditional ASO donors failed to replace significant lost revenue – most notably after the deaths of some major benefactors. As the ASO's leaders have often pointed out, the price of a concert ticket pays less than one-third the cost of the orchestra's season, with gifts from individual music-lovers and corporate sponsors being the keys to our solvency.

In recent months, we have operated in the red – a situation that cannot continue much longer. In his first year as Executive Director, veteran orchestra administrator Ronald Vigue has made significant strides in building corporate support and establishing a grant process that we feel certain will help restore the ASO to financial health, and spur more individual giving. But realistically, much of that funding won't be available until next year. As responsible overseers who must pay our bills – and our fabulous musicians – we see that things must change, both short-term and long-term.

A "Save Our Symphony" letter went out to ASO supporters last week – followed by phone calls – describing the crisis and asking for additional help. We believe those music-lovers will offer financial assistance now that they know our need. This is the same "audience," after all, that rose for standing ovations at this season's opening concerts. By sitting down now to write a check, these supporters can revive the season, and set the stage for "sustainability" in 2012, when our long-term corporate and grant campaigns can kick in.

The ASO has a relatively modest budget – less than $350,000 a year – certainly an amount that our South Shore individual and corporate supporters should be willing to pay. They know the innumerable, precious benefits of having live classical music performed in our communities by a first-rate professional orchestra. Several ASO Board members and Trustees already have stepped up with additional four-figure checks, and this could inspire others – and perhaps even one or two philanthropic "angels" – to join in the S.O.S. campaign. Now that the community knows what it stands to lose, we hope that not only dollars will pour in, but also ideas about how to make our orchestra financially sustainable.

A simple call made to the ASO offices at 781-331-3600, pledging a donation, or an e-mail to Ron Vigue at rgv@atlanticsymphony.org, could have the wonderful result of reducing the need for cuts in our 2011 schedule. We have numerous sponsorship opportunities, with promotional benefits, for both corporate and individual sponsors – especially at higher "sustaining" levels.

I know a column like this is no fun to read. Believe me, it's even harder to write. Like most of the works of Schubert – my favorite composer – this column, too, should end with a triumphal final section that resolves all the earlier brooding, and fills the audience with promise.

We all must recognize, however, that his most famous symphony was "The Unfinished." That's not the way we want our season, or our orchestra's vital mission on the South Shore, to end.

Roy Harris, a Hingham business journalist, is co-president of the Board of Directors of the Atlantic Symphony Orchestra.

New superintendent chosen

Barbara Cataldo gets the offer

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"I'm very excited. Cohasset schools are in a great place right now and I want to be a part of it."
— Barbara Cataldo

The Cohasset School District has a new superintendent: Ms. Barbara Cataldo, the current assistant superintendent in Milford, Mass.

Her selection was unanimous. Members of the school committee praised Cataldo's interpersonal skills, background in special education, collaborative approach and technological savvy.

"I think she (will) be a breathe of fresh air in this district," said school committee member Jeanne Astino.

The School Committee members each weighed in on the three finalist candidates on Wednesday night and had good things to say about all of them. The other candidates were James Kelleher, current assistant superintendent in Scituate, and Kimberly Shaver-Hood, superintendent of schools for Blackstone/Millville Regional.

But, it was Cataldo they felt fit all the qualities the town was looking for in a new educational leader.

Town finances need work

Auditor finds deficiencies; many are being addressed

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For more than six years the town's annual financial audit has not seen the light of day at a public meeting.

On Tuesday night that all changed — and it turns out the town has had a lot to work on the past few years.

Since 2005 many of the same comments, concerns and findings in the audit have been repeated.

For this year's audit, Tony Roselli of Roselli, Clark & Associates found five significant deficiencies within the town's financial realm that need to be addressed along with about 12 other issues of concern.

With new leadership in place — a search is underway for a town manager, an interim town manager in the meantime and a new finance director is on board — Roselli said the town is entering a time of "pretty significant transition."

"The town should really take this document, read it, analyze it, name a task force, just really look at it and correct the issues. The town can start from here and begin to turn the page," Roselli said.

The annual audit takes a look and evaluates how well the town is being run from a financial standpoint. It looks at internal controls, processes, policies, and financial statements to identify weaknesses and ways to increase efficiency. In total, Roselli found four "significant deficiencies," the mid-level name for severity of deficiency.

Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard responded to the audit to inform the Bear Hill access road granted

Selectmen's vote was unanimous

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Board of Selectmen gave the Water Commission the go ahead to build an access road to the Bear Hill water tank on town-owned land off Reservoir Road.

The decision came on Tuesday night after more than three hours of discussion and concluded with a bleary-eyed audience and Selectmen shortly after midnight.

The controversial issue has spent hours before the Selectmen over the past two years and has been strongly and consistently opposed to by the surrounding Reservoir Road/Pleasant Street neighborhood.

The approval of the access road paves the way for the installation of AT&T cell

The approval of the access road paves the way for the installation of the AT&T cell antenna on the water tank as well as creating a second, shorter entry point for emergency, maintenance and construction vehicles working on the tank going forward.

Minivan crashes into Marylou's

Mechanical failure has not been ruled out

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"The accident appears to have been the result of a mechanical problem — that is based upon witness and driver statements at this point — but the experts will weigh in on that at a later time."
— Lt. William Quigley

People flock from all over to get their jolt of caffeine at Marylou's Coffee, but last Friday morning (Feb. 25) the staff and a regular customer got a different kind of jolt.

At about 7:20a.m. a 2004 Toyota Sienna driven by a 42-year-old Weymouth woman, drove through the front doors of the Marylou's News at 130 King St. and into the store.

"There were three of us working behind the counter, but I was the only one facing the car when it came crashing through," said store manager Alyson Robson. "It felt like I was in a movie…it all happened so fast."

Police Lt. William Quigley said the driver was pulling into a space in front of Marylou's at Jonathan Livingston Square, a small strip mall, when she stopped and her minivan suddenly accelerated.

"We were lucky no one was in the store at the time," Robson said. No one was injured in the accident.

The minivan took down the front of the building and drove through the length of the coffee shop, hitting and crushing a Pepsi cooler that was pushed into the office at the rear of the building by the impact. A construction worker said if the Pepsi cooler had not helped stop the force of the car, the car could have gone right out the back wall.

The counter that runs down the right of the building was not hit.

Cohasset police said they would contact the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration (NHTSA) to see if they wanted to examine the Toyota Sienna in light of Toyota's recent recalls involving this particular issue.

This week, Lt William Quigley said the NHTSA (National Highway Transportation Safety Administration) is aware of the accident and has opened a case file on it. An investigator from Toyota USA has contacted Cohasset police and will be following up with insurance and repair companies, he said.

Quigley said the minivan, which was impounded after the accident, has been released to a repair shop. He said that Toyota investigators would have the ability to download detailed information from the vehicle's "black box" data recorder, which could provide more information about the operation of the car.

"Our local investigation is done as of now," Quigley said. "The accident appears to have been the result of a mechanical problem — that is based upon witness and driver statements at this point — but the experts will weigh in on that at a later time."

Quigley said the driver said the operation of the car seemed normal until it suddenly accelerated on its own. He said she reported hitting the brakes but the car kept going. The air bags did not go off.

The building inspector, wiring inspector, board of health and fire and police all responded to the scene last Friday.

This Marylou's location is a relatively new; it opened this past summer. By 11a.m. that morning a construction crew were already cleaning up the shop and beginning work on reconstructing the building.

"Everyone still wants their coffee," Robson said with a smile as a customer came in to see if they were still serving.

Those who could not live long without their Marylou's did not have to wait long. The coffee shop reopened a few days after the accident.

Planning Board position open

Due to a resignation the Planning Board will now have a three-year position available for the upcoming election on May 7. Member Jean Healey Dippold, who is moving, tendered her resignation effective Feb. 24. She was elected to the Planning Board in 2009.

Nomination papers are available for the position at the Town Clerk's office until Thursday, March 17.

POLICE BEAT

Marshfield man charged with OUI

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Cohasset police arrested a 45-year-old Marshfield man who, Scituate police reported, had left the scene of an accident in that town. The BOLO (be on the lookout) came in at about 6:18 p.m. on Sunday (Feb. 27) and provided a good description of the Dodge Ram pickup truck and driver. Cohasset police stopped the pickup on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) by Hingham Lumber. The driver exhibited the signs and symptoms of intoxication and failed several field sobriety tests, police said. He was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol and operating to endanger. He is also facing Scituate charges, police said.

Protective custody

At 9:26 p.m. on Monday (Feb. 21) a caller from Papa Gino's notified police about a man that appeared to be intoxicated, was stumbling around and relieved himself on the side of the building.

Police responded and placed a 19-year-old Cohasset man in protective custody. He admitted to having been drinking, was unsteady on his feet and slurring his words, police said. He was later released to his father.

Hit a deer

At 7:23 p.m. on Tuesday (Feb. 22), a 64-year-old Scituate woman, who had been traveling south on Route 3A, reported that just past Stop & Shop she struck a deer that darted out. The impact caused heavy front-end damage to her car. She was able to make it to the Shaw's parking lot where she could safely pull over and notify police. Her car was towed; she was not injured. The deer ran off.

Hit a cat

A 20-year-old Cohasset man reported to police that his 1998 Nissan Sentra hit a cat on S. Main Street by Summer Street last Wednesday (Feb. 23) at about 4 p.m. The cat ran off, police said.

Assault & battery

A 54-year-old local business owner has given a former customer, a 70-year-old Norwell woman, a verbal no-trespass order after she allegedly slapped him in the face following a dispute over a bill, police said. The call came in at 12:53 p.m. on Thursday (Feb. 24). No charges were filed. Police contacted the woman at home who denied slapping the business owner, police said.

MV accident

At 7:30 p.m. on Friday (Feb. 25), there was a two-car accident at Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A) and Beechwood Street. Police said a 52-year-old Scituate woman in a 2006 Ford Expedition pulled out of Coastal Nissan to head north but failed to grant room and hit the side of a 2011 Nissan sedan operated by a 24-year-old Revere man, who was also traveling north. There was damage to both vehicles but neither was towed. The Scituate woman was cited for failure to use caution when entering a state highway.

Suspicious car

At 1:32 p.m. on Friday (Feb. 25) a resident of Tad Lane reporting some suspicious activity. The caller saw an unfamiliar green, 4-door sedan with four teenagers inside. The car tried to come down the caller's driveway but turned around when they saw the caller. Police said the neighborhood is on high alert following the stolen car incident two weeks ago. Police encourage residents to call when they see anything suspicious.

MV accident

A 7:30 p.m. on Friday (Feb. 25), police responded to a two-car accident on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A) by upper King Street. Police said a 22-year-old Scituate woman in a 2003 Chevrolet pickup headed north was attempting to make a left from 3A onto upper King when she pulled into the path of a 2005 Chevrolet pickup, operated by a 17-year-old Hingham boy who was headed south, causing him to hit the side of her vehicle. The 2005 pickup was towed.

There were no reported injuries. The Scituate woman was cited for failure to yield, police said.

Erratic operation

Police stopped a 2007 Lexus SUV, operated by an 82-year-old Milton man, after it was reported by Hingham police as swerving all over the road coming up East Street in Hingham onto North Main Street. The report came in at 2:38 p.m. on Saturday (Feb. 26). An officer on patrol pulled the Lexus over. As it turned out the driver checked out OK. He was working for a delivery company and was looking for an address; he was unfamiliar with the area, police said.

One article on Special Town Meeting warrant

The Special Town Meeting scheduled for Monday, March 14 will have one article. The article will deal with covering the $265,000 deficit found in the water department's budget during the recent audit. If approved, the article will ask for a transfer from the stabilization fund to the water department's budget.

In a change from past practice the Special Town Meeting will be held in the high school auditorium. Interim town manager Steve Lombard said he looked up historical data on the attendance at special town meetings over the past few years. Only one had close to 500 attendees, a number the auditorium can handle.

Lombard did have some concerns with the one article warrant in getting a 100-citizen quorum.

"It is an important meeting to be at, if we don't (approve the article) the tax bills won't go out again," Lombard said.

Holly Hill Farm to host home compost workshop

A Home Composting Workshop will be offered at Holly Hill Farm, 236 Jerusalem Road, from 10 a.m. to noon, on Saturday March 12. This workshop will cover the basics of building an outdoor compost pile using food scraps and yard waste as well as how to create an indoor worm composting bin. Participants will learn how easy it is to create "black gold" to naturally fertilize plants. Cost is $10 for Friends of Holly Hill Farm members, $15 for non-members. A starter compost bin with red wiggler worms will be provided for an additional $35 charge.

Pre-registration suggested. Call 781-383-6565 or email jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com. For directions: visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

Many deficiencies are being addressed

Selectmen and the town that the issues identified were beginning to be addressed (see sidebar).

Roselli's first finding echoes a conclusion from the recent water and sewer audit done by another firm: there were limited personnel resources for the amount of capital projects undertaken since 1997. Since the late 90s the town has built three new schools, totaling over $50 million, and undergone water and sewer improvements totaling $45 million.

"The town needed a separate person to manage that process," Roselli said. In addition to overseeing the finances of the town, the finance office was saddled with sorting out the contracts, financing, debt service and state and federal reporting requirements of the capital undertakings.

"Someone needed to ask with these major projects, major initiatives, can we do it with the personnel we have?" Roselli said.

Beyond these more recent capital projects the town's total debt tops $70 million and makes up almost 20 percent of the annual operating budget, a significant amount. During Roselli's audit he found the record keeping and maintenance of the town's debt service obligations were not adequate.

"There is over $70 million in debt and no one really had a handle on it," Roselli said. "It was an important area, but now it's critical."

To compound the issue, Roselli said, the town's finances were being administered with an out-of-date accounting software system. The software system is still in use today within the town. It lacks integration between departments and necessitates a redundancy of data entry.

The good news is Lombard has known this issue since day one. He and other town officials are currently looking at four software options, all of which will integrate the school's finances.

Roselli said a new accounting software system should be the number-one priority of the town.

Lombard said it will take time to migrate the town over to a new software system, but if approval for purchase is given at Town Meeting, he expects full implementation by the end of Fiscal 2012 (June 2012).

Lack of policies and procedures

One of the significant deficiencies within the town was the lack of formally documented policies, procedures and controls for key financial transactions, including cash, tax/utility billing, departmental receipts, purchasing, vendor disbursements, employee benefits and payroll.

Roselli said the incorporation of the new accounting software system is an ideal time to create a uniform way of handling financial issues because the procedures can be tailored to the software's capabilities.

The lack of a centralized human resources function has resulted in the absence of key employee related paperwork.

The Roselli town financial audit also addressed issues within the town's water and sewer enterprise funds. The issues within the water and sewer departments, the report said, has been consistent over the past five years, Roselli said.

Another significant deficiency has to do with purchasing and procurement policies. He suggested a purchase order system be established as well as having the town accountant sign and maintain all contracts.

Other issues identified had to do with establishing fraud prevention measures (including creating a limited internal audit process), security of the town's sensitive financial and employee information and securing federally required paperwork from all employees.

An annual event

The presentation of the town's annual financial audit is set to become an annual event.

Members of the Advisory Committee and Board of Selectmen made the commitment to ensure Tony Roselli makes an annual pilgrimage to Cohasset.

The audit contract, which costs $27,500 this past year, includes an exit conference with town officials, Roselli said. He often meets with town officials prior to conducting the audit to get a sense of the areas to focus on, what has been done to improve over the last year. The annual town financial audit also includes a review of the school's finances.

Over the past few years Roselli has turned in his audit, but not been asked to present to the Selectmen or the Advisory Committee, Roselli said in the past he used to come every year. It's unclear why there was this change in routine.

"We want to see you on an annual basis," said Sam Wakeman, chair of the Advisory Committee.

More than having the presentation Advisory Committee member Peter Pescatore said his main concern was with the follow-up on the audit results within the town.

"We should have a session on it at least quarterly," Pescatore said.

What has Town done to begin to resolve the issues?

Since interim Town Manager Steve Lombard took over in November he has looked to identify problems and work to resolve them. Lombard said he concurred with the audit management letter and has found many of the issues challenging.

"I feel that we have addressed many of the issues and will continue to address them as they come up. These problems have been here for some time and it will take time to straighten them out. It will take a commitment from everyone and support from the Board of Selectmen to continue these policies," Lombard said.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley commended Lombard and his team for the strides made over the past few months.

"A great deal has taken place in the last few months than has changed in the last few years," Quigley said. "Now that we know the issues, shame on us if we don't stay on it."

Here are some of the initiatives that have taken place over the past few months:

- Placed a spending freeze on all town departments in November as water audit cast uncertainty over town's financial state.
- Working to identify a new financial software system for the whole town.
- Removed every unauthorized person from access to the accounting system.
- Reconciled the town's debt service.
- Hired new Finance Director/Town Accountant John Stanbrook.
- Instituted requirement that bills to be paid have to be signed and approved by department manager, board, committee or commission.
- Improved security around the Treasurer's office.
- Starting in Fiscal 2012 (July 1) all town departments will be using a purchase order system. All purchases must have a purchase order approved before making any purchases.
- Re-organization of the offices in Town Hall to improve communication within the finance department.
- Establishment of a human resources officer/payroll specialist.
- Procurement procedures improved. Current contracts will be reviewed and all contracts going forward will be signed by the town manager and town accountant.
- Departments will be receiving monthly expenditure reports.

Facilities manager leaving for Marshfield job

By Mary Jane Hanron
MJHANRON@CNC.COM

Facilities manager Brian Adams is leaving Cohasset to take a similar position in his hometown of Marshfield.

Adams has served as the town's first and only facilities manager since 2004. He oversaw the care and maintenance of town-owned property, including schools, municipal buildings and landmarks listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Adams was selected from three finalists who Marshfield selectmen interviewed during their Feb. 14 meeting. The town received 60 applications for the position.

"I'm excited and energetic," he said. "I'm looking forward to new challenges and working in my hometown."

His first day at Marshfield facilities manager will be March 28. Numerous items await Adams in his new position as facilities manager in Marshfield.

He will begin his work in Marshfield as significant projects loom in the town's future, including the possible construction of a new high school and renovations at Marshfield library.

Aware of the major projects facing the town, Adams said he is prepared to participate as needed in overseeing and facilitating any future plans. In addition to going from two staff to none, he said differences from his work in Cohasset include more buildings, more square footage and different staffing levels in maintenance and custodial duties.

"I know there are lots of challenges in Marshfield," he said. "But the idea and thought behind the management process are basically the same."

Once he has an initial inventory of the projects in need of completion, Adams said maintaining them would become a regular part of the job. A graduate of Massachusetts Maritime Academy, the father of two daughters said he is pleased to continue his career closer to home and in a seaside community.

"There is a lot to be done here. I hope to help bring the facilities and buildings in the town to a new level. This is my home and where my wife and I are raising our two daughters. There is a lot at stake for the town's future, and I am excited to be part of it," he said.

Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard informed the Board of Selectmen of the resignation at Tuesday's meeting. He said he expects to have a current employee in the department serve as an interim facilities manager until a permanent plan can be solidified.

"We really need to define what the position is," Lombard said. "We're going to be looking at the whole operation."

Reporter Nancy White contributed to this report.

'Four Seasons' garden tickets available

The members of the Community Garden Club of Cohasset represent hundreds of years of gardening knowledge, experience and technique. The mission of the organization is to "promote interest in gardens, their design and horticultural perfection: to promote interest in conservation of our natural resources; and to conduct formal programs for the advancement of these and related items."

With a desire to support its mission and raise funds to support the organization, the Community Garden Club of Cohasset is offering "Four Seasons in the Garden." Over the course of the next two years, the club will explore the needs and rewards of the garden in all four seasons through a series of seminars followed by tours of a number of gardens selected to illustrate and expand on the material offered in that day's seminar. Some of the gardens chosen will be seen at each session allowing us to see the transition of the garden from one season to the next. Other gardens will only be offered to program participants and would never be offered for public display; a rare opportunity for attendees. The program will kick off on Thursday, May 5 with a coffee starting at 9 a.m. followed with a seminar on the Early Spring Garden at 9:30. After the seminar, a short local garden tour will be followed by lunch. Following our luncheon respite, a number of additional gardens will be open for tours from 1 to 5 p.m..

What's the problem?

Dealers are responding to the increased fuel charges and passing them on to customers.

Gas prices on the rise

What it is: The impact of high oil prices is clearly being seen at the pumps, as gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up an average of 17 cents over last week, according to AAA Southern New England. AAA's Feb. 28 survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.309 per gallon, up 17 cents from last week and 24 cents from the start of the year. The current price is six cents below the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.36. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $2.64.

Why are gas prices going up? Speculators, who are reacting to social unrest in the Middle East and North Africa, are being blamed for rising gasoline prices.

Cohasset prices: On Tuesday, Feb. 28 the prices in Cohasset for a gallon of self-serve regular were: $3.34 at Cohasset Mobil; $3.39 at Fiori Gulf; and $3.39 at Village Petroleum.

Quote: "My belief is that with the current turmoil in the Middle East, speculators are driving the price even though the crude oil supply has not been stopped. Having just returned from a Sunoco Dealers meeting, it was discussed that there is sufficient capacity for refining. Currently speculators are causing these large jumps that the gasoline station dealers have no control over. Unfortunately, in order to survive, the dealers must respond quickly to the increased fuel charges that are passed onto to them." — Cohasset Selectman Leland Jenkins, owner of Hingham Car Wash, Inc. that includes Hingham Harbor Sunoco.

What can be done? To maximize fuel economy, AAA offers this tip: follow the adage of drive as if there is a raw egg between your foot and the gas and brake pedal. Studies show that aggressive driving can lower your car's fuel economy by 30 percent on the highway and at least 5 percent in city driving.

'How To Bully Proof Your Child' discussion

The presentation will discuss the bully prevention curriculum. In addition, prevention and intervention in the Cohasset Public Schools will also be talked about.

A Parent Professional Partnership Series takes place from 9:15 to 10:15 a.m. Wednesday March 16, at the Osgood School library.

The presentation, "How To Bully Proof Your Child," will discuss the bully prevention curriculum. In addition, prevention and intervention in the Cohasset Public Schools will also be discussed.

The panel of presenters will be Jane Gregory-elementary school health education teacher, Betsy McGrath-Deer Hill School adjustment councilor, Dave Vinton-Osgood school adjustment councilor, and Cate Nelligan-Middle school guidance councilor.

Jane Gregory began her career as a nurse practitioner. She has worked as the Cohasset Elementary Health Education Teacher for 11 years and teaches the Steps to Respect bullying prevention curriculum at Deer Hill School.

Betsy McGrath has 32 years of experience in counseling. She has experience working with children and families in inpatient hospitals, Outreach Centers and in private and public schools.

Dave Vinton is the adjustment counselor at the Osgood School. He holds a bachelor of science degree in psychology and master's degree in Marriage and Family Therapy. He has experience providing training in areas such as social skills, behavior management, trauma, autism spectrum disorders and developmental disabilities.

Cate Nelligan brings eight years of experience to Cohasset. She has experience in private and public schools and is the Cohasset Middle School guidance councilor.

Putnam County Spelling Bee comes to Cohasset

The Cohasset Dramatic Club will present "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee," the hit Broadway musical from March 11-27 Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m., Sundays at 2 p.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall Theater.

"Spelling Bee," the hilarious tale of overachievers' angst, chronicles the experience of six adolescent outsiders vying for the spelling bee championship of a lifetime. The show's Tony Award-winning creative team has created the unlikeliest of hit musicals about the unlikeliest of heroes; a quirky, yet charming cast of outsiders for whom a spelling bee is the one place where they can stand out and fit in at the same time. The show is renowned for its audience participation in the onstage shenanigans, making it the perfect vehicle to offer unassuming local celebrities from education, the arts and clergy, their own chance for a moment of fame.

The following guest spellers who will try their hand onstage:

- Rev. Gary Ritts, Second Congregational Church (March 12)
- Dr. Jennifer deChiara, Principal, Deer Hill School (March 13)
- Mrs. Stephanie Moriarty and Mr. John DeWaal, Cohasset High School Music Department (March 18)
- Mr. Gary Graziano, Athletic Director, Rockland High School (March 19)
- Mrs. Patty Cunningham, PSO VP Deer Hill School (March 20)
- Mrs. Jenn Clark, fourth grade teacher, Deer Hill School (March 27)

"The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" is directed by Mark Bono, music directed by Bethany Aiken and choreographed by Jojo Fichtner. Tickets are available at Paperscapes or Buttonwood Books, Cohasset, online at www.brownpapertickets.com, by reservation at 617-697-2115, or at the door, one hour prior to each performance. WELCOME MARCH

Hello Cohasset and welcome to the month of March! A very "confused" month I know but as it goes on, the Lion that it roars in with usually starts to settle down and Spring begins to come closer and closer. For me, March is a month that seems to drag on and on but is always fun when St. Patrick's Day can break it up a bit. Send in any celebration information, birthday news, events and more. Photos are always welcome as well. Have a great week and now, on with the column.

PASSION PLUNGE

Here is a very special thanks to all who supported the 2011 Passion Plunge for Special Olympics! Check out our local plungers, who supported a great cause this past Saturday. For complete story and photos, see page 9.

MARCH MADNESS

Save the Date everyone for the March Madness Auction being held on Saturday, March 19th from 6:30-9:30 pm at the Second Congregational Church.

Often described as "the most fun you can have in a church," March Madness Time and Talent Auction is an evening of great food, terrific auction items, and fabulous company. The evening begins at 6:30 with gourmet appetizers. The silent and live auctions begin promptly at 7 p.m. and continue, along with periodic raffles, until 9:30. Auction items include sports and theater tickets; vacation homes; private baseball, sailing, and riding lessons; photography and artwork; and gift baskets. No admission fee — but to reserve a table (up to 10 people) and/or tickets, please RSVP to the church office at scc@2ndcc.org or 383-0345.

SPELLING BEE!

You won't want to miss the Cohasset Dramatic Club's production "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee!" For news on how to buy tickets and a synopsis of the hit Broadway show, see story on this page.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

GIMME SHELTER

Nelson is happy and playful

This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is looking for shelter for Nelson. Nelson is an eight-month-old Tiger teenager. He has become quite friendly and we think he's ready for a real home. He's quite playful and totally non-aggressive. He gets along well with other cats and is fine with children.

If you're interested in him, or any of our felines, please check out our website at www.hsar.org. We have open hours from 2 to 3 p.m., on Saturdays, and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays. If you'd like further information or would like to arrange an appointment, give Shirl a call at 781-925-3380.

The shelter is at 50 L Street, Hull; the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA 02045, email, hsar@verizon.net.

The next low cost spay/neuter opportunity will take place on Thursday, March 17. For more information, check out our website or call Mary at 781-925-3380.

Thanks to our dedicated volunteers, to those who give homes to our felines and the people who generously donate to our cause. We couldn't do it without you.

Nelson gets along well with other cats and is fine with children.

EXTRA in YOUR MARINER

Houlihan is running for Scituate Mayor

Help him ShamROCK the vote!

By Linda Fechter
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Brian Houlihan, owner of Cohasset's own "bia bistro" is definitely more at home in the kitchen than on the local "campaign trail." however this bia bistro owner and Scituate resident is taking this fun campaign very seriously. He hopes that the luck o' the Irish and a lot of help from his friends will win him the title of "Mayor" of the Scituate St. Patrick's Day Parade.

This native of Cork, Ireland has already garnered support from his customers, vendors and friends who have been casting their votes in ballot boxes located at bia bistro, The Tinker's Son and several other retail locations in Scituate. One dollar = One Vote. Houlihan's Green Party (as in "Irish" Green and/or the color of money) is appreciative of all size contributions, be it one dollar, 10, or 20.

The Scituate St. Patrick's Day Parade first began as a small procession in Scituate's Minot neighborhood. Residents sharing a "pint" or two, threw around the idea of hosting a parade. The idea became reality and thus was born the first annual event complete with floats made by the neighbors and post-parade party at the Minot Light Inn. By the 2nd year, word got out and it grew too big in size and popularity to remain safe for the community. The Founders, Jim and Janet Campbell, passed the leadership to Ed Kelley and the Scituate Chamber of Commerce who took over and created a parade that is now so popular it attracts visitors from all over the South Shore.

Last year The Tinker's Son entered a floating procession of step dancers alongside musicians including Sean Gilmartin; Derrick Keane and Damon Liebert of Inchicore; and Bobby Mullis and Frankie Kelly of Erin Og. All donated their time and talent to play. The Tinker's Son will create another float this year with a party afterward, which will include Irish music and Irish fare.

Brian Houlihan, pictured here at the Mad Hatters Ball, is running for Scituate Mayor – a race that is part of the Scituate ST. Patrick's Day Parade tradition.

"We're honored to play an even greater role in this year's parade," says Erica White, Manager at The Tinker's Son. " It's a big commitment of time and money, but we have had a blast celebrating this Scituate St. Patrick's Day tradition. After rolling past thousands of singing and smiling faces last year, we appreciate what a significant part of the Scituate calendar and our community this parade represents."

Fellow Manager Michelle Coles agrees the effort is well placed and adds, "You're talking to a staff that couldn't wait a whole year — we celebrated Halfway to Patrick's Day in September! You can be sure we are focused on making this year's parade the biggest and the best it's ever been."

This race is also cooking up a little competition between The Tinker's Son and another South Shore restaurant, the Mill Wharf in Scituate. Dave Brown, the Chef there is also running for mayor, and he also happens to be dating Melinda Lynch, the Chef at The Tinker's Son. The perfect recipe for an exciting race!

Brian Houlihan has also produced a Limited Edition "Houlihan for Mayor" T-shirt — designed and printed by one of his Mayoral sponsors, Goodwin Graphics.

"A large percentage of the overall $40,000-$50,000 budget needed for the floats and the entertainment comes from the dollars contributed in the form of Votes for Mayor," says parade organizer, Ed Kelley. "Brian and his staff have really stepped up to the plate and I'm grateful to them for what they're giving back to the community."

This year, Kelley asked Houlihan if he could support the event by hosting fundraising events including the Mayor's Dinner on March 16th, during which they will announce the winner of this year's race. Details on other fundraising events can be found on thetinkersson.com.

The Parade is serious business and Houlihan is combining his election campaign with his restaurant business to let people know about exciting new things going on at each of his establishments.

At The Tinker's Son, every dollar vote is represented by a paper cutout of "the Salmon of Knowledge". Anyone who has caught a glimpse of Houlihan's right arm has seen a tattoo in the likeness of this famous Irish folk tale. It was said that a long time ago there existed a legendary Salmon of Knowledge that magically contained all the wisdom and knowledge of the world. Legend foretold that whoever first tasted this salmon would gain this knowledge and become a powerful man. A poet Finnegas tried to catch this salmon all of his life, and one day, he actually succeeded. He instructed his apprentice, a young boy named Fionn MacCool, to cook the salmon for him, forbidding him to taste of it himself. While the salmon was cooking, however, Finn noticed a blister on the salmon skin, accidentally touched it, burned his thumb, and put his finger in his mouth to ease his pain, thus tasting the salmon and receiving all the wisdom. From that day on, Fionn could access the knowledge by biting his thumb. He became a leader of the Fianna, a powerful band of warriors in Ireland, and a famous folk hero. And so, for every vote cast at The Tinker's Son, patrons receive a paper cut out of this powerful salmon on which to write their names. The paper fish, which can also be said to represent the fishing community of Scituate, are now so plentiful that there is a "sea" of salmon adorning the walls.

Houlihan has also produced a Limited Edition "Houlihan for Mayor" T-shirt — designed and printed by one of his Mayoral sponsors, Goodwin Graphics. The one-of-a-kind shirt prominently features Scituate and is expected to sell out. The cost of the shirt is $20 and all proceeds benefit the parade. On March 13th from 4pm 'til closing, The Tinker's Son hosts a "Fun-draiser for Mayor Houlihan" with a non-stop Irish Musical Celebration courtesy of The Boston Police Gaelic Column of Pipes and Drums, Derrick Keane of Inchicore, Frankie Kelly of Erin Og, Sean Gilmartin & an Open Irish Session. The folks from Guinness will be there to let you Pour Your Own Pint and they will have tons of Raffle Items up for grabs. Tickets are $20 in advance/$25 at the door and include a delicious buffet. On Tuesday, March 15th, bia bistro hosts a grand opening for their new bar area that will also serve as a fundraiser for the parade.

"At bia we are expanding the bar and adding Guinness on tap," says the mayoral candidate. "That'll be just days before the voting stops and we hope everyone will come out to support us and see our new look.

For information on events, or how to donate, visit thetinkersson.com. Houlihan and his staff want to thank everyone for their support and wish you all na Féile Pádraig oraibh!

Mixing tea with women's history

Tracy Dieselman of South Shore Pool Supply of Cohasset presents Notable & Notorious Women, a program by Donna & Ron Lasko, Sunday, March 13, at 2 pm. Afternoon tea and refreshments will be served. Admission is $20.

Donna & Ron Lasko, consultants, presenters, & tea purveyors, will introduce you to a wide range of notable and notorious women, who may not be familiar, but who have made tremendous impacts on the American Women's Suffrage Movement that began in the 1700s resulting in American women finally achieving the right to vote 150 years later. It is a story of politics, law, equality and temporary defeats with American women emerging victorious.

A hands-on display of collectible items demonstrating the time periods, fashions and accessories that were part of the Suffrage Movement will be exhibited.

Their private label premier blend "Courtship Tea" will be served in silver accompanied by tea sandwiches and desserts. Seating is limited; RSVP by calling: 781-545-5454.

New superintendent of schools chosen

Cataldo said she felt both fortunate and honored to be offered the position.

"I'm very excited. Cohasset schools are in a great place right now and I want to be a part of it," Cataldo said. No stranger to Cohasset, Cataldo used to visit the town during the summer growing up.

"I'm very selective where I will apply. I really want to be sure I'll be a match (for the community)," Cataldo said. A Needham resident, Cataldo said she will initially commute to the area.

"I'm looking forward to working with everybody. Everybody I met was wonderful. They are motivated, they embrace you and are really caring — how lucky can you get?" Cataldo said.

All five school committee members named Cataldo's strong communication skills as an asset. The ability to effectively communicate was one of the items the town was so clear about wanting during the superintendent school process.

"She is someone who wants to be a collaborative decision maker and is definitely child-centered," Linda Snowdale said.

Member Jeanne Astino said Cataldo would be the kind of superintendent to get involved in the community at all levels.

Cataldo was able to capture where Cohasset schools were at and the vision for the future, school committee chair Helene Lieb said.

Some of the School Committee members said they initially had doubts about her budget expertise having not been a superintendent, but later found out she pulls together a very large special education budget and sits in on most district budget meetings as the assistant superintendent in Milford.

"She was a part of budget planning for the whole district," Lieb said.

Member Paul Schubert called Cataldo the "premier" candidate of the three finalists. Alfred Slanetz, School Committee vice chair, said she was the strongest candidate of the three, adding he wanted to be sure she had a "strong team" around here with business manager Dave DeGennaro and a to-be-hired curriculum coordinator.

All five members voted in favor of offering Cataldo the position.

Immediately following the decision School Committee chair Helene Lieb took an intermission to call Cataldo to officially offer her the position. She accepted on the spot.

"Ms. Cataldo very excitedly accepted the position of superintendent of schools. She is very excited to work with people of Cohasset and the school committee board," Lieb said.

Cataldo has served as Milford's assistant superintendent since 2007. She is pursuing her doctorate in educational leadership at Northeastern University. She has a background in special education having served as the director of special education in Arlington for two years (2005 to 2007) and special needs coordinator in Cambridge (2002 to 2005).

The School Committee thanked the many residents and employees who devoted time and professionalism to the search for a new superintendent. Lieb also praised what she called the very qualified finalists and lamented they could only pick one of them.

"This is a very good beginning for our new superintendent of schools," Lieb said.

The committee held an executive session to discuss the salary of the new superintendent. The committee previously determined they were willing to offer up to $175,000 commensurate with experience. The School Committee still needs to negotiate the specifics of a contract with Cataldo.

The School Committee has spent the past few months looking to replace Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh who decided not to renew her contract after the current school year. She has served as the head of Cohasset Schools for six years. Walsh's last day in the district will be in April.

antenna on the water tank as well as creating a second, shorter entry point for emergency, maintenance and construction vehicles working on the tank going forward.

"(This project) has tremendous benefit to the town overall and very limited impact on anyone," said Chris Seebeck, Water Commission chair. He named the improvement to cell service, the revenue generated from the cell contract and using the existing water tank instead of a freestanding cell tower as some of the benefits.

Yet, the neighborhood still has concerns over the impacts of this decision on safety, property values and legality.

"The market values of the properties (within the vicinity of the cell antenna) are going to be impacted by this," said Elsa Miller of 60 Reservoir Road.

Keith Conforti of 88 Reservoir Road felt the neighborhood would be "irrevocably changed forever" if the access road and cell antenna went forward.

Aaron Gilbert of 38 Reservoir Road expressed concern about setting a precedent for putting commercial uses in a residential district.

The neighborhood concerns rose to a level of legal action late last year. In December, a group of 10 taxpayers, all with addresses on Reservoir Road or Pleasant Street, filed a civil action against the town in an effort to stop an access road off Reservoir Road and a lease contract with a cell phone company.

A judge later ruled in the town's favor. It was said several times during the course of the meeting the town spent more than $16,000 in legal costs to fight the civil action.

Peter DeCaprio said the town could face legal action from another group, the owners of the property where portions of the Pleasant Street easement exist, if the Reservoir Road access point was not approved. He said the owners of the property felt only routine water department uses were legally permissible over the easement.

"If we try to use the Pleasant Street easement (for anything more) we are in for a legal battle," DeCaprio said.

The Selectmen voted unanimously to allow the Water Commission to use the town land for an access road with several "conditions." The Selectmen granted the Water Commission up to a 20-foot right of way to construct the road. The motion also stipulated use of the road would be limited based on a consensus developed by key groups – the schools, the police department and the Water Commission.

The vote also calls for the town to not assume any of the expense associated with the access road. According to Water Commissioner DeCaprio, AT&T is assuming the cost of engineering and construction of the access road and its future maintenance.

The Selectmen also voted unanimously to keep the original Pleasant Street easement, which has been utilized by the water department for close to 100 years, but was recently reduced in size and moved to another part of the property. This was voted on more as a policy statement of the Board of Selectmen as easement abandonment must go before a Town Meeting vote.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley proposed several other "conditions" such as requiring a stormwater review, even if not required under the stormwater management bylaw, ensuring AT&T includes landscaping to reduce visual impacts, and necessitating emissions testing on the site and the neighborhood a year after installation. Quigley did not get support on these items from the other selectmen.

8 James Lane project back in new form

Proposal is for 11 townhouse condos

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Later this month, a project will be before the Planning Board for 8 James Lane. This application will be the second attempt at building something on the property under the 2008 amended village zoning bylaw.

In an informal discussion with the Planning Board on Wednesday, Feb. 23, the developers said the application will be for four buildings containing a total of 11 townhouse condominiums. The project will stretch over both 8 James Lane and a portion of 2 Pleasant St., the land where JJ's Junction is located.

"This project really recognizes we are really on the residential side of village," said Paul Cleary of South Coastal Development Group.

In 2009, the same developer brought forth a project with a 26,000 square foot building housing 17 housing units. The plan had three floors and included an underground parking garage.

The project was not popular among the abutters largely because they felt the density and style of the project did not fit in with the residential neighborhood with modest homes. Many neighbors were concerned over safety and traffic issues with the project.

The project was ultimately denied by the Planning Board in part due to delays in the presentation of information over a period of months. The Planning Board also did not feel the project satisfied the zoning bylaws.

The project was among the first to be sought under the village zoning bylaws, which were amended in 2008.

The property at 8 James Lane is somewhat of an orphan in the village business district as it is located on the other side of the MBTA tracks and does not currently have retail or commercial space.

A citizen's petition is being put forth to take this property out of the village zoning district and into residential. Town Meeting will take action on the citizen's petition on Saturday, April 30 (see sidebar).

It's unclear how, if at all, Town Meeting's vote would affect this application.

With a new plan, Cleary said his group plans to file a special permit application by the third week in March.

A ranch house currently sits on property at half-acre 8 James Lane property. A preliminary site plan was submitted to the Planning Board showing five buildings, four buildings with two units (on the 8 James Lane property) and one building with three-units (on the 2 Pleasant St. property). All the units will be under 1500-square feet. The JJ's Junction building will remain, according to the developers.

Cleary said this project is more of a "transition density" to go from the more dense village to the residential scheme in the surrounding James Lane neighborhood.

The engineer said one of the challenges for the project would be drainage as there is a lot of ledge on the property.

Cleary said his team has already held a preliminary meeting with the Design Review Board to get their thoughts on the design and exterior of the building.

"We want to incorporate traditional New England designs and work in design elements from Pleasant Street neighborhood into the elevations (of our new building)," Cleary said.

The townhouses will have garages and two floors.

Citizen's petition: Zoning bylaw amendment

At the upcoming Annual Town Meeting a citizen's petition calls for an amendment to the zoning district map. It requests the removal of 8 James Lane from the village business district to residential district.

The property has been zoned some sort of commercial district since zoning was enacted in the 1950s, but the property has had a single-family home since that time.

The property at 8 James Lane is located behind JJ's Junction, a year-round hot dog and ice cream stand. The property abuts the MBTA commuter rail tracks and fronts on James Lane.

The Planning Board has scheduled a public hearing on this zoning bylaw amendment (and several others) for Wednesday, March 9 at 7:30p.m. A public hearing held by the Planning Board is a requirement for all zoning bylaw amendments.

For Michele, one of the greatest advances in cancer care has been the one on the South Shore.

When Michele needed treatment for breast cancer, she was thankful that she could receive world-renowned care at Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Cancer Center in clinical affiliation with South Shore Hospital. And she had confidence knowing that our specialists, focused on cancer, were providing the expert care she needed. But she also found something more: how important it was to be treated in a place that not only cared for her cancer, but also for her life.

"It's a place filled with hope," said Michele. And having all the integrated services she needed close to home helped her maintain a sense of normalcy through her treatments. "With two small kids, I don't know how I would have managed otherwise," she explained. "Having this level of cancer care on the South Shore — it means everything to me."

CEF seeks input

The rejuvenated CEF has entered its fifth year. Thanks to the enthusiasm and support of the community, school administration, teachers and board, the CEF has been able to positively impact the quality of education in Cohasset.

Grants from the CEF impact EVERY student in the Cohasset Public Schools EVERY week. In the past five years, the CEF has awarded over $550,000 in grants to our schools. Our Endowment Fund, which secures the long-term health of our schools and our town, has grown to over $450,000.

As we look ahead and plan for the next five years, we would like to hear from you, our stakeholders. As part of our strategic planning process, the CEF will be conducting a series of focus group discussions during the first two weeks of March. Your input is important! Only with broad community support will the CEF continue to be able to award the high impact grants that have made such a difference for our children's education.

If you are interested in participating in a focus group, please contact CEF President Mary McGoldrick at info@cohasseteducation.org.

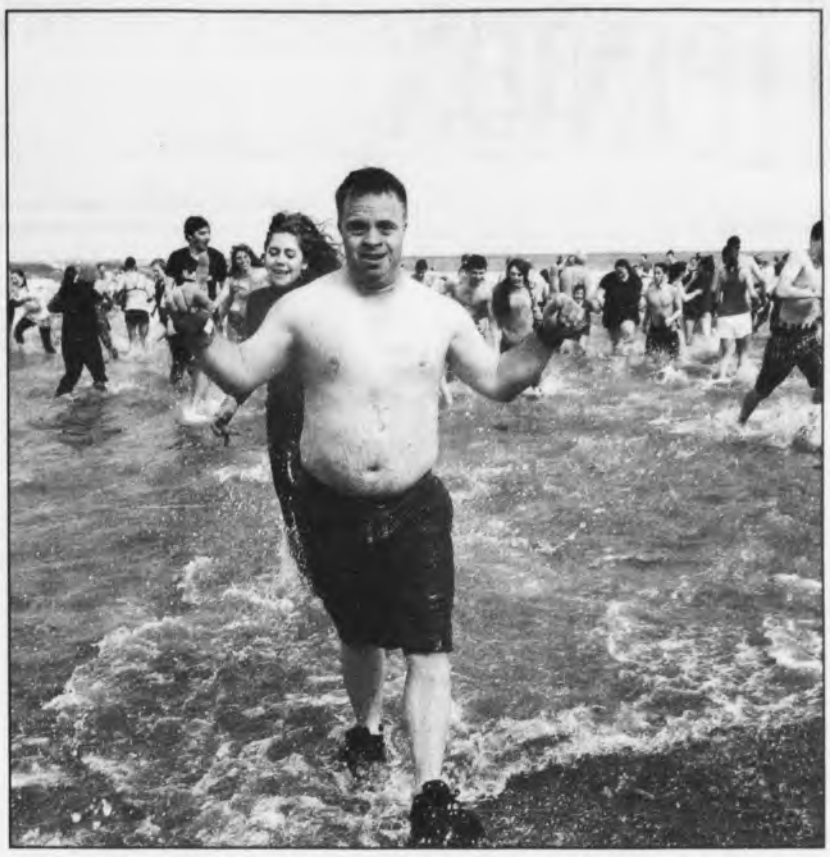
PSO Tele-a-thon seeks donations and talent

The seventh annual Cohasset PSO Tele-a-thon and On-Line Auction Fundraiser will take place in April. The Tele-a-thon committee is seeking donations for sponsorship opportunities, raffle and on-line auction items. The on-line auction will run from Friday, April 22 through Friday, April 29, the live broadcast of the Tele-a-thon will take place on Thursday, April 28, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium or viewed on Comcast Cable channel 22.

The Tele-a-thon proceeds support and enhance PSO sponsored programs, teacher grants, curriculum development and other school district wide events. At the last event, more than $22,000 was raised for the kids in Cohasset public schools.

Would your business like to support a great cause and enhance your current advertising and marketing campaigns? If so, consider becoming a sponsor of the Tele-a-thon. Sponsors receive numerous benefits and advertising opportunities before and during the Tele-a-thon. If you are interested in this advertising opportunity, send an e-mail to psotelethondonations@yahoo.com

The Cohasset PSO Tele-a-thon committee is requesting raffle prizes and on line auction donations. If you have a product or service that you would like to donate send an e-mail to psotelethondonations@yahoo.com. Include in your information, the name of the item, its value and where it can be picked-up.



In addition, talent is needed for the live broadcast. If you would like to appear on television and share your talent, this is your opportunity to shine. Send your information to psotelethontalent@yahoo.com. Include the names of all performers, grade, and the talent or act that you would like to share.

Passion Plunge for Special Olympics a success

By Taffy Nothnagle
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

A total of 823 brave people plunged into the Atlantic Ocean (33 degrees) on Saturday, Feb. 26, with 472 at Nantasket Beach and 351 at Revere Beach combining to raise close to $400,000 for Special Olympics Massachusetts. The day began with the fun Costume Parade with outfits ranging from Scooby Do characters to Pirates, Mariners, Presidents, and Elements of Nature, with more than 1,000 spectators huddling together in the cold air and wind.

Then followed the serious, adrenalin-pumping business of dashing out and plunging into the icy surf. Teams came from high schools, colleges, and Special Olympics programs, with men and women ranging from age10 to near 80. All survived!

Our local South Shore Mariners Team won the award for Highest Fundraising team statewide with close to $30,000 raised and still counting.

Cohasset Plungers included: Jay Nothnagle (Captain), Connie Afshar, Joel Buford, Barbara Canney, Milli Chapell, Brook Miele, Steve Myers, Jeff Nothnagle (Board Chair), Charlotte, Graham, and Nick Sida, plus 11 more brave plungers from other South Shore towns. Jay Nothnagle again won the Highest Individual Fundraiser Award with over $9,000 collected.

The funds raised come back to our local Mariners program which has 90 athletes, ages 8 to 76, from seven South Shore towns from Milton to Duxbury. We in turn donate some of the money to other local programs based in cities where the fundraising is extremely difficult.

As Special Olympics does not charge athletes or their families to participate, the funds these brave people raised are vitally important to support the year round training and 130 competitions in 27 sports for 12,162 athletes ages 2 to 78 in Massachusetts. Even with the help of 13,000 volunteers, it costs almost $500 a year for each athlete.

Again, a sincere thank you to all who pledged and supported this wonderful organization that builds self-confidence, pride and healthy athletes.

If you haven't yet had a chance, please support our athletes with a pledge by going online to our secure site, www.PassionPlunge.org to make a donation.

OPINION

Small town, big personality

We used to have a beloved Yorkshire terrier-Maltese mix, who weighed less than 10 pounds soaking wet. One day while walking on the beach – she took off and gave chase to a Saint Bernard. The Saint Bernard did not want to challenge the little lady with a lot of bark and kept on going.

If there ever was a metaphor for Cohasset – then "small town, big personality" is it. This place with a population of about 7,000 or so, thinks nothing of taking on the big boys either when required or just to remind them this town is important. Cohasset never thinks of itself as "small" in terms of its beauty or its needs.

Here at the Cohasset Mariner we have had the benefit of this town's big personality. We stopped thinking of ourselves as a small paper when interviewing Lois Weltman, long-time advocate for the homeless, back in the early 90s. She told us she subscribed to the New York Times and the Cohasset Mariner, period.

In fact during one of the current editor's first weeks on the job – back in 1992 (the Cohasset Mariner debuted in 1978) — there was some controversy over who should be appointed to a vacant Board of Health seat until the next election. We covered the story and wrote an editorial with our opinion. There were no less than 12 letters in the drop box that Tuesday, the lion's share of which criticized our position! We knew at that moment what we wrote and the stands we would take would have an impact.

Over the years the Cohasset Mariner has had its share of accolades. One of the most coveted of those is being nominated for the General Excellence award by the New England Newspaper Press Association, affectionately dubbed NENPA.

This year the Cohasset Mariner was among just three papers nominated in its circulation category (more than 3,000 papers enter the contest in a range of categories) for the coveted General Excellence Award. We came in second. (Those of you who have seen both The King's Speech and The Social Network – know that being a runner up is still a great honor).

While we heralded our award in a story a few weeks back, along with the other awards earned by our sister newspapers at Gatehouse – it is a good time to single out our General Excellence award and say "thank you" to our staffers, readers and contributors for their support.

One of the first parts of a newspaper that the judges — in reviewing General Excellence entries — look at, are the editorial pages, a fact that is spelled out in the entry rules. Here at the Cohasset Mariner we are blessed with local columnists and readers who write letters and commentaries. However, the anchor of our editorial/op-ed pages is our local cartoon so ably crafted every week by Jim Hamilton. Jim's cartoon is often the first thing our readers turn to. How many times have you laughed out loud or sat back and grinned when you realize that Jim "gets it" in terms of Cohasset life and politics. Today in the newspaper industry it is very rare to have a local cartoonist. The Cohasset Mariner not only has its very own cartoonist but he lives right here in town and appreciates Cohasset's unique character.

Of course, we would struggle with our editorials if it were not for the stellar reporting of Nancy White who has been with the Cohasset Mariner for four years now. Nancy burns the midnight oil on a weekly basis, often sitting through long meetings with some of those big personalities. Despite the challenges of tackling very complicated issues, her writing has great clarity and insight. Her human-interest feature stories are always well written, informative and entertaining.

Will Wassersug, our sports editor, appreciates the local character of Cohasset and welcomes community contributions. His pages are always nicely jammed with high school and local sports news and photos. Photographers Robin Chan, Chris Bernstein, Laura Sinclair and Craig Goedecke cover several towns but understand what makes each place different and they bring that special vision to their photos.

We also have long-time Around Town columnist Jennifer Piepenbrink and regular contributors like Steve Bobo, Tom Gruber & Mark Brennan, Linda Fechter, Louise Smullen, Natalie Dignam, Kathryn Hillman, Mary Kennedy, Marylou Lawrence – and many more to thank for our success.

However, perhaps most of all, our readers are key to our continued success. Here at the Cohasset Mariner, we appreciate your ongoing support and feedback.

Clarification on Turkey Hill turbine

The page 1 article "Here comes the wind" that appeared in last week's Mariner warrants a clarification. One of the conditions the Planning Board placed on the project concerns the sale of the energy generated. The condition will require the applicant to make a reasonable effort to sell up to 100 percent of the power generated to the Town to power town buildings at a discounted rate. Any excess would be sold to National Grid.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pledge support appreciated

TO THE EDITOR:

Hats off to the people of Cohasset for their enthusiastic support of the recent kindness pledge and anti-bullying awareness campaign. Since kicking off in mid-January, more than 3,000 pledges were signed by students, residents and members of the business community. It was a simple act of signing a short pledge, which hopefully will continue to remind us of our every-day obligation to one another and the power of small, kind gestures.

There are many people to thank for making this event happen. Special thanks go Hingham Lumber, Rick Johnston, Chris Wilson, Connor Murphy and Brian Murphy for their help in creating the big thermometer sign; to Dependable Cleaners, The South Shore Community Center, The Good Sport, Town Recreation Department, Cohasset Pediatrics, LemonLime Salon, Ports and Company, Pilgrim Bank and the Paul Pratt Library for accepting pledges and handing out wristbands; to Carl Sestito and his team at the DPW for help with the electronic sign; to the faculty and administration at all of our schools for their enthusiastic involvement in talking with our students about bullying and in collecting pledges in each building; to Darilyn Evans and the Chamber of Commerce for their support in involving the business community in the effort; to our wonderful Cohasset clergy for their support and participation; to Ronnie Goodwin and Chartis Tebbits for T-shirts; to Chris Wilson and Karen Quigley for their design expertise; to the Mariner for its helpful coverage of the project's progress and to every member of the Cohasset Coalition for a Caring Community (CC4CC) whose collective concern about this issue birthed the idea and saw it through. Special thanks also to Dr. Barbara Green, Dr. Denise Messina, Doc Gill, Ellen Wilson and Brian Murphy for keeping the project on track and moving forward. Heartfelt thanks go to all who took the time to sign.

Taking the pledge is a personal statement to embrace a shared value and we are stronger as a community for having done so. How amazing what a little town can do.

Slanetz faulted for comments on super search

TO THE EDITOR:

In last week's edition of the Mariner, School Committee member Alfred Slanetz made public comments regarding the Superintendent search. "All the candidates are solid educators and nice people, but not one of them has the breadth of experience to lead the district into the next level," Slanetz said. "In my view what we want is a leader to take this school to the next level in a fairly conservative, fiscally savvy manner," adding he did not think the candidates had the experience to do that. Although Mr. Slanetz is free to say whatever he wants to say, his comments were irresponsible, particularly considering he did not even participate in two of the three public interviews with the finalists.

I find his public commenting to be irresponsible and completely lacking judgment. Although entitled to his opinion, professional courtesy and the guidelines set forth for the process dictated that he reserve his personal comments on the candidates for deliberation with his fellow School Committee members. He showed a total lack of respect for his colleagues and for the process by voicing his opinion before the committee had a chance to deliberate in a public meeting.

His comments are also disrespectful of the Superintendent Search Committee which diligently and thoughtfully vetted over 20 candidates for the final recommendation of three candidates to the School Committee. These volunteers donated considerable amounts of time and careful thought to the process.

It appears to me that Mr. Slanetz clearly has no interest in working alongside the current School Committee members to keep the Cohasset Public School District moving forward. Rather, he is mired in an unrelenting loyalty to Dr. Walsh, which has prevented him from serving the best interests of the students and faculty of Cohasset and the community at large, the community which voted him into office.

At the very least, Mr. Slanetz owes his colleagues and the Superintendent Search Committee an apology for not abiding by the protocols, which so many others involved with the process honored.

If the committee as a whole decides upon a candidate, I feel it is incumbent on all of us, including Mr. Slanetz, to rally around the new Superintendent in every way we can to bring new energy and new ideas to the district. If the committee decides that it prefers to conduct another search, then we should support a new search. What is important at this moment, is to think about what will best benefit the students and faculty in this district, and what is in their best interest, and not to look backward to the controversies of the past, but to the tremendous possibilities that lie ahead. Our students deserve the very best education we can give them, and our faculty and administrators deserve a leader who will inspire them, encourage them, support them and listen to their ideas.

Getting our financial house in order

COMMENTARY

LEONORA C. JENKINS

Every year the town of Cohasset is audited. The results of the audit with an accompanying Management Letter describing problem areas and solutions is given to the town. The current Management Letter is basically a recap of the last six audits.

All of these Management Letters paint a picture of a poorly run organization. Policies and procedures in all areas are sorely needed. The town doesn't formally document policies, procedures and controls for key financial transactions, including cash, tax/utility billing, departmental receipts, purchasing, vendor disbursements, employee benefits and payroll. Monthly reconciliations appear as a consistent problem. There is no central location for contracts, bills, receipts and the receipt batches have not been identified properly. Questionable disbursements have been issued. Fraud prevention and security are areas that the auditor pointed out that we are sorely lacking. Some bills have gone consistently uncollected. An inventory of assets is virtually non-existent. We don't have a handle on the record keeping for the $70 million debt and the very generous retirees health insurance benefits represents a Time Bomb of unfunded liabilities.

HEALTH NOTES

Cohasset fits 'healthy community' profile

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Defined more narrowly, good physical and mental health are basic to the functioning of individuals and, collectively, the community

The unseen anodyne — We've all heard about the invisible economy but another hidden factor in the health picture is a town's response in support of its people by the natural supplement of good practice, filled, unknowingly by others of its citizens.

As one becomes comfortable with the various functions within a town, the many associations with its citizens expand to a knowledge about the interests of each with a sort of aura about how the interests interconnect and work together for the benefit of he entire community. Your own personal benefit is the fact that many people in town, not just names, are considered as having a good fit to be included in your own plans for future growth and development in any activities you may be contemplating.

Why is health essential to a sustainable community? The concept of a healthy community can include public safety, health and welfare such as education and training, police, fire and medical emergency services, drinking water and sanitary sewers, food safety, libraries, parks and playgrounds. Also included: A strong sense of community among citizens shown by their willingness to support public events through attendance and volunteerism. "Quality of life" often is used as the catchall phrase.

Defined more narrowly, good physical and mental health are basic to the functioning of individuals and, collectively, the community. Understanding and practicing a healthy lifestyle is necessary to achieving a person's full potential. Most importantly this includes choices to prevent health problems such as a good diet, regular exercise, avoiding substance abuse, obtaining immunizations and maintaining family integrity necessary for healthy development of children. In addition, the local, county and state governments have roles to play by ensuring clean air and water, affordable access to health care and quality education.

Cohasset fits the criteria for such a "Healthy Community" about as well as any town in the Commonwealth. And, according to the Healthy Communities Home Page, we meet the requirements for such a community with almost no exceptions. And a big help is that we keep active.

Most of us walk or engage in other forms of exercise. And walking is one of nature's best defenses against getting physically rusty. Changes in the design of our environment have driven us to a paradigm of lessened activity. The mall, big store, parking lot, etc.(the popular word for which is urban sprawl) has altered the transportation paradigm. This evolution of our civil structure to ever less walking activity, and ever more dependence on elevators, cars, Seguay riders, etc., over the last 15 years is threatening the health of as much as 50 percent of the population of the United States. Just 30 minutes of activity a day is enough to reduce your risk for cardiovascular disease – the number one killer of both men and women in America, diabetes, osteoporosis, obesity, clinical depression and some forms of cancer.

Walking works. Walking one mile in 20 minutes will use roughly the same number of calories as:

- Swimming breaststroke for 9 minutes.
- Running a mile in 10 minutes.
- Bicycling for 16 minutes.
- Playing baseball for 25 minutes.

To put it simply, with a daily two-mile walk you'll feel better, look better, and be better.

Break it up. Your 30 minutes of activity can be accumulated say by a 15-minute walk to school in the morning, and 15 minutes home in the afternoon and still provide the same health benefits.

The one possibility for an exception is the weather. Never, have we experienced such difficult disheartening weather. Hopefully it'll stop raining so we don't have to take up swimming.

Steve Bobo is a long-time member of the Cohasset Board of Health.

We're on the same team

FOR THE RECORD

GREGORY MATHIS

Local sports coverage is very important to us.

Sports lead the second section in all of our newspapers. That's not necessarily the case with some of the other newspapers in other units of our company, but we made that commitment more than a decade ago when most of our papers went from the smaller, one-section tabloid size to the multiple section broadsheet size.

We know local sports are more than varsity teams at public high schools. There are many private high schools in our coverage area with terrific sports programs. There are several colleges that wouldn't mind a little coverage in the local press. In addition to varsity programs, most schools have junior varsity and freshman programs. If you get beyond school sports, there is a plethora of youth sports and adult recreational activities that could and should find their way into our sports coverage.

There are a couple of factors contributing to what we cover and how we cover it, especially in print: space and time.

Our sports editors oversee several papers and several towns each. They generally write eight-10 stories per week themselves and have two or three stories from freelance sports reporters. So there are basically 10-13 stories per week generated by staff or freelancers that will be spread out over three to five towns and newspapers.

And you know if you follow high school sports, each high school has six or seven sports going on in any one season. That's anywhere from 24 to 28 teams in any given season for our sports editors to cover. So the math would indicate there might only be coverage for half the teams in a given week.

We try to rotate our coverage as much as possible so we don't miss a team two weeks in a row or more, but sometimes that does happen because of circumstances, such as space and time. Sometimes it's a matter of the coach being unavailable to talk to a sports editor or freelance writer.

Given the number of teams and the number of towns, it's impossible to get to every game in every community, so it goes without saying we rely greatly on coaches. We not only rely on them for quotes and game stats, but also to provide us with written recaps of their teams sometimes in lieu of staff or freelance reports. We've had a lot of success with that type of coach cooperation in many of the towns we cover.

In addition to cooperation from coaches, parents are another great resource for providing recaps to help fill in the gaps. This, too, has been effective in making sure teams and athletes gets a deserved mention each week, especially at the youth sports level.

To make it easier for you to contribute to our sports coverage, there's a new sports submission feature on our Wicked Local websites. Click on "Submit Your News" in the navigation bar at the top of the website and scroll down to the bottom. You'll see a link titled, "Submit your sports news." Click on that and follow the instructions, and when you click submit, the information will go directly to the sports editor for your community.

We know you count on us for local sports coverage. But we want you to know that we also count on you and coaches involved in high school and community sports programs to help us make it as comprehensive as possible.

Old man winter is still around

SENIOR SCENE

LOUISE SMULLEN

However, it won't be long before we're poking around in our gardens to see what is popping up.

Old man winter has paid us quite a visit this season. A few senior luncheons had to be cancelled because of snow and icy conditions, and we're not out of the woods yet. Perhaps you remember as I do, deep snow in March, and occasional storm in April and even snow in May. I remember one lovely May Day when my friend and I enjoyed spending some time at Sandy Beach as did many others; then a short while after that we had a very bad storm with lots of snow. My niece who lived in Sudbury was on her way home from work when traffic came to a halt and she was stuck in her car for hours. It sounds unbelievable. However, it won't be long before we're poking around in our gardens to see what is popping up.

We were fortunate to have a beautiful sunny windy day for the Valentine Tea. The hall was filled with guests, including a large group from Sunrise House. Several of them must belong to the Red Hat Society as they were sporting red hats.

We were served dainty, tasty tea sandwiches and scrumptious desserts. Anna Abbruzzese and her wonderful crew of volunteers prepared and served everything.

After lunch we were entertained by Ruth Harcovitz. With her beautiful soprano voice, she sang the music of Rodgers and Hammerstein. In between songs she told a little about the piece, what musical it was from and a little about the character who sang it.

We have had two interesting and informative seminars this past month. Jennifer Moran from Home Instead spoke about healthy eating options for seniors. At each table she placed a platter of red grapes, shelled walnuts and dark chocolate squares, all of which are heart-healthy foods when eaten in moderation.

At the next seminar Joseph Canavan, Director of Triad in Norfolk Country Sheriff's Department, introduced Julie Saforenko, who spoke to us in detain about scams and identity theft. She dwelt on scams particularly geared to seniors. We heard about what to do if ID theft was suspected, and was to keep prevent it.

If you wish to attend any of the seminars, please do even if you don't wish to stay for lunch. No reservation is needed for the seminar only.

Louise Smullen's column appears monthly in the Mariner.

Building the Cohasset Sailing Club

By Sandy Crough
CSC COMMODORE

The civic spirit that started the CSC remains the heart of our organization, as many volunteers participate in preserving and enhancing what has now become a town treasure and institution.

If you grew up in town, during the summer you may have peddled down to the Cohasset Sailing Club (CSC) wearing an orange life preserver around your neck. If you are raising your children here today, now they go out the door donning a bike helmet and a much more comfortable vest called a personal flotation device. Whether your mind's eye pictures this scene in the 1960s, the 1980s, or the present, all these images depict our wonderful town's streets and sidewalks filled with eager young sailors going to and from their lessons. Since its inception in 1960, the CSC's core mission has remained the same: to educate the youth of Cohasset in the art of seamanship.

Over the decades what has changed are the club's facilities. At first, we did not have much. In 1960 the CSC got its humble start when the town approved a portion of land on Government Island to be used for sailing education. The physical buildings were sparse and the premises lacked running water. Storage was provided by the brick building that housed the kerosene for Minot's Lighthouse. A portico was attached to teach classes. For its first 20 years these buildings were the CSC's facilities. As the club's growth and popularity progressed, the current structure was erected in 1979 and paid for by a generous anonymous donor. For the last 32 years it has been home to thousands of aspiring sailors.

The civic spirit that started the CSC remains the heart of our organization, as many volunteers participate in preserving and enhancing what has now become a town treasure and institution. In 2011 we find ourselves in another period of growth and expansion — the past few years have seen record levels of membership and enrollment in both the youth and adult sailing classes. Unfortunately, the size of our current clubhouse cannot no longer adequately accommodate our membership or storage needs, and the building has deteriorated physically (the roofing, plumbing, and electrical wiring are not up to code) to the point where it is less expensive and more efficient to erect a new clubhouse.

If you have grown up with the CSC and/or hope that it will be part of your children's summer experience, please join us this Saturday, March 12, from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. at Atlantica to learn how you might help contribute to our Destination: Home Port campaign, the goal of which is to raise the funds necessary for us to build a new clubhouse. We will be displaying the plans for our new building, a traditional New England boathouse designed to meet the environmental challenges of the 21st century, and selected artifacts from our archives to chart just how far we've come since 1960. You can RSVP your plans on our website, www.Cohassetsailing club.org, on our Facebook page, (where you can see a rendering of the new clubhouse), or by calling Diane Shipp at (781) 383-9198. We hope you will consider becoming involved in this exciting and worthwhile endeavor.

Register to vote for Special Town Meeting

The last day to register to vote for the Special Town Meeting on Monday, March 14, is Friday, March 4. Registration will take place at the Town Clerk's office from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Knox-Box rapid entry system

The Knox-Box rapid entry system is a high-security key box system, designed to give Fire and EMS personnel immediate access to locked buildings, electronic gates and other secured areas.

The Knox-Box is mounted on the exterior of a home or a representative of the fire department locks building and all necessary access keys inside. Only the fire department's master key can open the box.

The Knox-Box will prevent the fire department from knocking down doors or finding other means to access the property in case of emergency.

It is up to individuals to pay for a Knox-Box. The cost is roughly $200. The fire department is working with Cohasset Elder Affairs to purchase a few boxes that can be loaned out to seniors.

Cohasset real estate statistics

As part of Boston magazine's "Best Places to Live" issue hitting newsstands in March, the magazine revealed real median home prices, as well as year-to-year growth. The following is the statistics revealed for Cohasset:

- 2010 Median price of a single family home: $760,000
- 2009 Median price of s single family home: $665,000
- One year difference: +14 percent
- 2005 Median price of a single family home: $765,500

Staying active and connected

FOR ADULTS ONLY

STEVE BOBO

Older adults are highly reliable, want to be useful, have a sense of the public interest and public good, and are sufficiently energetic to do nearly any job.

At the senior facilities of the Council of Elder Affairs office on 3 North Main St., the entire Elder Affairs staff will assist in finding and presenting topics that can provide interesting and diverting pursuits for our seniors.

After retirement, the chief detriment to a healthy life for seniors is the tendency to do less in terms of activities, exercise and interesting pursuits that stimulate brains as well as muscles. Those activities that otherwise came as a part of earning a living must be replaced with equally productive activities which will maintain muscle strength, interest in mental challenges and healthy activities with other seniors.

Most older adults who volunteer are highly reliable, want to be useful, have a sense of the public interest and public good, and are sufficiently energetic to do nearly any job. In addition, they see the big picture, they'll do menial but essential tasks cheerfully. Most of them have life wisdom to offer and can make appropriate complex decisions. And usually they have a very strong work ethic and are highly reliable about doing what they say they will do. Retirement often stimulates an inclination to do little or nothing. A pathway to frustration. Our Center provides an opportunity to continue the contribution of our seniors' contribution to Cohasset by volunteering and participation in town activities.

- Some senior citizens are every bit as mentally and physically fit as they were 20 years ago. Others are aging, so differences will become evident. The town desperately needs a larger, more comprehensive center to allow our many seniors to help with the town's business.
- We must also be sensitive to the desire of many senior citizen volunteers to travel, stay home to host their grandchildren, and attend significant events in the lives of their loved ones.

Children of First Parish, under the direction of storyteller Elisa Pearmain, engage in role-play on bullying.

Tackling topic of bullying

Dr. Barbara Green speaks about the issues of bullying.

First Parish Unitarian Universalist in Cohasset has taken the no-bullying pledge very seriously. For the entire month of February, the congregation has engaged in personal reflection, conversation, and education about bullying.

Along with the rest of the town, in January the members of First Parish signed the no-bullying pledge and donned their blue rubber wristbands. But they understood that signing a pledge and wearing a wrist band was not going to be sufficient to interrupt a behavior that has plagued human communities for as long as anyone can remember.

All the worship services and all of the religious education classes in February have engaged the topic of bullying. There have been personal testimonies and social analysis, as well as reflection on individuals' own experiences as people who have been bullied, as bulliers, and as bystanders.

The service on Feb. 13 centered on personal testimonies by Rev. Anita Farber-Robertson, Steve Brown, Pat Baird, Chartis Tebbets, and Pat Facey, and a sermon by Dr. Barbara Green, one of the founders of the CC4CC (Cohasset Coalition for a Caring Community). On behalf of the congregation, Carol Martin and Diane Watson presented "Love Awards" to Chartis Tebbetts and Trish Morse, who have worked tirelessly with the community to protect the vulnerable and expand compassion. They modestly acknowledged that they could not have done that work alone.

The service on Feb. 20 featured guest story teller Elisa Pearmain, who had members of the congregation engage in role plays in which they practiced different possible responses to bullying.

The congregation understands that this work needs to be ongoing. Next Sunday, March 6, the children of the parish will present a skit based on the story "How Beetle Got her Colors," which they have used this month to understand bullying.

Carol Martin and Diane Watson present 'Love Awards' to Chartis Tebbetts and Trish Morse, and Rev. Anita Farber-Robertson affirms the role of the community in working together for our common good.

Bia bistro fundraiser party planned

Supports marathon effort for the Cohasset Food Pantry

With only six weeks to go, Matt Hendison and Trish Hart's miles for the Boston Marathon will begin to taper down but, the fundraising efforts will be heating up to reach their target donation goal of $3,000 for the Cohasset Food Pantry. At this point, Matt has completed his 18-mile training and has been running the hills of Los Angeles to replicate the famous hilly course of the Boston Marathon. He will be completing his final 20 plus runs over the next two weeks.

To help Matt and Trish reach their financial commitment, Brian Houlihan, the owner of BIA Bistro and The Tinker's Son, and his staff have generously donated their time, facility and food.

On Sunday, March 13, from 2 to 5 p.m. there will a "Final Countdown Party." The menu will replicate what runners fuel up on while marathon training. Brian's delicious flatbread pizzas and pastas will be served.

In addition, there will be a cash bar, silent auction items and a raffle. They will also be collecting food and toiletry donations for the Cohasset Food Pantry that day as well.

Tickets are $25 per person and first come, first serve. Due to the occupancy restrictions of Bia, only 70 people can be included in this very special fundraiser. It is expected to sell out quickly. If you are interested in attending, email Trish at trishhart1@comcast.net. Or if you would just like to donate to this great cause, send all donations, checks written to Cohasset Food Pantry, to Trish directly at 63 Sohier Street.

Help out the Food Pantry

The pantry has come a long way in filling their shelves over the past few months – thanks to the generosity of the community. Yet, there is a constant need, especially for certain items, see list below.

In addition, the pantry is in need of industrial strength shelving for their back room. This would be an ideal donation from a group of individuals or an organization. Contact Food Pantry co-director Jane Corry for more details (e-mail address is corryjm@gmail.com.

Donations can be dropped off at the rear entrance of St. Anthony's Rectory on South Main St. from 8:30 to 9:30a.m. on Tuesdays, at Stop & Shop, or at local churches on Sundays. Donations may also be left at the St. Anthony Parish Center, Monday through Friday, 9a.m. to 3p.m. To give a monetary donation, the food pantry mailing address is Cohasset Food Pantry, P.O. Box 297, Cohasset, MA 02025.

To contact the food pantry call 781-383-0219, ext. 25. Someone will return your call.

The Cohasset Food Pantry does not accept expired or already opened food.

JPods and our energy future

SUSTAINABILITY

JUDETH VAN HAMM

Recently I wrote about how my search for zero-emission transit led to the discovery of the concept of Personal Rapid Transit (PRT) where you would be able to walk to a nearby station and find a computer-controlled pod waiting to chauffeur you directly to your destination. I ended the article by writing that I had been talking with Bill James, president of JPods, a form of PRT with an innovative power system, to see if JPods might work for this region. www.jpods.com.

On January 4th, the Hull Selectmen voted their support for the concept of Personal Rapid Transit. They asked me to focus on connecting Nantasket Beach with Nantasket Junction train station. From talking with people in Hingham, there appears to be interest in seeing this segment connect to Hingham Square.

On February 7th, I spent the day in Hingham High School listening while Bill James spoke to over 300 science students about how JPods work, thanks to scheduling by science teacher Dan Clune.

Bill James began by talking about the amount of fuel used by various forms of transportation. The train company CSX moves a ton of freight over 400 miles on a gallon of diesel fuel. A car moves people in a 2000-pound vehicle approximately 20 miles per gallon of gas. JPods move a 500-pound pod, carrying up to 1200 pounds of people or cargo, 160 miles on the equivalent of one gallon of gas.

Bill James then explained the crisis we are facing in gasoline supply. East Coast gasoline comes from refineries in France that get their crude oil on ships that travel through the Suez Canal. Of immediate concern is that strikes in France or Egypt could interrupt East Coast gasoline supply.

The bigger concern is that the world has run out of cheap oil and it is taking more and more energy to harvest the oil that is left. It is estimated that by 2030 we will have just 5 percent of the net energy from oil that we currently have. The U.S. military has issued a warning that "as early as 2015, the shortfall in output could reach nearly 10 million barrels a day." (Joint Operating Environment 2010 report). You can already see the consequences of peak oil in rising gas prices.

Bill James then described the chemistry of the JPods power system. He began by pointing out that nature uses chemistry to store energy. Plants store the sun's energy in grain, wood, and fossil fuels that come from plants that lived millions of years ago.

JPods collect the sun's energy using solar panels, which are akin to leaves on plants. Then in a process similar to plants' photosynthesis, the JPods power system uses the electricity from the solar panels to electrolyze water to create hydrogen and oxygen (do you remember that plants give us oxygen?). The hydrogen is then run past carbon dioxide to create methane, a hydrocarbon that is the main component in natural gas.

The next step is similar to how the mitochondria in our blood cells work. When electricity is desired, the oxygen is used to burn the methane in a co-generator that produces electricity and heat. The heat can be used to heat water or a building. The by-products are water and carbon dioxide, which are recycled to create more methane.

Bill James invited students to be part of the process of creating a JPods network.

It has dawned on me that for me personally, bringing Personal Rapid Transit here would require starting a business. So I am in the process of setting up the South Shore Mobility Co-op so that local residents can own the network.

I am looking for people to work with who are enthusiastic about Personal Rapid Transit and willing to share their time and skills. I have found a lawyer and an architect. I am looking for someone who knows how to handle stocks and bonds, someone good at graphics, someone skilled in public outreach, someone who understands sophisticated computer software, someone who can manage the web site www.southshoremobilitycoop.com and anyone else who is interested in helping.

If you would like to help in any way or would simply like to get updates, please contact me at 781-925-5665 or one@hullportside.net

Changes needed at Water Department

TO THE EDITOR:

To Cohasset Selectman/Town Manager:

I have been following very closely the events unfolding relative to the audit results of the Water Department, and what I have gleaned from this is the very clear, egregious fiscal mismanagement and leadership demonstrated by the Water Department board, more than warrants that a change be made immediately.

Frankly, regardless of opinion specific to friendships and past work from any or all of the current Water Department Board, the cost and damage this board has created is beyond the pale. We as taxpayers, and our town, deserve more than this from a group of individuals who continue to demonstrate a lack of professionalism and accountability in any category and have certainly demonstrated, given a lack of transparency, that they have no respect for us as taxpayers or our town or I suggest this would not have come to this point.

Clearly the audit was thorough and detail specific and the group compiling that report very professional, yet despite the neutral and agnostic opinion we paid for, the Water Department board continues to create misdirection, bluster and make excuses where it is more than clear that if this occurred in a public company at very least these individuals would be either terminated or replaced by more proficient members.

We as citizen taxpayers, and you as our Selectmen, deserve more from this board and hopefully you will demonstrate sound leadership and make the hard decision to make the long needed change to get our town and this department reorganized and back to fiscal parity.

It will not be accomplished in any other way under the current group. Please demonstrate sound leadership on behalf of our town.

As a separate matter, I, along with another citizen, requested by hand delivery a formal detailed request of information from the Cohasset Water Department as allowed under the Freedom of Information Act on Feb. 4. As of this date we have received no information, which under the law is due within 10 days.

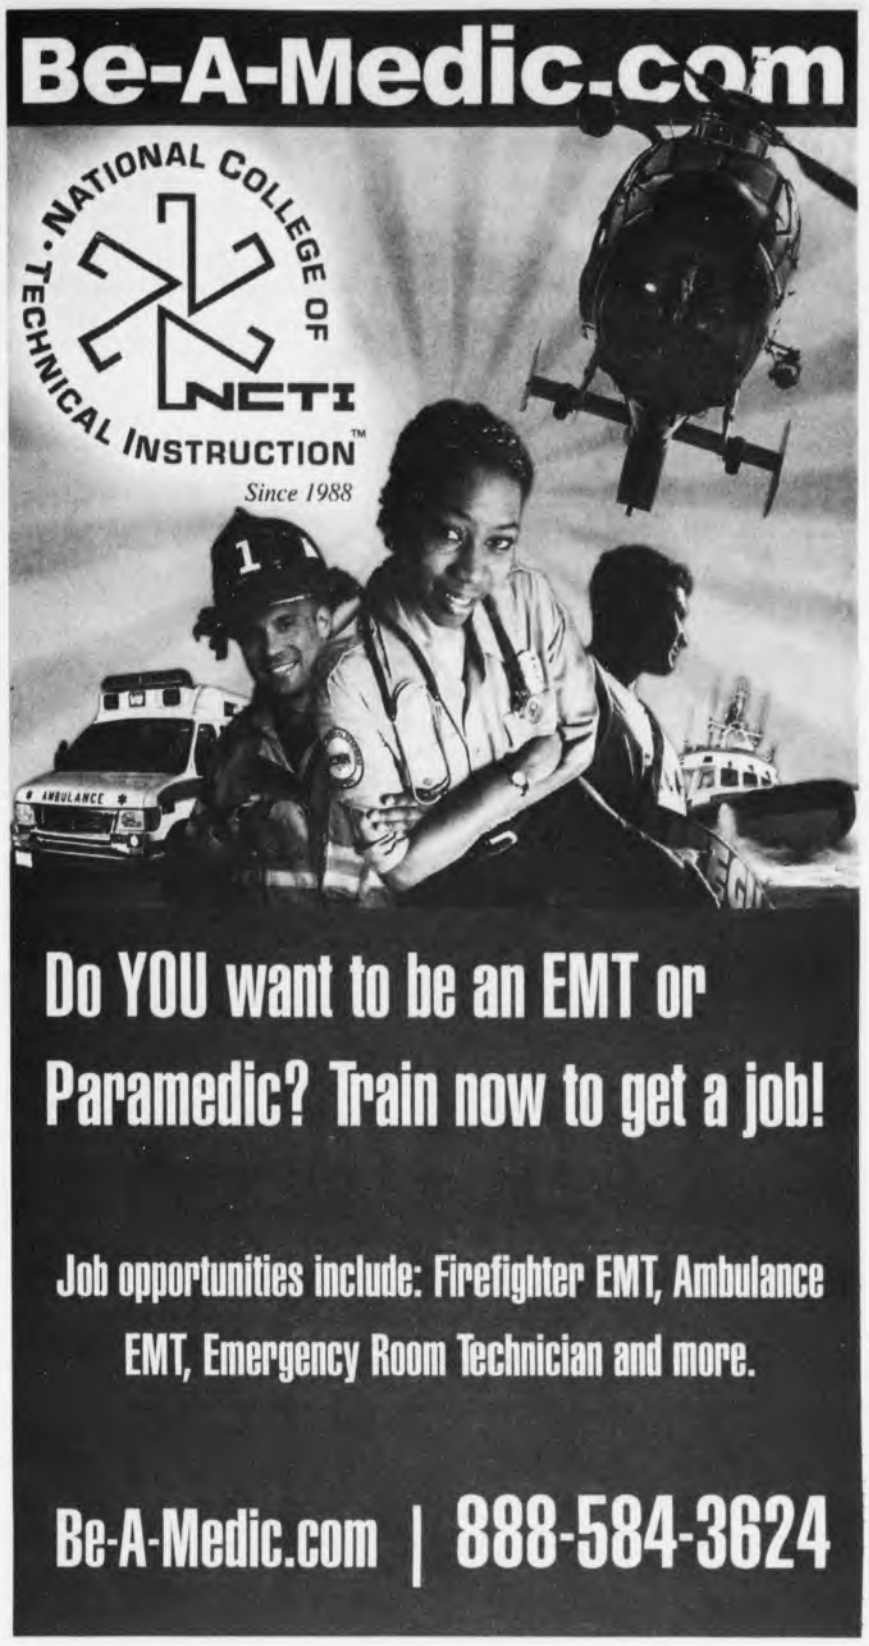
Our current poor fiscal situation comes down to insufficient upfront information, incompatible financial reporting systems, acceptance of overrides, poor monitoring, weak communications and last but not least insufficient oversight.

If this all sounds very familiar, it may be because it is. We had a similar situation over six years ago when a Town Meeting member demanded an investigation into what was financially happening in the schools. The above was the systemic problems uncovered by the town appointed School Budget Investigation Committee.

In order to avert another financial disaster, our town leaders were given management tools at the 2005 Annual Town Meeting, when concerned citizens passed amendments to the town finance bylaws – Article VI, Sec 7 and 8. These bylaws require an accurate monthly expense status report of the line items in all town budgets including the expenditures of all direct and indirect expenses in all town revolving and enterprise funds to be presented on a monthly basis. At that time the town CFO said that these reports could be generated without much trouble as they are standard accounting reports.



For some unknown reason, the audit reports were never looked at or acted upon.

Unfortunately, the situation we find ourselves in indicates that for a long time our elected selectmen and appointed advisory board let us down in a big way. They just left everything up to the paid professional – our town manager that they never questioned because they felt it was not their duty to micromanage. For some unknown reason, the audit reports were never looked at or acted upon. After the school budget debacle the finance bylaws were ignored by the selectmen and consequently our leaders chose to remain willfully ignorant while marginalizing taxpayers that had concerns.

Currently out interim town manager has taken hold to begin righting our ship of state by beginning to address deficiencies pointed out by the auditor thus bringing us back toward respectability.

We can't stop here. We are on an economic precipice. Besides our accrued $70 million debt and $10 million unfunded liabilities, we have to look to future needs in our infrastructure and fields. Hard fiscal and management decisions will have to be made and we can't afford to slip back into a pattern of increased fees, taxes and overrides.

After a year away from the MIAA Div. 4 South Sectional Tournament, the Cohasset boys basketball team came roaring back with a 54-34 win over Sturgis Charter School on Wednesday night in Cohasset.

The Skippers had eight players score, led by 12 points by Robert Jones and Cohasset jumped out to a 13-6 lead after a three-pointer by Jones midway through the first quarter and Cohasset rolled from there.

With their fast-ball style working, especially during a stretch in the second quarter where Cohasset 11 points off the fast break, Cohasset took a 36-10 lead into the half, allowing the vistors just two points in the second quarter.

The Skippers never looked back and were able to get 13 players a chance to play in an MIAA Tournament game.

Unexpected title a great feeling

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

Sometimes change is a good thing.

Cohasset sophomore Hope Kissick had been a full-time swimmer since she was little, but when she got to high school, she decided to give up the twice-a-day sessions and the grind of big-time competition to focus on the high school experience.

The plan worked and Kissick was rewarded with a Div. 2 State Title two weeks ago at Harvard University.

Kissick, who was seeded seventh in the event, surprised the field with her victory and 1:07.82 time.

"It feels great," Kissick said. "I'm still shocked it happened to me. It is so surprising that it happened."

Last year, Kissick finished third.

"I had a different mindset this year," Kissick said of her experience. "I wasn't thinking I hope I win. I was a little nervous, but more calm this year. I was more relaxed."

Kissick said taking the break made a difference for her, not just in time, but attitude.

"It has been awesome," she said. "Swimming season gets me excited. When fall was over I was already looking forward to it. It's great being with a team and my

The Cohasset boys hockey team made it back to the MIAA Div. 3 South Sectional Tournament after missing out last season, but had their tournament run ended in the first round by Bishop Stang on Tuesday at Bourne's Gallo Arena.

The No. 21 seeded Spartans scored two shorthanded goals and another on the power play to end Cohasset's very good season.

Tommy O'Brien and Andrew Whitney scored for Cohasset, who finished the season 12-7-2.

Hoop it up tourney preview

After an outstanding 2010-2011 high school basketball season, we have reached that special time of year. March Madness! This coming week in packed gyms all across the South Shore young men and women will be representing their towns in a win or go home format. Every team had hopes in early December of reaching the "tourney", and this week all their hard work pays off. Good Luck to all the participating teams, enjoy it; you will remember this time for the rest of your lives.

Division 1 Boys

Xaverian (10-10) or Taunton (10-8) at Weymouth (17-3) Thursday, March 3, at 7p.m.

Weymouth awaits the winner of the preliminary contest between Xaverian and Taunton. The Bay State Conference champion Wildcats are led by four first-team BSC All-Stars: Jared Terrell (15.1ppg), Jon Perez (13.5ppg), Damian Lugay (11.5 ppg) and Patrick Deegan (10.5ppg)

BC High (12-8) at Marshfield (15-3) Thursday March 3, at 7 p.m.

The Rams will be lead by star guard Barrett Murphy, the school's all time leading scorer. Also look for Coach Fisher to have his group ready to defend home court.

Quincy (10-10) at Duxbury (14-6) Tuesday, March 1 at 7 p.m.

The Dragons are led by the Patriot League leading scorer, Curtis Owen. (17 ppg)

Stoughton (12-8) at Hingham (12-8) Tuesday, March 1 at 7 p.m.

The Harbormen won the coin toss to gain home court advantage. Coach Kniffen looks to lead his team to victory after missing the tournament a year ago.

Medfield (11-9) at Scituate (13-7) Tuesday March 1 at 7 p.m.

The Sailors are led by the backcourt of Tyler Park and Sam Malone.

Hanover (10-10) at Abington (10-10) Monday Feb. 28 at 7 p.m.

The Green Wave are led by guard Damien Wilson (19ppg). Look for Hanover coach Mark Malloy to pull out all the stops to slow Wilson down.

Dedham (11-9) or Foxboro at Rockland (16-4) Wednesday March 2 at 7 p.m.

The Bulldogs are led by Ricky Whitt (14ppg) and Terrence Gibson. (13ppg)

Norwell (10-10) at Archbishop Williams (11-11) Monday, Feb. 28 7 p.m.

Nick Volpe leads the way for the Clippers.

Sturgis (10-8) at Cohassett (18-2)

The South Shore League champs will host Sturgis. CHS is led by the high scoring back court of Robert Jones and Sam Richardson.

Blue Hills (13-7) at Holbrook (15-5)

The Bulldogs are led by do it all senior Didjoe Matumona.

Compiled by Jim Dolan, who is in his eighth season as the Weymouth boys' varsity coach.

Cohasset youth travel basketball news

The Cohasset 5th grade girls travel basketball team chalked up its fourth straight win and fifth in its last six games with a 24-16 victory over Weymouth Sunday afternoon at the Cohasset High gym.

The Fledgling Fifths seemed to have the game well in hand with a 12-4 lead midway through the first half, but Weymouth battled back and eventually overtook the Blue & White at the midpoint of the second half, 14-12.

However, the Cohasset 5ths regrouped after a timeout and went back to work at both ends of the floor to outscore Weymouth 12-2 in the final 10 minutes to come away with the triumph.

Elle Hansen and Aidan Chamberlain led Cohasset with eight points apiece. Zoe Doherty hit for four and Leanne Hayden and Mary Catherine Crumley each sank a bucket.

Backcourt players Emma Loft, Kate Quigley, Mary Tarpey, Margaret Norton, and Kendall McConnaughey did a fine job directing the Cohasset offense, while Lauren Cunning, Bridget Desjourdy, Kate Fitzpatrick, and Kate McGowan helped control the boards underneath.

In the other contests with Weymouth, the 8th graders improved to 8-4 on the season, good for third place in the 12 team Old Colony League, with a 28-12 triumph. The 6th grade Blue and White triumphed by a 16-4 margin, while the 7th grade squad dropped a tough, one-point decision, 19-18.

The girls travel squads have a full weekend of action ahead, playing at Hanover Saturday and at Duxbury Sunday.

classmates. Everyone is awesome on the team.

I love having Bill Edwards as my coach. He's awesome. He was my first swim coach when I was little and now he's my high school coach. He's so supportive."

Having her friends around made things easier, especially swimming with them on relay teams.

"Maggie Littlejohn is a freshman," Kissick said. "She's improved so much. We were both in the school play, The Wiz together. We were the Yellow Brick Road. That was fun.

"Aniko (Haber) also used to swim year-round and she just stopped this year too. She's having fun with the high school team. She's my best friend. She did real well too and we did well in the relay."

The fun was the key.

"We were all a little intimidated by States, but we were having fun," Kissick said. "One time we were all singing behind the blocks. We really didn't have any expectations. We went in to see what happens. When we put the fun in it, it got easier."

Along with friends, Kissick had her parents at States and her brothers Jake and Cole.

"They're my biggest fans," Kissick said. "I love having them there."

Jake is also an athlete in the family. He plays football and will be back with the lacrosse team to try to defend Cohasset's state championship in the spring.

Hope will also be playing lacrosse in the spring.

She currently plays with Revolution Lacrosse at the club level, and plans to play for the high school this year.

In the summer, she's planning on playing more lacrosse and getting into the water again.

"Last year I was a swim coach at the Cohasset Swim Center. I hope to do that.

Along with her athletics and other activities, Kissick finds time for a few other high school favorites.

"I'm addicted to Facebook," she said. "And I love Glee. I watched it all Christmas vacation. At play practices all everyone would listen to was Glee. I love it."

CAMP, SCHOOL AND ACTIVITIES DIRECTORY

KEEPING CAMP BUDGET FRIENDLY

by, Bette Bussel, Executive Director American Camp Association, New England

Most families over the last couple of years have become extremely budget conscious. And, like many, you've probably taken some steps to curb any big spending, or you've begun cutting the nonessential "fat" from your budget. But one childhood joy that may still be within reach is a life-changing summer camp experience.

"It isn't necessary to break the bank to provide a life-changing camp experience for your child. Some camps offer scholarships or other financial aid, so it's worth asking," said Bette Bussel, executive director of ACA, New England. It's important when doing your research not to rule out camps that are potentially the best fit in all ways except financially. The critical issue is choosing the camp that will best meet your child's current needs and interests. Once you've developed your list of potential camps, ask if they offer financial aid and how to apply. Camp websites are each different; but if you search carefully, you'll find information about navigating the financial aid application process.

Bussel does caution against waiting too long to do your research. "The sooner families apply to various camps the better, because there are limited scholarship dollars." These dollars are often promised to campers well before the summer. Financial aid options and cost effective fees put camp within reach for many families.

Additional Resources

If you're just beginning your search for financial aid to send your child to camp, here are some resources to consider contacting; they might give scholarships themselves or offer advice on where else you can look:

- Check with your church or synagogue.
- Get in touch with social services groups and child serving non-profit organizations in your community.
- Explore local funding streams with your town and school system.
- Visit individual camp websites. Most of them clearly outline whether or not they offer financial assistance for their campers and how to apply.

Provided by the American Camp Association, New England, the region's leading source for "all things summer camp."

Cohasset's Kelly honored by NESCAC

Bates' Meredith Kelly named Rookie of the Year

Bates first-year guard Meredith Kelly (Cohasset, Mass./Cohasset) won NESCAC Rookie of the Year honors on Wednesday, as the New England Small College Athletic Conference announced its 2011 Women's Basketball All-Conference Team.

Kelly played in all 25 of Bates' games this season as the Bobcats went 17-8, scoring 7.6 points per game on .476 shooting while grabbing 2.9 rebounds and 1.4 steals per contest. Kelly topped all rookies in the conference in scoring and field goal percentage.

The 5-foot-8 guard hit 80 of 168 field goal attempts on the season, and her .476 field goal percentage ranked her eighth in the conference. In conference games, Kelly's shooting percentage rose to .526. Kelly was also a tenacious perimeter defender, and she averaged 1.44 steals per game, 14th best in the NESCAC. Kelly twice won Rookie of the Week honors this season from the Maine Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

Some of her season highlights included an 11-point, six-rebound effort against Wesleyan, a 15-point game against Connecticut College, collecting 18 points, seven rebounds and nine steals in a win over UMaine-Presque Isle, and scoring a season-high 19 points in a win at Husson.

Mashpee up next

The win set up a rematch with Mashpee tonight in Cohasset at 7 p.m.

Mashpee beat West Bridgewater 63-21 on Wednesday night.

Cohasset beat Mashpee Feb. 18 in Cohasset to win the South Shore League title.

"We're looking forward to Mashpee," Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero said. "It's another big game for us. We're going to do the same thing we did the last time. We won that game. We want to do the same things."

Ruggiero was pleased with the way his Skippers performed against Sturgis.

"Everything was great," he said. "We had a chance to get 13 players into the game and we got a win. We're 19-2. Can you believe it."

Shane Haggerty scored 10 for Cohasset, and Sam Richardson, Chris Murphy and Joe Buckley all scored six.

Kyrel Jaundoo chipped in 5 points.

The Cohasset girls basketball team (17-3), seeded No. 4 in the Div. 4 South Sectional was in action last night against No. 13 Harwich (13-9) at Cohasset.

Results were unavailable at press time.

A Cohasset victory would set up a game against either No. 5 Norfolk Aggie or No. 12 Blue Hills on Saturday.

When the Cohasset boys beat Mashpee 60-49 on Feb. 18, Haggerty scored 18 points and Jones scored 12 as Cohasset pulled away in the final four minutes .

It was an emotional win for the Skippers, and while the stakes were big the last time, this is a Tournament game, and the loser goes home, while the winner will be looking at a semifinal game against either Cape Cod Academy or Blue Hills.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MARCH 14, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Consider moving beyond the usual methods to find a more creative means of handling a difficult on-the-job situation. Avoid confrontation and, instead, aim for cooperation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Seasonal change creates a new look for the outdoors. It also inspires Taureans to redo their own environments, and this is a good week to start redoing both your home and workplace. Enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A misunderstanding needs to be straightened out so the wrong impression isn't allowed to stand. If necessary, offer to support the use of a third party to act as an impartial arbitrator.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A career change offering what you want in money and responsibilities could involve moving to a new location. Discuss this with family members before making a decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Feeling miffed over how you believe you were treated is understandable. But before you decide to "set things straight," make sure the whole thing wasn't just a misinterpretation of the facts.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Showing you care makes it easier to build trust and gain an advantage in handling a delicate situation. What you learn from this experience also will help you understand yourself better.

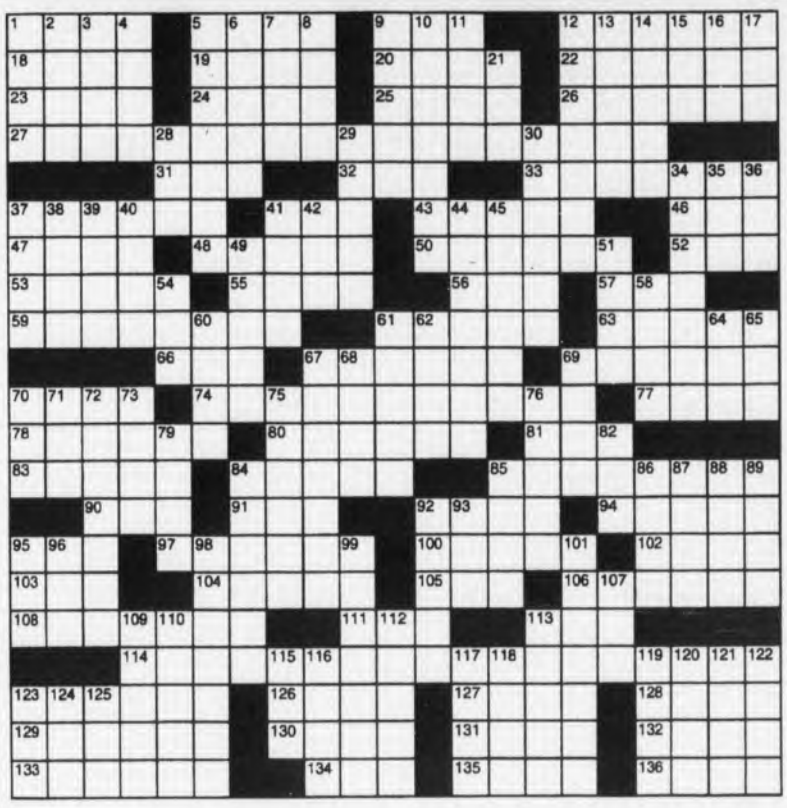
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Planning for the future is fine, especially if you include the roles that family members may be asked to play. Don't be surprised if some hidden emotions are revealed in the process.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Making choices highlights much of the week, and you have a head start here, thanks to your ability to grasp the facts of a situation and interpret them in a clear-cut manner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Carrying a torch can be a two-way situation: It can either keep you tied to the past or help light your way to the future. The choice, as always, has to be yours.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your watchwords this week are: "Focus." "Focus." "Focus." Don't let yourself be distracted from what you set out to do. There'll be time later to look over other possibilities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A workplace opportunity might require changes you're not keen on making. Discuss the plusses and minuses with someone familiar with the situation before you make a decision.



PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Love and romance are strong in your aspect this week. If you've already met the right person, expect your relationship to grow. And if you're still looking, odds are you'll soon be finding it.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Race to Nowhere' at St. Stephen's on March 14

St. Stephen's Church on Highland Avenue invites you to a screening of Vicki Abeles critically acclaimed documentary, Race to Nowhere, which chronicles the unprecedented pressures placed on today's American students.

The film features "the heartbreaking stories of young people who have been pushed to the brink and educators who are burned out and worried that students aren't developing the skills needed for the global economy." Race to Nowhere "points to the silent epidemic running rampant in our schools."

The film is a "call to families, educators, experts and policy makers to examine current assumptions on how to best prepare the youth of America to become the healthy, bright, contributing and leading citizens in the 21st century." Please visit racetonowhere.com to reserve your tickets for the screening at St. Stephen's and discover how you can help reform our achievement-based culture for the better. The film begins at 7pm, March 14, in the church and a discussion follows.

Help out the Food Pantry

The pantry has come a long way in filling their shelves over the past few months – thanks to the generosity of the community. Yet, there is a constant need, especially for certain items, see list below.

In addition, the pantry is in need of industrial strength shelving for their back room. This would be an ideal donation from a group of individuals or an organization. Contact Food Pantry co-director Jane Corry for more details (e-mail address is corryjm@gmail.com.

Donations can be dropped off at the rear entrance of St. Anthony's Rectory on South Main St. from 8:30 to 9:30a.m. on Tuesdays, at Stop & Shop, or at local churches on Sundays. Donations may also be left at the St. Anthony Parish Center, Monday through Friday, 9a.m. to 3p.m. To give a monetary donation, the food pantry mailing address is Cohasset Food Pantry, P.O. Box 297, Cohasset, MA 02025.

To contact the food pantry call 781-383-0219, ext. 25. Someone will return your call.

The Cohasset Food Pantry does not accept expired or already opened food.

MARCH 3-11, 2011

'The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee' comes to Cohasset

The Cohasset Dramatic Club will present "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee," the hit Broadway musical from March 11-27 Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m., Sundays at 2 p.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall Theater.

"Spelling Bee," the hilarious tale of overachievers' angst, chronicles the experience of six adolescent outsiders vying for the spelling bee championship of a lifetime. The show's Tony Award-winning creative team has created the unlikeliest of hit musicals about the unlikeliest of heroes; a quirky, yet charming cast of outsiders for whom a spelling bee is the one place where they can stand out and fit in at the same time. The show is renowned for its audience participation in the onstage shenanigans, making it the perfect vehicle to offer unassuming local celebrities from education, the arts and clergy, their own chance for a moment of fame.

The following guest spellers who will try their hand onstage:

Rev. Gary Ritts, Second Congregational Church (March 12)

Dr. Jennifer deChiara, Principal, Deer Hill School (March 13)

Mrs. Stephanie Moriarty and Mr. John DeWaal, Cohasset High School Music Department (March 18)

Mr. Gary Graziano, Athletic Director, Rockland High School (March 19)

Mrs. Patty Cunningham, PSO VP Deer Hill School (March 20)

"The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" is directed by Mark Bono, music directed by Bethany Aiken and choreographed by Jojo Fichtner. Tickets are available at Paperscapes or Buttonwood Books, Cohasset, online at www.brownpapertickets.com, by reservation at 617-697-2115, or at the door, one hour prior to each performance. For more information visit www.cohassetdramaticclub.org.

17th Benefit Quilt Show and Luncheon at Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., Cohasset, on March 5, 10:30 a.m.-2 p.m. The sanctuary comes alive with more than 60 quilts gently draped over the pews. Each has a story to tell and maybe even a few secrets to share. And, to gilt the lily, luncheon is served by waiters in a white tableclothed dining room beautifully appointed with spring flowers. Tickets are available for $15, by calling the Second Congregational Church or by sending a SASE to the church with your check. Reservations for groups of 4 or more are accepted for specific luncheon seatings by contacting the church. All proceeds benefit The Spark Center in Mattapan, serving some of Boston's most high risk children: those living with complicated medical conditions as well as those with significant family or social concerns. The entire event is handicap accessible. Information: 781-383-0345.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Outpouring of love for Ed Lappen

Friends honor him with heartfelt letters

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

There is little doubt that Ed Lappen would enjoy being Cohasset's Citizen of the Year. His wife, Helene Lieb, said Ed loved bringing people together and always appreciated the importance of family. The couple has two children, Ross and Mia Lieb-Lappen.

"He would be looking down, smiling," Lieb said about her late husband. Lappen, known affectionately as "Eddie" by those close to him, lost his life in December in a tragic accident.

Lappen has been selected as the 18th annual Cohasset Citizen of the Year by an unprecedented outpouring of heartfelt letters and emails to the Cohasset Mariner for this year's award. A special reception honoring Lappen will be held at Atlantica in May.

The Cohasset Mariner Citizen of the Year is an annual award presented to a deserving citizen, couple or group as determined by the selection committee. The Mariner asks for nominations through a notice in the paper.

This year's selection committee met at the Cohasset Mariner office at 73 South St. in Hingham on a recent Sunday to pore over the nominations submitted by a host of local citizens. Fire Chief Robert Silvia, Darilynn Evans and Martha Gjesteby, all of Cohasset, joined editor Mary Ford in the task reviewing all the nomination letters.

In an interview at her Deep Run home this week, Helene said not only would Ed be delighted with being named Citizen of the Year, he would also be pleased that a reception would be held in his honor.

"When Ed walked into a room, everyone felt like they were Ed's best friend," Helene recalled. "Eddie would love an event that brings people together – and the networking that can take place at an event like that."

More than 80 of Lappen's friends signed a note nominating him for Citizen of the Year that described Lappen as "truly one of life's good guys."

"Ed's humanity and dedication to his family, to his business, to charity and to his community exemplifies a well-rounded 'citizenship' that deserves to be recognized in a small way" by this award, they wrote.

School board wants level services

Certifies $15.73 million budget

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The School Committee approved a $15,732,294 million budget to send to Town Meeting.

The budget number represents a level services, meaning the same level of services will be provided next year as there were this year.

But, the number is higher — about $330,000 higher — than what the town has said it can afford. Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard recommended a school budget of $15,402 million (2.44 percent increase) based on his estimates of new revenue.

The approved $15.732 million budget represents a 4.64 percent increase over the current fiscal year's budget. The School Committee unanimously approved the budget number.

How the $330,000 difference will be resolved before the April 30 Annual Town Meeting is unclear at this time. The school committee will continue the budget discussion with the Board of Selectmen and Advisory Committee in the coming weeks. An override to make up the difference has not been ruled out.

The majority of the Town Meeting has the final say on the fiscal 2012 budget. Annual Town Meeting is scheduled for Saturday, April 30.

School Committee member Jeanne Astino said while she supported the level services budget, she was concerned the townspeople could not support it.

"The only way we are going to get the other $330,000 is an override and that isn't going to happen. We can ask, but I don't think we're going to get what we're asking for," Astino said.

Vice chair Alfred Slanetz said an

COHASSET MARINER gets a new look

The Cohasset Mariner you pick up next week is going to look different from the newspaper you hold in your hands today. We're updating the design and at the same time putting a renewed focus on the community.

Our front page will be redesigned to give you more information about what you will find inside. You'll also find "Extra" tags, identifying content that is exclusive to our print edition.

As pleased as we hope you'll be with the contemporary format, we think you'll appreciate what's inside even more. You'll find a new focus on the people who make the community what it is, with weekly profiles of volunteers, students and newsmakers. There will be greater emphasis on Public Service Journalism, tackling issues in the community that matter to you. Your photos and submissions will have prominent display on a new Your News page.

We will continue to cover municipal and educational issues and maintain the level of coverage of the community you expect from us in each issue of the newspaper. We hope the new format will make it easier for you to find the content you're looking for, whether it's news, opinion, sports, calendar or one of the many other reasons you read the newspaper.

Each week on page 2, you'll find "On the Web," outlining what we're featuring online, including photo galleries, reader callouts and what the most-read stories have been.

For a preview of what to expect beginning next week, see the full-page advertisement on page 20.

We look forward to bringing you the next edition of the Cohasset Mariner.

STM is Monday

One article on warrant

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On Monday night at least a hundred citizens need to gather at the Cohasset High auditorium.

Their purpose is simple: to discuss and take action on one item of town business.

But, town officials say that it is essential for the financial health of the town for this article to be discussed and to be approved.

A Special Town Meeting is scheduled to begin at 7p.m. on March 14 in the Cohasset Middle-High School auditorium.

The one article requests $265,967.55 to be transferred from the town's stabilization fund to the water department budget to fund the fiscal 2010 deficit in the water department budget as identified in the recent water department audit.

The fact that there is a deficit at the close of fiscal 2010, which ended in June 2010, meant that the Department of Revenue would not certify the town's tax rate for the current year. As a result, third quarter tax bills have been

The Mariner caught up with John Whiteside, Director of Music Ministries, St. Stephen's Church, this week. John sent us an announcement about a free concert that you will not want to miss this Sunday (March 13) at St. Stephen's featuring organist Robert Barney.

Name: John Whiteside.

Occupation: Director of Music Ministries, St. Stephen's Church.

Best day of your life: The day I got married.

Best vacation: A trip to Virginia Beach in September – weather was still warm, and the swimming was great but the beaches were deserted and we had the whole stretch to ourselves.

Favorite season: Spring. The first day of warm weather in New England smells and feels fabulous.

Favorite holiday: Monday holidays. Working for a church fills your weekend so Monday holidays are appreciated even more.

Favorite meal: Roasted chicken. How could we live without that?

Best book: Tolkein's "Lord of the Rings."

Best movie (or actor): "To Catch a Thief," with Cary Grant and Grace Kelly. Lots of fun.

Best TV show: "Babylon V."

Best music, group, or artist: I tend to love whatever music I am listening to. The pieces I would take on a desert island would have to include Beethoven's late string quartets by the Fine Arts Quartet and, of course, the Beatles' "The White Album."

Pet peeve: People who don't like music.

Most embarrassing moment: Standing up on the organ pedals to take a bow after a performance with a big-time orchestra – on TV, no less. I'd forgotten to turn the organ off and it made a very loud noise.

Goal: To make my choirs sing as well as they can.

Person you'd most like to meet: Hector Berlioz.

Biggest worry: Being late for the concert.

Best part of Cohasset: The town common.

Fire Chief Robert Silvia takes a phone call after firefighters extinguished the two-alarm fire last Thursday at the Cohasset Harbor Inn.

Fire at Cohasset Harbor Inn

$926,000 estimated damages

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

A fire that started in the basement of the Cohasset Harbor Inn caused almost $1 million in damages to the building.

The Inn has partially re-opened this week.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation by the state Fire Marshal Office, Fire Chief Robert Silvia said on Wednesday.

"There is not suspicion of foul play," Silvia said, adding the inn's insurance company is also conducting their own investigation. The fire started in the basement laundry room so the investigators are looking at the dryers and electrical causes, Silvia said.

On Thursday, March 3 shortly after 12:30p.m., the Fire Department received a central station alarm and a 9-1-1 call about a fire in the basement laundry room.

When fire units arrived, they found heavy smoke condition in the building, which had been evacuated. The first arriving units saw smoke coming from the vent on the roof of the three-story building.

Under the command of Captain Paul Bilodeau crews advanced a hose line to the basement to mount an interior attack of the fire. When the interior crew encountered dense smoke and high heat in the basement, a second alarm was struck and a call put out for mutual aid shortly before 1p.m.

Units from the Scituate, Hingham, Norwell, and Hull fire departments responded to assist. Hull covered the station while the other units assisted at the scene of the fire.

According to Silvia, the firefighters advanced the hose line into the basement and encountered a well-developed fire and were challenged by low visibility and intense heat.

"With a coordinated effort, firefighters contained the fire spread to the room of origin," Silvia said. It took 26 members of the combined fire departments 50 minutes to confirm a knockdown of the fire.

No one was injured during the fire.

"There was extensive heat and smoke damage to the basement area and smoke damage to the first, second and third floors of the building," Silvia said. A fire investigator from the State Fire Marshal Office responded to investigate the cause and origin of the fire, which is routine, Silvia said.

The fire department was on the scene from 12:30 to 5:45p.m. Silvia estimates the damage to the building and its contents to be approximately $926,000.

Attempts to reach a representative from the Cohasset Harbor Inn to comment were unsuccessful.

Car stop leads to arrests, drugs and $15K in cash

Cohasset police charged three men with intent to distribute marijuana and seized marijuana and $15,050 in cash after stopping a Nissan Maxima on Route 3A Friday, March 4. Charged were David M. McGlory, 21, of Burlington, Vt., Christopher D. Maloney, 21, of Nashua, N.H., and Benjamin J. McShane, 21, of Scituate, with possession of a Class D substance with intent to distribute. McShane was additionally charged with operating under the influence of drugs, negligent operation of a motor vehicle, and operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

At 9:11 p.m. on March 3, Lt. William Quigley was clearing an unrelated car stop on Route 3A and was attempting to merge back into traffic when he observed a Nissan Maxima approaching from rear at a high rate of speed. Quigley then observed the vehicle enter the wrong lane of traffic and pass by him and the tow truck that was also attempting to reenter traffic, nearly striking an oncoming vehicle.

Quigley activated his emergency lights and stopped the vehicle at the Scituate line. Quigley spoke to the operator, McShane, and immediately noticed a strong odor of burnt as well as raw marijuana. Quigley could smell the odor of marijuana coming from McShane's breath and he observed that McShane appeared stupefied, his eyes were bloodshot and eyelids were drooping. When Quigley asked who was smoking marijuana, McShane stated that he had just smoked "some weed." Lt. Quigley asked McShane if there was any more marijuana in the vehicle and McShane produced a plastic bag of green vegetable matter suspected to be marijuana from between the seats.

As a result of the Lt. Quigley's observations of the marijuana odor and McShane's admissions, Quigley along with Officer Francis Yannizzi and a Scituate Police officer who had arrived to assist, conducted a search of the Maxima. An additional bag of green vegetable matter believed to be marijuana was located inside a backpack in the rear seat and inside a duffel bag in the trunk, officers found a plastic zip loc bag that contained a large amount of US currency separated by denominations.

Upon further investigation at the station, Hingham Officer James Foss and his K-9 "Axel" were alerted to the odor of drugs on the money found in the zip loc bag. The cash totaled $15,050. The officers could also smell an odor of marijuana on the cash and observed small particles of green vegetable matter believed to be marijuana inside the bag along with the money. Based on the smell, the presence of suspected marijuana inside the bag, the manner in which the cash was packaged and the occupants' inability to provide an explanation, police determined that probable cause existed to believe that the money was being used for, or was the proceeds from, drug distribution.

The three men were arraigned in Quincy District Court on Monday, March 7; they are expected to return to court for a pre-trial conference next month.

Two female motorists face OUI charges

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

• At 8:50 p.m. on Friday (March 4), an officer observed a 2009 Subaru Forrester headed south on Route 3A weaving and pulled the vehicle over near Brewster Road. The operator, a 43-year-old Marshfield woman, was showing signs and symptoms of intoxication. She attempted to perform a field sobriety test but was stopped for her own safety because she was very unsteady on her feet, police said. She was arrested and charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, negligent operation, and failure to drive within marked lanes. Her vehicle was towed.

• At 9:41 p.m. on Friday (March 4), police responded to an accident on North Main Street near the railroad crossing. Upon arrival they saw a 1999 Mazda Protégé that had crashed into the traffic island. Police said in talking with the 53-year-old Hingham woman who had been driving they determined she was showing signs of intoxication. She was arrested and charged with operating under the influence of alcohol and failure to stay in marked lanes. Police said she plead out at arraignment and her case was continued without a finding for six months. She also has to attend drunken driving school and had her license suspended for 45 days.

Failure to yield

At 7:22 a.m. on Monday (Feb. 28), police responded to a two-car accident at Pond Street and Bancroft Road. A 2005 Honda Pilot, operated by a 51-year-old Cohasset woman, was traveling west toward the high school, when a 2004 Jeep Wrangler, operated by a 17-year-old Cohasset boy, struck it. Police said the Wrangler, which was coming out of Bancroft Road to make a right and head west toward the high school, slid through the stop sign. The Honda was towed. The 17-year-old was cited for failure to yield at an intersection.

Hit wall

At 8:04 a.m., on Monday (Feb. 28), police responded to a single car accident on the east side of Beechwood Street near Route 3A. Police said a 1995 Ford van, operated by a 48-year-old Cohasset man, was coming up Beechwood toward 3A when he moved to the middle of the road to avoid a pedestrian. The slush grabbed the tires and the van slid and hit a wall. There was considerable damage to the undercarriage and the van had to be towed.

Sneezing fit

At 9:18 a.m. on Tuesday (March 1) a 40-year-old Weymouth woman reported a minor accident on King Street by Dunkin Donuts. She was operating a 1996 Jeep Cherokee but had a sneezing fit and closed her eyes – resulting in her hitting the rear of a 2008 Toyota Prius, operated by a 31-year-old Scituate woman that was slowing down to pull into Dunkin Donuts. Both vehicles were headed north on 3A when the accident occurred.

Near Dunkin' Donuts

At 10:28 a.m. on Saturday (March 5), there was a two-car accident on King Street near Dunkin Donuts. Police said a 2009 BMW 328, operated by a 60-year-old Marshfield woman, was exiting the driveway at the Pizza Zone to make a right onto 3A when a 2000 Nissan Sentra, operated by a 69-year-old Cohasset man, passed in front of her. The BMW drove into the side of the Sentra as it slowed down to turn into the Dunkin Donuts driveway. Neither car was towed but the Marshfield woman was cited for failure to yield, police said.

Dog barking

A 51-year-old Cohasset woman reported last Tuesday (March 1) that a 39-year-old neighbor who confronted her about her dog's barking frightened her. The neighbor was apparently tired of listening to the dog but his manner made her nervous, police said. The matter was referred to the animal control officer.

Checked out

Police pulled over a 1994 Chrysler LeBaron, operated by a 70-year-old Hull man, after a concerned caller reported seeing the driver drinking a beer as he was leaving the parking lot at Stop & Shop at about 4:21 p.m. on Tuesday (March 1). Police stopped the car on Ripley Road about 45 minutes later. There were no open containers and the operator checked out OK.

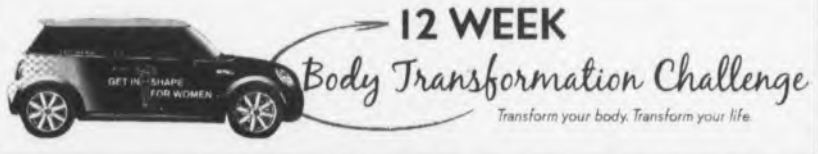
Traffic ticket

A 57-year-old Cohasset man went to the police station last Wednesday (March 2) at about 7 a.m. to dispute a traffic ticket. Police explained that the police station was not the proper venue to appeal the ticket.

Dog struck

A caller reported at 8:41 a.m. last Wednesday (March 2) hitting a small white dog on North Main Street near Red Gate Lane. The dog was taken to the animal hospital in Hingham and the owner was notified. The animal control officer is following up.

Road rage



A 66-year-old Cohasset man was issued a citation for following a 62-year-old Cohasset man from the library to the Shaw's parking lot in an apparent road rage incident last Wednesday (March 2) at about 5:06 p.m., police said. The 62-year-old man apparently triggered the incident when he honked as he pulled out of the library book drop-off area because he nearly pulled into the side of the car driven by the 66-year-old who had just pulled out of the library parking lot.

BB holes

Coastal Cleaners on Route 3A is replacing a $200 window after finding two BB holes last Thursday (March 3). The incident was reported at 11:59 a.m. Police have no suspects at this time.

Squatters

Police believe squatters have been staying at an apartment in a town-owned building at 821 Jerusalem Road. Last week a 26-year-old woman in the neighboring apartment in the building heard activity at about 4 a.m. but did not call police until the next morning. Police checked the vacant apartment and found it to be filthy and full of trash. The Board of Health and building department were notified.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Friends honor Lappen with heartfelt letters

roommate at Northwestern University. She said the couple soon realized they both shared a passion for making a difference.

She said, as children of the 1960s, they were both inspired by President John F. Kennedy who urged young people to give back to their country.

"At that time, young people thought more about global issues – something outside of themselves," Helene recalled. "People talked about changing the world to make it a better place. That influenced Ed and I."

Helene and Ed, who was CEO of his family business Lappen Auto Supply Inc., shared similar inspiration when President Barack Obama was elected; both have been active in the Cohasset Democratic Town Committee (DTC).

Their home on Deep Run has served as a gathering place for DTC meetings and many other events. The couple has also been involved in numerous efforts ranging from the Appalachia Service Project, Relay For Life, and school METCO program to a responsible energy group dubbed REACH, the Crittenton Women's Union and the CasaSito Association that increases the educational opportunities and improves the living conditions for underprivileged people in Guatemala.

Recently Ed had been serving on the Advisory Committee, the Water Planning Group and Water Audit Group; Helene is chairman of the School Committee.

John McSheffrey, 137 Fairoaks Lane, wrote in his nomination that he was amazed at the scope of people who attended Lappen's service at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom in Hingham in early January.

"The power that Ed had to make people think about living a better life everyday certainly has made the people of Cohasset more socially aware and richer in spirit for knowing him."

— Ed and Betsy Connolly, 1 Lily Pond Lane

"People I knew from my kids' sports, people I knew from various school events, people from the DTC, people from Town Hall – simply put, it seems as if Ed knew everyone.

"While the service was incredibly sad, I couldn't but think about the sphere of influence that this one man had within a community."

Rick & Karen Kirkendall, former Cohasset residents, wrote that everyone thinks about giving back but not everyone actually does.

"Ed never thought that way; he was always giving," they wrote. "It was in his DNA."

Betsy and Edward Connolly of 1 Lily Pond Lane wrote in their nomination: "The power that Ed had to make people think about living a better life everyday certainly has made the people of Cohasset more socially aware and richer in spirit for knowing him."

In talking about Lappen's support for the Cohasset Diversity Committee/No Place for Hate Committee, Chartis Tebbetts, 9 Jerusalem Road Drive, may have put it best in her nomination.

"Ed really saw the world as a place of friends yet to meet, not a place of danger or of people to be suspicious about," Tebbetts wrote.

"Ed was also a person of high standards, expecting the same kind of honesty and openness that he lived by. He could ask the simple questions and wasn't satisfied until he got an answer. He had a lot of courage, and was also able to ask for help.

"All in all, I think Ed is a really fine role model, transcending details about age and background. So honoring Ed in this way is also honoring what he stood for," Tebbetts wrote.

Ed and Helene moved to Cohasset in 1980 and quickly fell in love with the community.

"I cannot imagine living anyplace else," Helene said about her adopted hometown. "We may go abroad to help people and give back – but we will always maintain our homestead here and be connected to this town."

Helene said the best way to honor Ed is to give back to the community while cherishing your family. She said while he worked hard at his job and in his volunteer service – family always came first.

Importance of Carbon Monoxide detectors

Helene Lieb said the last thing that her husband Ed Lappen would want is for some other family to go through what they have. Ed lost his life in December to carbon monoxide poisoning in the family's log cabin in Vermont when a propane heater malfunctioned.

"Another way of honoring Eddie is to educate people about the importance of carbon monoxide detectors while the issue is fresh in people's minds," she said. "Newspapers can save lives – they remind you of things."

The following is from the Office of the State Fire Marshal:

- Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, poisonous gas that results from incomplete burning of fuels such as natural gas, propane, oil, wood, coal, and gasoline.
- In Massachusetts carbon monoxide alarms are required to be located on every level of a home or dwelling unit including habitable portions of basements and attics.
- The first symptoms of CO poisoning are similar to the flu (but without the fever). They include: headache, fatigue, shortness of breath, nausea, dizziness. If you think you have symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning or your CO alarm is sounding, contact the fire department.

Fine citizens nominated for annual award

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The Cohasset Mariner received five nominations from literally dozens of individuals for the annual Citizen of the Year Award. A selection committee consisting of Fire Chief Robert Silvia, Darilynn Evans, and Martha Gjesteby, all of Cohasset, joined editor Mary Ford in poring over the nominations at the Cohasset Mariner office in Hingham Square on a recent Sunday and selected Ed Lappen for the annual award.

The decision was unanimous, although not reached without considerable discussion about the other very deserving candidates including:

- Joseph and Janet Campbell dubbed "Team Campbell" for unstoppable community service. Joe for selflessly putting in thousands of hours coaching and mentoring Cohasset children in basketball, baseball, and most importantly, life; for his support in hosting fundraisers or awards dinner for numerous local sports teams. He has also provided employment for dozens of high school and college kids every summer and mentors the students on how they should conduct and present themselves in a professional work setting. Janet for her work at church, Cohasset schools, the METCO program, and countless other efforts including the Project Linus blanket program.
- Joe McElroy for exemplifying community spirit. He was one of the first volunteers in forming the Lightkeepers Corporation that led to the rebuilding of the Lightkeepers House, a town gem. Now as Veterans Agent, he works tirelessly for his fellow veterans and has reorganized the agent's role to help make information and services more accessible.
- Karen Quigley, for being an outstanding and dedicated public servant in her role as selectman, who has made the effort to acquaint herself with local issues by attending countless organizational meetings to learn about the situations under discussion.
- Tina Watson, a true unsung hero, for her service on the Farmers Market and Music Circus boards and for always being there for anyone in need, whether it is searching for someone's lost dog or helping a shut-in or elderly person who has just lost someone.

Lappen is 18th Citizen of Year

Ed Lappen is the18th person honored as the Cohasset Citizen of the Year, joining past recipients:

Gerard T. Keating, "Mr. Cohasset": for his more than half-century of contributions to the community, including serving as chairman of the Council on Aging, chairman of the school committee, president of the hockey boosters club, vice president of the Cohasset Historical Society, director of veterans services, and lector, eucharistic minister and usher at St. Anthony's Church.

Joseph D. Buckley, for his work behind the scenes helping seniors understand the complexities of the healthcare system and to access health benefits through SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders), his service on the Council on Aging, and volunteer work over the years with the Boy Scouts, Little league, Sunday School and more.

Dr. Robert T. Sceery, for his more than 40 years of dedicated service as a pediatrician in town and school doctor. He also served on the board of health and led the fight back in the 1970s to sewer the town. He is also a familiar figure at town meetings where he speaks his mind on important issues.

The Rev. Gary Ritts, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, for being a positive force for good through his work with the Appalachia Service Project (ASP), an ecumenical volunteer effort involving Cohasset teenagers. ASP is a home building ministry in central Appalachia.

Anna Abbruzzese, for all her volunteer work including preparing and delivering meals for the Pine Street Inn, driving the senior shuttle and coordinating the Gourmet Cooking Club at the Council on Elder Affairs; and her many efforts to help revitalize Cohasset Village through the Farmers' Market and much more.

Katherine Stanton, for her tireless service to the town and its citizens over the years. She also volunteers as a case reviewer for the state Dept. of Social Services, served on the school committee and recreation committee, and along with her family was involved with the creation of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

Clark Chatterton, for his generosity of spirit and deep caring for his fellow man, his years of work as a teacher and athletic director at the high school, including innumerable efforts helping others behind the scenes. He also helped raise money for many causes including Alumni Field and the American Cancer Society.

former state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray for a lifetime of service to her hometown, first as den mother and Little League mother and Girl Scout leader, and then as selectman. She was also honored for her public service as state representative for more than two decades and for always putting her constituents first.

Glenn Pratt for his dogged determination over 20 years to see more cemetery space in town, remembering local soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice, helping to lead the effort to expand the community center, serving as an elected official, and spearheading the effort to build a memorial to local mothers who lost sons in wartime.

Arthur Lehr for more than 50 years of volunteer service on worthwhile projects including the Boy Scouts; serving on the Zoning Board of Appeals and as a Registrar of Voters; Clerk of the Works for the DPW garage, Little League Complex, and Mariners Park; serving on the Recycling Committee, as town Civil Defense Director, on Gravel Pit Reuse Committee and more.

Marjorie Murphy for touching countless lives through her roughly 25 years as school librarian at Deer Hill. With eyes that twinkle and an infectious smile, Mrs. Murphy devoted her life to helping children discover the wonders of reading and the value of a good book.

John Coe, a WWII veteran, for all his volunteer service at the Senior Center where he helps make the center a warm place where people come and meet friends; for his work quietly behind the scenes helping fellow citizens and his service as the "beloved Town Crier" every year at the Village Fair.

Marjorie "Margie" Steele, who is the "heart and soul of the Cohasset Food Pantry," for her energy and long-time commitment to the important service, which has helped countless people in need over the years.

Roger Whitley, a retired architect, former Advisory Committee member, and Paul Pratt Library Trustee, who has spent much time over his 50 years as a Cohasset resident "involved."

Merle Brown, former selectman (four terms), Conservation Commissioner, involvement with Beechwood Ball Park project, Boy Scouts, recycling, to name a few.

JoAnne Chittick, artist and volunteer. Chittick has been a volunteer at Rosie's Place for 30 years; 20 of which she has coordinated 50 local cooks who sign up to prepare meatloaf, vegetables or dessert once a month for 10 months a year for the shelter.

- Dick Avery, volunteer, whose community service activities – including serving on town boards, on non-profits, helping the Boy Scouts and so much more – are almost too numerous to list.

Principal Sheehan leaving Osgood

Osgood Elementary's Principal Janet Sheehan was all ready to greet her students with her welcome back bell on the first day of the 2010-2011 school year. She is leaving Osgood on July 1.

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Osgood School Principal Janet Sheehan will be leaving the district on July 1. Sheehan announced to parents and students this week that she has accepted a position as principal at one of four elementary schools in the Milton School district.

When reached on Thursday morning, Sheehan said she had anticipated finishing her career at Osgood, but the lure of new challenges got her to apply for the principal position at Collicot Elementary School in Milton. She is finishing her tenth year as the head of Osgood School.

"This school, the teachers, the students have accomplished so much together over the past 10 years. That's one of the hardest part to leave that behind," Sheehan said.

Sheehan is no stranger to Milton, or to Collicot Elementary. Before coming to Cohasset and Osgood School in 2001, she served as the assistant principal at Collicot for several years. She will succeed a retiring principal at the school that educates roughly 630 students. Unlike Osgood, which serves pre-kindergarten through grade two, Collicot is a pre-K through grade 5.

"Over the years I have never done anything alone," Sheehan said. She praised the teachers, parents, and students in the Cohasset community. One of her favorite parts of the job was working with the Osgood School Council, which annually produces the school improvement plan, among other initiatives.

The integrated pre-kindergarten program, the Primary Learning Center, the STEM lab were some of the accomplishments she was most proud of over the last decade. She said a lot of the technological components in the elementary classrooms would not be possible without the generosity and support of parent and community groups like the PSO and CEF.

"Seeing the way the students greet us in the morning getting off the buses – what a joy! The children have been the greatest joy in this job," Sheehan said.

Sheehan submitted her letter of resignation to the superintendent and school committee this week. She also sent a letter out to parents and students on Thursday. She said she would work in the transition to a new principal.

"I have mixed emotions – it's bittersweet. Osgood is very, very special place," Sheehan said.

School Committee certifies $15.73 million budget override wasn't the only possibility of making up the $300,000. He said there could be some pre-payment of special education or supplies at the end of fiscal 2011, state and federal budgets are still being worked on.

"This budget at least maintains what we have," Slanetz said.

Paul Schubert, school committee member, said the lower budget alternative could have lasting impacts on the school system.

"(If we take the lower budget number) we are cutting potentially into positions and that's never a good thing," Schubert said.

School Committee chair Helene Lieb took an optimistic view, "once everything shakes out we may be in better shape than we thought."

School business manager Dave DeGennaro said the committee could have more and clearer information as town meeting inches closer.

"I'd hate to see the schools have another year of a 2.4 percent increase. It's getting to the point where (those small increases) are eating away with what we have," DeGennaro said.

The past two fiscal years (fiscal 2010 and 2011) there were 2.8 and 2.2 percent increases over the prior year.

Special Town Meeting is Monday delayed. The property tax bills issuance is dependent on Town Meeting approving the article.

"We have borrowed (more than $7 million) in anticipation of the tax bills going out later this month. We don't want to have to go out and borrow again," said interim Town Manager Steve Lombard. If the article is approved, a property tax bill with both the third quarter and fourth quarter bills will be mailed to homes by the end of the month.

"It's extremely important to have a quorum at this Special Town Meeting. We need to have Town Meeting consider this and pass this article," Lombard said. "It is in the best interest of the town to do this and get this moving forward."

"We need to have Town Meeting consider this and pass this article."
— Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard

With only one article on the warrant some are concerned 100 citizens won't turn up at Town Meeting. One hundred registered voters are required to be present before town meeting can be called to order.

"People's lives have become very busy and attending Town Meeting just doesn't seem to be a priority. So, yes, (getting a quorum) is a concern. I hope people realize that unless you attend you let others make all the decisions for you," said Selectmen chair Karen Quigley. "I think a big lesson we all should have learned from recent events is how important it is to actively participate in our town government.

Lombard said the water department will be required to pay back this "loan" from the stabilization fund with any retained earnings of this year and following years.

If the article passes roughly $220,000 will be left in the town's stabilization fund, Lombard said.

Hey, we spring ahead this weekend!

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

SPRING AHEAD

Hello Cohasset, how is everyone doing? Guess what? It is the weekend when we get to "Spring Ahead" with the clocks. Before you head to bed tomorrow night,(Saturday) make sure to set all your clocks AHEAD by one hour and voila, we gain an extra hour of daylight. It may not be total springtime yet but it sure helps get us past the wintertime blues.

GO BLUE

This past week has been a week of accomplishments by many and we should all take the time to show and talk about "Cohasset Pride!" Congratulations to the CHS Boys Basketball team as they continue moving forward this Saturday night on the way to the South Sectional Final at UMass in Boston. Then, the CHS Girls Basketball had a great run and even though the win did not happen against Hull, they have nothing to hang their heads for, great job girls.

ON STAGE

Also, the CHS one-act entry into the State Drama Competition was held in Duxbury last weekend and Cohasset was one of 3 entries out of 8 schools selected to move onto the semi-finals on March 19th. This cast and crew consists of 26 students and the play calls for a good deal of technical lighting, sound, as well as serious acting. The play is "At The Bottom of Lake Missoula" by Ed Monk and it will be performed next Thursday, March 17th at 7 p.m. at the CHS auditorium. Please try to take the time to come and watch, you won't be disappointed. Congratulations to all on what you have accomplished and continue to do.

UMASS-DARTMOUTH

Olivia Kimla of Cohasset, majoring in psychology, has been named to the Chancellor's List in recognition of earning a semester grade point average of 3.8 or higher of a possible 4.0.

Great work, Olivia!

DERBY HONORS

The following Cohasset students earned first honors recognition for the first semester of the 2010-2011 academic year at Derby Academy.

First Honors, Grade Eight: Rebecca Brown.

First Honors, Grade Seven: Bri Condon, JD Dietrich, Cali Giuggio, Karlee Koswick, Abbie McLean, Grace McMeekin and Regan O'Donnell.

First honors certificates are awarded at the end of each semester during to qualifying students in grades seven and eight who have achieved an A- (90) or better average in all academic subjects, with no single academic or special subject below an A- (90), and Satisfactory marks in art, music, drama, shop, sewing, computer and other special courses.

Congratulations all!

COMPUTER CLASS

Here are some wonderful events and learning opportunities to take advantage of. Learn how to upload and download photos from your digital camera at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library on Tuesday, March 22 at 10:30 am. Brian Noble from Noble's Camera Shops will demonstrate and explain the steps needed to print, organize, or share your photos. This is a Next Chapter event. Also, a Basic Internet Search workshop will be on Wednesday, March 23 at 10:30am. This is for novices and is free. The seating is limited. Last, come and enjoy some coffee and discussion of Paul Harding's Pulitzer Prize winning novel Tinkers on Wednesday, March 30 at 10 am. Free. All are welcome. Call the library to register or ask any questions at 781-383-1348.

CDC SHOW

Ok everyone, here is a show that you don't want to miss! The Cohasset Dramatic Club presents "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" check it out on page 14 of this week's Mariner.

LUAU

The CEF (Cohasset Education Foundation) would like all families to know that the Spring Event will take place on Saturday, April 9th at the Cohasset Golf Club. A fun-filled Hawaiian Luau is planned. Invitations will go out this week. Tickets may be purchased via the on-line invitation, through the website at www.cohasseteducation.org or at the door, for a slightly higher fee. If you would like to donate to the auction, advertise in the booklet or help with the event, please contact Ginni Froio at ginnifro@comcast.net. This is a wonderful event for all and raises funds for a very good cause.

MARCH MADNESS

Often described as "the most fun you can have in a church", Second Congregational Church's March Madness Time and Talent Auction is an evening of great food, terrific auction items, and fabulous company. The evening begins at 6:30 pm on Saturday, March 19th from 6:30-9:30 pm at the Second Congregational Church with gourmet appetizers. The silent and live auctions begin promptly at 7:00 and continue, along with periodic raffles, until 9:30. Auction items include sports and theater tickets; vacation homes; private baseball, sailing, and riding lessons; photography and artwork; and gift baskets. No admission fee – but to reserve a table (up to 10 people) and/or tickets, please RSVP to the church office at scc@2ndcc.org or 383-0345.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm. Cell phone photos are not usually the best as they have low resolution.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

Sean Naughton launches community service Website

Usually identified by his Sean Naughton Property Maintenance truck and crew, Sean has adopted a regular role in Cohasset, as well as in other towns. But Sean Naughton is not your average senior student at Cohasset High School. He recently founded a non-profit company called "CommunityService.us" a 501 (c) 3 Web site that is solely dedicated to helping students easily acquire community service hours, while having fun helping those in need. The website was designed to promote volunteerism in communities around the country. It helps volunteers find community service opportunities and for organizations that want help to post their need. Volunteers can search for opportunities based on a radius from a given point. For example, if a student has only a couple of hours available to do community service and can't travel more than a few miles from his/her home they can set the search radius to only a few miles away.

Sean Naughton, CHS senior, recently founded a non-profit company called "CommunityService.us"

This idea stemmed from Sean's landscaping business, www.SeanNaughtonPropertyMaintenance.com when some of his workers asked to use their jobs as community service hours for college. Sean realized at this time that a match had to be made between a volunteer and a person or organization in need of help.

"I'm trying to get more people to be aware of the needs within their own community, for example the elderly, beach clean-up, snow shoveling, trash pickup and with budgets being cut, the landscaping and maintenance of town property. I want to give the opportunity for people to help," said Sean.

CommunityService.us places a great deal of emphasis on energizing and promoting volunteerism. It posts the volunteer of the month, pictures of volunteers at work, giveaway prizes to outstanding volunteers, tracks hours worked, issues certificates, encourages postings on YouTube and Twitter, and expects to eventually offer promotional merchandising.

"I truly believe that recognition is the best form of inspiration. I feel community service is an extremely powerful initiative to build camaraderie and self-esteem, and motivates a person to want to give back," Sean says. Right now the site is in its initial stage. Sean has made it clear that he wishes to perfect his growing company through college and try to include students as well as faculty in all the aspects of its development.

CommunityService.us is very simple to use. Once you create an account, you can search for volunteer opportunities, post a need, or network with other volunteers, high schools, groups or organizations.

For those that would like to donate, CommunityService, Inc. is a non-profit corporation. This type of Web site coincides with the efforts of both the Obama Administration's Edward M. Kennedy Act for community service and volunteerism as well as Governor Deval Patrick's Project 351 also focusing on volunteer efforts.

Looking for volunteers or community service hours? Check out www.communityservice.us.

Democratic Town Committee to host movie night

Cohasset Democratic Town Committee's next monthly movie night on Friday, March 18, will feature "Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps." People are invited to view this 2010 sequel to the 1987 film "Wall Street" starring Michael Douglas. The movie will be shown at 7 p.m. in the Meeting Room of Paul Pratt Library

"As the global economy teeters on the brink of disaster, a young Wall Street trader partners with disgraced former Wall Street corporate raider Gordon Gekko on a two-tiered mission: To alert the financial community to the coming doom, and to find out who was responsible for the death of the young trader's mentor." The film, centered on the 2008 financial crisis and directed by Oliver Stone is a modern-day ode to unfettered capitalism and corporate greed.

Blood drive set for March 26

The Christopher Henderson Memorial blood drive will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on Saturday, March 26, at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, 172 Main St., Hingham.

For an appointment, call 800-RED CROSS or visit www.redcrossblood.org.

Think green

Grow organic for better health and flavor. Jon Belber, education director at Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset, will speak on organic vegetable, flower, and herb gardening at 7 p.m., on Thursday, March 17, at the Mary Jeanette Murray Bathhouse, Nantasket Beach. Sponsored by Friends of the Hull Public Library, Hull Lifesaving Museum and the Department of Conservation and Recreation, the program is free. Hot chocolate and desserts will be available.

Cohasset astronaut lands safely

Crewmates share favorite Bowen stories from space

By Jill Michaels
CORRESPONDENT

When the Cohasset Mariner spoke with hometown astronaut Steve Bowen while he was flying in space last week, we didn't know that an innocent question would open Pandora's box.

Bowen launched Feb. 24 on STS-133, his surprise space shuttle flight to the International Space Station (ISS). The Cohasset native replaced injured astronaut Tim Kopra for two spacewalks, making Bowen the first American astronaut to fly on back-to-back missions. The final flight of space shuttle Discovery concluded Wednesday when Bowen and his five crewmates landed at NASA's Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Last Friday, as the shuttle and ISS crews were floating inside the space station's Destiny lab module during their in-flight news conference with reporters on the ground, the Cohasset Mariner asked two questions: one for Bowen, and one for Discovery Commander Steve Lindsey and Pilot Eric Boe. The second question exploded into the can of worms.

Bowen Speaks from Space

As soon as he heard the phrase "Cohasset Mariner from Massachusetts," Bowen reached out his hand for the microphone.

Since STS-133 featured two astronauts named Steve, a way had to be devised to distinguish between the two. The Cohasset Mariner's first question was directed to "the East Coast Steve."

What has been the most challenging part, and the most rewarding part, of Bowen's unexpected shuttle flight?

From orbit, Bowen replied: "I think the most challenging part was trying to get up to speed to understand the EVAs (spacewalks) and then, even more so, trying to get up to speed with everything else that goes on on a shuttle flight and where my tasks would be and what they were and how familiar I was with them and how much more training I had to have.

"So that was clearly the most difficult part of it."

Bowen continued: "The best part really was getting to work with the crew. It's four of my classmates from 2000 and Commander Steve Lindsey, and that's been great.

"Great crew, just having the ability to spend time with them. It's been fantastic.

"And then getting up here with the ISS crew, it's been really the best part of it."

Discovery Crew Shares Bowen Anecdotes

The Cohasset Mariner next posed a question for "the West Coast Steve," Commander Lindsey, and for Boe: What good Bowen anecdote from this week could you share with newspaper readers in his hometown?

Bowen grinned and then braced himself for what developed into an onslaught of opportunistic humor.

ISS Expedition 26 astronaut Cady Coleman giggled and gleefully clapped her hands. Astronaut Michael Barratt started counting 2-3-4-5 on his hand.

The chuckling astronauts debated among themselves for a few moments. Lindsey called down to the ground: "We're consulting. Hang on."

After his crew advised him about suggested anecdotes, Lindsey continued: "I think our favorite Steve Bowen story for this mission so far — and I'm sure there are more to come — was when Steve was taking the (ammonia) pump module off of a transporter on the truss segment, during EVA, and Mike Barratt and (ISS Commander) Scott Kelly were driving him on the robotic arm.

"About the time they released that pump module — which weighs several hundred pounds — for Steve to take in his arms so they could fly him over to where it belonged, the entire space station robotic arm crashed.

Lindsey, grinning, explained: "He was stuck there holding this payload for what seemed like a really long time for him. But actually the crew did a great job reconfiguring to an alternate robotic workstation to get it back alive pretty quickly.

"Steve was stuck there for probably 30 to 35 minutes, holding this pump module loose. And so it gave us an opportunity to joke with him and kind of make fun of him while he was out there, stuck with nowhere to go."

Boe prepared to reply to the Bowen anecdote request, but instead passed the microphone to Coleman to let her chime in. Coleman, the wife of Shelburne Falls glass artist Josh Simpson, considers Massachusetts her home state.

Coleman cordially narrated: "Hey, I just want to add one story for Steve, and that's just from today.

"We're outfitting the PMM (Permanent Multipurpose Module), the giant module that the Discovery crew brought to us.

"One of the steps in that is to actually just install some brackets, and there are six bolts on every bracket. But I'll tell you, there's only one tiny little tool on the space station here that can do it. It's a tiny, tiny little workspace to do it in.

"And Steve has been in there all morning long, doing every one of these bolts. I think there are about 60 of them. I think he just finished."

Concluded Coleman: "And so that's the kind of guy he is: he works in big spaces, small spaces, and he just always gets stuff done."

Bowen could be heard in the background telling his crewmates: "She's being nice, you know."

As Coleman passed the microphone back to Boe, Lindsey — still grinning profusely — held up one finger and announced: "One more."

Boe said: "One more is, what's great about this (STS-133) is Steve flew with me on STS-126, and just like Cady was just talking about, Steve and I have been working together on the racks in the PMM.

"So it's a pleasure to watch him get to work, just like the last flight."

Flight Day 9 Highlights

During shuttle missions, NASA airs on NASA TV a program called "Flight Day Highlights," a half-hour recap of the crew's orbital activities that day. The episode for "STS-133: Flight Day 9" included footage from Nicole Stott's ISS tour.

As Stott floated through the PMM, she narrated: "Nice music playing. Nice, big space. And back in the corner, there is Steve Bowen — working hard on a bracket.

"He's going to have to say a few words to us," she quipped. "Do it."

Bowen, eyeing Stott, replied: "It's just like a Saturday afternoon in the garage."

As she floated away, he added: "Except that I have the right tools for it."

The bonus for Cohasset? During the "Flight Day Highlights" segment covering the in-flight crew news conference, NASA included most of the Cohasset Mariner's question-and-answer exchange with the Discovery and ISS crews. NASA replayed Bowen's answer to the first question and Lindsey's Bowen anecdote.

Returning the Favor

Also during the same news conference, the Associated Press asked Bowen: Are you pinching yourself that you're even in space on this mission, have you had a chance to go spacewalking, and how are you going to make it up to Tim Kopra when you get back on Earth?

All the orbiting astronauts laughed. In reply, Bowen joked: "I am pinching myself, and there's no possible way I can make it up to Tim.

"Tim did an incredible job putting this together. It's the only reason we were so successful outside. He really did a fantastic job."

Quipped Bowen: "So if there's anything I can do for him, I'm willing to — discuss it."

Health and Rec team up

Fair will be Sunday, March 20

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"The great thing is it is all under one roof. Families can come and parents can get some screenings while their kids join in some of the activities."
— Ted Carroll, Recreation Director

On the first day of spring thoughts of warmer weather and outside activities will be foremost in many Cohasseters' minds.

To help get your body and schedule ready for the better weather is the Health and Recreation Fair set for the first day of spring, Sunday, March 20.

The Recreation Department and the Board of Health have teamed up to put on a joint event from 1 to 4p.m. at the Deer Hill School.

For at least 20 years the Board of Health has sponsored a Health Fair in the fall. The fair offered a variety of health screenings and health information. The Recreation Fair was started three years ago as a means to showcase all the recreational opportunities available in Cohasset.

Together the two departments hope to offer something for everyone. Recreation Director Ted Carroll and Public Health Nurse Mary Goodwin have been working together on the event.

"The main reason is we wanted to reach a larger audience," Goodwin said. The Health Fair was previously held during a weekday in the fall. Goodwin said she wanted all members of the community from senior citizens to young families to be able to attend the fair.

"Health and recreation go hand in hand," Goodwin said.

There will be more than 80 tables full of information about health, recreation opportunities and local vendors.

"The great thing is it is all under one roof. Families can come and parents can get some screenings while their kids join in some of the activities," Carroll said.

The health-related tables will be primarily located in the cafeteria, with a couple of classrooms for private screenings, and recreation programs and vendors will have their tables in the gymnasium. Several tables will also be set up in between the two larger areas.

Attendees can check their cholesterol levels and bone density, get nutrition advice, do a quick mental health screening, and find out about the services Elder Affairs provides. A registered nurse, who is also trained in acupressure, will offer mini-treatments.

"A lot of people look forward to it, the fair offers good preventative services," Goodwin said.

On the recreation side, the fair will introduce all the summer programs available to the community through the Recreation Department, including the perennially popular playground program and Summer Xtreme program geared toward middle-schoolers. In fact, the fair is the community's first chance to register for some of the programs, as well as the other summer sports clinics and weeklong classes.

Representatives from the Fire Department and Police Department will be on hand as well to talk about safety. Youth sports organizations will have tables set up so parents can find out about spring sports. Organizations like the Cohasset Rotary, who put together the Road Race by the Sea, and the Relay for Life will be there as well.

The fair is also is a showcase for local businesses that offer fitness programs or relate to recreational interests.

"We want to promote local business, fitness and health and let people know there is a lot available right here in town," Carroll said.

The building won't be able to contain the Health and Recreation Fair – two vans will park in front of the Deer Hill School to offer additional screenings. The Dana-Farber Blum Family Resource van will provide skin cancer screenings and the Lions Club Eye Mobile will be doing eye screenings.

"It's going to be a lot of fun and there will be some surprises," said Carroll with a smile. "Hopefully this will become a tradition everyone remembers."

A race by the sea

10K run celebrates 35 years

By Nancy White

Fran Coffey Memorial Walk at a glance

Date: Sunday, April 3
Time: 10 a.m.
Where: Begins at Sandy Beach.
Distance: Either 10K (6.2 miles) or 4.5 mile
Cost: $15 ($10 for under 14 or over 65)
Route: Either same route as Road Race beginning at the beach, or from Sandy Beach down Atlantic Avenue to Jerusalem Road, to North Main Street, to Ripley Road, to Depot Court, to South Main Street, to Elm Street, onto Margin Street, back onto Atlantic Avenue, and the walk will end at Sandy Beach.

On Sunday, April 3 hundreds of runners will line up alongside the common and wait for the sound of a ship's bell. Following the distinct ring is the roar of feet on the pavement and cheers from bystanders and the 35th Annual Road Race By the Sea will have begun.

A harbinger of spring the Road Race by the Sea is one of the first 10-kilometer races of the season in this area. The race brings runners and their families from all over Massachusetts, New England and the country.

"The town really embraces this race. It's one of those races that has a real hometown feel," said Linda Fechter, the new race director this year. "Our sponsors are local business, our volunteers live here…everyone just comes out and gives their all for this race and that's what makes it a great race."

Put on the by the Cohasset Rotary Club, the race is both certified and sanctioned as a 10K road race by the USA Track and Field, the national governing body of road races and other track events. Together with Fechter, a road race committee of Rich Fitzpatrick (current Rotary president) and Gerard Linskey helps put all the pieces into place.

In the past few years the race has grown in popularity (along with road races across the nation) from about 800 finishers in 2005 to enforcing a registration cap of 1770 in 2010. This year, for safety concerns, the race is once again capped at 1770 registrants and will not be offering race day registration. The number 1770 was chosen because it is the year Cohasset was incorporated as a town.

"We really want everyone in Cohasset who wants to run the race to be able to run the race," Fechter said. She encourages Cohasset residents to sign online and register as soon as possible.

"We absolutely anticipate selling out," Fechter said. Without any publicity, the race already has 700 registered runners.

Pre-registrants already include representatives from 11 states and Austria. Many runners use the race as part of their Boston Marathon training.

The course is challenging, but as Cohasset residents well know, very beautiful with plenty of scenic ocean vistas.

"Every year I have run someone has asked me on Forest Avenue if this is the last hill. I usually don't have the heart to tell them no!" Fechter said.

But, Rotary Club president Rich Fitzpatrick said it is the hills runners always talk about at the end of the race.

"It's a great course because it is so challenging," Fitzpatrick said.

The long-sleeved t-shirts are also annually anticipated. Goodwin Graphics has been doing the shirts for all 35 years of the race, Fitzpatrick said.

The Rotary Club is made up of about 25 business and community leaders from Cohasset or with ties to Cohasset. Their major fundraisers are the telephone book and the road race.

Fitzpatrick said much of the money raised through the road race goes right back into local organizations, programs and people. Each year the Rotary offers scholarships to Cohasset High seniors. They also support organizations like the food pantry and the historical society. They help Eagle Scouts fund their projects and provide support for enrichment programs at the schools.

Put on the by the Cohasset Rotary Club, the race is both certified and sanctioned as a 10K road race by the USA Track and Field, the national governing body of road races and other track events.

The Rotary also works with other Rotary Clubs around the world in efforts to eradicate polio and provide clean water to impoverished areas.

While the race is a large part of the day, the Fran Coffey Memorial Fun Walk is also a big draw. Coffey was instrumental in organizing the Road Race as well as the fun walk year after year, and a few years ago, the walk was renamed to serve as a memorial in his honor. The fun walk begins at 10a.m. at Sandy Beach. The proceeds from the walk will be donated to People In Need run out of St. Patrick's Church in Roxbury and Wellspring based in Hull.

A post-race picnic is a well-deserved reward for runners and their families. It is held at the South Shore Community Center on the Cohasset Common. The community is invited to partake in hot dogs, bagels, fruit and music by the Armstrong Brothers Band. "Chronicle" host (and Cohasset resident) Anthony Everett will host the award ceremony.

Cohasset Road Race at a glance

Date: Sunday, April 3
Time: 1 p.m.
Where: Begins at Cohasset Common
Distance: 10K (6.2 miles)
Cost: $25 ($10 for under 14 or over 65)
Route: From William B. Long Road on Cohasset Common down South Main Street, to Elm Street, to Margin Street, down Atlantic Avenue past Sandy Beach, to Jerusalem Road, to Forest Avenue, to North Main Street, back to Highland Avenue and the race will end outside of Town Hall.

How to register

Register to run or walk at www.roadracebythesea.com or check for more information at www.coolrunning.com. Applications will also be available in Cohasset at Curtis Liquors, Good Sport, Noble's Camera Shop, and the South Shore Community Center. Online registration is $17, mail-in registration is $20. On site registration is $25 and will be held at the South Shore Community Center, 3 North Main St., on Saturday, April 5, and Sunday April 6 from 9 a.m. until noon. Pre-registration is strongly recommended. For race questions please send an e-mail to 2008@roadracebythesea.com.

UPDATE

Field of Honor returns for fifth year

WHAT:
Once again The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 118 of Cohasset, will post hundreds of United States Flags in a poignant display honoring local veterans. The Field of Honor recognizes the veterans who have so valiantly served our country to protect and preserve our freedom.

WHEN:
For the fifth straight year, the flags will fly from the lawn facing the Veterans Memorial which itself will be encircled by the flags of the 50 states. Residents of Cohasset and the surrounding area will experience this inspiring display of flags from May 21 to June 4 as the Stars and Stripes flutter proudly atop eight-foot poles set in ordered lines. This touching memorial is free to the public.

HOW TO PARTICIPATE:
For $25 individual flags may be sponsored in memory of family or friends honored. Checks should be made payable to the Sons of the American Legion with a note on the memo line of the check indicating Field of Honor. Sponsored flag can be retained as mementos of this year's Field of Honor which can be then be displayed from home or business. Sponsored flags will be available for pick up from the field after 1p.m., on June 4th.

FOR MORE INFORMATION:
To find more information or to sponsor a flag online, visit www.healingfiled.org/cohasset. For details on becoming an event sponsor or to obtain applications for field flags, please contact the American Legion Post at telephone 781-383-9657 or stop by at the Post at 98 Summer St. anytime weekdays after 3 p.m., on Saturdays after 10 a.m. or on Sundays after 12 p.m.

All proceeds with go to veterans programs of the Sons of the American Legion of Cohasset.

CAMP, SCHOOL AND ACTIVITIES DIRECTORY

KNOW (CAMP) BEFORE THEY GO

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

Going to camp for the first time can is a big transition, for both children and parents. Thankfully, there are some ways to make it easier. Here are ten things to know about your child's first summer away from home that can help you set your child up for success.

1. Decide together what kind of camp experience your child will have Discuss whether your child would like to go to a day or overnight/resident camp; a child with more say in the decision is likely to be more invested in the experience.

2. Prepare for camp together
Go over the daily schedule of camp with your child so once there (s)he knows what to expect. Visiting the camp beforehand is also a successful technique.

3. Pack only what is on the packing list sent by the camp
The camp knows what your child will need. Packing too much can lead to lost or damaged items.

4. Talk about child's concerns about camp
Listen empathetically, but eventually bring the conversations back to something positive attitudes lead to positive problem solving strategies.

5. Communicate with camp counselors
It is important to share information about your child so the counselors can do their best to help your child have a successful camp experience.

6. Consider camp a learning experience
The life lessons at summer camp support what your child is learning at home and at school. At summer camp, children will try new things, grow more independent, and develop social skills and a greater sense of self-worth.

7. Emphasize the positive
Talk about the fun things that await your camper – doing things that the regular school year does not leave time for.

8. Have realistic expectations
Help your child understand how to appreciate the good things and learn from (and move as quickly as possible beyond) setbacks. Know that moving beyond a challenge can be a growth-filled experience.

9. Practice camp
Allow your child to spend an overnight with a friend, or a weekend with grandparents, which can help teach responsibility.

10. Prepare yourself for the separation
If this is the first time your child will be away from home, realize you'll need some period of adjustment, too. Plan some time for yourself to relax and enjoy the change in routine.

Citizen of the Year

Here at the Cohasset Mariner, it is our pleasure to announce that Ed Lappen is Citizen of the Year.

The Citizen of the Year selection process this year became an outpouring of love for Eddie Lappen, who left us much too soon.

However, the nominations – which flowed in by the dozens – were not full of sadness, but focused on all the good works that Ed accomplished during his years in Cohasset. They focused on what a tremendous role model he was and will continue to be for all.

"The power that Ed had to make people think about living a better life everyday certainly has made the people of Cohasset more socially aware and richer in spirit for knowing him," wrote Edward and Betsy Connolly in their nomination of Ed.

A letter, signed by 80 of Ed's friends, described him as "truly one of life's good guys"

"Ed's humanity and his dedication to his family, to his business, to charity and to his community exemplifies a well-rounded 'citizenship' that deserves to be recognized in a small way by your award," they wrote.

Julie Trendowicz wrote in her nomination: "Everyone who knew Ed Lappen loved him. Though he never drew attention to himself, everyone who was fortunate enough to know him recognized his commitment and contribution to our community."

John McSheffrey wrote he was amazed at the scope of people from Cohasset attending Ed's service. "People I knew from my kid's sports, people I knew from various school events, people from the Democratic Town Committee, people at Town Hall – simply put it seemed as if Ed knew everyone. While the service was incredibly sad, I couldn't but think about the sphere of influence that this one man had within a community."

While nominations were open, dozens of individuals or families took the time to propose a citizen for the annual award, detailing the nominees' contributions to help make this town we all love a better place.

Fire Chief Bob Silvia, Darilynn Evans, and Martha Gjesteby, joined editor Mary Ford this year in serving on the Citizen on the Year selection committee. They convened on a recent Sunday afternoon at the Cohasset Mariner office on South Street in Hingham to pore over the nominations and reach a decision. Careful consideration was given to all the wonderful nominees this year. The final decision to select Ed Lappen was unanimous.

It is clear that Ed Lappen's legacy will live on. His wife, Helene Lieb and their children Mia and Ross, are part of a family that knows how important it is not to be focused on self but on a greater good. They shared their beloved Ed with all of us. They are happy that Ed is being honored as Citizen of the Year and hope, as he would, this recognition will inspire others.

We think Chartis Tebbetts put it best in her nomination.

"When others read about his many contributions, I hope they will be inspired to say 'yes' when asked — whether to serve on a board or committee, to contribute to a worthy cause, to help the less fortunate, to be generous and cheerful with their contributions, to offer constructive criticisms rather than negative comments, to live life joyfully and lovingly, to support and work for justice for those less able to advocate for themselves."

With this award, the Cohasset offers recognition for making a difference. In our society too many role models go unrecognized. Too often people today look to the sports, rock or movie stars with envy, when the real hero is the local police officer, firefighter, parent, teacher, church leader or government official.

The annual Citizen of the Year Award is our way of taking our hats off to those among us who go that extra mile without asking for anything in return but the intrinsic reward of helping to make Cohasset – and in Ed's case, the world – a better place.

Help out the Food Pantry

The pantry has come a long way in filling their shelves over the past few months – thanks to the generosity of the community. Yet, there is a constant need, especially for certain items, see list below.

In addition, the pantry is in need of industrial strength shelving for their back room. This would be an ideal donation from a group of individuals or an organization. Contact Food Pantry co-director Jane Corry for more details (e-mail address is coryjm@gmail.com).

"Thank you to our friends at First Parish who ran a drive for us last Saturday. They collected bags and boxes of greatly needed items," Corry said. "Everything was new and saved us from having to buy them."

Corry also send out a thank you to Shaw's and Stop & Shop supermarkets for allowing volunteers to help our families in need.

Donations can be dropped off at the rear entrance of St. Anthony's Rectory on South Main St. from 8:30 to 9:30a.m. on Tuesdays, at Stop & Shop, or at local churches on Sundays. Donations may also be left at the St. Anthony Parish Center, Monday through Friday, 9a.m. to 3p.m.

To give a monetary donation, the food pantry mailing address is Cohasset Food Pantry, P.O. Box 297, Cohasset, MA 02025.

To contact the food pantry call 781-383-0219, ext. 25. Someone will return your call.

The Cohasset Food Pantry does not accept expired or already opened food.

Items needed include: Chicken broth, cereal, canned fruit (with Splenda), jams, jellies, coffee, regular ground, mayonnaise, canned carrots & white potatoes, fruit juice, shampoo & conditioner, paper goods (paper towels, toilet paper, napkins, tissues), laundry detergent, bars of hand soap, and cleaning products.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Read-a-thon celebrities appreciated

TO THE EDITOR:

When a line of police cars and an ambulance are parked in front of an elementary school, it is typically cause for concern. Not on Guest Reader Day at the Osgood and Deer Hill Schools. Last Thursday, in support of the Read-a-thon, the PSO invited a group of local Cohasset celebrities to read books to classrooms, demonstrating a love of reading up through the ranks. We'd like to thank the following people for their time, effort and enthusiasm:

Jane Corry, Cohasset Food Pantry; Kelly Grech, Cohasset Recreation Department; Sharon Moody, Children's Librarian, Paul Pratt Memorial Library; Dr. Jennifer deChiara, Principal, Deer Hill School; Janet Sheehan, Principal, Osgood School; Police Chief Mark DeLuca; Dispatch Supervisor Thomas Wigmore; Joseph Pergola, Cohasset Fire Department: Officer Patrick Reardon; Sergeant Jeff Treanor; Animal Control Officer Paul Murphy; Rob Martin, Cohasset Police Department; Marjorie Murphy, former Deer Hill Librarian; Kate McAlarney, PSO Representative; and Sasha Geddes, Cohasset Police Department.

It was a terrific celebration of reading that brought a big boost of energy to the Read-a-thon.

Inner Little Harbor odor control

TO THE EDITOR:

Editor's note: Mr. Campbell provided a copy of his letter to the Conservation Commission for publication.

The odor in Inner Little Harbor (ILH) is produced in the wetted area of the sloping sides and flats of ILH, as exposed between high and low tides. Therefore it is desirable to reduce as much as possible the exposure time of the wetted area. This can be accomplished by leaving the one-way valves (gates) between ILH and Little Harbor closed much of the time, permitting water to flow into ILH as the tides increase, but restricting outflow as the tide recedes. This restriction allows about 50 percent flushing twice a day.

(The valves consist of a hinged plate with a second hinged plate on the ILH side covering the large opening in the first and larger plate. When the entire hinged assembly is "swung" up, water can flow freely in both directions. When down in the closed position water can flow into ILH but is prevented from flowing back into Little Harbor.)

However, periodic deep flushing of ILH is desirable, and this can be accomplished by opening the valves and allowing free flow in both directions

The essence of the Environmental 20 Proposal favored by most abutters is to increase this flushing, capture the two spring tides periods, and reduce the time between flushing.

Concern had been expressed that having the valves closed during unusually high tides would cause flooding of properties at the lower elevations. However, the highest water level in ILH cannot exceed the highest level in Little Harbor, regardless of valve position. Hence leaving the valves open at all times achieves nothing in flood protection, and of course leaves the wetted areas exposed for a much longer time than if opened only for periodic flushing. The odors, which prevailed before the valves were installed (and opened only periodically for flushing in summer and left open all winter) have been greatly reduced. Odor abatement is vitally important to livability and property values.

Optimum odor abatement requires some compromise between "valve open" time for flushing and "valve closed" time for retaining high water level in ILH. This optimum is attempted in the current proposal but timing may be revised with further experience and data collection.

Installation and operation of the valves was an intelligent, logical and acceptably successful address to the odor problem; an illogical regression to uncontrolled flow is to penalize many residents with objectionable odors and their effect on purse and health.

It has been claimed that controlling water level creates stress on organisms and adversely affects salinity and dissolved oxygen, but these effects are unlikely to be quantitatively significant. In any case, all human activity, including building and heating our homes, alters the stresses on the environment. Reasonable compromise between human needs and environmental purity is an important building block of our civilization.

COMMENTARY

CHARTIS TEBBETS

I am struck by the mixed messages in last week's Mariner about how we talk and think about each other in Cohasset. The recent and ongoing campaign for the kindness pledge and the anti-bullying campaign reported an amazing success, of over 3000 pledges signed, in less than 2 months. The pledge is very short: "I, _____, pledge to promote respect for human differences, to stand up for the basic rights and dignity of all people, and to avoid behavior that is hurtful to others."

Our extremely hardworking local reporter Nancy White wrote two articles on page one about what I consider to be good news. We have successfully selected and secured a new Superintendent of Schools who is quoted as saying "I'm very excited. Cohasset schools are in a great place right now and I want to be a part of it."

Nancy also wrote that the annual financial audit conducted for the town by Roselli, Clark and Associates received a full public hearing. The auditors identified several areas where improvement is needed, and the Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard responded that many of the deficiencies either have been corrected or are their way to correction. He praised the hard work of many town employees and the volunteers that serve our community on various boards and committees. The Roselli audit reinforced the conclusions of the outside audit team examining the water and sewer departments that inadequate personnel resources were

Stormwater runoff is both good and bad

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

The mantra of the so-called "perfect lawn" that damaged our environment and changed our way of life is now being sensibly reduced.

Stormwater, or really surface water runoff, is normally a healthy way for nature to "wash up" our land areas. After a winter like the last one, a problem occurs when there is just too much harmful material for the water to carry away naturally. Stormwater of the volume we've had last winter damages our ecosystem in many ways.

Storms cause physical destruction, but a less visible way is that tons of pollutants are carried into our streams, ponds and estuaries by every rainfall, posing health threats, degrading and in some cases creating dead water bodies caused by fertilizer runoff from farming. A small introduction of chemicals can kill our sensitive smaller water bodies and remove natural organisms that promote healthy soil. Fortunately, we have seen a substantial reduction of the use of harmful lawn care practices precipitated mainly by the intensive marketing of fertilizers. You might say that purveyors of turf builders and weed controllers have had the same effect on our lawns as fast food establishments have on our overweight population.

The mantra of the so-called "perfect lawn" that damaged our environment and changed our way of life is now being sensibly reduced. We now enjoy diminished emphasis on lawn maintenance than a few years earlier, often a chore taken over by professionals who are using improved maintenance techniques.

Musquashicutt and Straits Pond used to have midges for decades, and it was only a few years ago that increasing salt water flushing managed to control them.

Changes in water flow in upper Little Harbor has reduced the presence of green algae, perhaps, because of reduced fertilizer use, but also by the enhanced natural flow.

Flow from Mealy's Pond, a former ice pond (when we all had ice boxes) on Beechwood Street, has changed to a somewhat healthier natural condition by no longer contributing algae as many nutrients from Mealy's to the Gulf River.

Increased flow from the Aaron River Reservoir and a less interrupted flow along Bound Brook, which is really no longer bound by industrial dams forges and other impediments, seems to be bringing purer water, although reduced flow, to Lincoln Pond and thus into the harbor.

And the findings from the Center for Student Coastal Research has substantially reduced enterococci from point sources readily identified in lower Little Harbor diminish flow of bacteria into the Little Harbor in general.

Thus, by reducing chemicals and pesticides from lawn care and allowing our littoral to become more natural, our less feverishly attended and carefully maintained lawns and gardens are reducing our manmade problems.

If we think our gardeners and lawn specialists know what they are doing, they do! They were using the easiest and cheapest way to profit from our need for a neat, well managed plot of land around our property; neither the cheapest for the homeowner nor the method with the least damage to the environment. Now that we're a bit laissez faire about lawn care, we have a much healthier environment.

A few years ago, Cohasset's Water Resource Protection Committee proposed several tenets:

A policy describing the best option for landowners on turf management.

Care in selecting professionals, and maintenance of a list of lawn care professionals: available at the Board of Health.

Publishing established good turf management practices.

Meantime, we should remember the citizens promoting this environmental viewpoint not as fuzzy-headed tree huggers, but practical homeowners who knew about which they spoke. Nor do they have an axe to grind; none are developers or in real estate nor interested in selling plant food or any of the other things we were formerly instructed to buy for our better lifestyle or revitalization. They are more interested in doing the right thing for their clients in preserving the beauty of our town for its future generations.

Steve Bobo is a long-time member of the Cohasset Board of Health.

We all need a little Sunshine

FOR THE RECORD

GREGORY MATHIS

We could all use a little more sunshine, especially after this long, harsh winter.

We're guaranteed at least an hour more of daylight beginning Sunday, March 13 as we move the clocks ahead one hour in recognition of Daylight Saving Time.

But that's not necessary the type of sunshine I'm referring to, or the point of Sunshine Week, which is being celebrated this year from Sunday, March 13 through Saturday, March 19.

For those unfamiliar with Sunshine Week, the concept was born in 2002 in Florida. Apparently there were some Florida legislators who wanted to create a number of exemptions to that state's public records law. Because of increased public awareness and scrutiny, the 300 or so exemptions to open government laws were defeated in legislative sessions that followed during "Sunshine Sunday" sessions.

Word spread and concerns grew about the threat to the public's right to know and other states followed Florida's lead, including Massachusetts, in making sure the public's right to know was protected.

Sunshine Week was launched in March 2005 and continues to be celebrated each year in mid-March, coinciding with National FOI Day and James Madison's birthday on March 16.

So why is any of this important?

Sunshine Week, which is now recognized nationally, is designed to open a dialogue about the importance of open government and freedom of information.

It's vitally important to news organizations (like us) that rely on the Open Meeting Law and public records laws to make sure the checks and balances written into the United States Constitution are upheld. But it's not only important to us, it important to you because you rely on that information to make sure your local, state and national government are doing the things they say they are doing and in the manner in which they're saying they're doing it.

There has been some change, mostly for the positive, since 2002. More levels of government have pledged to become more transparent in the way it does business. The Internet has helped in that regard in many ways. But hearing government saying it wants to be transparent and actually having everything there for all of us to see is not one in the same. What they think we want to know, and what we actually want to know could be two entirely different things.

Clearly, more needs to be done from a local, state and national standpoint to bridge the gap and make more relevant information available, which is where the Sunshine campaign comes in.

Anyone can be a part of Sunshine Week. It's not just our fight. Our goal is to make readers aware of the campaign, but the success of Sunshine Week depends just as much on individual participation. You can make even more difference than big news organizations when it comes to keeping government on its toes.

All you need to do is become passionate about something you believe in and engage in a discussion about an aspect of government or public records important to you. Whether you show up at a selectmen's meeting, a school committee meeting, or contact a state legislator, or write a series of letters to the editor demanding action from your governmental officials, the level of participation in this important task is up to you.

But whatever you do, please consider doing something. Don't stand on the sidelines and be an observer.

While the Sunshine Week campaign sets aside one week a year to bring this issue to the forefront, it's one that everyone should be paying closer attention to throughout the course of the year. We'll do our part. Will you do yours?

Pilgrims drawn to sacred site through history

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS

MARY KENNEDY

Santiago de Compostel –Medieval midwinter getaway

Ash Wednesday, March 9, 1167, marking the first of the 40 days of Lent, a period of fasting and repentance.

In late winter, what better way to banish the blues of cold days, long dark nights and dwindling food supplies than to saddle up and join a group of pilgrims flocking south to the sun. Especially when salvation was assured! During the Middle Ages, making a pilgrimage, a journey to a shrine or sacred place, guaranteed the forgiveness of all sins. In his bestseller "Canterbury Tales," writer Geoffrey Chaucer featured one popular destination in England. For the devout in central and northern Europe, Santiago de Compostela, Spain, was another.

According to the Roman Catholic Church, after the crucifixion of Christ, one of his Apostles, James, traveled to northwestern Spain to preach and convert. Returning to Palestine in 44 C.E., he was promptly taken prisoner, tortured, and beheaded by the Romans. His devoted followers secretly stored his remains in a marble sarcophagus, traveled by boat right back to Spain and buried him in a secret location. The actual site was forgotten for centuries. One night, in the province now known as Galicia, a devout hermit beheld a star miraculously shining on the field where the tomb was later discovered. Without delay, on campus stellae (field of the star) a chapel was built and a city was born.

The Moors, who had invaded the Iberian Peninsula in the 8th century, destroyed that first basilica and ordered Christian captives to carry the church bells south to Cordoba, the seat of their "empire." For several centuries popes and Christian nobles encouraged the worship of St. James as a way to boost morale and raise funds to expel the Moors from Spain. It was often reported that the Apostle miraculously appeared on various battlefields to fight alongside Spanish soldiers. When the Spanish finally retook the region, they declared James the patron saint (Santiago) of Spain. By the way, those bells were later returned to Compostela on the backs of Muslim prisoners.

For centuries, the city of Santiago de Compostela flourished as one of the three greatest pilgrimage centers after Jerusalem, (dangerous because of its occupation by Moslems), and Rome, (dangerous because of the diseases in the swamps surrounding the city). The towering cathedral, built in the 11th century, became the holiest place in Europe after Rome. Early pilgrims included Charlemagne and Francis of Assisi, along with assorted kings and popes. Pope John Paul II arrived in 1991, just six years after the old town was declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site and Pope Benedict XVI in 2010.

The Catedral de Santiago de Compostela.

Today, more than 100,000 travelers each year walk or ride, for religious purpose or pleasure, to Santiago de Compostela.

More than half a million pilgrims yearning for salvation were drawn to the sacred site each year. For protection, they often traveled in large groups, and to while away the tedious hours, they told stories and sang songs. Medieval Europe, a complex of city-states, grew more united by these pilgrimage routes. Hospitals, churches, inns and monasteries were built to accommodate the hungry, weary, pious (and impious) travelers. The 18th century German writer Goethe later wrote: "Europe was formed journeying to Santiago."

One of the world's first travel guidebooks, the anonymous 12th century "Pilgrim's Guide," provided details of the itinerary and where to find the best food and lodging en route. It also promised that…within its walls, the sick find health, the blind recover their sight, the mute can speak, the deaf can hear, the lame can walk…the prayers of the faithful are heard, their wishes are granted, their sins are lifted…and consolation is offered to all the afflicted.

Today, more than 100,000 travelers each year walk or ride, for religious purpose or pleasure, to Santiago de Compostela. One featured attraction in the cathedral is the world's largest incense burner. Its purpose? Imagine in centuries past, thousands of pilgrims arriving each day, crowding together to worship, many sleeping inside the church, an overwhelming odor of unwashed bodies. (The early Church frowned upon bathing, warning that it led to impure thoughts). A system of ropes and pulleys allows the eight priests in front of the main altar to raise and then swing the 175-pound burner, hanging from the ceiling. Again and again, gathering a terrifying momentum, spreading the pungent scent of incense, it finally reaches the upper balconies, then swooshes down low over the heads of awestruck worshippers awaiting purification.

Quirky characters s-p-e-l-l out show

CDC puts on production of 'Spelling Bee'

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

When the 25thAnnual Putnam County Spelling Bee begins, you don't know who is going to walk away with the enormous trophy.

But, what can be assured is there will be laughs, great music and fun along the way.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club's production of "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" begins a three-weekend stint at the Cohasset Town Hall this weekend.

A nine-member cast, three play adults and six play kids, puts on the musical comedy about six adolescent overachievers and their experience – and some inner turmoil – at the bee.

"The characters are great: quirky kids competing at a regional spelling bee where the winner goes on to the National Spelling Bee," said Director Mark Bono.

Coming off a highly complicated set design for the CDC's fall production of "Noises Off," the "Spelling Bee" is a refreshingly stark set that allows the characters and music to take center stage.

Over the weeks of rehearsal the characters have blossomed, developing nuances and distinct personalities.

"It's an experienced, tight knit cast. But even though there is a lot of talent in this cast there are no egos," Bono said. "It's fun watching the adults play children and get into the thoughts and minds of kids. It's been interesting to watch that process."

While the music in the show is not well known, Bono said it is fun with clever lyrics — and the cast performs it beautifully.

"This is the most talented vocal cast I've worked with in a long time," Bono said. "With such a small cast each singer really has to be able to sing and hold their own."

One of the interesting features of the show the audience will hear a band, but not see it. A five-piece band will be situated on the stage behind the curtain.

The actors have a lot of fun getting into their characters — and it shows in their performance.

Cohasset resident Barbara Baumgarten plays Rona Lisa Peretti, the spelling bee moderator and a former spelling bee champ. Her character keeps the spelling bee — and the play moving.

"She shares something unique about each speller and comments on the happenings like a football game play-by-play," Baumgarten said.

Playing one of the six student spellers, Cohasset resident Lisa Pratt said it wasn't a terrible stretch to get into the mind of young teenager.

"(Playing a kid) is a lot easier than you think it is," she said. Once she puts her hair in pigtails with bows the rest comes along. Yet, there was a sort of evolution during the course of rehearsals and interacting with the other actors in their characters.

"All our characters started in one place and they've really grown to be their own people," Pratt said.

Pratt plays Logainne SchwartzandGrubenierre, the youngest and most politically aware speller. Pratt describes her character, who has two gay dads, as meticulous, fastidious, earnest and focused.

"But she is also wound pretty tight, actually she may be on the verge of insanity at any moment," Pratt said with a laugh. Logainne also speaks with a lisp.

In addition to the music, the singing, the acting is also the dancing. Seasoned choreographer JoAnn "JoJo" Fichtner was tapped to choreograph the show and she too had to get into the mindset of a kid.

"There are a lot of musical numbers and a lot of choreography in this show. I had to match the choreography to the music and storyline," Fichtner said.

As a result the actors will do all sort of childish things on stage: cartwheels, splits, piggyback rides, bounce balls, and run holding hands.

"They also like to torment the leaders. The kids do the picky little things kids do all the time that are annoying," Fichtner said. "It's a fun, fun show to watch."

"They are a rowdy bunch of kids," Baumgarten said.

The curtain goes up on the first performance of the "Spelling Bee" tonight (Friday, March 11) at 7:30p.m.

Can you spell supercalifragilisticexpialidocious?

Adding to the fun — and spontaneity of the show — is four audience members will be plucked from the house to participate as spellers.

Here are a few of the guest spellers who will try their darndest to win the Bee:

- Rev. Gary Ritts, Second Congregational Church (March 12)
- Dr. Jennifer deChiara, Principal, Deer Hill School (March 13)
- Stephanie Moriarty and Mr. John DeWaal, Cohasset High School Music Department (March 18)
- Gary Graziano, Athletic Director, Rockland High School (March 19)
- Nancy White, Cohasset Mariner reporter (March 19)
- Patty Cunningham, PSO VP Deer Hill School (March 20)
- Jenn Clark, fourth grade teacher, Deer Hill School (March 27)

If you go...

Performances: (Fridays and Saturdays) March 11, 12, 18, 19, 25 & 26 at 7:30 p.m. and (Sundays) March 13, 20 & 27 at 2:00 p.m. All performances are held at the Cohasset Town Hall auditorium, 41 Highland Ave.

There are three adult characters in the play, Rona Lisa Peretti played by Cohasset resident Barbara Baumgarten, Vice Principal Panch played by Chris Hetherington of Scituate and Comfort Counselor Mitch Mahoney as acted by Brian Chamberlain of East Bridgewater.

The cast of "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" sings and dances to the song "Magic Feet." Much of the choreography was inspired by how real kids dance and have fun.

There are six quirky student spellers in the play "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee." In the front row, Olive Ostrovsky (Michelle Margulies of Natick), William Barfee (Rick Chason of Scituate), Logainne Schwartzandgrubinniere (Lisa Pratt of Cohasset), back row, Chip Tolentino (Mike Nakashima of Cohasset), Marcy Park (Cara Lee Haman of East Bridgewater) and Leaf Coneybear (Anthony Light of Ashland).

Four-way selectmen's race possible

Diane Kennedy pulls papers for selectman

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

With one week left to go before the nomination period of the election season closes, a possible four-way race for two seats on the Board of Selectmen has developed.

On Wednesday morning, Diane Kennedy of 59 Jerusalem Road Drive pulled papers to run for selectman.

Kennedy joins the field with both incumbents, current selectmen chair Karen Quigley and long-time board member Fred Koed, and Mary Snow of North Main Street.

Many in Cohasset know Kennedy through her work as the South Shore Art Center's assistant director.

Kennedy said she would bring two focuses and attributes to the selectmen's table: communication and a can-do attitude.

"I hope I will be able to get more people actively engaged in the issues facing Cohasset. I'm very good at brokering conversations and consensus building and hope to facilitate constructive, positive conversations among Cohasset residents, town officials and boards about our collective priorities and solutions," Kennedy said.

Kennedy, 46, has lived in Cohasset since 1999 with her husband, Patrick, and two kids, Devin, 16 and Caroline, 14.

"While I recognize there are important challenges facing Cohasset – along with every community in the Commonwealth – I am always optimistic and ready to do my homework to make the best possible decisions for the community," Kennedy said.

Residents are not considered candidates until they return nomination papers with signatures and the signatures are certified. Quigley is the only official candidate for selectman at this time; she has had her nomination papers and signatures certified.

As of Thursday morning, the only position without at least one candidate is the one-year seat for the Water Commission. The only potential race that has emerged is for the two Board of Selectmen seats.

Citizens have until Thursday, March 17 to obtain nomination papers and until March 22 to return them for signature certification.

primarily to blame for the lack of oversight and control over the operations and expenses of the Water Department. For months, townspeople had worried that incompetence or malfeasances were to blame for the Water Department situation and that a million dollars may have been wasted or lost. Thankfully the situation is not this dire.

I believe that we can now conclude that as a whole town, we were not prepared to manage the financial details of almost $100,000,000 in new debt which financed needed and long delayed capital improvement projects for our schools and our public health in the water and sewer departments. This is probably more debt than we should have incurred in such a short time period. It changed Cohasset from a town with a basic budget of around $30,000,000 to one of $130,000,000. In order to manage so much activity, to keep track of expenses, resources, debt obligations, outside contracts, staff, and priorities, we needed more professional staff, as well as more resources and more oversight for our volunteer boards.

We were overly optimistic to assume that we could successfully do everything without additional personnel and software resources. Our optimism was based on the tradition here in Cohasset of receiving incredibly long hours of expert planning and management routinely given by our branch of volunteer government. We have managed to keep everything going for the last four or five years without asking for an increase in property taxes, while expecting the same high level of government services that we have become accustomed to. It is time to carefully review our management capacity and to ensure that it is sufficient. It is also important to recommit ourselves to the oversight responsibilities that elected and appointed boards have.

I hope that the authors of the two opinions also in last week's Mariner – about the opinions of a School Committee member concerning the Superintendent search, and about getting our financial house in order – would reconsider their harsh criticisms of the volunteers who have tried their best to serve our town. I believe it is helpful and quite appropriate to hear diverse opinions about how to be a responsible member of a committee or board in our town. Thankfully we live in a town where anyone is free to run for office or volunteer to serve in an appointed capacity. All that is required is a willingness to be open, honest, and collegial. And a willingness to take criticism, deserved and undeserved. And in the case of our current financial challenges, there are many people who could have, and maybe should have, done better. I am absolutely sure that everyone wishes that they had done more – asked another question, asked for more help, asked for better tools. But please, let's move on, in a better spirit of cooperation and sympathy. And please, say thank you to the 2 percent who take on these responsibilities for the 98 percent of residents who receive the benefits of their volunteer work.

Let's keep that pledge in mind – I pledge to … "avoid behavior that is hurtful to others."

And please attend the Special Town Meeting on Monday, March 14th at the High School Auditorium. There is only one article, which balances our books for the current year and allows us to set our tax rate and mail out our tax bills. This is another step, moving forward.

And then there were two.

The magic continued for the Cohasset boy s basketball team on Monday night as they advanced to Saturday's Div. 4 South Sectional Final at Umass Boston with a 65-50 win over Blue Hills Regional at Braintree High School in the semi-final round.

Cohasset will play No. 5 cathedral (20-3) at noon.

Cathedral beat Carver 74-58 in their semifinal to advance.

No. 4 seeded Cohasset (21-2) came out fast and led wire-to-wire, jumping to an 18-2 lead with 3:46 left in the first quarter after Robbie Mahoney converted one of two free throws after he was fouled trying to go all the way after a steal.

Sam Richardson, who led Cohasset with 23 points, helped fuel the quick start with a pair of three-pointers sandwiched by a jumper from Shane Haggerty in the first two minutes.

No. 10 Blue Hills (15-8) battled back though, cutting the lead to 20-12.

Cohasset took a 22-12 lead into the second quarter.

Blue Hills opened the second quarter with the first four points and chipped away at the lead in the frame and only trailed 32-26 at the half, then closed to within three, 34-31 after a three-pointer by Brandon Onychefule with 6:48 left in the quarter.

Cohasset answered with the next nine points, keyed by another three from Richardson.

Bo Ruggiero is one happy high school basketball coach. Maybe ecstatic is more to the point.

Ecstatic is his Cohasset boys team, which whooped it up on the court in the aftermath of Friday night's 54-51, down-to-the-wire victory over Mashpee in the Division 4 South Sectional tournament's quarterfinal round.

Ecstatic was the overflow crowd, whose Cohasset portion of fans poured onto the floor and swallowed up the players as soon as the final buzzer had sounded

"I'm very happy," Ruggiero said. "We're 20-2. That's a great sounding number – 20 wins. These kids deserve it. We're playing in the Final Four next week."

Indeed, the South Shore League champion Skippers, seeded third in the sectional, advance to the semifinals against No. 10 seed Blue Hills (15-7), date to be determined.

Senior co-captain Sam Richardson iced it in the waning seconds. With the Skippers ahead, 52-51, he sank a pair of free throws that gave Cohasset just enough to squeeze by. Mashpee's bid on a floor-length laser barely missed as time expired.

Enter crowd, exit Mashpee, the sixth seed, which finished its season 18-4.

Outstanding season

By William Wassersug
WWASSERSUG@WICKEDLOCAL.COM

The Cohasset wrestling team capped a successful season at their banquet Wednesday night.

Cohasset finished the season 13-9-1 and also had success in tournaments and the postseason.

"We had a good season," Cohasset coach Torin Sweeney said. "We had 30 kids on the roster for the first time ever. I'm ecstatic about that. We had a lot of young guys, freshmen and sophomores come out. I'm excited for the future of the team."

Sweeney said the excitement is shared by his long-time assistant coach Peter Buckley, who he credits with much of the team's success.

"Peter Buckley has done a great job for us," Sweeney said. "He does a great job working with the kids. He's got a great work ethic."

During the award session, junior captain Gus Helbock, who finished with a 31-9 record, and a fifth-place finish at the Div. 3 State Tournament, along with titles in the Div. 3 South Sectionals and the Cohasset Wrestling Tournament, was given the Coaches award for dedication.

"He works hard all year on his wrestling," Sweeney said. "He's dedicated to it."

Thomas Flibotte was named the team's Most Valuable Wrestler.

Flibotte, at 171, was outstanding this year.

He won the Marshfield Wrestling Tournament, the Div. 3 Sectionals, the Div. 3 State Championship and

Kelly reflects on college honor

Last week, Cohasset's Meredith Kelly, a freshman at Bates College, was named the NESCAC Rookie of the Year, as the New England Small College Athletic Conference announced its 2011 Women's Basketball All-Conference Team.

Kelly, who helped lead Cohasset to the Div. 4 State last year, wasn't expecting the honor.

"I was kind of surprised," she said. "I wasn't really thinking about it. It's a big honor. I got an email from my coach. I wasn't expecting it. He nominated me. When I found out I was excited and surprised. I'm honored he thought so highly of me."

Kelly played in all 25 games for Bates and scored 7.6 points per game on .476 shooting while grabbing 2.9 rebounds and 1.4 steals per contest. Kelly topped all rookies in the conference in scoring and field goal percentage.

The 5-foot-8 guard/ forward hit 80 of 168 field goal attempts on the season, and her .476 field goal percentage ranked her eighth in the conference. In conference games, Kelly's shooting percentage rose to .526. Kelly

After battling to the wire in a 34-28 victory over Harwich last Thursday night, the Cohasset girls basketball team got a bit of a breather in the quarterfinal round of the MIAA Div. 4 South Sectional tournament with a convincing win over a game, but overmatched Blue Hills sqaud.

Carli Haggerty scored 21 of her game-high 24 points in the first half as No. 4 seeded Cohasset (19-3) rolled to a 28-2 lead in the first quarter and never looked back in a 73-18 win at Cohasset that sends Cohasset to a fourth straight sectional semifinal. Cohasset will play No. 16

Hull stuns Skippers

By Diana Pugliese

Junior Lauren Geary hit two timely shots at the end of the game and the 16th-seeded Pirates stopped No. 4 Cohasset's run for a second consecutive Division 4 state championship with a shocking 51-47 upset in the South Sectional semifinals at Norwell High School.

Hull (14-10) advances to the South championship game at 10 a.m. Saturday at UMass-Boston where it will face either No. 2 West Bridgewater (20-2) or No. 11 Greater New Bedford (14-6). Those two teams face off tonight at Bridgewater-Raynham.

Hull chipped away at Cohasset's 10-point lead after the first quarter, pulling to within two at the half before taking a seven point lead into the fourth, where things really started to heat up.

Cohasset sophomore Kristen Alexander (6 points) sank two quick shots to pull the Skippers (19-4) within three. Hull then went up by five after two free throws from senior co-captain Nicole Heavern, but the lead did not last long as a 3 from typically outstanding game with 21 points, had six of the nine points in the run.

"They're a very spunky team. They have a nice bunch of athletes," Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero said. "We caught them by surprise with our pressure and intensity."

Ruggiero didn't expect his team to run away with the game the same way the girls did in their 73-18 win over Blue Hills on Saturday, but he was confident in his team.

"I don't think they were ever tied or ahead," he said. "Our changing defenses worked well."

If there was a problem for the Skippers, it was fouls.

"The defensive intensity was really good, but we fouled way too much," Ruggiero said. "They (Blue Hills) did an excellent job containing our fast break. That led to too many fouls."

Kyrel Jaundoo chipped in 10 points, while Shane Haggerty added five. Mahoney scored four and Chris Murphy had two points.

The Skippers got some good news from the South Shore League, with four players named to the South Shore League All-Star team.

Seniors Robert Jones and Sam Richardson, along with junior Kyrel Jaundoo and sophomore Shane Haggerty were all named to the squad.

Ruggiero was also honored as the league's Coach of the Year.

Along with their trip to the finals, Ruggiero led Cohasset to the team's first South Shore League championship since 1996.

he qualified to wrestle in the New England Championships.

He finished his season 30-6, with three of his losses at States and another in a close match while wrestling a top opponent up one weight class.

Flibotte was one of three seniors starting for the Skippers.

Another was Justin Yeager at 160.

"Justin had a rib injury in the second part of the season," Sweeney said. "That hurt us a bit. It was unfortunate that he lost his season. He's been a solid wrestler for us the last three years."

In the 103 weight class, freshman Harry Helbock wrestled well. He finished sixth at sectionals.

At 112, sophomore Greg Berube was named Rookie of the Year in his first season wrestling at 112.

Sophomore, Graham Bell was injured for a while, giving some of the younger kids a chance to get some mat time, but when Bell was healthy, he finished strong, working his way to a fifth-place finish at sectionals.

In 140 wrestling, junior Graden Foley had a great year.

Foley finished second at sectionals and was in the top eight at states. At the state tournament, he beat the No. 3 seed, and during sectionals he pinned the No. 1 seed.

"Graden came on strong," Sweeney said. "I'm hoping for big things from him next year."

Sophomore, Nick Tangerlini also finished strong, notching a fourth-place finish at sectionals.

At 152, junior Derek Froio ended the season with a 32-8 record.

"That was the top win total on the team," Sweeney said. "He was third in the Cohasset Tournament, second at sectionals and fourth in States. He's getting the Most Wins Trophy. We're also looking for big things from him next year."

In the middle of the lineup, Sweeney got solid fill-in work from sophomores John Mills and Tommy Ryan who mixed in and out of the 145, 152 and 160 divisions.

At 189, Kimani Hale-Sadh finished fifth at sectionals.

One of the strongest spots for Cohasset was at 215, where they've had senior star Alex Kinnealey manning the spot.

Kinnealey finished the season 26-10 with a sectional title.

Kinnealey also finished fifth in the Marshfield Tournament and second at the Cohasset Tournament. He was in the top eight at States as well.

"A.K. was knocked out right before the medal round," Sweeney said of Kinnealey's run at States. "He's a four-year varsity wrestler who has been our most durable wrestler. He won our Peter Clute Award given to the guy who's the heart and soul of the team. A.K. is the glue. He's great with the young kids. He's a great leader. He never misses practice. He's a great wrestler."

The Peter Clute Award is named for Peter Clute, who started the Cohasset program in 1976.

Another wrestler who brings a smile to coaches for his promise is Mike Yarardi, an eighth grader, who wrestled the heavyweight spot.

"Mike Yarardi wrestled in a number of matches," Sweeney said. "We picked our spots for him. Sometimes A.K. would go at heavyweight. He's a good athlete. He has good balance. He'll be a good wrestler for us the next few years."

Finally, Sweeney mentioned sophomore Axel Sepella at 119 and 125.

"Axel had a good season for us," he said. "He was hurt the end of the season and that opened the door for Graham."

high 22 points and sophomore teammate Shane Haggerty had 11. Senior co-captain Robert Jones scored only 8 points, but he ran the offense well. Junior Kyrel Jaundoo also had 8 points with his usual energy on the defense.

Junior Robbie Mahoney had just three points, but he was a force on the boards.

The way it ended Friday night was not how it began. Cohasset broke out to a 12-0 command, never lost its lead, but Mashpee eventually caught fire and hung around until the end.

Cohasset led by four points after one quarter (16-12), by three at halftime (28-25) and by five after three (43-38).

"When it was 12-0, I thought we were having a good time," Ruggiero said. "When it was 14-8, 14-10, I didn't think it was such a good time."

This was the third time that South Shore League foes Cohasset and Mashpee played this season. The Skippers lost, 66-53, Jan. 18 at Mashpee. On Feb. 18, host Cohasset was the winner, 60-49, and wrapped up the SSL title over runner-up Mashpee.

Cohasset's Lindsey Davis and a quick layup from Carli Haggerty (9 points) tied the game at 42 with five minutes left to play.

Hull pulled ahead by four, but Davis (12 points) drained a 3 before senior Rachel Fredey (13 points) grabbed her sixth steal of the game and gave the Skippers a 47-46 lead with a minute and a half to play.

"The girls had a great season, to be 19-4, but you have to give Hull credit," Cohasset coach John LeVangie said. "They deserved it and they worked really hard. Both teams fought hard and it came down to the last play."

With the game on the line and the clock winding down, Geary stepped up. The forward, who finished with 19 points and 10 rebounds, worked her way around the defense to give Hull a 48-47 lead with 1:11 left on the clock.

After Cohasset missed what would have been the go-ahead basket, Geary connected on a layup with six seconds to go, pushing the lead to three. Cohasset got the ball back for one last chance, but a foul sealed the win.

Cohasset will play No. 16 Hull (13-10) in the semifinal on Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in Norwell. Cohasset beat Hull both times they played this season. Hull beat Westport 61-57 to advance.

Haggerty dominated the first half, not just on the offensive end, but defensively too, knocking away just about every pass inside to lead Cohasset's breaks.

She scored 13 straight Cohasset points to start the second quarter after sitting for a good portion of the first stanza after Cohasset jumped to the big lead.

While Haggerty helped set the pace, this was a complete team effort for Cohasset.

Eleven players scored for Cohasset and the bench stepped up and didn't miss a beat as they spelled the starters for about half the game.

Lindsey Davis notched 14 points, Anna Seraikas added 8 and Allie Farren scored 6.

"The kids came to play tonight," Cohasset coach John LeVangie said. "They were ready. Carli worked really hard. She did a great job. The bench practiced hard. They showed they can play."

Every Cohasset player got significant playing time, with the starters only logging about half the minutes.

In the Harwich win, Haggerty had 16 points and 10 rebounds and Allie Farren added 10 points and 10 rebounds.

was also a tenacious perimeter defender, and she averaged 1.44 steals per game, 14th best in the NESCAC. Kelly twice won Rookie of the Week honors this season from the Maine Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

Kelly said it was a transition going from high school to the college ranks.

"It was a lot different from high school," she said. "But my teammates made it easy. They really helped the transition from high school to college. Everyone really got along.

"We started playing pickup games in the fall to get a feel of how to play together and build some chemistry. The girls were welcoming. They made the freshman feel like we belonged."

Kelly enjoyed her season, but missed the high school experience.

"It's different," she said. "I like both, but I miss high school basketball. The class I played with are my best friends. We're all real close, good friends and I miss that. I really like college. It's different. The game is more fast paced. It was nerve-wracking at first, but by the middle of the season it felt more natural. I really like my new teammates too. I think they'll be like the high school experience. We'll be playing together for a few years."

For Michele, one of the greatest advances in cancer care has been the one on the South Shore.

When Michele needed treatment for breast cancer, she was thankful that she could receive world-renowned care at Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Cancer Center in clinical affiliation with South Shore Hospital. And she had confidence knowing that our specialists, focused on cancer, were providing the expert care she needed. But she also found something more: how important it was to be treated in a place that not only cared for her cancer, but also for her life.

"It's a place filled with hope," said Michele. And having all the integrated services she needed close to home helped her maintain a sense of normalcy through her treatments. "With two small kids, I don't know how I would have managed otherwise," she explained. "Having this level of cancer care on the South Shore — it means everything to me."

WEEK 12

Hoop it up: When final buzzer sounds

Well all good things must come to an end, and for the 2011 Weymouth Wildcats our season ended at home court in a loss to league rival Newton North. In theory there is only one winner in each division, but when that final buzzer sounds it hurts. Not because you lost a game, but because there is no practice tomorrow. For this senior class (who went 0-22 as sophs) won 18 games, a Bay State league title and got the reward of playing in front of two standing room only crowds to end their careers, they must pass in their uniforms. I just want to personally thank my entire coaching staff and family for a great 2011 season. I would also like to publically acknowledge all of the hard work of my seniors: Patrick Deegan, Jonathan Perez, Casey Deane, Randy Barbosa, Ralph Toye and Andy Rice.

Next week

Next week we will break down the unforgettable 2011 season for all of our South Shore area teams. We will have a final coaches' poll, players of the year and an all-area team. But first lets take a look at the remaining tournament teams.

Predictions

Division 1 Girls: Braintree vs. New Bedford
March 9, 6 p.m., at Massasoit Community College, Brockton
Senior Amanda McKenney looks to lead the Bay State Conference Carey Division champions to the South Sectional final.

Division 2 Girls: Scituate vs. Oliver Ames
March 8, 6 p.m., at Massasocity Community College, Brockton
Megan Otto will lead the way to the championship game of the South Sectional for the Sailors.

Division 3 Girls: Norwell vs. Coyle Cassidy
March 7, 7:45 p.m., Massasoit Community College, Brockton
Double –Double machine Brenna Diggins leads the Clippers

Division 4 Girls: Hull vs. Cohasset
March 8, 7 p.m., at Norwell High School
Carli Haggerty leads CHS against the upstart Pirates.

Division 4 Boys: Cohasset vs. Blue Hills
March 7, 7 p.m., at Braintree High School
The backcourt of Robert Jones and Sam Richardson will lead Cohasset to victory.

Jim Dolan just completed his eighth season as the Weymouth High School boys' varsity head coach.

Cohasset Youth Travel Basketball news

The Cohasset Fifth Grade girls travel basketball team ran its winning streak to six games and seven wins in its last eight outings with a pair of victories this weekend over Hanover and Duxbury.

In Saturday's 26-5 victory at Hanover, Aidan Chamberlain paced the Blue & White with 10 points. Elle Hansen was next on the scoring chart with six points, followed by Mary Catherine Crumley and Leanne Hayden with four each and Kate Quigley with a bucket.

Bridget Desjourdy turned in a strong game defensively underneath with numerous rebounds, steals, and deflections, as did Kate McGowan and Lauren Cunning . Emma Loft, Mary Tarpey, Kendall McConnaughey, and Margaret Norton all played strong defense in the backcourt and did a fine job directing the Cohasset offense.

On Sunday, the Fledgling Fifths achieved their highest point total of the season and rolled to a 28-16 win at Duxbury. Chamberlain and Hayden tied for scoring honors with nine points each.

Kate Fitzpatrick turned in an outstanding all around performance.

Kate scored four points, pulled down countless rebounds, made some nice interior passes for assists, and stepped up to play strong defense. Zoe Doherty added four points and Hayden chipped in with a hoop to complete the Cohasset scoring chart.

The girls travel teams are off this weekend and will await their playoff matchups next weekend.

LIFE AT CHS

NATALIE DIGNAM

Our hearts are with the Brennan family as they mourn the loss of Brian Brennan, a loving father, brother, and husband.

Sorry for the absence last week, but don't worry, Life at CHS is back! Coming back from vacation is tough, but school is in full swing once again.

This Wednesday, CHS is celebrated the 10th annual "Eat Your Art" at 6 p.m. in the Cafeteria. Sadly, this will be the last "Eat Your Art," so we hope you did not miss your chance to see some amazing (and yummy) creations (perhaps a fruit roll-up Dr. Gill?). Wednesday was also the last debate of the season, which was held in New Bedford. Seniors Emily Toomey and Greta Shwachman are in first place for negative teams and Sam Green, Emily Toomey, Greta Shwachman, and Ashley Howard are in first place for a four-person team. Rhiana Fitts and Sam Green are in the top for speaker points.

And finally, this Friday (today) is the annual Mr. Skipper Pageant! Come see the amazing talents, dashing outfits, and unmatched wit of the fine young men at CHS! Once again, Mr. Antolini will be ready and waiting to hit the gong for any talents not up to par, so get ready for some cut throat competition. All proceeds will benefit the senior class. That's all for this week CHS!

If you would like to appear on television and share your talent, send your information to psotelethontalent@yahoo.com. Include the names of all performers, grade, and the talent or act that you would like to share.

New officers for Cohasset Central Cemetery committee

Units are available in all three columbaria. Inquiries should be directed to Elinor Tower Campbell, the cemetery's managing director, at 781-383-1436.

The annual meeting of the lot owners of Cohasset Central Cemetery on March 6 elected a new slate of officers for one-year terms and nine directors for three-year terms. The historic cemetery is on the corner of North Main Street and Joy Place and is privately owned by its lot owners. Richard W. Towle Jr. was elected new president of the cemetery, Richard W. Swanborg Jr. as vice president, Margaret Lynch as clerk and Elinor Tower Campbell as treasurer. The following were elected as directors: Robert H. Durant, Sheila S. Evans, Leslie A. Fallon, Mary C. Hartshorne, Robert Littlehale, Glenn A. Pratt, James B. Watson, Stephen A. Bobo and Barbara Baumgarten. There are 15 other directors whose terms will expire in the future.

The cemetery has recently adapted to changing times. The cemetery's oldest gravesite is dated 1705. By the 1970s, more than two and one-half centuries later, the cemetery found that it had few in-ground lots left to sell, but demand for space in this burial ground was still strong. The late Prescott Cumner, an active cemetery director, introduced the idea of building a wall of columbarium units, with each unit large enough to hold four to five cremation urns. The columbaria could be built on the ledges in the Cemetery that had precluded in-ground burial lots. The Cumner Columbarium was built in 1982, the Tower Columbarium in 1988 and the Cotton Columbarium in 2006. The treasurer reported steady sales of the vaults, currently priced at $4,500, which may be paid in installments. Units are available in all three columbaria. Inquiries should be directed to Elinor Tower Campbell, the cemetery's managing director, at 781-383-1436.

Nominating Committee, one-year terms: Sheila Evans, chair; Tom Keating, Joe Busk and Margaret Cotter.

Some qualifications for board members: Care about the cemetery; attend three meetings per year, if possible; conscientious interest and attempt to understand the cemetery's history, financial situation and problems, if any.

GIMME SHELTER

Would make a 'Sterling' companion

This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is featuring Sterling, an adult male, who may or may not be a Russian Blue, but who cares about pedigrees, when they can give a loving home, to a friendly feline. He's new at the shelter so, all I can say is that he's indeed a beauty. Come on down and meet him and see if he's the one you've been waiting for. You can check out all of our felines at our website at www.hsar.org.

The next low cost spay/neuter opportunity will take place on Thursday, March 17. For more information, check out the website or call Mary at 781-925-3380.

Sterling, an adult male is new to the shelter and very handsome, indeed.

We have open hours from 2 to 3 p.m., on Saturdays, and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays. If you'd like more information or would like to arrange an appointment, give Shirl a call at 781-925-3380. The shelter is at 50 L Street, Hull; the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA. 02045; email hsar@verizon.net.

The next low cost spay/neuter opportunity will take place on Thursday, March 17. For more information, check out the website or call Mary at 781-925-3380.

Thanks to our dedicated volunteers, to those who give homes to our felines and the people who generously donate to our cause. We couldn't do it without you.

Bia Bistro fundraiser to support Marathon effort for Cohasset Food Pantry

With only five weeks to go, Matt Hendison and Trish Hart's miles for the Boston Marathon will begin to taper down but, the fundraising efforts will be heating up to reach their target donation goal of $3,000 for the Cohasset Food Pantry. To help Matt and Trish reach their financial commitment, Brian Houlihan, the owner of BIA Bistro and The Tinker's Son, and his staff have generously donated their time, facility and food.

On Sunday, March 13, from 2 to 5 p.m. there will a "Final Countdown Party." The menu will replicate what runner's fuel up on while marathon training. Brian's delicious flatbread pizzas and pastas will be served. In addition, there will be a cash bar, silent auction items and a raffle. They will also be collecting food and toiletry donations for the Cohasset Food Pantry that day as well.

Tickets are $25 per person and first come, first serve. Due to the occupancy restrictions of Bia, only 70 people can be included in this very special fundraiser. It is expected to sell out quickly. If you are interested in attending, email Trish at trishhart1@comcast.net. Or if you would just like to donate to this great cause, send all donations, checks written to Cohasset Food Pantry, to Trish directly at 63 Sohier Street.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MARCH 21, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The week promises a calmer aspect. Although there might be some lingering effects of a recent job problem, things should continue to ease up. Also expect a change in a home-based situation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) If you feel uneasy about a colleague's suggestion, it might be that your wise inner Taurean guide is alerting you to a potential problem. Stepping away could turn out to be the right thing to do.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A family get-together opens up new opportunities for renewing ties. It can be especially effective in dealing with disagreements that should have been, but never were, fully resolved.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might be surprised at the response you get to a recent decision. You might be even more surprised by the reasons behind it. In any event, you'll learn something important.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your aspects favor resolving any tensions left over from a recent incident. You might want to consider having a "clear the air" talk as soon as you can. A call can lead to a change of plans.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Avoid repeating yourself. If your first few efforts fail to connect, maybe it's because you haven't found the right way to get your message across. Try changing your approach.

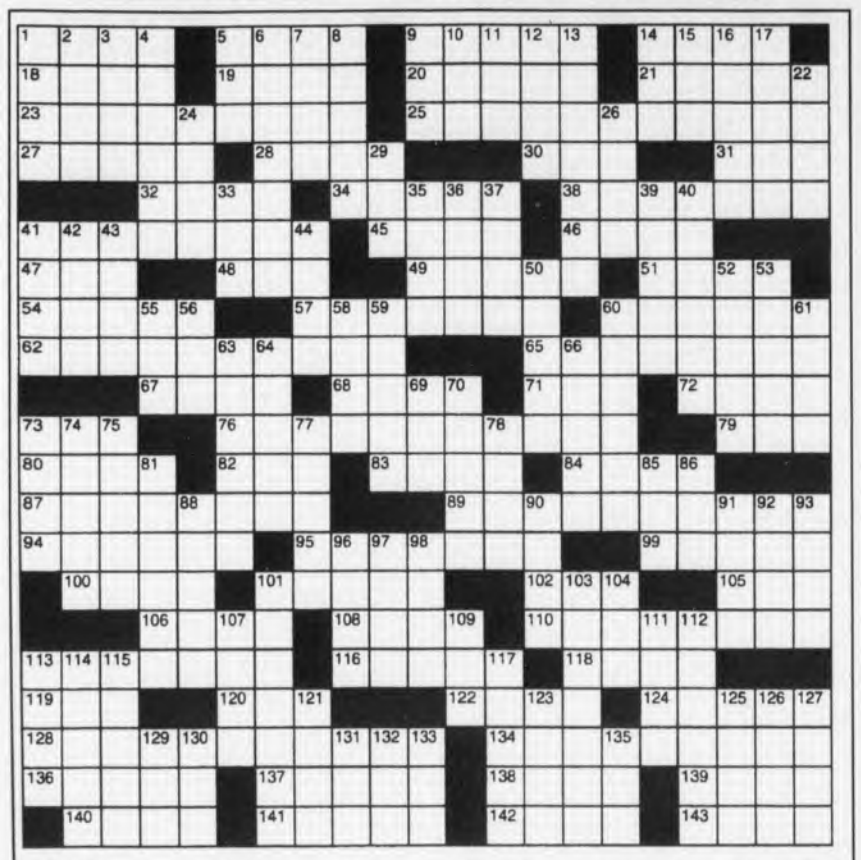
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good intentions plus a strong resolve to succeed can take you where you want to go. Don't give up just because someone suggests you might be pursuing an impossible cause.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An unexpected setback can be a blessing in disguise. Use it to recheck your facts and how you've presented them. Meanwhile, look for ways to expand your contacts.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You should finally be seeing a positive change in a recent personal situation. However, an on-the-job matter might need more attention than you realized. Stay with it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While you should be close to completing an important matter, you still need to focus on being focused. But things ease up in time for weekend fun with family and friends.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A certain matter might take an unexpected turn. Don't simply accept it; ask for an explanation. What you learn might be helpful in shifting the situation around to your benefit.



PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Projecting a positive attitude helps restore calm even when you're confronting some pretty stormy situations. Stay the course. The outcome will be well worth your efforts.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

'Race to Nowhere' at St. Stephen's on March 14

St. Stephen's Church invites you to a screening of Vicki Abeles critically acclaimed documentary, Race to Nowhere, which chronicles the unprecedented pressures placed on today's American students. The film begins at 7pm, March 14, in the church and a discussion follows.

The film features "the heartbreaking stories of young people who have been pushed to the brink and educators who are burned out and worried that students aren't developing the skills needed for the global economy." Race to Nowhere "points to the silent epidemic running rampant in our schools."

The film is a "call to families, educators, experts and policy makers to examine current assumptions on how to best prepare the youth of America to become the healthy, bright, contributing and leading citizens in the 21st century." Please visit racetonowhere.com to reserve your tickets for the screening at St. Stephen's and discover how you can help reform our achievement-based culture for the better. The film begins at 7pm, March 14, in the church and a discussion follows.

Organ recital at St. Stephen's Church

COURTESY PHOTO

Also an accomplished tenor, Robert Barney. has given solo performances at Wellesley College and the Connecticut Early Music Festival.

The next concert in the St. Stephen's Church Concert Series will take place at 4 p.m., on Sunday, March 13. It will feature organist Robert Barney.

Barney has had an active musical career as choral director, performer, teacher and church musician. In September 2009 he was appointed to the position of artistic director for Youth pro Musica, Boston's oldest choral program for young singers. He also serves as director of music for Trinity Episcopal Church in Concord since 1994, and has taught voice, piano and organ for more than 25 years. Barney performs organ recitals in the United States and Europe and has performed for conventions of the Organ Historical Society, The American Guild of Organists and the Association of Anglican Musicians, focusing his attention especially on historic instruments. During his tenure as music director for the Boston Gay Men's Chorus from 1985 through 1997 the group recorded two CDs for the AFKA label, one, featuring holiday music and the other featuring new music written specifically for men's choruses. From 1999 through 2004, Barney was associate conductor of the Treble Chorus of New England, a youth choir program based in Andover. He was appointed interim artistic director of the group in 2004 and served until 2006. Also an accomplished tenor, he has given solo performances at Wellesley College and the Connecticut Early Music Festival. He is a founding singer/member of, and an artistic advisor for the Seraphim Singers. Barney holds degrees from Concordia College and The New England Conservatory of Music and his teachers included Ruth Taylor, Robert Owen, Robert Schunemann, Frank Taylor and Yuko Hayashi.

The concert will take place in the Sanctuary of St. Stephen's Church, and will be played on the Aeolian Skinner organ. Barney was music director at St. Stephen's Church from 1988 through 1994, and the church members are eager to welcome him back for this recital.

The concert is free and open to the public. The church is near the Cohasset Town Common, and there is plenty of free parking on the street, and in the town parking lot next to Town Hall.

Nancy Doherty

Nancy Doherty

COHASSET – Nancy (Henderson) Doherty, of Cohasset, beloved mother, grandmother and great-grandmother, and one of God's most intelligent, witty, and stubborn Scots, passed away peacefully on March 2 after a brief illness. She was 90 years old.

Nancy was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and moved to South Boston when she was three years old. With her mother, Elizabeth, she sailed from Liverpool on the Cunard Line's R. M. S. Samaria to her father, Benjamin, who was waiting for her in South Boston. She loved growing up on Savin Hill, sneaking off to enter beauty contests, going to Boston Latin School for Girls, and attending Boston University.

When she was twenty years old, she took a job at Hugo's on Cohasset Harbor. There she met the love of her life, the handsome and even more dry witted John Doherty. They spent many afternoons riding their bicycles all over Cohasset. Together they had four children and ran the Scituate Cabin from the late 1940's until 1968, where Nancy, as hostess, managed the dining room and John, as the chef, managed the kitchen. The family lived behind the restaurant. During that time their family expanded to include many Cabin staffers, as well as regular customers and Music Circus celebrities. In their time off, Nancy and John loved to spend their days at Sandy and Minot Beaches. John predeceased her in 1977.

After Scituate Cabin, Nancy went to work for Walter Hall Real Estate, later Relocation Resources, where she worked as Walter Hall's secretary/assistant until she was into her eighties; and where, at seventy, she overcame her initial refusal and quickly learned how to use a computer, eventually becoming quite proficient. She spent her free time reading and gardening.

Every year she hosted an Easter brunch for her children and grandchildren. By the time she had great-grandchildren, the event moved to her daughter's house where Nancy held a chair as the honorary host, presiding over the day's events, which grew from Easter egg hunts and backyard wiffle ball to the Amazing Egg Race.

Her cherished daughter Judi predeceased Nancy in 2003. She leaves behind two daughters; Bonnie and Fred Delay of Hingham; Leah and Hap Pompeo of Cohasset; and her son John and Kathy (Fitch) of Kennebunk, Maine. She was a beloved grandmother to Tim (Kristen), Michael (Martha), Katie, Tara (Rich), Kristin (Tom), Lyn, Dan (Tisha), Brian, Frank (Gayle), Sean, Scott, and Nick. She was great-grandmother to Timmy, Kevin, Charlie, Ryan, Maggie, Sage, Ben, Madilyn, Christian, Mia, Johnny, Sienna, Luca, Ella, and Gabriel, all of whom share her love of a good pun, and sometimes even a bad one.

For eternity, twice baked potatoes, Scituate kite extravaganzas, and an occasional sip of cheap scotch will be a minute portion of "Neena's" legacy. Those who loved her for being the glue will remember her eternally.

Her family is grateful to the remarkable, compassionate staff at Harbor House in Hingham, who made Nancy feel right at home, comfortable, and most of all, happy. We extend to them a very heartfelt Thank You!

Visiting hours were held on Monday, March 7, at McNamara Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., Cohasset, from 9-11 a.m., followed by a service at 11 a.m. Interment Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Gifts in Nancy's memory can be made to the Harbor House Rehabilitation and Nursing Center, c/o Activities Fund, 11 Condito Rd , Hingham MA, 02043; or the Friends of the Cohasset Public Library, 35 Ripley Rd, Cohasset, MA, 02025.

Casting a spell

Cohasset Dramatic Club kicks off new production Friday

When the Cohasset Dramatic Club production of "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" opens at Cohasset Town Hall on Friday, Lisa Pratt won't just be in her usual spot behind the scenes as the show's producer, she'll also be on stage playing a politically aware middle-school student with two dads and a decided lisp.

Pratt's character is one of six hyper-competitive, off-beat adolescents demonstrating their spelling prowess alongside audience members at the bee in the one-act musical comedy with music and lyrics by Natick native William Finn and book by Rachel Sheinkin. The Tony Award-winning show is based on "C-R-E-P-U-S-C-U-L-E," an original improvisational play by Rebecca Feldman that was first developed in 2004 by Barrington Stage Company. From the Berkshires, it moved to off-Broadway at the Second Stage Theatre in January 2005 before transferring to Broadway's Circle in the Square Theatre in April of that year. The New York production ran for 1,136 performances. In the fall of 2006, a sit-down production transferred from San Francisco to Boston and spent four months at the Wilbur Theatre.

Pratt – a Cohasset resident who spends many summer evenings ushering at the South Shore Music Circus – took time out recently to tell Town Commons all about her role as the youngest speller in Putnam Valley Middle School's bee.

Lisa Pratt

Town Commons: Have you ever competed in a spelling bee in your own life?

Lisa Pratt: I have never competed in a spelling bee. The Cohasset Education Foundation established a spelling bee competition for young kids in grades two through five. They compete in teams and it's run like a real spelling bee. It's exciting and of course nerve-wracking as you watch the kids trying to come up with the correct spelling of words. I'm thrilled my kids have had the chance to participate in it, something I never got to do. If I were to compete in a spelling bee now, I think I would do pretty well. Spelling was always one of my best subjects! I am also a word freak. I love word games, and understanding use of language. Yup, I'm a word nerd.

TC: How would you describe your character?

LP: Logainne Schwartzandgrubenierre is the over-achicving daughter of two gay dads (Daniel Schwartz and Carl Grubenierre), who are doting, loving, obsessive, perfectionist parents who care about nothing other than making their daughter a success. Their "support" has created this forthright, liberal, young girl who exudes confidence and neurosis in the same breath. In the most simple way, she just wants to please her two Dads and be a success, but her life seems over-complicated by the over-zealous parenting she receives. She is fun and complex to play, and like all the other characters in the show, has distinct idiosyncrasies that make her special.

TC: What made you decide to step back on stage as an actress in this show?

LP: As much as I am not a middle-school student, sadly far from it actually, I somehow still can completely relate to the character of Logainne Schwartzandgrubenierre. She's focused, fastidious, meticulous, obsessive and neurotic, among other desirable traits. She's really fun to dive into, and people who know me might say it's not a deep dive. She's a word nerd, too. So the character drew me in a lot, and I also love working in ensemble pieces such as this one.

TC: Is it hard juggling dual roles as producer and performer?

LP: Producing and performing in a show is obviously double duty. It means that my job as an actor to learn music, lyrics and dialogue takes on another layer. Although there are lots of days when, after a long rehearsal, it would be nice to not think about how ticket sales are going or if the level of publicity is sufficient, I do thrive on an active pace. Being in a production makes me care even more about its success as the producer, so I would say I am driven to work hard and leave no stone unturned if I am wearing multiple hats in a production.

TC: What do you think helped this sweet little show become a Tony-winning Broadway hit?

LP: At first glance this comes off as a simple little show with grown-ups playing kids competing in a spelling bee. Of course there are glitches and quirks – there have to be, it's entertainment – but the simplicity darkens as the characters are revealed in more detail, and their personal hardships turn into emotional challenges for each of them. That goes for the three adult characters as well. There is a reason that each of them is still coming back to the Putnam County Spelling Bee. So all nine of these characters' stories are played out to a musical score that is light and easy, and the perfect frame to the poignant lyrics that weave through it. It's like savory and sweet – a combination that works.

'Hair' brings back memories

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

In the original production of "Hair: The American Tribal Love-Rock Musical," the show's now famous nude scene only lasted for about 12 seconds, but it caused more than its share of controversy back in 1968. In the current national tour of the show's 2009 Tony Award-winning revival, coming to Boston's Colonial Theatre later this month, the same scene usually causes today's audiences to lean in for a better look, according to a cast member who bares it all.

"Some people are just dismayed and disappointed that the nudity is so carefully lighted," explained Steel Burkhardt, who plays Berger, with a laugh last week by telephone from Minneapolis. "In the 1960s, it was said that people had no problem seeing the violence of war, but they didn't want to see people naked. By appearing nude, our characters are showing that we have the freedom to make whatever choices we want. My character is the kind of person who would get naked, just to get naked. He just believes in himself whole-heartedly. For him, getting naked is not about getting attention. It is about doing what he wants to do. That's just who Berger is – he has no self-consciousness."

Steel Burkhardt

"Hair" will be at the Colonial Theatre in Boston, March 22 through April 10.

What Berger does have is many friends in the Tribe – a group of hippie counter-culture young people experimenting with drugs and exploring issues of sexual identity and race while singing and speaking out about love, life, and freedom during the anti-Vietnam War peace movement. With book and lyrics by James Rado and Gerome Ragni, and music by Galt McDermott, "Hair" was the first rock musical, and its score, including "Let the Sunshine In," "Aquarius," and "Good Morning Starshine," won the Grammy Award for Best Musical Show Album.

Moving from understudy to leading role, Burkhardt has been with the Diane Paulus-directed revival since its Public Theatre debut in Central Park four years ago. He has high praise for his director, who is also artistic director of the American Repertory Theatre at Harvard.

"Diane is a meticulous, extremely visual director and she's always very funny, which makes her a joy to be around. What's also great about Diane is that she is genuinely collaborative. Diane really loves it when you bring a lot to the table. She encourages everyone to share his or her strengths as part of the creative process."

Growing up in New Jersey, Burkhardt – who started doing school musicals in junior high while also finding time for both baseball and football – was given similar encouragement by his parents.

"My father and mother are terrific people. They were about 19 or 20 in 1968 and, from the pictures I've seen, they definitely had hippie style. They weren't fully enflamed hippies, however, because their parents always allowed them to express themselves. They never had to rebel. And they brought me up the same way."

It may be about a free-love, anti-war generation that is no more, but Burkhardt says he is not surprised by the continued interest in the show.

"My friend Paris Remillard, who plays Claude, always says it's a good and bad thing that the message of 'Hair' still resonates more than 40 years after it was written. We're working, which is a good thing, of course, but the bad thing is that you have so many people looking for equality – whether it is in terms of race, gender, or sexual orientation. And you have so many people still seeking peace in the world, too. You just have to look at what's going on in places like Egypt and Libya to see that."

"Hair" will be at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., Boston, March 22 through April 10. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 1-800-982-2787, or go online at BroadwayAcrossAmerica.com/Boston.

Bald eagle spotted in Cohasset

On the morning of Sunday, Feb. 27, Cohasset had a very special, and unusual, visitor.

Having a snack, so to speak, on the Cohasset Golf Course was a bald eagle.

Cohasset resident Bob Gledhill was the fateful passerby who spotted the male eagle, and he happened to have a camera with him.

Both a birder and a photographer, Gledhill shot the eagle, which was munching on a Canada goose, from a 150-yard distance.

SENIOR CENTER

Two big steps

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

On Tuesday night, the building of a new senior center took two very real steps in a long road toward becoming a reality.

Selectmen voted to move forward on seeking bids for a project manager and established a senior center building committee. These two steps set the stage for the project to begin an aggressive capital campaign and gives the project, which has had some starts and stops, forward momentum.

"This could be a very momentous evening for us and for the town. We are at what we hope is a real positive turning point for the project," said John Campbell, chairman of the Cohasset Elder Affairs Board of Directors.

With unanimous votes in favor of forming a six-member building committee to steer the project and authorizing the request for proposals for the project manager, Cohasset Elder Affairs director Coral Grande said the project feels more like a reality than a possibility.

The targeted location for the new senior center is off Sohier Street, adjacent to the Cohasset Swim Center parking lot. The building would share a parking lot with the swim center. At a recent selectmen's meeting, the elder affairs department presented an estimated cost of $5.93 million, including the structure and furnishings.

The need for a new senior center and possibility of a new building has been in discussion since late 2008. The senior center is currently located in a portion of the South Shore Community Center, but both organizations have grown to the point they can no longer be in the

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

Residents approve budget transfer request

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

"I really hope this is the last time I have to stand up here and say we don't have a choice in this matter, and this is a decision we have to make."
Karen quigley

Cohasset had one of its quickest and quietest Town Meetings in recent history on Tuesday night.

In a swift 23 minutes, special Town Meeting recited the Pledge of Allegiance (though Moderator Dan Evans noted that no American flag could be found), heard from town officials and took both voice and hand count votes on the one article on the warrant

Special Town Meeting was called to balance the fiscal 2010 budget, approving a transfer of $265,967.55 from the town's stabilization fund to the water department budget to fund the fiscal 2010 deficit as identified in the recent water department audit.

Fears about not having a quorum proved to be unfounded, as 200 residents showed up to cast their vote on the article. Despite the sizeable crowd, and close to 30 voters in opposition to the article, there was no discussion from the floor of the meeting.

The deficit was a combination of a water department revenue deficit in fiscal 2010, a contract that should have been paid in fiscal 2010 but was not paid until fiscal 2011 and some misclassifications of capital and operational expenses, interim Town Manager Steve Lombard said.

The fact that there was a deficit at the close of fiscal 2010, which ended June 30, 2010, meant that the Department of Revenue would not certify the

BACK TO WORK

Starting a new career later in life

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

Debbie Flanagan at her home office in Cohasset. She is planning on opening an Edward Jones investment office in Hingham. STAFF PHOTO/CHRIS BERNSTEIN

It's never too late to try new things.

Cohasset resident Debbie Flanagan is living proof.

You may have seen her recently, as a matter of fact. She has spent much of last few months knocking on the doors of homes and businesses introducing herself to anyone and everyone. It hasn't been the best weather for this type of activity — snow and ice and one of the worst winters in recent New England history — but it hasn't stopped her.

And that's largely because Flanagan has a new passion — and a new career. At 58, Flanagan took on the challenge of become a financial adviser with the Edward Jones investment firm.

Although she has taken time off from her career over two prolonged periods to raise her three children, Flanagan said she is now at the place where she felt she could take the plunge. And it turns out, she said, both her age and her gender are advantages in her chosen career.

"It's an advantage to do this at my age because of my level of life experience. It's very real for me that you have to save for retirement; it's very real for me to plan how to pay for your kids' college educations. I understand from my own life experience how important this is for people," Flanagan said.

In addition, research has shown, she said, women financial advisors have an edge when dealing with couples because they can relate better to the female half of the equation.

Playing into her career decision was her husband John, who has long told her she would be a "natural fit" for the job, and he would know. He has had an Edward Jones office on Ripley Road in Cohasset for 17 years. As she thought more about it, she began to agree.

Lt. John Dockray, emergency medical service coordinator, brings donations of two Knox-Box systems to Cohasset Elder Affairs director Coral Grande. Cohasset Elder Affairs will distribute the Knox-Box systems to local seniors who demonstrate a need. PHOTO/NANCY WHITE

WHAT'S GOING ON HERE?

Knox-Box holds the key

What is it?
The Knox-Box rapid entry system is a high-security key box system designed to give fire and emergency medical service (EMS) personnel immediate access to locked buildings. The boxes are already on many of the commercial buildings in town, but the fire department is now encouraging residents, especially seniors, to look into the system.

On Tuesday, Fire Lt. John Dockray, the emergency medical service coordinator, presented two donations of Knox-Box systems to Cohasset Elder Affairs.

"We're reaching out to the residents of the community to inform them of this service. The Knox-Box gives emergency medical personnel easy access in a time when seconds matter," Dockray said.

The Knox-Box is mounted on the exterior of a home or placed over an outside door. A representative of the fire department will come to a home to lock building and all necessary access keys inside the small, but secure box. Only the fire department's master key can open the box and only in the event of an emergency.

Cohasset Elder Affairs director Coral Grande said the donated Knox-Box systems would be given out to seniors on an as-needed basis. One was donated by the fire department and the fire department union donated the other. The Knox-Box is a good idea for residents recuperating from a hospital stay, with a history of medical problems or living alone, Grande said.

The details
It is up to individuals to pay for a Knox-Box. The cost is roughly $200. For information, contact the fire department at 781-383-0616, or forms are available at Cohasset Elder Affairs, 3 North Main St.

POLICE NOTES

No injuries after four-car accident in the village

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

On Friday, March 11, around 1:50 p.m. an 88-year-old male driver lost control of his vehicle and hit three parked cars in the village. The man was backing his 2005 Buick sedan out of a parking space near the former hardware store when he said his foot slipped off the brake and hit the accelerator pedal. The car swerved back toward the parked cars on the same side of the street, hitting a 2001 Pontiac sedan, a 2008 Nissan pickup truck and a 2001 Mazda SUV all parked between Tedeschi's and French Memories.

Police said that when they spoke to the driver on the scene he seemed confused. As a result, the police requested the Registry of Motor Vehicles to do a medical evaluation and spoke to the man's family.

There were no injuries as a result of the accident.

Expired registration

A police officer on patrol stopped a 2006 Jeep Grand Cherokee near Schofield Road and Chief Justice Cushing Highway on Monday, March 7, around 1:30 p.m. for having an expired registration. The officer issued the driver, a 50-year-old female Cohasset resident, a citation, the car was towed and the resident was transported home.

Brazilian passport

On Monday, March 7, at 2:55 p.m., an officer on patrol pulled over a 2007 Mercedes sedan due to its dark window tint. The officer approached the driver, who was identified as a 26-year-old female from Abington. The woman was unable to produce a driver's license and only had a Brazilian passport for identification. The officer issued a summons for unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and gave a verbal warning for too-dark window tint. The car was towed and the driver has to appear in court.

Gas leak

A 2004 Volvo sedan was brought to Robbins Garage at the intersection of North Main and Forest on Monday around 6 p.m. The car, owned by a 69-year-old Cohasset male, was leaking gasoline. The car was leaking so much the garage had to called the fire department for cleanup of the potentially hazardous material. The fire department responded and sopped up the gasoline with speedy-dry, a product that absorbs hazardous fluids fast.

Staggering male

At 7:52 p.m. on Tuesday, March 8, an officer on patrol saw a male staggering down Elm Street carrying a 12-pack of beer. According the officer, the male was visibly intoxicated. While the officer was speaking with the 28-year-old male, he fell to the ground and hit his head. EMTs responded to the scene and the man was taken by ambulance to South Shore Hospital.

Detectives are investigating the incident to find out where the man purchased the alcohol.

"The young man was clearly highly intoxicated and should not have been sold the beer," said Lt. William Quigley.

Illegal dumping

An officer was called to an area off Doane Street on Thursday, March 10, around 7:20 a.m., where several plastic trash bags were dumped overnight. Investigation revealed the household trash belonged to a Sohier Street family. Officers contacted the family, and the mother reported her daughter may have dumped it there and they would take care of cleaning it up.

OUI arrest

An officer on Forest Avenue on Thursday, March 10, around 9 p.m. clocked a 2002 GMC Yukon going 52 mph in a 30 mph zone. The officer stopped the SUV, which was driven by a 40-year-old female from Hull. During the course of the traffic stop, the officer allegedly observed the signs and symptoms of intoxication. Subsequently, the woman allegedly failed several field sobriety tests. She was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol and given citations for speeding and not having the vehicle's registration in her possession.

Wrong car for license plate

An officer ran the license plate of a 2002 black Mercedes Benz sedan parked in the MBTA parking lot on Friday, March 11. The license plate came back belonging to a 1987 Volvo. The officer towed the car and issued a citation by mail to the 51-year-old male owner of the car. The owner has been summonsed to court for attaching a plate to the wrong vehicle and having an uninsured motor vehicle.

Brush fire

The fire department was called to the intersection of Bow Street and Jerusalem Road for a report of a small brush fire. Firefighters were able to extinguish the small fire before it got out of hand.

Hit-and-run

A 53-year-old female reported she was rear-ended by a male driving a 2007 Volkswagen Jetta on Route 3A near Sohier Street on Saturday, March 12. According to police, the two parties had pulled over to exchange papers when the female noticed the male driver smelled like alcohol. When she confronted the man, he allegedly got in his car and drove away. The female Cohasset resident was able to get the Jetta's license plate, which was from New Jersey. Police sent out a notice to Hingham to be on the lookout for the vehicle.

The car's registration went back to a female from Ridgewood, N.J. Detectives are following up to try to identify the male driving the vehicle.

Dust Off

Cohasset Police received a called from the CVS pharmacy on Saturday (March 7) after a pharmacist observed a women sniffing from a can of "Dust Off." Employees were able to get a plate number off the vehicle as it left. The car was registered to a 35-year-old female from Scituate. Scituate police got in touch with the husband of the woman. According to police, the husband said his wife has substance abuse issues and was attempting to get her into treatment.

Littering

A 39-year-old male from Cohasset reported finding a large amount of trash on the side of Black Rock Road on Sunday morning. The man found some mail inside the trash, which belonged to a Hingham woman.

A Cohasset police officer called the woman to address the issue. According to police, she said she had no knowledge of how the trash got there and she would come done to pick up the trash.

Missing person

Cohasset police took a missing person report from very concerned parents on Sunday evening around 10 p.m. Their 19-year-old daughter had not come home for a day. Detectives were following up with credit card companies and local banks in an attempt to track down the young woman. In the midst of this work, the daughter called her parents and said she would be returning home Monday afternoon.

Pickup towed

At 2:20 a.m. Saturday, March 5, police had a 2002 Ford pickup truck that was unregistered and parked in the village towed. Police said the truck belonged to a Plymouth man but it was unregistered and in violation of the overnight, winter parking ban.

CAPTURED ON CAMERA

Bald eagle spotted in Cohasset

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

On the morning of Sunday, Feb. 27, Cohasset had a very special, and unusual, visitor.

Having a snack, so to speak, on the Cohasset Golf Course was a bald eagle.

Cohasset resident Bob Gledhill was the fateful passerby who spotted the male eagle, and he happened to have a camera with him.

Both a birder and a photographer, Gledhill shot the eagle, which was munching on a Canada goose, from a 150-yard distance.

It's possible this is the first time a bald eagle has been spotted within the Cohasset town lines, and it may have been the eagle's first visit, Gledhill said.

"I'm very lucky to have taken it. This is the first one I've ever seen," Gledhill said.

Seeing a bald eagle while heading home from the recycling transfer facility was not something Gledhill expected. He had been thinking about heading south with his wife Meredith to the Middleborough area, where he had read that eagles had been seen.

"I don't know what he was doing here except eating," Gledhill said.

Gledhill and a small group of 10, including three police officers, gathered to watch the eagle on Cedar Street near the sixth hole of the golf course. Gledhill was the only one with a camera.

Nichols Road resident Bob Gledhill saw this bald eagle feeding at the Cohasset Golf Club on Feb. 27.

"It was magnificent to watch him take off."
Bob Gledhill

When the bird took flight, he said it has a wingspan of four or five feet. The eagle flew over toward the Nantasket Junction commuter rail station and then out of sight, Gledhill said.

"It was magnificent to watch him take off," he said.

The bald eagle was historically a very rare breeder in Massachusetts, and prior to 1989, the last presumed nesting of this species was at the beginning of the 20th century. In 1982, however, the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife teamed with Mass Audubon to launch a project to restore the bald eagle as a breeding bird in the Commonwealth.

According to the Mass Audubon website, massaudubon.org, the program was very successful. During the summer of 2009, biologists banded 37 eaglets at 21 nests across the Commonwealth. The largest concentrations of eagle nests are at Quabbin Reservior and along the Connecticut River. Other locations in Massachusetts include Middleborough, Sheffield, Hadley, Holyoke, Lunenburg and along the Merrimack River.

Registry of Deeds computer seminar

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will host an informational seminar on computer assisted land records research at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Dedham from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., on Thursday, March 24. The seminar is intended for both real estate professionals and the general public. The program will include a brief presentation, written reference materials and hands-on exercises. There will be opportunities for both basic and advanced questions and answers.

Computer assisted land records research is available both at the Registry and on the Internet at www.norfolkdeeds.org. There is no charge for the seminar, but anyone planning to attend is asked to register by calling Alicia Gardner at 781-461-6104 or by email to agardner@norfolkdeeds.org. Include name, address and a daytime phone number when registering.

Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. The Registry land records back to the founding of Norfolk County in 1793 are available for online viewing. The Registry's online index is available from 1900 forward and continues to expand to include earlier records. The Registry of Deeds Customer Service Department can be contacted by calling 781-461-6101, or on the Internet at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

CEF event scheduled for April 9

The Cohasset Education Foundation would like families to know that the spring event will take place on Saturday, April 9, at the Cohasset Golf Club. A fun-filled Hawaiian luau is planned. E-mail invitations will be sent out this week. Tickets may be purchased via the on-line invitation, through www.cohasseteducation.org, or at the door, for a slightly higher fee.

If you would like to donate an item for the auction, advertise in the booklet, or help with the event, contact Ginni Froio at ginnifro@comcast.net.

Renowned fortepianist returns to First Parish

WHAT IT IS
Early keyboard specialist Sylvia Berry returns to First Parish Cohasset after her debut appearance in 2009, this time bringing a menagerie of instruments (virginal, harpsichord and fortepiano), as well as playing the church organ. Berry is in fact now organist and pianist at First Parish, which allows her the freedom to do such a varied program. Many of the composers featured on the program, such as Sweelink and Frescobaldi, are not household names, but this concert will illuminate their music and the instruments they played.

WHEN IT IS
The concert will be at First Parish Cohasset on Sunday, March 20, at 3 p.m. (Admission is $15, $12 for seniors and children.

MORE ABOUT THE PROGRAM
Titled "A Feast of Early Keyboard Music," this highly unusual concert will give audiences the chance to hear music from the 17th and 18th centuries played on instruments that were in use at the time.
While the harpsichord has become standard fare for many, the virginal will be a surprise for most audience members. Essentially a square harpsichord, it has a loud, vibrant sound, and is sumptuously decorated.
Many 17th century Dutch paintings by artists such as Johannes Vermeer feature virginals.
On this instrument and on the harpsichord, Berry will play works by Jan Pieterszoon Sweelink, Giovanni Picchi, Girolamo Frescobaldi and Louis Couperin.
Berry brought a fortepiano for her 2009 concert at First Parish, and she will bring it again, but this time she will feature music of Johann Christian Bach, a composer we do not hear too often.
The performance will also include two works by Mozart: his ebullient and virtuosic variations on "Ah vous dirai-je Maman," a tune we know as "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," and a sonata for piano duet in which Berry will be joined by her husband, Dale Munschy.
A reception will follow in the parish house.

MORE ABOUT THE PERFORMER
Sylvia Berry, a native of Philadelphia, has performed as a soloist and chamber musician in the US, Canada, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and Italy. She studied at the New England Conservatory, the Oberlin Conservatory (where she received a master's in historical keyboard instruments) and the Royal Conservatory in The Hague, The Netherlands.

Town manager screening committee named

Selectmen appointed nine citizens to narrow down the field of town manager candidates. The screening committee will review all the applications, determine who to interview and make a recommendation for finalists.

"(The people who came forward have) a very good mix of talents and experience," selectmen Chairwoman Karen Quigley said.

The screening committee includes two former selectmen, an advisory committee member, a school department representative and several citizens at large.

Members of the screening committee are Sam Wakeman, John Keniley, Ronnie McMorris, Richard Avery, Merle Brown, George Chamillard, Michael Milanoski, George McGoldrick and school business manager Dave DeGennaro.

Quigley said the screening committee would meet about five times, including three dates for first-round interviews. The first-round interviews will be held in executive session to protect the privacy of the applicants. The second interviews for the finalists will be held in a public session.

Selectmen are charged with hiring the town manager.

Selectmen said all the applications are going to the search consultant, so they did not know how many potential candidates there were.

Cable studio almost complete

The local cable television stations will soon be broadcast to Verizon customers. The cable studio, which has been built in a room off the Cohasset Middle-High School library, is nearly complete.

Selectman Paul Carlson, who also served on the cable committee, said the town is "on the cusp" of being able to broadcast to both Comcast and Verizon customers.

For more than a year, Cohasset residents have been able to get cable service from both Comcast and Verizon, but the local cable broadcast had not been set up for Verizon. Therefore, Verizon customers have not been able to watch selectmen or school committee meetings from the comfort of their own couch.

With the new cable studio more local programming, including the "Our Town" television show, will be produced.

Elder affairs looking for board member

Cohasset Elder Affairs has an opening on its board of directors, director Coral Grande said. The town is looking for someone who is interested in what the department is about and helping achieve its mission. Residents of any age are encouraged to volunteer.

If interested in becoming more involved, contact Grande at 781-383-9112. Selectmen appoint the Cohasset Elder Affairs board of directors.

SSAC offering spring/summer programs

South Shore Art Center is accepting registrations for its spring term of classes. The center has more than 50 course offerings for students of all ages and abilities, including day and evening classes and weekend workshops. Weekly courses will include The Joy of Watercolor with instructor Sharon Perlmutter, and digital photography with Tim Waite.

Develop creative talents in Beginner Pastels & Colored Pencils. Workshops will include Painting in an Hour with Nancy Colella, Photoshop and Photoshop Elements, Japanese woodblock printing, mosaics, Nuno Felt with Barbara Poole and Color Theory Simplified with Judy Rossman.

In addition to classes in Cohasset, there will be adult drawing, painting and photography classes at the art center's Hingham Shipyard Gallery, 18 Shipyard Drive, Hingham.

An array of children's classes will be offered to artists as young as 4 1/2 years old, including cartooning, ceramics, Abstract Painting for Young Expressionists for grades five through eight and Art Studio: Materials and Masterpieces for high school students. The center will also offer an April vacation program for students in grades one through four, Adventures in Art, the art weeks for ages 4 1/2 through 6 and grades one through four. Registration is ongoing.

Spring term classes will begin the week of April 25. For a full description of classes and to register, visit ssac.org or call 781-383-2787 to request a course brochure.

GIMME SHELTER

Sugah is quite a beauty

This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is looking for shelter for Sugah (yes, that is the way her name is spelled). Sugah is a pure white 10-month-old female. She's still quite skittish, but she does like to be petted and purrs loudly. She gets along with other cats and will more than likely become friendlier with time and patience. She's quite the beauty and certainly worth the effort.

If you're interested in Sugah, or any of the felines, please check out our web-site at www.hsar.org. We have open hours from 2 to 3 p.m. on Saturdays, and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Mondays. If you'd like further information or would like to arrange an appointment, give Shirl a call at 781 925 3380.

The shelter is at 50 L St., Hull, MA.; the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA. 02045, email, hsar@verizon.net.

HSAR offers low cost spay/neuter on a monthly basis. For more information, check out our website or call Mary at (781) 925-3121.

Thanks to our dedicated volunteers, to those who give homes to our felines and the people who generously donate to our cause. We couldn't do it without you.

Volunteers needed for Shine program

Norfolk County regional SHINE program is currently recruiting volunteers to be trained as Serving the Health Information Needs of Elders counselors, The SHINE program is sponsored by the Executive Office of Elder Affairs and staffed by a network of volunteer counselors who provide information, counseling and assistance to Medicare beneficiaries.

Volunteers participate in a 12-day training program that provides a broad understanding of Medicare, Medicare Supplement Insurance, Medicare HMOs, the Medicare Prescription Drug Program and a number of public benefit programs. Volunteers receive certification from the Executive Office of Elder Affairs upon completion of the training program. A training session will start Monday, May 16.

For more information, call the SHINE program at 800-243-4636.

GIVING BACK BIRTHDAY

Siblings request pantry donations

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

A birthday is undoubtedly a celebration.

For two local children, their birthday was a celebration of giving this year.

Instead of receiving birthday gifts from their friends this year, Max and Sofia Whetstone instead requested donations be made to the Cohasset Food Pantry.

The result is dozens of items — canned goods, snack items, cleaning products and toiletries — were collected for the pantry. The siblings both had birthdays in late February. Sofia, a fourth grader at Deer Hill, turned 10, and Max, a seventh-grader at the middle school, turned 13.

For the two youngsters, the small gesture has made a big impact.

"It's sad to think there are other families in town who can't go to the grocery store daily like we can," Sofia said.

Both Max and Sofia had seen recent articles about the food pantry and about children helping out the pantry in different ways. When the idea was proposed, their mother Cheryl said it wasn't a hard sell.

"These kids get so much already," she said.

Cheryl sent e-mails to the other parents to let them know of the request and everyone was supportive.

"We're giving up something that's nice, but not really necessary," Max said.

Max and Sofia visited the food pantry recently for a tour and met pantry co-director Jane Corry. She told them about the needs of the pantry and they were surprised to learn the pantry can only provide groceries to its clients every other week.

"It was inspiring to see all the food on the shelves, but then understand there are limits to how much the pantry can help," Max said.

One of the limitations includes only providing services to individuals and families in Cohasset. Max and Sofia learned that some of the pantry's clients have special food requests because of allergies to gluten or peanuts. As a result, they made a trip to Whole Foods to buy gluten-free products.

At their birthday parties, held on different weekends, they said their friends were happy to show off what they had brought to donate.

"We're probably going to do it again next year," Max said.

The Whetstones delivered the donations this week to the food pantry.

"I am deeply touched by the overwhelming generosity of Sofia and Max. They have shown true concern and caring for our families in need," Corry said. "They are terrific role models for their friends, classmates and other young members of the community. This is a perfect example of kids who care! The food pantry appreciates their selfless act of kindness."

AROUND TOWN

Be sure to get out for activities as spring begins

JEN PIEPENBRINK

Hello, Cohasset. I hope you all enjoyed a wonderful St. Patrick's Day yesterday and that those little leprechauns didn't play too many tricks. I am also hoping that everyone has adjusted to daylight-saving time and is now beginning to see the advantages of it at the end of the day.

This weekend, on Sunday, March 20, is the first day of spring. So many fun events and celebrations are happening as we get ready to embrace the season, so make sure to try and take advantage of some of them, they are so much fun. Also happening on Sunday in Scituate is the annual St. Patrick's Day parade beginning at 1 p.m. It is supposed to be a nice day, so grab your family and friends and head over to the fun.

As we all heard about, read and saw the images of last week's devastating earthquake and tsunami in Japan, we all need to remember how quickly life can change and we can only live for each day to its fullest. My thoughts and prayers are with all of those who were affected by such devastation and hope that help will continue to be given to those in need. Hug your family, let your friends know that you care and get out and enjoy all that you can! Now, on with the news.

Spring Around Town

South Shore Community Center wants you to join them for their second "Spring Around Town" event April 30. The festive evening consists of cocktails, dinner and desert, all at surprise venues around town. Tickets can be purchased by visiting southshorecommunitycenter.com or calling 781-383-0088. This event sold out last year, so order your tickets early to ensure you get to enjoy this wonderful event with us.

Second Congregational auction

Often described as "the most fun you can have in a church," Second Congregational Church's March Madness time and talent auction is an evening of great food, terrific auction items and fabulous company. The event is Saturday, March 19, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church and starts with gourmet appetizers. The silent and live auctions begin promptly at 7 p.m. and continue, along with periodic raffles, until 9:30 p.m. Auction items include sports and theater tickets, vacation homes, private baseball, sailing, and riding lessons; photography and artwork; and gift baskets. There is no admission fee, but to reserve a table (up to 10 people) and/or tickets, please RSVP to the church office at scc@2ndcc.org or 781-383-0345.

Congratulations to basketball team

Congratulations go out to the Cohasset High School boys varsity basketball team as they played an amazing season and this past Tuesday played at the TD Garden for the state championship. Although the final score did not end up in our favor, this team of talented, skilled and cohesive young men and the coaches has nothing to hang their heads about. Cohasset is proud of you all, and a round of applause is being sent to each and every one of you! What a great season!

EXTRA IN YOUR MARINER

Spring bistro

Come on Cohasset seniors and friends. On Friday, April 8, at 4:30 p.m. the Friends of Elder Affairs will host a spring bistro for all at the Lightkeepers to mingle and welcome spring! Families are welcome. A delicious pasta dinner will be served. Call 781-383-9112 for reservations as seating is limited.

On Monday, April 11, from 9 to 11 a.m. is the Friends first café of the season at the Lightkeepers. Have coffee, home-baked goodies and come on down and see us!

Spelling bee show

Can you spell the word "enjoyable" or "musical" or even "fantastic"? Well, here is a fun way to enjoy some time with friends this weekend or next and even have the chance to try out your own spelling skills. I had the chance to see this show last weekend and had a great time. The music, acting and overall experience was wonderful.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club continues its run of "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" at the Town Hall Theater on Cohasset Common Fridays and Saturdays, March 18, 19, 25 and 26 at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays, March 20 and 27, at 2 p.m.

General admission is $20 and tickets can be purchased at Paperscapes or Buttonwood Books and Toys, Cohasset, or by calling 617-697-2115. Tickets may also be purchased the day of the show one hour prior to show time at the box office. For information, go to cohassetdramaticclub.org.

Animal shelter events

It will be a busy spring at the Scituate Animal Shelter!

Fee for entries are $10 each, and proceeds will benefit the homeless animals in the care of Scituate Animal Shelter.

A rabies clinic in cooperation with Scituate Animal Control is scheduled for Saturday, April 2. Cats are from 9 to 10:30 a.m., and dogs are 10:30 a.m. to noon.

The shelter will also hold a large yard sale April 9 and 10 at Knights of Columbus, Scituate. Donate spring-cleaning items for the sale. New or gently used clean items will be accepted on March 26 and 27 and April 2 and 3 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., plus Wednesday March 30, from 6 to 8 p.m. Visit the website for item restrictions.

Scituate Animal Shelter serves the South Shore region. Information can be obtained online or by calling 781-544-4533.

Mr. Skipper pageant

DVDs of the 2011 Mr. Skipper pageant from March 11 are now available to purchase for $20 each. To order a copy, please call Shaun Galvin at 781-424-2197(cell) or send a request by e-mail to shaun_galvin@yahoo.com or galvin_shaun@yahoo.com. Requests can also be mailed with a check for $20 per DVD to Shaun Galvin, P.O. Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043.

CEF spring event

The CEF (Cohasset Education Foundation) would like all families to know that the spring event will take place on Saturday, April 9, at the Cohasset Golf Club. A fun-filled Hawaiian luau is planned.

Invitations will go out this week. Tickets may be purchased via the online invitation, through the website at cohasseteducation.org or at the door, for a slightly higher fee. If you would like to donate to the auction, advertise in the booklet or help with the event, please contact Ginni Froio at ginnifro@comcast.net. This is a wonderful event for all and raises funds for a very good cause.

That is the news for the week. Send me all of your news, photos, celebration information as well as upcoming events no later than Tuesdays by 5 p.m.

Cohasset students advance to State Science Fair

Cohasset High School juniors Emily Castro, Maggie O'Grady and Ellie Tedeschi won a spot at the Massachusetts State Science Fair this coming May at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The girls presented their Gulf River foam research at the South Shore Regional Science Fair at Bridgewater State University on Saturday, March 12.

Students from Nantucket to Newton presented 126 projects at the South Shore Fair, one of six regional science fairs held statewide. The top 40 or so projects from each region advance to the state fair May 5 to 7 at MIT.

This is not the first award these young researchers have received for this project. Last spring, these students, all volunteers at Cohasset's Center for Student Coastal Research, applied for and won a grant from the Marjot Foundation to study the composition, source and impact of the increasing amounts of sea foam found at the base of the Gulf River in Cohasset Harbor.

The students tested their hypothesis that high levels of nitrates and phosphates from detergents leaking from failing septic systems and fertilizer runoff stimulate the growth of the phaeocystic algae blooms in the river. Nitrates and phosphates are believed to serve as nutrients for the algal blooms, which turn into foam when aerated in the rapids under the Border Street Bridge. This foam in turn feeds and promotes the growth of bacteria in Cohasset Harbor.

Ann Thomae, a CHS science teacher and CSCR field research coordinator, supervised the girls' research.

"The professionalism in science that these three high school students bring to the table is astonishing," she said. "Their service to environmental concerns in our community deserves our undivided attention. I've always known that the research going on at CSCR was remarkable, and it's great to see that acknowledged in the broader science community in Massachusetts."

Local Jimmy Fund tournament directors recognized

More than 150 volunteer-run tournaments were recognized by the Jimmy Fund in February at Gillette Stadium in Foxboro for their commitment to the Jimmy Fund Golf Program. By organizing golf tournaments, these volunteers helped raise $6.45 million in 2010 for adult and pediatric cancer care and research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through Jimmy Fund Golf, one of the nation's largest charity golf programs.

Since 1983, Jimmy Fund Golf has taken the fight against cancer to the fairways and has raised $79 million in support of Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's lifesaving mission. Jimmy Fund Golf is the nation's oldest and largest grassroots golf program for charity that brings together hundreds of volunteers and thousands of golfers who are united in their love for the game of golf and their desire to fund cancer research. For more information about Jimmy Fund Golf, visit jimmyfundgolf.org or call 866-521- 4653.

Cohasset businesses to participate in Spring Stirrings

Cohasset businesses Borrowed Butler, French Memories, Windsor Tea Shoppe and Cohasset Village Greenery will participate in Spring Stirrings weekend March 25 through 27 at South Shore Natural Science Center, 48 Jacobs Lane, Norwell. The spring fundraiser will take place from 7 to 10 p.m. and include tastings and desserts, cash bar and music.

French Memories and Windsor Tea Shoppe, both of Cohasset, are providing desserts. Joanne Caddigan of Caddigan Auctioneers will again lead an auction.

The science center will be transformed into a springtime fantasy with floral displays by local garden clubs and landscape centers.

Cohasset Village Greenery is one of the garden centers participating and will use fresh tulips and daffodils to create a display reminding everyone that spring is almost here.

Tickets for the gala are $50 each and may be purchased by telephone with a credit card. Lectures and workshops will be offered on both Saturday and Sunday. Sunday will feature a tea with music by Sebastian Quartet, Hingham High School, from noon to 3 p.m.

For information, to order tickets and to obtain the schedule of events, call South Shore Natural Science Center at 781-659-2559 or view the website at ssnsc.org.

Art good enough to eat

Cohasset High School hosted the 10th annual Edible Art Exhibit March 9. All artwork had to be safe for human consumption.

Fifth-graders Matthew Donahue and Jack Macmillan, who are also neighbors, named their project "Aliens," creating it using pineapple, cantaloupe, marshmallows and grapes.

Cohasset High School junior Isabel Robinson stands by the dress she created using Twizzlers that were pinned to the dress form and filled in with frosting.

Fourth-grader Nathan Arnold looks over his project "The Protector of the Pyramid," which he made over a two-day period using cake, frosting, Gummy snakes, Sour Patch Kids, eggs, oil and toothpicks.

Erin Driscoll and her sister Bridget (not pictured) re-arrange some of the fruit and vegetables that make up the "Nutritious Bouquet of Flowers."

Three-year-old Nathan Seebeck presents "My Fishbowl," which is made of Jell-o and Goldfish crackers.

The "South Park" created was created out of Rice Krispies, frosting, Tootsie Rolls, chocolate and Whoppers and made by ninth-graders Chloe Tolman (pictured), Dianna Bestick and Liza Riedel.

OUR VIEW

On the level

Budgets and budgetary terminology can be confusing. When a department — as the school department is doing — asks for a "level-services budget" that is not the same thing as a "level-funded budget."

A level-funded budget usually translates into cuts in personnel, services, programs, supplies or activities.

Think about your family's budget. If you have not had a merit or cost-of-living raise and the cost of utilities, food, taxes, activities, entertainment and so on have gone up, then chances are you will put your family on a level-funded budget and try to get by on less than what you had last year.

We raise the level-funded versus level-services budget comparison because the school committee has approved at $45.7 million fiscal 2012 budget to send to Town Meeting. The budget represents "level services" — meaning that while it represents a 4.64 percent increase of this year's budget, it would translate into the same level of services next year as were provided this year.

We want to make it perfectly clear that the school committee's job is to advocate for the schools. It is their job to push back when asked to make cuts and explain how those cuts would affect education.

However, the school committee knows well that it operates within the confines of a municipal budgetary pie whose wiggle room is controlled by various moving targets ranging from state aid to excise taxes and Proposition 2 1/2.

This year, the proposed school budget is $300,000 higher than what the town said it could afford. Now it is up to the advisory committee, town manager, selectmen and school committee to either creatively "find" more money, make cuts elsewhere, cut that much from the proposed school budget or ask for a Proposition 2 1/2 override.

We do not have a crystal ball to see how the schools and town will resolve the budget gap, but can promise you that we will be covering the issue to the best of our ability to provide you with enough information to have an informed opinion.

If, and that is a big if, selectmen should opt to put an override on the ballot, we remind voters that an override is a two-step process. It must be approved at Town Meeting and then at the polls.

There was also a time when "O" for override was Cohasset's favorite letter. In the 1990s and early 2000s when most of those overrides passed, property values were soaring and more people had extra cash.

Over the years, communities that have sidestepped a divisive override fight are few and far between. Battles over the Proposition 2 1/2 overrides and their "cousin," dubbed debt exclusions — which allow towns to exempt the debt service for large projects, such as new schools, from the tax cap limit — have torn towns apart, often pitting parents of schoolchildren against empty-nesters.

However, it is important to point out that Proposition 2 1/2 is not the bad guy when it comes to municipal budgets, as it passed by a 59 percent to 41 percent margin in 1980 to give voters a way to take control of their soaring property taxes.

To put it as simply as possible, the legislation limits the annual increase in the local tax levy to 2 1/2 percent with an allowance for new construction. If a municipality needs more money than allowed, voters — in a simple majority at the ballot box — can approve an override of the limit.

LIVING WELL

'Diet' is not the enemy!

JOAN F. WRIGHT, CMC

"Diet" has long been a buzzword, but now one can hardly escape the weight loss ads that dominate the media. Once a fad, dieting is now a way of life for many, with every age group involved

Editor's note: Living Well is a monthly column provided by Joan F. Wright on behalf of the NVNA & Hospice. The monthly subjects of the column will coincide with National Health Observances as outlined by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The column appears the first week of each month.

While March Madness and St Patrick's Day usually dominate the month of March, this year's biggest highlight will most probably be the first day of spring (March 20), given our excessive winter. Less well known and no doubt, far less exciting, is that March is also National Nutrition Month. Why should we care? Obesity, diabetes, and related health concerns are clearly on the rise and affect most of us on some level.

"Diet" has long been a buzzword, but now one can hardly escape the weight loss ads that dominate the media. Once a fad, dieting is now a way of life for many, with every age group involved. All too often, however, diets are driven solely by a focus on weight and not necessarily sound nutritional choices. For children, this can be particularly problematic.

"Weight is not the only measure of good nutrition and health. Any child — whether they are of normal weight, overweight or obese — can be undernourished," says registered dietitian Dr. Katie Brown, national education director for the American Dietetic Association Foundation. The ADA has put together a program for kids called "Eat Right with Color", that blends essential nutrients and basic food groups in a colorful presentation. Tips and guidance can be found at www.kidseatright.org.

Adults can also be easily fooled by letting weight alone dictate one's diet. The goal of a thinner body prompts the question "which diet is better, low-fat, high protein or no carbs"? But is the answer what's best for the health issues and concerns one may have? All too often, nutrition is left out of the calculation. While many diets use endorsements by "nutritionists", what are their qualifications? Nutritionist is a term too loosely used and in some cases, may not reflect any educational degree or licensure. The best way to determine a diet plan is to meet with a registered dietician (RD, educated and licensed) who can match goals to one's own metabolism, health challenges and needs.

Weight is obviously important. Being overweight increases one's risk of many health conditions, not the least of which is diabetes. Studies have shown that losing 7 percent of your body weight (and exercising 150 minutes a week) can prevent or delay type 2 diabetes by 57 percent. Last year alone saw 1.9 million new cases of diabetes diagnosed in people age 20 and older. This is added to the 25.8 million people who already have diabetes and another 79 million who are pre-diabetic.

Early diagnosis is critical to successful treatment, potential delay, and prevention of some complications of type 2 diabetes. For those identified with pre-diabetes, simple lifestyle changes that include a healthy diet and exercise can prevent or delay development of type 2 diabetes. Again, a registered dietician can be invaluable in designing a healthy approach to eating as well as dispelling myths of the diabetic diet" (e.g. can't eat sugar) that prevent so many from seeking advice.

We need to change the way we consider "diet", from that "quick fix" or "nuisance" depriving us of favorite foods to a far more positive view: a healthy way to enjoy eating. Being nutritionally conscious benefits everyone.

VETERANS

Learn connections to diseases

JOE MCELROY

A service connection is presumed for certain conditions, particularly those with conceded herbicide exposure. For entitlement to be established, evidence of exposure and a diagnosis of the presumptive medical condition must be established.

Because of exponential improvements in medical diagnostic capabilities, the long-term consequences of combat and environmental hazards in war zones are being more accurately identified.

Veterans and their families need to know about which combat zones are associated with specific medical conditions. This article primarily addresses the environmental consequences of herbicides. Subsequently, a discussion is needed that addresses the affects of ionizing radiation/depleted uranium, asbestos and toxic embedded fragments. The subjects appear to need particular emphasis although much remains to learned about post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), traumatic brain injury(TBI) and much more.

A service connection is presumed for certain conditions, particularly those with conceded herbicide exposure. For entitlement to be established, evidence of exposure and a diagnosis of the presumptive medical condition must be established.

Herbicide exposure is conceded for in-country Vietnam service with some exceptions for Navy and Air Force veterans. For Army veterans, generally a DD-214s will show Vietnam service. For Marine Corps veterans, sometimes a DD214 will show Vietnam service, or they can use personnel records. Navy veterans should submit what ship or ships they served on and provide a statement regarding the circumstances for going ashore. Air Force veterans should show personnel records.

Veterans who served in Thailand, between Feb. 28, 1961, and May 7, 1975, may have been exposed to herbicides and qualify for VA benefits. Sometimes exposure can be conceded if duties entailed being near the perimeter of the base.

This applies to Army veterans who provided perimeter security on RTAF bases or were stationed on some small Army installations in Thailand. However, the Army veteran must have been a member of a military police (MP) unit or assigned an MOS whose duty placed him/her at or near the base perimeter.

This also applies to Air Force veterans who served on RTAF bases at U-Tapao, Ubon, Nakhon Phanom, Udorn, Takhli, Korat and Don Muang.

If in Korea between April 1, 1968, and Aug. 31, 1971, veterans should show they were in a unit determined by the VA and U.S. Department of Defense to have operated in area in or near the Korean DMZ in which herbicides were applied.

Under a law enacted in 1994, the VA is allowed to pay compensation to Gulf War veterans with certain chronic disabilities resulting from illnesses that the VA could not diagnose appeared during active duty in the Gulf War or within a specified time period after Gulf War service. Three health conditions are presumptively recognized for service connection: fibromyalgia, chronic fatigue syndrome and irritable bowel syndrome. Veterans serving in the second Iraq War (Operation Iraqi Freedom) are eligible for the same VA presumptions.

On Sep. 28, 2010, the VA published final regulations recognizing new presumptions of service connection for nine specific infectious diseases associated with military service in the Persian Gulf War, Iraq and Afghanistan: brucellosis, campylobacter jejuni, coxiella burnetii (Q fever), malaria, mycobacterium tuberculosis, non-typhoid salmonella, shigella, visceral leishmaniasis and West Nile virus. Presumptions begin with the start of the Persian Gulf War on Aug. 2, 1990.

Providing a confirmed diagnosis allows the VA to order examinations as soon as it has verified herbicide exposure. A list of all presumptive conditions with herbicide exposure can be found at 38 CFR 3.309(e).

The most common conditions are diabetes mellitus, type II (pre-diabetes or impaired glucose fasting is not an actual diagnosis), prostate cancer, respiratory cancers (cancer of the lung, bronchus, larynx, or trachea) and non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

Recently established conditions subject to presumptive service connection are ischemic heart disease, including but not limited to acute, subacute, and old myocardial infarction, atherosclerotic cardiovascular disease including coronary artery disease (including coronary spasm) and coronary bypass surgery and stable, unstable, and Prinzmetal's angina (does not include hypertension or peripheral manifestations of arteriosclerosis such as peripheral vascular disease or stroke); chronic B-cell leukemia; and Parkinson's disease.

Other presumptive conditions are amyloidosis, chloracne or other acneform disease consistent with chloracne, Hodgkin's disease, multiple myeloma, acute and subacute peripheral neuropathy, porphyria cutanea tarda, soft-tissue sarcoma other than osteosarcoma, chondrosarcoma, Kaposi's sarcoma or mesothelioma but including adult fibrosarcoma, dermatofibrosarcoma protuberans, malignant fibrous histiocytoma, liposarcoma, leiomyosarcoma, epithelioid leiomyosarcoma (malignant leiomyoblastoma), rhabdomyosarcoma, ectomesenchymoma, angiosarcoma (hemangiosarcoma and lymphangiosarcoma) , proliferating (systemic) angioendotheliomatosis, malignant glomus tumor, synovial sarcoma (malignant synovioma), malignant schwannoma, including malignant schwannoma with rhabdomyoblastic differentiation (malignant Triton tumor), glandular and epithelioid malignant schwannomas; malignant giant cell tumor of tendon sheath; malignant mesenchymoma; malignant granular cell tumor; alveolar soft part sarcoma; epithelioid sarcoma; clear cell sarcoma of tendons and aponeuroses; extraskeletal Ewing's sarcoma; congenital and infantile fibrosarcoma; and malignant ganglioneuroma

In a recently decided court case (Board of Veterans Appeals, Docket No. 05-00 201 / U.S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims, Vet. App. No. 06-2190), it was decided exposure to Agent Orange caused an aggressive form of brain cancer known as glioblastoma multiforme (GM). It is not on the list of "presumptives," but may be added. Graves' disease is also being studied for a possible linkage to Agent Orange.

Agent Orange is also recognized as the cause of spina bifida in children of Vietnam veterans. There are at least 18 other birth defects linked not to herbicide exposure but rather to service in Vietnam: achondroplsia, cleft lip and cleft pallet, congenital heart disease, congenitalt talipes equinovarus-club foot, esophagal and intestinal atresia, Hallerman-Streiff syndrome, hip dysplasia, Hirschprung's disease-congenital megacolon, hydrocephalus due to aqueductal stenosis, hypospadias, imperforate anus neural tube defects, Poland syndrome, pyloric stenosis, sundactyly-fused digits, tracheoesophageal fistula, undescended testicle and Williams syndrome.

During 2009, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, more commonly referred to as Lou Gehrig's disease, was recognized as presumptive for all wars.

There are any number of other health hazards that may lead to a service-connected disability to include exposure to asbestos, depleted uranium, ionizing radiation, sodium dichromate (Basra), Burn Pitts (Iraq), and contaminated water (Camp Lejeune) among others.

Some medical conditions, as noted above, must be documented during or shortly after separation from active duty. In any event, it is important to maintain records from the onset and submit a service-connected disability application at the earliest practical date to avoid missing retroactive compensation and timely health care.

If it is established that the veteran died because of a service connected medical condition, the widow or widower may be eligible for Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC). If the owner of real estate, the surviving spouse may be eligible for a municipal tax abatement. Finally, the widow or widower may qualify for an Annuity IAW under the provisions of Chapter 115/CMR108 MGL's.

As always, it is best to work with your town's veterans services officer before submitting your application.

HEALTH NOTES

Come to the health fair

STEVEN BOBO

Welcome! The town's health and recreation fair is Sunday, March 20, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Deer Hill School.

Cohasset's resources may appear to be spent in haphazard fashion, but close scrutiny of all functions of a town's governance generally reveals a pattern calculated to benefit primarily the health of its populace. The three legs of the good health tripod are adequate reasonable healthy food, exercise and a healthy infrastructure.

Over the years, as Cohasset changed from a rural community to suburban, the needs of its citizens changed. Modern times have brought different illnesses, treated differently. Goiter and thyroid problems from drinking water have become fewer with better drinking water, but cancer from ingestion of other chemicals introduced from different sources has become more prevalent. Each year, the recreation department, along with the Cohasset Board of Health and the town nurse, use current most-effective techniques for maintaining your personal health in the face of changing health conditions. Accordingly, a closer administrative bonding of the three functions is reasonable.

The health fair is an example. In 1998, the health fair was begun with some 12 vendors and a total of about 20 attendees. Held in the gymnasium of the community center, the fair grew into an important element of the board of heath initiatives. Each year, the dedicated recreation department staff searches out the most effective and useful techniques for maintaining your personal health in the face of changing health conditions. Health, fitness and personal care professionals and advisers gather to provide free advice, assistance and counseling for the citizens of Cohasset

Practitioners and health care staffers gathered at the Deer Hill School this year are dedicated to providing help on tried and true techniques as well as new developments. There will be no high pressure or fancy displays and advertising, just plenty of ideas that may improve your personal situation.

Free medical screenings will include blood pressure, cholesterol and blood sugar, oral cancer, osteoporosis (bone mineral density), chiropractic, prostate cancer screening and mental health screenings. This year, we have the Dana Farber Blum Van, which will be staffed with a dermatologist for skin cancer screening, as well as the Lion's Club Eye Mobile.

Additionally, demonstrations of family emergency and disaster planning and holistic health methods that include reiki, nutrition, health food and massage therapy will be offered. We will have a representative from the Children's Melanoma Foundation to teach families about sun safety. South Shore Hospital will be on hand to educate residents about the importance of concussion awareness, as well as the importance of mammograms.

The list of activities includes acupressure by Robin Killeen, blood pressure clinic, brain fitness games at Paul Pratt Library, Children's Melanoma Prevention Foundation, chiropractic care from Scituate Harbor Chiropractic, cholesterol (total and HDL), blood sugar, PSA by Health Watch, Eat Well All the Best Natural Foods with David Bigley, holistic health and acupuncture, massage therapy from Santi Holistic Health, mental health, sleep and anxiety screening by Peggy S. Chapman; Nutrition with Paula Pozniak; oral cancer screening with Dr. Robin Lawrence; osteoporosis with Norwell VNA; a skin analyzer from Melanoma Education Foundation; The Body Studio personal training from Doug Bennet; cataract and glaucoma screening; and emergency preparedness information. Enter a raffle for free emergency preparedness kits

The health fair is supported by donations from Pilgrim Bank, Cohasset Rotary Club. Our new logo was created, designed and donated by Goodwin Graphics. We hope to see you at the fair.

FOR THE RECORD

Your newspaper's new look

GREGORY MATHIS

The newspaper you hold in your hands today is a culmination of a lot of time, energy and resources over the last several months, and no doubt it looks different than the last issue you saw.

The one constant in the media business is change.

A great deal of the change we've been dealing with in our newsroom has revolved around our websites.

Now even that has changed.

The newspaper you hold in your hands today is a culmination of a lot of time, energy and resources over the last several months, and no doubt it looks different than the last issue you saw.

We believe the changes we've made demonstrate a renewed commitment to serving the community. We not only want to continue to meet the high standards you have for us in bringing you news and information in each issue of the newspaper, we also want to provide ample opportunity for readers to contribute to the pages of their hometown newspaper.

The first thing you likely noticed about the newspaper is the design of the front page. Big and bold skyboxes at the top of the page and the side rail along the left highlight some of the content you'll find beyond the front page in an organized manner. Also as part of the front-page rail, and throughout the newspaper, you'll see "Extra" tags, which identify content that is exclusive to our print edition.

Beyond the design changes we've made to the front page, you'll find a renewed focus on the people who make the community what it is. In addition to profiles on prominent — and maybe not so prominent — members of the community, we'll be providing readers with answers to questions they have about the community through our Public Service Journalism feature. Another new feature, called "Your News," will give your photos a prominent spot in the pages of the newspaper.

Other noteworthy changes include a guide on page 2 highlighting content being featured on our Wicked Local website, including photo galleries, our latest poll question, information about local blogs and the most popular online stories.

And of course, we will continue to cover all the aspects of the town you have come to expect from us. We hope the paper's new format will make it easier to find those articles and notices, with a consistent organization from week to week and banners at the top of pages that will help identify the content.

As always, we encourage your contributions. We've hopefully made that even easier by incorporating contact information at the top of each section and created a more useful online tool for submitting your photos, sports news, wedding or engagement announcements, letters to the editor and more.

Change is never easy, but it is sometimes necessary. In addition to reinventing ourselves a little with new type fonts, design elements and features, we hope to provide our newspapers readers with extra value.

We hope you'll agree the changes we made to the newspaper are for the better.

Let us know what you think by taking the poll on my blog at blogs.wickedlocal.com/fortherecord.

KNOW YOUR LIBRARY

The online library

MARYLOU LAWRENCE

First of three parts.

Before the Internet was launched in the 1990s, a library's only search engine was the card catalog, and when those three-by-five cards failed the researcher, she spent hours working her way through the stacks to retrieve information.

But today's technology provides anyone with a home computer complete access to Paul Pratt Memorial Library and the 28 OCLN member libraries on the South Shore. Log on to cohassetlibrary.org and discover doors that open to the world. The ability to log on from home is like sleeping in the stacks, surrounded by not only all that is, but by all that is possible.

Log on from home and check out both library and community events for the week; peruse newly purchased titles, DVDs and what's on order; look at the top 15 holds to find out what Cohasset is reading. Pull up the New York Times best-seller list or "Good Books" and find suggestions for personal reading and book club selections, as well as plot summaries, criticism and reviews.

Log on from home to "Overdrive Advantage," and with just a few clicks library cardholders can download free audio or text content directly to their e-readers, MP3 players, iPods or computers. In addition to the OCLN stock of eBooks, Paul Pratt Memorial Library has purchased its own exclusive collection of eBook titles. This means a shorter wait time for the popular selections and more titles readily available to Cohasset patrons. With eBook downloads, there's no worry about overdue books, since content automatically vaporizes after two weeks.

Log on from home and place a hold on a book, audio book or DVD. The library will contact you as soon as it's available and hold it for you for a week. And if illness or other circumstances prevent you from getting to the library to pick it up, volunteers will deliver your selections to you at home.

Log on from home and place a hold on museum passes. Friends of the Library provides multiple annual passes to Boston's most popular museums. Click on "museums" to see if your favorite spot is on the list. If it isn't, contact the library and suggest it be included in next year's purchases.

Log on from home and click on the job and career accelerator, a job search system that provides everything you need to conduct your job search — from recommending occupations to job postings to résumé and cover letter builders. There's even an interview course.

Log on from home and get tax forms, join the library's e-mail list, reserve a meeting room or review Next Chapter's upcoming workshops. Click on "Heritage Quest" for genealogy research studies. Click on "Mango" and learn a new language or brush up on an old one. There's no end to what can be accomplished from home at cohassetlibrary.org.

Patrons who have difficulty logging on or navigating through the website should contact reference librarian Gayle Walsh for assistance at 781-383-1348.

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

Adding up all the pennies makes for a lot of money

By Matt Murphy

AFL-CIO president Robert Haynes may have had a defensible point to make, but its delivery, timing and, well, tone, did little to quiet the drumbeat last week that led to Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts suspending pay for board members as it reconsiders its non-profit status and other insurers like Harvard Pilgrim Health and Tufts announcing that they would also review their policies.

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

Pennies. To be exact, 123,348,200 pennies.

That's how AFL-CIO president Robert Haynes described the controversial five-figure payouts he and his fellow board members at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts received last year for their work on behalf of the non-profit health insurance giant which is also, technically, a charity.

"Obviously, the cost of health insurance is not affected very much. It's about $1 million the board members get paid out of $13 billion in revenue. It's like pennies a year on the premium," Haynes told reporters last week, after attempting a quick getaway from a State House press conference only to be cornered by the lights of television cameras tracking his failed escape.

Haynes may have had a defensible point to make, but its delivery, timing and, well, tone, did little to quiet the drumbeat last week that led to BCBS suspending pay for board members as it reconsiders its non-profit status and other insurers like Harvard Pilgrim Health and Tufts announcing that they would also review their policies.

Mark that on your scorecards as an error for Gov. Deval Patrick, who skipped town without directly addressing the controversy, a complete game for the media who refused to be knocked off the story even by a visit to Dorchester by President Barack Obama and a run batted in for Attorney General Martha Coakley, who announced she would review executive compensation at the state's insurers and pressured them to drop pay for board members.

While Haynes was being hounded about his $72,700 check, former House Speaker Sal DiMasi was forced to watch as a co-defendant in his public corruption case on track for trial in late April took a plea deal for his role in an alleged scheme that reportedly netted the speaker $65,000 — yes, less than a Blue Cross board member.

Joseph Lally pled guilty in federal court to conspiracy and other charges for his role in concocting an alleged plot to steer a state contract to the software company Cognos in order to enrich himself and three others, including DiMasi, his accountant Richard Vitale and lobbyist Richard McDonough.

Left unanswered last week was what Lally's plea deal and his agreement to cooperate with prosecutors would mean for DiMasi's defense and trial. Chief Judge Mark Wolf asked prosecutors to disclose by Monday what Lally confessed to in statements, and is considering making witness and exhibit lists public as they are filed in advance of the April 26 trial start date, undoubtedly making more than a few denizens of Beacon Hill a little nervous.

While the debate over health insurance took a bit of a detour more than a month after Patrick rolled out his plan to fundamentally change the way providers get paid in Massachusetts, the governor got a bit of a break from the day-to-day at the capitol as he busied himself laying the seeds for Bay State job growth in Israel.

Typically speaking, talk is cheap, but not so much when it requires a trans-Atlantic flight for 19 state employees.

In bureaucrat parlance, trade missions such as the one Patrick is currently on are often judged on the "deliverables," those often prearranged agreements with businesses, governments and universities that allow politicians to point to concrete achievements while traveling on the taxpayer dime.

Patrick's trip was been chock full of meetings, forums, symposiums and the like, but short on any firm agreements the administration can point to as a deals signed, sealed and delivered.

While in Tel Aviv, the governor asked El Al airlines to create a non-stop flight to Boston. He signed a memorandum of understanding to solidify "an already strong relationship" between the Massachusetts and Israeli life science and clean energy research and development communities and announced a collaboration between UMass-Lowell and an Israeli engineering college on ways to reduce airline maintenance costs.

Then, on to London. Cheerio.

The Legislature, meanwhile, sprang to life last week when Sen. Katherine Clark and Rep. John Scibak, co-chairs of the Committee on Public Service, hosted a seven-hour public hearing on legislation to reform the way unions can bargain over municipal employee health care benefits.

After years of proclamations from city and town managers that there is no more time to waste before health care costs cripple municipal government, the only thing clear about the debate this year is that the dueling sides are no closer to a deal than last year.

The governor put forward a plan to give unions and municipalities a chance to bargain cheaper benefits before he forces them into the state's group insurance plan, the apparent middle ground on a battlefield in which unions and municipalities have staked out familiar positions.

The Massachusetts Municipal Association wants complete authority to design health plans outside of bargaining. Unions say they will make concessions, but they want half the savings. And the Legislature can't agree on a plan.

With so much heavy legislative lifting to do in the next several months around health care, probation, parole and the budget, members of the Transportation Committee must have been thrilled that their first major task is to shepherd Patrick's $200 million Chapter 90 bond bill to fix crumbling local roads.

Referred to as the "last great non-partisan program" in state government by co-chairman Rep. William Straus, it appears the biggest decision the committee will have to make is whether to recommend Patrick's bill, or up the ante to $300 million and see if the administration will bite on more spending.

Because a bond authorization does not mean the money has to be spent, lawmakers could choose any number they want.

Why not $1 billion?

"Why not more, let's do it all," Straus joked.

Report No. 10
March 7-11, 2011

Senator Robert L. Hedlund (R-Weymouth) (617) 722-1646 Room 413F

Representative Garrett J. Bradley (D-Hingham) (617) 722-2120 Room 472

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote *President rarely votes

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records the votes of local representatives on one roll call from the week of March 7-11. There were no roll calls in the Senate last week.

REORGANIZE LABOR OFFICE (H 39)

House 153-0, approved Gov. Deval Patrick's measure that would reorganize the state's Office of Labor and Workforce Development. The plan includes a savings of $260,000 by elimination of the $125,000 position of Labor Director and the $135,000 Director of Workforce Development. It also moves their offices directly under the control of Secretary of Labor and Workforce Development Joanne Goldstein.

Supporters said the changes would streamline operations and result in long-term savings of between $2.5 million and $4 million by the elimination of other positions and the consolidation of duplicative administrative functions.

The Senate has already approved the reorganization.

(A "Yes" vote is for the reorganization.)

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

SLOW PACE ON BEACON HILL - Consideration of the thousands of bill filed in the 2011-2012 session is making little visible progress on Beacon Hill. Only a handful of hearings have been held and both branches so far have mostly met in brief, informal sessions.

ONE DIMASI CODEFENDANT PLEADS GUILTY - Joseph Lally, a codefendant in the corruption case against former House Speaker Salvatore DiMasi and two others, pled guilty to charges of conspiracy, mail fraud and wire fraud. He has agreed to help prosecutors in exchange for a reduced prison sentence ranging from two to three years instead of nine years. DiMasi resigned and is awaiting trial on charges that he received $57,000 in payments from Cognos, a Canadian software company that he helped land nearly $20 million in state contracts. His case is scheduled to go to trial soon.

CRAIGSLIST STING - A state-sponsored sting operation has nabbed 20 allegedly unlicensed electricians who advertised on Craigslist. The operation, conducted by the state's Division of Professional Licensure, involved undercover agents responding to, meeting with and then busting "electricians" who advertised on the popular website. The individuals, many of whom would not give their last names to their potential "customers" and requested payment in cash, face fines of up to $1,000.

HAPPY NATIONAL WEIGHTS AND MEASURES WEEK - According to a press release from Gov. Patrick's Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation, the Patrick-Murray Administration's Division of Standards is celebrating National Weights and Measures Week from March 6-12. According to the release, the first weights-and-measures law was signed by President John Adams on March 2, 1799, "making this week the perfect time to recognize weights-and-measures operations in Massachusetts and around the country. In 1905, the National Conference of Weights and Measures was first established and convened."

The release goes on to say that the Standards Division's responsibilities include ensuring that retail scanners charge consumer the appropriate amount and gas pumps are properly dispensing gas. It also notes that the division includes nine full-time field compliance officers and provides services to 164 communities.

YOUR REP OR SENATOR MIGHT BE CALLING YOU SOON - Newly-elected State Treasurer Steve Grossman has enlisted the help of a new partner to inform some 40,000 individuals, charities and businesses that they are the owners of unclaimed money from the Massachusetts Unclaimed Property Division. The list will still be published biannually in some newspapers and online but now Grossman has also tapped the Legislature for help.

He has provided the 199 members of the Legislature with CDs containing the names of constituents in their districts who have unclaimed property that totals more than $500 in cash, or stock accounts in excess of 50 shares. The average number of names given to each senator to contact is 2,400 while the average for a representative is 600.

"People are generally wary of unsolicited contacts and read newspapers less than ever before, which has historically been the main form of outreach," said Grossman.

You can see if you have unclaimed property at www.findmassmoney.com or by calling 888-344-MASS (6277).

ELECTION UPDATE

Selectmen is only race

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

With hours to go before the deadline to obtain nomination papers for the 2011 Town Election as the Mariner went to press, just one race has emerged.

At least three candidates have come forward to run for two seats on the board of selectmen. A fourth potential candidate, longtime board member Fred Koed, had yet to return his signed nomination papers to the town clerk's office as of Thursday morning.

Residents have until Tuesday, March 22, to submit their papers for signature certification.

In addition to Koed, the two potential planning board candidates William Hannon (for a three-year seat to fill an unexpired term) and Clark Brewer (for a five-year seat) had yet to return their papers.

On Thursday morning, Lilian Curley of Margin Street pulled papers for the water commission for a one-year term. Curley also serves on the recreation commission, and as of press time, Town Clerk Marion Douglas was trying to determine if Curley could serve on two elected boards at once.

CAREER

Describing her career as "spotty," Flanagan has held high-powered corporate management positions and worked in small offices. She graduated from Cornell with an MBA and was on a fast track career for management in a big chemical company. The job was high stress and long work hours, she said.

When Flanagan had her first child, she had planned to go back after her three months of maternity leave, but like many women, decided to stay home.

"I really wanted to be a mother first," Flanagan said.

Two more children came along, and she stayed home until the youngest entered nursery school. When Flanagan returned to the workforce, she commuted and worked long hours, but enjoyed the challenges of the job in a health care industry.

But after a few years, her family pulled her away from her career again.

"John was busier, the kids were busier, so I quit again," Flanagan said.

After seeing her youngest through high school and overseeing the building of her current home on Aaron River Road, Flanagan took on several local, part-time jobs.

"(Before long) I was so tired of doing spreadsheets. I wanted to work with people, I wanted to help people," Flanagan said.

She floated the idea of becoming a financial adviser, and this time it seemed to fit. The process to be certified is intense, with several levels of testing.

"It was like I was back in college. Luckily, my brain cells were still there!" Flanagan said. "I liked the idea of running my own business, but having a company backing me up."

She plans to open an Edward Jones branch office in Hingham and will advise people of all ages on the issues that may keep them up at night with worry: saving for retirement, paying for college educations or helping elderly parents.

"People crave face-to-face relationships in this day in age...(and) I'm looking to establish long-term relationships with my clients. If I can help people it's a win-win," Flanagan said. "There's too much out there (in the financial industry) for anyone to know without some help."

Advice for mothers

For women who take time off from their careers, Flanagan encourages them to use that time valuably and keep their career in mind.

"There are many volunteer positions where you can gain skills that are then transferable to the workplace," Flanagan said. "If you run a fundraiser for a local charity, that's management. There are a lot of things that you can do and market creatively when the time comes."

She also encourages moms to stay up on their chosen industry.

"That's easy to do because you naturally have a interest in it," she said.

Lastly, Flanagan said to talk to friends about their companies and industries and ask them where their companies are seeing growth.

"Your friends are your friends and they'll help you if they can. Just keep asking questions," she said. "In this day and age, you have to be a little more in control of your destiny."

A later-in-life change is possible, she said.

"You can do it. You can take time off and go back to your career," Flanagan said.

town's tax rate for the current year. As a result, third-quarter tax bills, which typically go out around the first of the year, have been delayed.

With the article approved, the Department of Revenue needs to certify the tax rate and the third- and fourth-quarter tax bills should be sent together later this month, Lombard said. Both tax bills will be due May 1.

Town officials said residents had little choice in this decision.

"I really hope this is the last time I have to stand up here and say we don't have a choice in this matter, and this is a decision we have to make," said selectmen Chairman Karen Quigley.

Advisory Committee Chairman Sam Wakeman said the deficiencies found in the water department audit, both in the water department and in the town's accounting office, are being addressed and changes were under way.

After the short presentation, Evans asked if there was any discussion from the floor. After a short pause where no one made a move toward the microphone, Evans called for a voice vote.

A strong "aye" was heard, followed by a weaker "nay," and Evans declared the required two-thirds vote was met. However, some voters in the back of the room weren't convinced the "ayes" had it. At least seven citizens stood to call for a hand count of the vote. Evans asked if they would be satisfied with another voice vote, but they indicated they would not be.

The hand count took several minutes, as residents held blue cards in the air signifying their vote. The hand count was 143-29, meeting the two-thirds approval requirement for the transfer of money. Twenty-eight people did not vote in the hand count.

The meeting ended shortly after 7:30 p.m.

Correction

Last week's special Town Meeting preview should have said that according to state law, the water department cannot be required to pay back the town's stabilization fund. However, selectmen may choose to discuss with the water commission the possibility of returning money to the stabilization fund if the water department ends the year in the black.

same location. In addition, the town's 20-year lease with the community center is up later this year, and town officials expect the annual lease of $14,000 to go up significantly.

In the fall, a feasibility study, which was paid for through private fundraising of the Friends of Elder Affairs, was completed. The study envisions a 16,000-square-foot building with room for four, one-bedroom senior affordable housing apartment units. The senior center portion of the building would include a computer lab, a clinic, a social day care center, small offices, a large meeting hall and a variety of activity rooms.

Because of the large cost of the project, and the current state of town finances, several sources of potential funding will be sought. The Social Service League of Cohasset has pledged $1 million to the project through the Mary Hooper Trust. Community Preservation Act funding has been targeted for $1 million for the affordable housing portion of the project. Approximately $1.5 million is the goal for private fundraising through a capital campaign (including $500,000 of in-kind contributions). The remaining $2.43 million would be sought from Town Meeting through a debt exclusion override, likely in spring 2012.

However, the likelihood of some of these funding sources, particularly CPA funds, coming through at the amount described is still to be determined.

In the meantime, a project manager, which is a requirement for large municipal projects, will work with the building committee on the specifications of the project. Campbell said the project manager would be paid for out of private donations. Once on board, the project manager would work closely with the senior center building committee.

The members of the building committee include Cohasset residents Glenn Pratt, Bob Hoyler, Wayne Sawchuk and Wayne Halverson and two town employees, Grande and a to-be-named facilities manager.

Selectmen Chairwoman Karen Quigley has asked the committee to draft a charge for the building committee to be approved by the selectmen.

DIV. 4 STATE CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Valiant battle to the last buzzer

Skippers edged in title game

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The magic finally ran out for the Cohasset boys basketball team on Tuesday at the TD Garden in Boston in the MIAA Div. 4 State Final, as the Skippers lost a tough 58-55 decision to North champion Winthrop.

The Cohasset boys basketball team battled to the final buzzer, but couldn't overcome a 52-43 deficit in the final 2:30.

The Skippers finished the season 22-3, while Winthrop finished 19-6.

Shane Haggerty led Cohasset with 17 points, while Kyrel Jaundoo scored 12 and Sam Richardson added 10.

Robert Jones scored 7 and Robbie Mahoney dropped in 9.

Anthony Hatzisavas scored 16 to lead Winthrop and Joe D'Amore added 15, and late in the game, the Skippers couldn't seem to find an answer to either of them, especially with

Skippers back from the brink

Cohasset comeback nets finals appearance

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

After finishing last season with a 9-13 record, not many woud have predicted that the Cohasset boys basketball team would be 22-2 and playing for a Div. 4 State Championship just one season later.

That however, is exactly what happened.

With an amazing effort against a 20-3 Cathedral team that looked bigger and at least as fast as Cohasset, the Skippers battled to a 65-64 win at UMass Boston on Saturday to gain an invite to the Garden on Tuesday.

Robert Jones drained four three-pointers in the fourth quarter as Cohasset came back from deficits of 8-1, 41-32 and 51-44 (early in the fourth quarter) to advance.

Jones finished with 16 points.

Hatzisavas making free throws down the stretch.

"They (Winthrop) shot the ball very well," said Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero, who pushed back a planned trip to the Cayman Islands to be with his team as they advanced in the tournament. "I'm proud of my guys. You can't ask for a better season."

Haggerty said his team was never going to quit, no matter what the score, and that showed when they were down eight with less than one minute left and kept scrapping.

"We never stopped fighting," he said. "We knew what we could do. Playing on this stage we knew we had to go out all and all, all the time. We were never giving up. We didn't give up all year. We just couldn't come up with it tonight."

Jaundoo, who put in another outstanding effort underneath to go with a hard-fought 12 points, had a tough time with the loss.

"It was devastating," he said. "I'm still a little confused. It didn't feel right when it was over. We had a lot of determination. We went in feeling that we'd win. This wasn't the outcome we wanted. We are happy we made it this far."

For Haggerty, a sophomore, he's hoping for another shot at a title.

"A State Championship is all I want next year," he said.

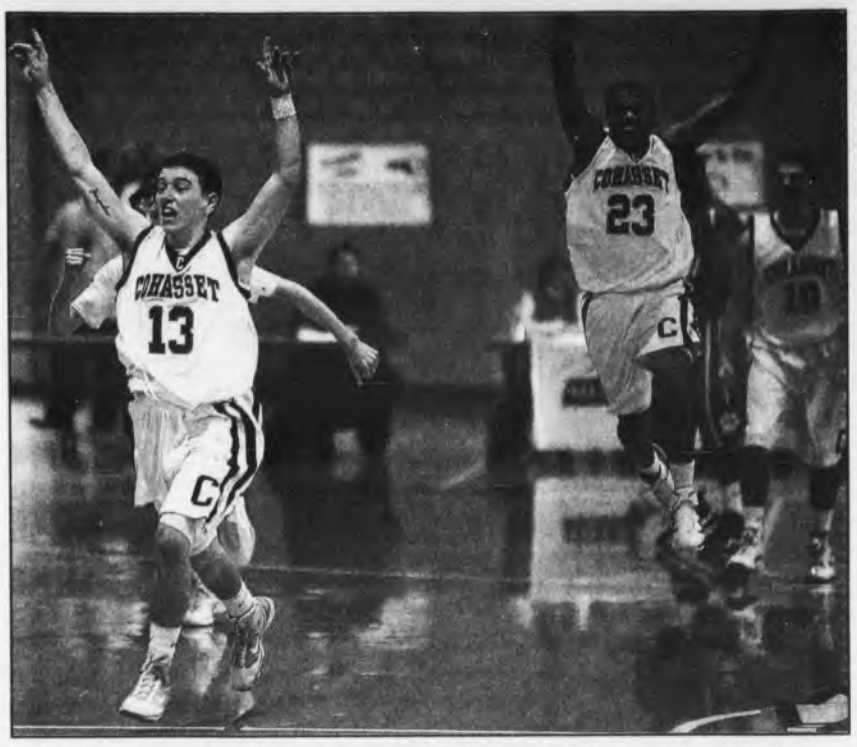
When he was aked if he'd look back at this one in a few years, he said he hopes he'll have even more to look to.

"Hopefully I'll be back here again and won't have to look back," he said. "I'd rather do that."

He'll have a few days to reflect, then will be back to work defending another title.

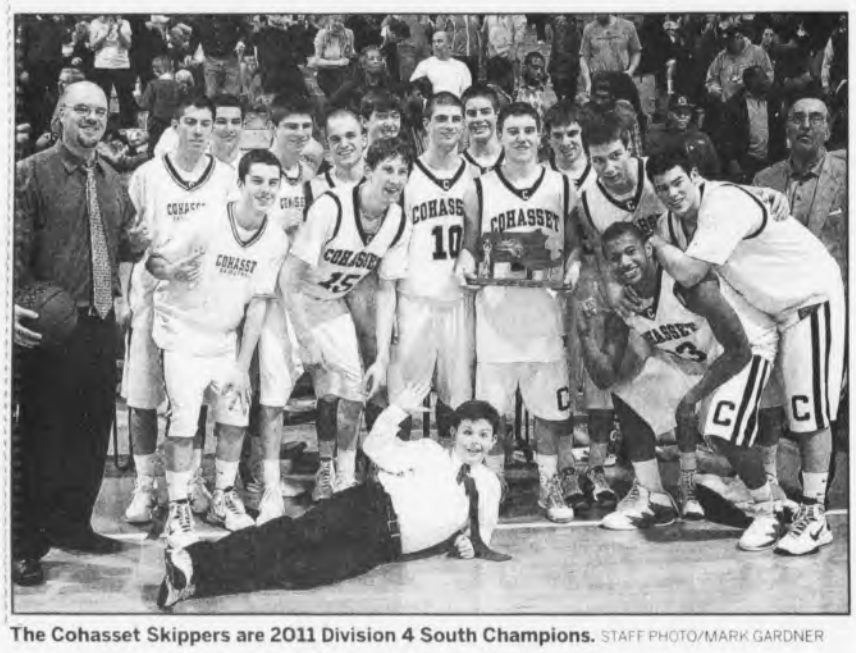
Baseball practice is set to start next week, and he's a member of the defending 2010 Div. 4 State Championship team.

The Skippers advanced to the Garden with a big come-from-behind win on Saturday at UMass. Boston.



Cohasset led the game early, taking a 5-2 lead in the first couple of minutes before Winthrop started to take control, improving their lead to 16-9 at the end of the first quarter.

Cohasset fought back with an 8-0 run to regain the lead, 17-16 with 4:24 left in the first half.



The teams went into the half tied 23-23.

Winthrop made it tough for the Skippers at the end of the third quarter and into the fourth with a 6-0 run that gave them a 41-34 lead before Jones knocked down a three to cut the deficit in half.

Cohasset kept chipping away and cut the Winthrop lead to 45-43 with 6:45 left to play, but a 7-0 run by Winthrop, capped by a three-pointer by D'Amore with 2:22 left put the brakes on a comeback, although the Skippers battled to the buzzer.

SECTIONAL FINAL

Sam Richardson scored 12 of his 16 points in the third quarter to help keep the Skippers within range, and Cohasset got huge contributions underneath from Kyrel Jaundoo and Robbie Mahoney, especially late in the game.

Jaundoo was especially impressive, playing the entire second half with four fouls.

"This is a gutsy group of kids," Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero said. "In the first half, I thought offensively we were not ready for the quickness Cathedral brought to the floor. In the second half we made some adjustments and played a more disciplined offense, which ended up getting us more quality shots, which ended up getting less run-outs by them.

"When you take bad shots and you throw the ball away like we were in the first half, they were scoring quickly because they're very athletic and very well coached. In the second half when we were running our offense, the ball went in or we were in position to rebound and they weren't getting quick outs."

Trailing 51-44 in the third, Jones drained two threes, the second set up by a great defensive sequence by Mahoney and Jaundoo, who blocked a layup by Carlos Bermudez, then pulled down a rebound.

Mahoney then gave the Skippers the lead for a moment with two free throws.

Bermudez gave Cathedral a lead back with a drive, but Jones' third trey of the quarter put Cohasset ahead to stay.

The Skippers hung on with some smart, tough play in the closing four seconds with a 65-62 lead, contesting an inbounds, while forcing Bermudez to take a very tough three with less than a second remaining, then letting Kyle Lawyer have the uncontested putback as the buzzer sounded.

Jones was thrilled with the win.

"This is awesome," he said. "I'm so excited. I couldn't have dreamed of this."

Jaundoo felt the same way.

"I feel great," Jaundoo said. "After last year being 9-13, coming up this year being 22-2, it's an undescribable feeling. No one expected us to come this far. We knew we'd get to the playoffs, but to get to the Garden. Nobody saw that coming.

"I couldn't be happier."

Jaundoo, who made his first career three-pointer in the first quarter, said Cathedral was the toughest team Cohasset has seen so far.

"They were by far the best team we've played all year," he said. "I give them all the respect in the world."

SUMMER CAMP EXPERIENCES TEACH LIFE LESSONS

By Bette Bussel – Executive Director American Camp Association, New England

"A child's experiences at summer camp help shape who he or she will become in the future. The life lessons summer camps provide - friendship, leadership, or community citizenship - are valuable in every aspect of campers' lives. Here are some life-enriching lessons that are in store for campers this summer."

1. Work as part of a team
Campers participate in some team building exercises to strengthen communication and collaboration with others. Collaborative skills are highly valued in college and in the workplace.

2. Bounce back from hardship and gain resilience
Campers are coached through tough situations to handle problems with positive attitudes and to learn how to be part of the solution.

3. Assess risks and examine possible results as a decision maker
Campers learn to weigh their options and to make decisions as individuals and as part of a group. They take responsibility for the negative or positive consequences.

4. Live with others who are different
There is not a better way to get to know a person from a different ethnic and cultural background than to share a camp experience.

5. Be more patient and understanding
Campers develop empathy and learn to accept others' points of views when working, playing and living together so closely.

6. Resolve a conflict
Campers learn key social skills of negotiation and compromise.

7. Make and keep friends
Campers build and gain the social skills to meet new people and to create social networks—in person.

8. Be more self-reliant and confident
Campers are encouraged to be as independent as possible, to better themselves in a variety of ways and to be proud of who they are.

9. Be more active
Campers enjoy a far more active lifestyle than the school year often allows. Of course, they enjoy different activities such as swimming, climbing, and individual and competitive sports. Campers are moving all day long!

10. Become more creative
Camp environments foster creativity throughout the day. Group and team building activities require creative thinking and much of camp programming—formal and informal—encourages campers to think and act creatively, whether they're making jewelry, making music, or making up a new game or adventure.

BLACK HAWKS SNAP STREAK

South Coastal Hockey roundup

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The Black Hawks needed a little extra to snap a three-game losing-streak in the Men's South Coastal Hockey League.

John Dunn scored in the shoot out as the Black Hawks defeated the Red Wings, 2-0 in the shoot out and pulled out a 2-1 win over the Red Wings in a Classic Div. matchup Paul Lyons of Pembroke scored for the Black Hawks and Tom Pipenbrink scored for the Red Wings in regulation.

The Maple Leafs and the Canadiens are tied for first in the Classics Div. The Leafs got two goals and an assist from Jeff Gauthier and two goals from Jim Smith of Pembroke in their 5-2 win over the Rangers. Mike Bartlett also of Pembroke scored and Shawn malloy had two assists in the game for the Maple Leafs.

Joe Craig of Marshfield and Jeff Uva scored for the Rangers.

Marshfield's Jim Donnelly scored a short hnaded goal and set up a power play goal by Glen Harnsich also of Marshfield in the Canadiens' 3-1 win over the Bruins. Pembroke's Mike Martin also scored for the Canadiens, while Hanover's Peter Fallon scored with three seconds to go in the first period for the Bruins.

The Sharks got strong goaltending from Barry Kaiser and goals from Art Riccio, Mike Murphy of Hanover, Tim Cruz and Richard Petrosino both of Marshfield in their 4-1 win over the Saints in a Legends Div. game.

Todd Roach broke the shutout for the Saints with 0.3 seconds left in the game.

Norwell's Patrick Reynolds, Ray Degaust and Matt Sonnabend scored a goal each as the Toros held off the Whalers' 3-2 in a Legends matchup.

John Maguire of Norwell and Scituate's Skip Tufts scored for the Whalers.

Alan Smith of Marshfield had a goal and two assists, while Norwell's Joe Murray scored a goal and assisted on another as the Stingers rolled to a 5-2 Legends Div. win over the Cruasaders.

Michael Cashin also of Norwell, Pembroke's Peter Tamborella and John Scag also scored for the Stingers.

Mike Simon and Marshfield's Ed Burke scored for the Crusaders.

LETTER

Thanks for the support

A letter from Athletic Director Ron Ford

On behalf of our Boys Basketball Team, Coaching Staff, and Cohasset Middle-High School Community we would like to thank everyone who supported our Skippers all season long.

Even though we lost a hard fought 58-55 game in the State finals yesterday to a tough Winthrop team, Skipper Nation should be proud of not only our 22-3 South Shore League and Division 4 South Sectional Champions but also the way that students, parents and fans represented the Town of Cohasset yesterday.

We pre-sold 1052 tickets (with even more fans joining us at the Garden) and we filled 8 "Superfan" busses. That means more than out of every seven Cohasset residents were at the game yesterday. Our "Superfans" are the best high school basketball fans in the state and yesterday you proved it. Your support was UNBELIEVABLE !!!

Special thanks and congratulations needs to go out to our CHS Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Bryan Marks, who 40 members strong did a tremendous job singing the national anthem at center court yesterday. And to the our Band, Joe and Timmy Cavanaro and their entire family who supported the team and took the band on tour with the teams throughout the tournament run.

To all of the school administration and staff at CMHS who volunteered as chaperones, helped sell tickets and organize the spectator busses, and supported our student-athletes all year long, thank you.

To Cohasset Fire Department Chief Bob Silvia who escorted the team back and forth to the Boston Garden yesterday and to the Cohasset Police who provided the security support for all of our big games this year. A big thanks goes out the Cohasset Basketball Boosters Club, who all season-long provided all of the support and involved the entire Cohasset Basketball Community from our grade one youth teams right up to our travel programs in the CHS Varsity Basketball experience.

The Boosters set up all of the signs around town, getting fans out to the games, the halftime youth basketball games, the videotaping of games, concession stands, etc... All of the support is the result of parent boosters from basketball and other sports working together to make the CHS Athletic experience a first class one not only for our athletes but for the entire community as well.

To Coach (Bo) Ruggiero, his staff, and the Boys Basketball team along with our Girls Basketball team thank you for all you have done to make this an exciting winter in the gym.

It's been a fun winter season the two basketball teams combining for a record of 41-7, our boys hockey team made the tournament, we started girls jv hockey, skiing and gymnastics made stronger showings, and our wrestlers and swimmers had a number students place in the sectional and states including two individual state champions.

Thanks for all the support the fans have given our teams and our entire athletic program.

Senior Sam Leahy and CHS '10 graduate Christian Lemaire shout at the Winthrop Vikings as they head back into the locker room at halftime of their Division 4 state title clash. The pair were two of the more than 1,000 fans who came to the Garden to support the Skippers.

SEASON FINALE

Hoop it up:

And then there was one. Congrats to Coach Bo Ruggiero and Cohasset for capturing the Division 4 South Sectional Championship. The Skippers advance to the Boston Garden on Tuesday and will face North Champion Winthrop. Expect CHS to be led by all-area guards Robert Jones and Sam Richardson. Tip-off is slated for 2:30p.m.

A sincere thanks goes out to the folks at Gatehouse Media for letting me cover South Shore area hoops this season, I cannot wait until next year. Remember to all you returning players out there, WORK HARD in the off-season, the first Monday after Thanksgiving is right around the corner.

'Four Seasons' garden tickets available

With a desire to support its mission and raise funds to support the organization, the Community Garden Club of Cohasset is offering "Four Seasons in the Garden." Over the course of the next two years, the club will explore the needs and rewards of the garden in all four seasons through a series of seminars followed by tours of a number of gardens selected to illustrate and expand on the material offered in that day's seminar. Some of the gardens chosen will be seen at each session allowing us to see the transition of the garden from one season to the next. Other gardens will only be offered to program participants and would never be offered for public display; a rare opportunity for attendees. The program will kick off on Thursday, May 5 with a coffee starting at 9 a.m. followed with a seminar on the Early Spring Garden at 9:30. After the seminar, a short local garden tour will be followed by lunch. Following our luncheon respite, a number of additional gardens will be open for tours from 1 to 5 p.m.

Shorter programs are planned for July 14 with the Summer Garden, Oct. 6, the Fall Garden; Jan. 26 of 2012, the Winter Garden; April 4, the Early Spring Garden. These days will have coffee, a seminar and Garden tours following from approximately noon to 4 p.m. The last day will conclude with a closing luncheon as well as the coffee, Seminar and exploration of the Early Summer Garden. A ticket to the entire event of six seminars, six coffees, two luncheons and multiple garden tours purchased in advance is $75 and will be available at a number of locations as well as garden club members starting April 1. Individual day tickets can be purchased in advance for $40 for the two luncheon days and $20 for the days when only coffee is planned. An additional $5 will be added to any ticket purchased on the day of the event.

SCHOOLS

Keating signs Cohasset Caring Pledge

Democratic U.S. Rep. Bill Keating recently signed the Cohasset Coalition for Caring Community Pledge and addressed a group of sixth-graders at Cohasset Middle School about the need for kindness in school.

"Bullying is a concern for every student and parent throughout this country," said Keating. "Schools should be a safe haven, not a place of ridicule and anxiety. Anti-bullying programs were a major focus of mine when I was district attorney, and I am committed to continuing this work in Congress. I applaud the students I met today who signed the pledge; we need their cooperation in order to end bullying in our schools once and for all."

The Cohasset Coalition for Caring Community Pledge states: "I pledge to promote respect for human differences, to stand up for the basic rights and dignity of all people and to avoid behavior that is hurtful to others."

At the assembly, Keating asked if the students were familiar with a quote by Elie Wiesel, the writer who was a survivor of the Holocaust. Giving the first part of the quote — "The opposite of love is..." — Keating asked if the students knew the final word. Several students said "hate," but a sixth-grader answered "neglect," which is quite close to the actual word Wiesel used, indifference. Keating told students the pledge is a good reminder that bullying can flourish if people are apathetic and turn a blind eye to the harassment happening around them.

Keating asked if there had been any positive effects since the pledge was introduced. A student answered that the number of bullying incidents has dropped at Cohasset Middle School.

Keating urged the students to live up to the words of the pledge, and speak out when they saw bullying in the hallways or even online.

"You have the power to take a stand against bullying," Keating said. "The solution to bullying doesn't rest in Washington, D.C., or Beacon Hill or in your principal's office. It is right here in this room."

Currently, more than 3,000 people have signed the pledge. Keating and his district director Michael Jackman signed the pledge and were joined at the assembly by Karen Quigley, chairwoman of Cohasset Board of Selectmen; Selectman Paul Carlson; and Helen Lieb, chairwoman of Cohasset School Committee.

Recently, Keating co-sponsored HR 998, the Student Non-Discrimination Act of 2011. This bill seeks to combat bullying against children who are or are perceived to be lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender or who associate with LGBT people.

It also prohibits public school students from being excluded or discriminated against, in any educational program that receives federal funding. The bill would allow the Department of Education to enforce this prohibition by cutting any funding to an educational program that allows such discrimination or bullying to ensue.

LIFE AT CHS

A great season

NATALIE DIGMAN

First off, congratulations to the boys basketball team for a tremendous season! And further congratulations to Robert Jones and Sam Richardson for giving an impressive end to their high school career.

And speaking of sports, the spring sports season will begin next Monday, and the annual spring sports meeting (with that classic PowerPoint, which is great if you haven't already seen it a dozen times) took place this Thursday. Don't forget to get those physicals!

This Friday and Saturday, the annual Semsba music festival will be taking place at Bridgewater-Raynham and Braintree (respectively). If you have no idea what a Semsba is, but would like to support your fellow musicians, you're not alone! SEMSBA is the annual Southeastern Massachusetts Bandmasters Association. The concert on Friday at Bridgewater-Raynham High school will begin at 2 p.m., with ticket sales beginning at 1:30 p.m. The concert at East Braintree High School will follow the same schedule. Parking, directions, and further information can be found at semsbama.org/semsba_director_letter__2_.pdf, so come support CHS musicians.

Also this Friday, NHS is giving back by educating the junior class about the college process during the monthly peer advisory meeting. These meetings are meant to bring support to students by giving them time to discuss issues with their teachers and also (allegedly) create more diversity by mixing students into randomized classes with peers in their grade. Hopefully, college will prove to be a helpful topic for the junior class.

Most importantly, new superintendent Barbara Cataldo will be joining CHS next year. The seniors are feeling especially grateful to be receiving Denise Walsh's final graduation speech. That's all for this week CHS; hopefully we'll survive the weeks and weeks before April vacation, or at least get some college acceptance letters already!

Kindergarten registration

Kindergarten registration for the 2011-2012 school year is at the Osgood School daily from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Parents registering for kindergarten will be asked to indicate interest in full-day or half-day kindergarten at the time of registration, but they do not have to commit at this time. Parents are encouraged to register early to facilitate planning for programs. A birth certificate and proof of residency are required for kindergartners in order to register. Call the school office at 781-838-6117 for more information.

Students can earn global compliance certificate

Beginning for this year's senior class, Cohasset High students can each a global competence certificate. A program modeled after one at the Needham High School.

"This program is designed to help students appreciate the interconnected world around us," said Middle-High School principal Joel Antolini.

The program has three goals: to get students to think globally, to communicate ideas effectively and contribute responsibly to the greater world.

There are several requirements to earn a global competence certificate and a committee of four (principal, program supervisor, and two faculty members) will review a student's consideration.

First, students must successfully complete an approved global studies course. These include Global Studies, AP European History, a fourth course (semester/full year) in any foreign language. Along with this requirement students must write a one to two page essay synthesizing how their individual high school course of study has allowed them to understand, analyze, and interpret society, cultures, and world issues.

Second, students are asked to participate in one international experience. A financial commitment from the student to cover travel costs is required. However, if financing travel is prohibitive, a student can seek approval from a non-international intercultural experience. Suitable substitutions must involve immersion in another culture and/or foster global awareness.

Third, the student must undertake a global community service project of at least 10 hours. Ideally, the project exposes students to another world culture and enables them to practice their foreign language skills or a world issue.

Fourth, students must engage in an active research that explores a minimum of two distinct aspects of a foreign country or region's culture, political system, history, geography, economy, scientific or technological advancement. A three to five-page essay must be presented on the research and must be conducted outside of assigned class work.

A resume, portfolio, and reflective presentation are the final components of the certificate.

The School Committee approved the addition of this program to the Program of Studies effective for this year's senior class and going forward.

PSO funds teacher grants

Every year the Osgood PSO funds teachers grants that enhance the school's education programs. This year, the PSO donated $6,436 for supplemental instructional materials. The grant requests come directly from the teachers.

For the kindergarten the grants will fund listening centers for small group activities and digital voice recorders for teachers to record books and activities that target literacy skills.

First grade teachers will receive science interactive presentations (for SMART board and classrooms) and Math Facts kit with visual aids to develop critical thinking strategies.

Grade two classrooms teachers grant requests include listening center books and CDs to support Scott Foresman Reading, Social Studies and Science programs, manipulatives for small group instruction in phonics principles, student gear clocks, Stationery Studio technology took to support the writing process by and at the computer, mentor texts for writing that promote global awareness, digital voice recorders to improve fluency, language, and expression, and visual/tactile aids for reading comprehension and critical thinking.

School specialists were funded grants for art materials for a school-wide weaving project, items for balance and coordination activities, headphones for the computer lab, Hands-On Equations for interactive boards, and professional publications.

Additionally, the grant request includes the replacement of playground equipment (balls, jump ropes and hula hoops, etc.).

The School Committee approved the donation unanimously at the meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 16.

"We're very grateful to the PSO for their generosity and support," said school business manager Dave DeGennaro.

PSO Tele-a-thon seeks donations and talent

The seventh annual Cohasset PSO Tele-a-thon and On-Line Auction Fundraiser will take place in April. The Tele-a-thon committee is seeking donations for sponsorship opportunities, raffle and on-line auction items. The on-line auction will run from Friday, April 22 through Friday, April 29, the live broadcast of the Tele-a-thon will take place on Thursday, April 28, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium or viewed on Comcast Cable channel 22.

The Tele-a-thon proceeds support and enhance PSO sponsored programs, teacher grants, curriculum development and other school district wide events. At the last event, more than $22,000 was raised for the kids in Cohasset public schools.

Would your business like to support a great cause and enhance your current advertising and marketing campaigns? If so, consider becoming a sponsor of the Tele-a-thon. Sponsors receive numerous benefits and advertising opportunities before and during the Tele-a-thon. If you are interested in this advertising opportunity, send an e-mail to psotelethondonations@yahoo.com

The Cohasset PSO Tele-a-thon committee is requesting raffle prizes and on line auction donations. If you have a product or service that you would like to donate send an e-mail to psotelethondonations@yahoo.com. Include in your information, the name of the item, its value and where it can be picked-up.

In addition, talent is needed for the live broadcast. If you would like to appear on television and share your talent, this is your opportunity to shine. Send your information to psotelethontalent@yahoo.com. Include the names of all performers, grade, and the talent or act that you would like to share.

UMass Boston: Discovering Your Future

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

As I was reminded again last week, an education from the University of Massachusetts Boston can take you to unexpected places.

Last Tuesday UMass Boston students James Louis, Sandra Derstine, and Carly Hopwood found themselves up-close and personal with President Barack Obama as he discussed the future of American education.

Louis and Derstine are teaching biology and history, respectively, at TechBoston Academy as part of UMass Boston's Teach Next Year program. Students participating in Teach Next Year study and lead classes at TechBoston Academy and Dorchester Academy, while earning their Massachusetts teachers' licenses and master's degrees. Hopwood is a school counseling intern on a field assignment at TechBoston from our College of Education and Human Development in the Department of Counseling and School Psychology.

TechBoston Academy was selected for a presidential visit as a model for academic success. With the help of UMass Boston graduates and students, the pilot school consistently outperforms other Boston Public Schools in retention, graduation, and college attendance rates. I'm proud of our students' and graduates' work and awed by the opportunities they've seized to make a difference. And I'm pleased that their educational path led them to meet the President of the United States.

You see, an education at UMass Boston can take you many places. It can land you in a canoe on the Neponset River helping high school students measure water pollution as you prepare for a career in conservation. You could find yourself leading a book club at the Boston Public Library while studying English, conducting research for a world-renowned advocate for peace while studying political science, working for a leading Boston hospital while studying to become a nurse, or interning at a social networking startup downtown through our Venture Development Center while earning a management degree.

You could even find yourself in a small village in Kenya, as a number of our undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral students at the College of Nursing and Health Sciences have, setting up mobile health clinics to test for heart disease among the local population.

Whatever your intended path, at UMass Boston you'll find world-class faculty members who are dedicated to your success, a diverse and motivated student body, and opportunities to do hands-on learning along the way. Our urban mission and location means that as a UMass Boston student, you'll be helping us reach out and change the world: In every field we offer, there are chances to do real work with real people that improves our communities and opens opportunities for your own success.

And who knows? You could be among the next UMass Boston students to meet the President – or be the first to become President.

Our deadline for freshman applications is April 1, 2011. We'd love to have you on campus. Find out how you can join us at www.umb.edu.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MARCH 28, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) With change dominant this week, don't be surprised to find new facts emerging that could put another slant on a situation and offer you another choice. Think it through before you decide.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) There could be some lingering problems from a previous matter that involved a decision you felt you had to make. Resolve the situation with your strong Taurean no-nonsense approach.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The Gemini's carefully made plans could be undone by someone's unexpected decision. Getting the full story behind that surprise move can help you decide how to deal with the matter

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Recently uncovered information might put a new light on a situation you thought had been resolved. Keep an open mind about possible changes that you might have to consider.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With a potential revision of an old agreement, you can't beat the Big Cat for knowing how to sharpen a "clause" to the best advantage. Someone close could have the news you've been waiting for.

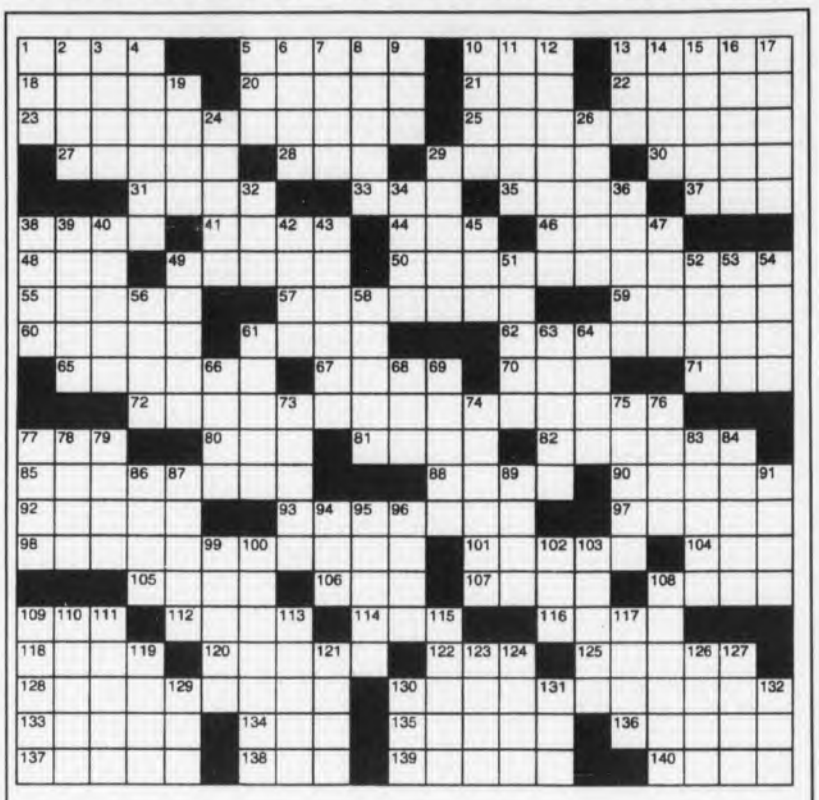
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Certain issues in the workplace could put you in the middle of a dispute you'd rather not deal with. Express your honest feelings before the pressure to take sides builds up.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might feel uneasy disagreeing with someone you've been close to. But your relationship should be able to withstand and even thrive when confronted with your true feelings.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A romantic situation seems to be creating more confusion than you can handle. If so, own up to your feelings. The sooner you do, the better your chances are for working things out.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) With change directing the Archer's aim, consider a second look at your plans and see where they might benefit from a revision. A workplace matter is close to a resolution.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) New contacts help you learn some important information about upcoming developments. The week calls for the Sea Goat to be more flexible than usual in a number of matters.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) With both change and uncertainty in your aspect, you might feel less confident in a previous decision. That's OK. Check it out and see where it could be modified, if necessary.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Old relationships that seemed to be sinking are buoyant again, and new relationships are benefiting from Cupid's loving care. This could be a good time to make a major move.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Central Cemetery owners choose officers

The annual meeting of the lot owners of Cohasset Central Cemetery on March 6 elected a new slate of officers for one-year terms and nine directors for three-year terms. The historic cemetery is on the corner of North Main Street and Joy Place and is privately owned by its lot owners. Richard W. Towle Jr. was elected new president of the cemetery, Richard W. Swanborg Jr. as vice president, Margaret Lynch as clerk and Elinor Tower Campbell as treasurer. The following were elected as directors: Robert H. Durant, Sheila S. Evans, Leslie A. Fallon, Mary C. Hartshorne, Robert Littlehale, Glenn A. Pratt, James B. Watson, Stephen A. Bobo and Barbara Baumgarten. There are 15 other directors whose terms will expire in the future.

The cemetery has recently adapted to changing times. The cemetery's oldest gravesite is dated 1705. By the 1970s, more than two and one-half centuries later, the cemetery found that it had few in-ground lots left to sell, but demand for space in this burial ground was still strong. The late Prescott Cumner, an active cemetery director, introduced the idea of building a wall of columbarium units, with each unit large enough to hold four to five cremation urns. The columbaria could be built on the ledges in the Cemetery that had precluded in-ground burial lots. The Cumner Columbarium was built in 1982, the Tower Columbarium in 1988 and the Cotton Columbarium in 2006. The treasurer reported steady sales of the vaults, currently priced at $4,500, which may be paid in installments. Units are available in all three columbaria. Inquiries should be directed to Elinor Tower Campbell, the cemetery's managing director, at 781-383-1436.

Nominating Committee, one-year terms: Sheila Evans, chair; Tom Keating, Joe Busk and Margaret Cotter.

Some qualifications for board members: Care about the cemetery; attend three meetings per year, if possible; conscientious interest and attempt to understand the cemetery's history, financial situation and problems, if any.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families, often through the services of a funeral director.

Thomas L. McGrath

Thomas L. McGrath

COHASSET – Thomas L. McGrath, age 84, passed peacefully on March 13, 2011.

Tom was born July 20, 1926 and raised in West Roxbury. He graduated from Boston English High School in 1944 and upon graduation he volunteered for the Marine Corp and served in the Pacific Theater, mostly stationed in China, for three and one half years. On returning home, he entered Syracuse University and later completed his undergraduate education at Babson College in Wellesley in 1952. His first position was with Columbia Gas System, a New York firm. Personal reasons brought Tom back to Massachusetts and Tom returned to Babson College and earned his Master's Degree in Marketing in 1957. He then took a position with the Boston Chamber of Commerce as the Director of Research and Development. His work with the Chamber required being closely involved with both City and State officials. One of his many successes was working with Mr. Stevenson of the Arthur D. Little Co. and General McCormack of MIT. Together, the three were successful in bringing a NASA facility to Boston.

Tom loved tennis and boating and was a member of both the Cohasset Tennis Club for more than 20 years and the Cohasset Sailing Club for 38 years. Tom retired from the Chamber of Commerce and worked part time for the Boston Tourist and Convention Bureau and was instrumental in sponsoring the first Career Boston Expo.

After Tom retired, he joined with three of his friends and formed a small company, General Navigation, which made sailing charts for ports from Maine to Rhode Island. The charts were marketed at Boat Shows and Gift shops in the New England area and the company was a very successful enterprise.

Tom's family loved him very much and was proud of him and he will be very much missed. Tom was a good and gentle man.

Tom was the beloved husband of Adeline (Mariani) McGrath. He was the brother of the late Major General William B. McGrath, Retired, and his wife, Regina M. (Patyk) McGrath, and was the uncle of Elizabeth and Bob McLean, their children Bobby and Maggie McLean, and the uncle of Kathleen and Quan Ma and their daughter, Lydia. Son of the late Mary E. McGrath and W. Beverly McGrath.

A Funeral Mass was celebrated Thursday, March 17, 2011 at 10:30 a.m. in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Visiting hours were Thursday, March 17, 2011 from 9 a.m. - 10:30 a.m. in McNamara - Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. (across from St. Anthony's Church), Cohasset. Interment Mount Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury.

In lieu of flowers, donations in Tom's memory may be made to the Cohasset Food Pantry, c/o St. Anthony Parish, 10 Summer Street, Cohasset, MA. 02025.

James H. Walsh III

James H. Walsh III

COHASSET – James Henry Walsh III of Cohasset passed away at his home March 9, 2011, after a brave battle with cancer. He passed away surrounded by his beloved wife, Annellen, of 56 years, and family.

He was born Aug. 11, 1932, in Brighton. He was a longtime resident of Cohasset and Vero Beach, Fla.

Mr. Walsh was a graduate of Boston Latin School in 1949, College of Holy Cross in 1953 and Northeastern (Summa Cum Laude) in 1963, and he served as a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War.

As a member of Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, he traveled worldwide with NATO. When he returned from service, he went to work at the family business.

Mr. Walsh was chairman of Walsh Brothers, Inc., a leading institutional construction firm founded in Cambridge in 1901. He was well-known for building and restoring some of the most recognized buildings in New England and highly respected as the industry's trusted gentleman.

During his 60 years at Walsh Brothers, he was honored with numerous industry awards, including Build America, honors from the Academy of Arts and Sciences and was the first to be inducted into the AGC's Construction Hall of Fame. To celebrate the company's 90th birthday, he was invited to conduct the Boston Pops.

Mr. Walsh has served on the board of trustees at Children's Hospital Boston and multiple banks and organizations.

He was a member of Knights of Sepulchre, the President's Council for the College of the Holy Cross and was also a generous supporter of numerous charitable organizations. Mr. Walsh was a member of Cohasset Golf Club, John's Island Club and Longwood Cricket Club.

He is survived by his wife, Annellen; and their three children, James IV of Scituate, Ellenann Haughey and her husband Christopher of Wellesley, Richard and his wife Jennifer of Hingham; and six grandchildren, Caroline, Christy, Conor, Jay, Cotter and Cormac. He is also survived by his sister, Ann Marie Healey and her husband Dr. Stephen Healey.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Monday, March 14, 2011, in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Arrangements by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., Cohasset. Interment in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

Donations in Jim's memory may be made to St. Anthony's Church, 10 Summer St., Cohasset, MA. 02025, or to Walsh Bros. Foundation, 75 Arlington St., Boston, MA 02116.

SCHOOL BUDGET

Bridging the budget gap

Selectmen and School Board discuss revenue split

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

The town's revenue pie is only so big.

Living with a pie that grows 2.5 percent each year, plus new growth revenues, is no small feat. In the face of rising costs, efficiencies have to be found, budgets trimmed and decisions made between wants and needs.

Since fiscal 2006 the town has lived within a Proposition 2-1/2 budget and it looks like fiscal 2012 will follow suit.

On Tuesday night, the Board of Selectmen and the School Committee met to discuss the division of the revenue pie as the school department grapples with a $330,000 budget gap between its certified budget number and what the town has said it can afford.

In early March, the School Committee endorsed a level services $15.732 million budget, which translates to a 4.64 percent increase over the current fiscal year. The schools' approved budget is about $330,000 more than Lombard made it clear there were no pockets of money on the town side that could be transferred to the school budget.

Spring break

Farm is stirring

Programs for all at Holly Hill

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

According to the calendar, spring is here.

According to Mother Nature, well, it seems she doesn't do things according to a calendar. This week the weather waffled from snow to sun and a little bit in between.

But, the reality is spring weather is on the horizon – and with spring weather comes the return of everything green and colorful.

At no other place in Cohasset is spring's coming more apparent than at Holly Hill Farm located on Jerusalem Road. The working organic farm and its nonprofit arm Friends of Holly Hill Farm are gearing up for a busy growing season. There is a whole new slate of programs for kids, adults and the family during the spring and summer months.

"We want to provide a variety of ways to bring people to the farm," said Jon Belber, Holly Hill Farm education director. "It's been a long winter for everyone!"

Holly Hill has been a farm for more than five generations. Located amidst a residential neighborhood, Holly

The story of a lighthouse

Historical Society exhibit tells history of Minot Light

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

Every night off the coast of Cohasset a beacon send the message "I love you."

Minot's Ledge Lighthouse has become a symbol of romantic love because of its 1-4-3 flash for many near and wide. The 150-year-old lighthouse is a part of Cohasset in a way few other structures can compete.

This month, the Cohasset Historical Society is celebrating Minot Light by displaying close to all the lighthouse artifacts that have been tucked away in its collection. From lightkeepers to the tragedy of the first Minot Light to the reconstruction of the top half of the light in 1980, the exhibit covers the entire history of the famed light.

"Minot's Ledge Lighthouse is a favorite subject of people who live along this shore," said town historian David Wadsworth.

Becky Bates-McArthur, a long-time volunteer who was recently named historical society educator, pulled the exhibit together.

The Minot's Ledge Lighthouse exhibit will be on display at the Historical Society headquarters (Paul Pratt building) until the beginning of April.

WHAT'S THE PROBLEM?

Cohasset chicken population getting bigger

EXTRA IN YOUR MARINER

What is going on?

Health Inspector Tara Tradd said her office has been receiving complaints about chickens. Cohasset was once a town with a lot of agriculture, but its presence has dwindled with increased development over the last 30 years.
Tradd suspects an amplified focus on local and organics foods has more residents considering raising their own chickens and other livestock. Given the number of complaints, Tradd said education on proper chicken care is in order. Regulations governing the ownership of horses, cows, goats, swine and poultry have been in effect since 1972.

What does it take to own chickens in Cohasset?

- A license is required for properties with more than 12 chickens. The cost is $7.
- If there are less than 12 chickens, homeowners should register the birds with the Animal Control Officer so the town knows where the barn animals are for disease surveillance. There is no fee to register.
- Roosters are only permitted if residents obtain written permission from all their neighbors.
- Chickens must be kept in an approved building or enclosure.
- Chickens must be kept on the owner's property.• Rodent control is a must; chickens and their feed attract rodents.

Why is it a public health issue?

The Board of Health wants to be aware of all chickens (and other barn animals) in town in case a species-specific disease, such as avian flu, is found in Cohasset. Tradd said if the regulations are not adhered to, in particular not housing the chickens properly or owning a rooster without permission, the animals could become a nuisance to neighbors.
"I don't want to discourage this activity, but I want people to be respectful of their neighbors and adhere to the regulations," Tradd said.

New accounting software sought

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

One of the key recommendations coming out of the town's recent audits is the need for a new, updated accounting software system.

At the upcoming Town Meeting voters could make this change the way the town does business a reality. After receiving four proposals from software companies, interim Town Manager Steve Lombard came forward with Road resident Jack Keniley met with the four companies over the last few weeks.

"Everyone agreed any of the software systems could have been used in this town successfully," Lombard said. But, the group looked at what system was the best fit for Cohasset. "Cost was not a factor in our recommendation."

SoftRight, a software company based in Westford, Mass., was at the top of the list. The company currently has 90 Massachusetts clients, tioned in the last several town audits done by Roselli, Clark & Associates. The drawbacks of the more than a decade old system is it lacks integration between departments and necessitates a redundancy of data entry. Both issues create a great probability of human error.

The Board of Selectmen supported moving forward with the software purchase. Lombard will be before the Capital Budget Committee next week to seek their support.

The cost for the new software system will be approximately $91,400 in fiscal 2012, which includes the cost of the software license ($34,600), implementation services ($49,300) and managed services ($7,500).

The license for the software will be paid in four installments over the next four years ($34,600 each year) and related support services would be paid annually beginning in fiscal 2013 (approximately $32,000 each year).

The cost for the software system includes integration for the school department.

Stanbrook said he was familiar with this software and sang its praises.

"(The support services) are extremely good. You get someone on the phone right away, they know the problem and can help," Stanbrook said.

Lombard said the system would be a far and away improvement to what the town is doing now, "it will be far more efficient."

If approved, the software implementation will be rolled out in phases.

POLICE BEAT

Spate of car crashes over past week

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Car hits pole

A 2:25 p.m. on Wednesday (March 16), police responded to a phone call about a single car accident in the 800 block of Jerusalem Road; a 1996 Chevrolet Camaro, operated by an 18-year-old Hull man, hit a pole.

Police said the teen told police he was cut off by a pickup truck but that report was not supported by witnesses. Police ran a registry check that revealed the car was unregistered and uninsured. The driver was not injured but is being summonsed to court on charges of operating an unregistered and uninsured vehicle, having no license in his possession, and failure to stay in marked lanes. National Grid was called to the scene to repair the pole, police said.

Two-car MVA

At 4:01 p.m. on Wednesday (March 16), police responded to a two-car motor vehicle crash on King Street near Sunrise Assisted Living. A 2005 Hyundai Tucson traveling north that was operated by a 64-year-old Cohasset man slowed in traffic in front of Sunrise Assisted Living. Police said a 2010 Mazda CX-9 sedan, operated by a 40-year-old Cohasset woman, that was also headed north "rear-ended" the Hyundai. There were no apparent injuries; the Hyundai was towed. The operator of the Mazda was cited for following too closely, police said.

Three-car MVA

At 8:30 a.m. on Friday (March 18), police responded to a three-car accident on Route 3A by Brewster Road. Police said a 1989 Chevrolet pickup, operated by a 39-year-old Marshfield man, was headed south. In front of the pickup was a 2009 Hyundai Santa Fe operated by a 74-year-old New York man, also headed south. When the Hyundai attempted to turn left onto Brewster Road, the pickup tried to pass on the left, hitting the Hyundai and pushing it into the oncoming 1997 Jeep Cherokee, operated by a 72-year-old West Yarmouth man, who was headed north. There were no injuries and none of the vehicles had to be towed but the operator of the pickup truck was cited for passing in a no-passing zone and following too closely.

Unsecured barn

A concerned Border Street resident went to the police station last week to report that she could see an unsecured barn across the Gulf River on Black Horse Lane with the doors open and flapping. An officer went to the house on Black Horse and checked it out.

Hit & run

A 49-year-old Hingham woman who was operating a 2003 Toyota Tundra pickup reported that her vehicle had been struck in the Stop & Shop parking lot sometime between 3 and 3:30 p.m. on March 3. She reported the incident on March 14. Police made a log entry but could not investigate because of the time lapse. Police urge motorists to give police a call on their cell phone right away after this type of incident.

Racial slurs

A 40-year-old resident of a Cohasset nursing home reported being slapped by a 32-year-old certified nursing assistant last week. Police said the resident, who has been transferred to another facility, admitted to calling the nursing assistant, who is black, the "n" word repeatedly. Police said it is alleged that the nursing assistant slapped her on shoulder to get her to stop the slurs, however, the nursing assistant denies that. Police said there were no witnesses and they do not have enough evidence to pursue any charges. The alleged victim can pursue criminal charges on her own if she desires.

Love notes

A 20-year-old Cohasset woman, who works at Stop & Shop, reported to police last week that someone has been leaving love notes on her car at work and also notes and single roses on her car while parked at home, which are making her uncomfortable. Police said there were no threats in the unsolicited notes.

There are no suspects at this time but police will review surveillance tapes at Stop & Shop to see if anyone purchased two single red roses on the days in question.

Erratic operation

Police stopped a 2006 Dodge Ram pickup operated by a 52-year-old Scituate man last Thursday at about 7:42 p.m. on Chief Justice Cushing Highway after reports the pickup had been operating erratically by passing illegally. The operator denied the allegation. The anonymous caller, who reported the erratic driving, did not make himself known to police and there were no other witnesses, police said.

Dump truck

The foreman of a company doing landscaping told police he would talk to the operator of a red dump truck with the company name on the side that had been reported speeding up and down the road, almost hitting someone. A concerned caller notified police about the speeding dump truck last Friday (March 18). The foreman said he would speak to the operator.

Gold chain

A local jewelry store notified police last week after American Express told them it would not honor a $750 charge for a gold chain. Police said a 23-year-old Scituate man purchased the chain using his mother's credit card and a week later, the credit card company denied the charge. Police are summonsing the Scituate man to court on the charge of larceny over $250.

Changing prices

A now, suspended Stop & Shop employee is being summonsed to court for shoplifting last week after he was caught by loss prevention changing the prices on different meats for his own benefit to buy after work. The man is 40 and lives in Plymouth, police said.

Suspicious activity

Police brought a highly intoxicated 19-year-old Cohasset man who was passed out on the lawn of a house on King Street home to his parents on Saturday (March 19) at about 3:45 a.m. The homeowner notified police after being concerned that a man tall man in jeans and a golf shirt had been casing her house.

Kids in car

Police responded to a call from Curtis Liquors at Tedeschi Plaza about two young children being left inside a car unattended in the parking lot on Saturday (March 19). The store provided the plate number. Police went to the home of the 39-year-old Cohasset woman and spoke to her. She explained she had just run into one of the stores for a minute.

Pit bulls

A Beechwood Street resident complained about two large pit bulls running loose last Saturday (March 19) at about 5:24 p.m. Caller reported this is an ongoing problem. Police responded and spoke to the owner of the dogs; there was a break in the fence, police said. The animal control officer is following up.

Sent on way

Police sent a homeless woman on her way after she was reportedly asking people for money at the Mobil Mart on Route 3A. The 50-year-old woman, who was on foot, is from Kingston, police said.

Traffic stop

A 34-year-old Rockland man, who was operating a 1993 red Nissan Sentra, is being summonsed to court following a traffic stop for traveling left of the centerline on Summer Street on Saturday (March 19) at 11:06 p.m. The man presented police with a Brazilian passport but did not have a license. His car was towed and he is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation and failure to drive in marked lanes.

Email accessed

A 30-year-old Cohasset woman reported to police last week that she suspected her ex-husband was accessing her yahoo email account because some pertinent emails related to her divorce had been deleted. Police made a log entry and advised her to change her password and to call back if the activity continued.

Loose dog

An Atlantic Avenue resident reported last week that a loose dog attacked and injured her dog; the matter was referred to the animal control officer for follow-up.

Insufficient funds

A Route 3A business reported receiving a returned check with insufficient funds last week. Police advised the business to redeposit the check and file a report if it was returned again.

Jenkins questions police car-use policy

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

According to a union contract, Cohasset's two police lieutenants have the benefit of bringing home a town vehicle.

The two lieutenants use the cars to go to and from work, and to respond to calls when they are not on the job, Police Chief Mark DeLuca said.

At a recent meeting, Selectman Leland Jenkins questioned this portion of the contract identifying this benefit, which is up for renewal this year. The take-home use of a police vehicle is described in a side letter of the agreement between the town and the union. Jenkins said when he reviewed the contract last spring he did not recall seeing this part of the agreement. Town Meeting approved the contract last June.

DeLuca said the policy of having lieutenants take home police vehicles is not unusual and has been a practice in Cohasset for a number of years.

The two lieutenant positions were created in 2007 under former police chief Jim Hussey; the policy of allowing lieutenants to take home a vehicle was begun around that same time.

DeLuca said the practice is not an expensive one and he did not understand why it was an issue.

"There is the cost of gas. But the benefits are intangible. You can't put a dollar value on accessibility," DeLuca said.

Both vehicles currently used by the lieutenants have been creatively financed at little or no cost to the town. One of the cars was financed through money forfeited through a drug arrest and the other was donated to the department from another community (about $9,000 had to be spent on repairs and minor modification to the car).

DeLuca said the two lieutenants respond to issues when they are called in off-duty, and even when they are not called in. "Both lieutenants sleep with their police radios on."

A majority of the Selectmen agreed with the policy's benefit to the town.

"From my perspective, the Police Chief has the responsibility for the safety of the whole town – and every second counts. The town gets a faster response (from the lieutenants) by allowing them to take a car home," said Selectman Fred Koed.

Selectman Paul Carlson pointed out the vehicles are equipped with flashing lights enabling the officers to get back to Cohasset faster than if they were in their personal vehicle.

Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr said he considered the police cars a tool police need to have.

"I'm in favor of giving (our police force) the right tools to do what they are doing," Carr said.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley, from her perspective, is this contract was simply a one-year extension of an expiring contract, with little change. The to-be-hired town manager could take up the issue when the contract is up for renewal again next year.

Jenkins said his concern was the practice of lieutenants taking home vehicles was never vetted before the selectmen.

"My argument is the town didn't know about it...and (the past chief) committed the town to this benefit," Jenkins said.

Lombard said former town manager Bill Griffin was aware of the side letter of agreement and the benefit was part of the town's negotiation with the union.

Regardless of whether it was legal, Jenkins said he would not have voted in favor of giving this benefit and felt it should have been aired before the Board of Selectmen before it was ratified.

DeLuca offered to provide the board with a cost analysis of having the lieutenants take home vehicles.

From the audience Mary Snow of North Main Street said there was a third vehicle used by a detective.

At the meeting, DeLuca said the detective had use of a vehicle, but it primarily stays at the station.

In an e-mail to board members and the press after the meeting DeLuca clarified his statement.

"There is nothing contractually that awards a take home car to a detective although there is an assigned vehicle to detectives and our detective has taken that car home more times than not," DeLuca stated. "Training, court-case coverage or an ongoing investigation are some of the justifications."

The Board of Selectmen voted 4 to 1 in favor of approving the contract. Jenkins was the sole vote against approving the lieutenants' contract. Voters at Town Meeting will consider the contract on April 30.

ABOUT THE PSO: The PSO is a non-profit organization. The role of the PSO is to act as an advocate for public education. It is the official link between parents and schools. The PSO voices parental responses to school issues, and provides forums for administrators, teachers, and students to present their programs and policies to the public. Through fundraising efforts, like the upcoming Book Fair, the PSO provides programs and activities that enrich the school experience for students, teachers, and parents. Families, teachers, and all members of the community are invited to attend the Fair, which will feature a special theme: Book Fair Carnival, Your Ticket to Read!

No takers for two seats

But there's a race this year for Selectman

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

No one is running for the one-year Water Commission seat or the three-year Planning Board seat.

The nomination period for the 2011 town election has closed. There will be a one race on the ballot for the Board of Selectmen and two seats without any candidate on the ballot.

The last day to return nomination papers with signatures was Tuesday.

Four candidates have come forward to seek two available seats on the Board of Selectmen. Seeking re-election are incumbents Fred Koed and Karen Quigley and Diane Kennedy of Jerusalem Road Drive and Mary Snow of North Main have also put their hats into the ring.

No one is running for the one-year Water Commission seat or the three-year Planning Board seat. Two citizens had pulled papers for the seats, but ultimately did not return them. .

Lillian Curley of Margin Street pulled papers on Thursday, March 17 – the final day to do so – for the one-year Water Commission position, but told the Town Clerk on Friday she did not intend to return them. Curley is currently serving as an elected member of the Recreation Commission.

William Hannon of Linden Drive, who is currently serving as the elected Planning Board associate member, pulled papers, but did not return them by the deadline this week. This seat was vacated when Planning Board member Jean Healey Dippold resigned from her post in late February.

The seats could still be filled through the election if write-in candidates come forward in the coming month. Otherwise, the Board of Selectmen and the remaining members of whatever board has the open seat could appoint someone to the board until the next election.

The Annual Town Election will be held on Saturday, May 7.

All other candidates are officially running for office unopposed: Paul Ognibene for School Committee (three years), Dan Evans for Town Moderator (three years), Carol St. Pierre for Town Clerk (three years), Mary Granville for Assessors (three years), Robin Lawrence for Board of Health (three years), Susan Sardina for Housing Authority (three years), Rodney Hobson, Marylou Lawrence and Carolyn Coffey for Library Trustees (three seats for three years), Clark Brewer for Planning Board (five years), Maria Osborne (five years), Wayne Sawchuk for Sewer Commission (three years), and Peter DeCaprio for Water Commission (three years).

Cable TV studio is almost complete

Verizon customers will be able to watch the Selectmen's meetings on channel 37 and the School Committee meetings on channel 36.

The local cable television stations will soon be broadcast to Verizon customers. The cable studio, which has been built in a room off the Cohasset Middle-High School library, is nearly complete.

Selectman Paul Carlson, who also served on the cable committee, said the town is "on the cusp" of being able to broadcast to both Comcast and Verizon customers.

Verizon customers will be able to watch the Selectmen's meetings on channel 37 and the School Committee meetings on channel 36.

For more than a year, Cohasset residents have been able to get cable service from both Comcast and Verizon, but the local cable broadcast had not been set up for Verizon. Therefore, Verizon customers have not been able to watch selectmen or school committee meetings from the comfort of their own couch.

With the new cable studio more local programming, including the "Our Town" television show, will be produced.

Much of the exhibit draws from the "Badger collection," which was donated to the historical society in the early 1980s. The late Dr. Theodore Badger, whose family has lived at Sandy Cove since the early 1900s, was working on a book about Minot Light in the years before his death. When he passed away his widow donated all the photos and artifacts he has collected to the historical society.

"We were the lucky ones," Wadsworth said. "The Badger collection is probably one of our larger collections and because I love the light, I think one of the most interesting."

Many of the pictures the society has of the building of the second Minot's Light are part of the Badger collection. Badger was a descendent of the E.B. Badger, a local coppersmith who did the dome for the second Minot's Light.

"Minot's Ledge Lighthouse is a favorite subject of people who live along this shore."

— David Wadsworth, Town Historian

This month, the Cohasset Historical Society is celebrating Minot Light by displaying the lighthouse artifacts that have been tucked away in its collection. STAFF PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

"A lot of these pictures and artifacts haven't been seen in a long time," Bates-McArthur said.

The storied history of Minot's Ledge Lighthouse originates at the reason to build a lighthouse. The rocks and ledges caused an inordinate number of wrecks, which caused Cohasset residents to petition for a lighthouse.

"It took a lot of agitation from Cohasset to get the light there," Wadsworth said.

When they did at last get the money to build the lighthouse, a new design was chosen. Built in 1848 to 1849 the first Minot Light was a lantern room atop nine legs driven into Minot Ledge. In a severe April 1851 storm, the lighthouse toppled into the sea taking with it two lightkeepers, Joseph Wilson and Joseph Antoine.

There is only one known painting of the harbor with the red spider-legged lighthouse and it is on display in the exhibit. Several paintings of the first lighthouse itself exist in various forms. The Historical Society also has a small piece of the original wood from the first Minot's Light.

Artifacts like a dustpan and oil filler used by a lightkeepers on a display. Several poems and songs written in homage to the nation's most romantic lighthouse are part of the exhibit.

The lighthouse was built on Government Island and has many other Cohasset ties, but stands in Scituate waters. Over the years, there have been more than a few arguments between Scituate and Cohasset historians over the lighthouse.

"The light was built here, the lightkeepers lived here, and its early history connected to Cohasset and Cohasset people," Wadsworth said. Even during the renovation of the watch room in the early 1980s the bricks were brought to Cohasset (and later constructed into the Minot Light replica on Government Island).

The Cohasset Historical Society Paul Pratt Building is open Monday through Friday from 10a.m. to 4p.m. It is located at 106 South Main St. The exhibit is free, but donations always welcome.

Did you know?

- Minot's Ledge Lighthouse is made of granite from the Quincy quarries. Bunker Hill is also made from Quincy granite.
- The lighthouse was automated in 1947.
- The 1-4-3 flash was randomly given to Minot Light in 1896. It takes 30 seconds for the light to complete the sequence.
- The bell from the first Minot's Light is now located in the belfry of a church in Bryant Pond, Maine.
- The first Minot Light cost $39,000 to build. The second Minot Light cost $300,000 and has been lit since Nov. 15, 1860.
- The light is now solar-powered.

Ripley Road 40-B nearing decision

By Nancy White

The ZBA hearing on 25 Ripley Road continues April 4. PHOTO/MARY FORD

In a letter to Zoning Board chair Woody Chittick, property owner Wilmarc Charles requests the board make a decision on his comprehensive permit application.

"I have submitted several plans to the board since 2008 and continue to submit and resubmit plans for review. At this time, I have all engineering final plans prepared by Project Engineer Neil Murphy," Charles states.

At hand is a proposal to create seven condominium units (11 bedrooms total) out of the current 7,800 square foot, single family home owned by Charles at the corner of Ripley Road and Sohier Street. Three units will have one-bedroom and four will have two-bedrooms.

"At this stage of this comprehensive permit application, I believe that I have submitted enough plans to the board to make a decision and approve the project...I don't believe it is necessary to spend anymore money on more reviews pending this approval," Charles said in his letter to the board.

The proposal has been in the works for more than three years. Property owner and Cohasset resident Charles purchased the home in June 2007 with this project in mind. The ZBA began considering a comprehensive permit for the project in 2009 and spent the first part of the year holding hearings on the project. Ultimately the zoning board denied the project's application after months of hearings, largely due to a lack of evidence.

Charles appealed the denial to the state's Housing Appeals Committee and that body remanded the application back to the zoning board with some very specific requirements for more information.

According to the application, two of the units would be deemed "affordable" by state standards. The inclusion of these two units allows the entire project to be possible under Chapter 40-B, the state's affordable housing law. Under Chapter 40-B towns with less than 10 percent housing stock are vulnerable to housing projects that can be approved under flexible zoning rules.

The Planning Board recently recommended denial of the application largely due to the lack of information.

The neighborhood surrounding the 25 Ripley Road property has consistently opposed the project because of its potential negative impacts on the neighborhood. Many neighbors have described the project as too dense for the property.

The ZBA held a public hearing on the project on Wednesday, March 16 where they received several new pieces of information. The board has requested the applicant provide funds to have the town's engineer review the project, but had not received the necessary funding.

The public hearing of the application has been continued to Monday, April 4. The ZBA could close the public hearing and begin their deliberation on the application that night.

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIPENBRINK

Fairfield

Gabrielle Rodman, a resident of Cohasset, was named to the dean's list at Fairfield University for the 2010 fall semester. Gabrielle is a freshman studying in the College of Arts and Sciences.

To be selected for the dean's list, a student must attain a grade point average of at least 3.5, of a possible 4.0.

Congratulations, Gabrielle!

Tabor

Headmaster Jay Stroud has named the following Cohasset students to the honor roll for Semester 1 of the 2010-2011 academic year at Tabor Academy.

High honors: Doyle Calhoun, Class of 2012, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Calhoun.

Honors: Samantha Bobo, Class of 2011, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bobo.

Commended: Derick Buffum, Class of 2012, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Buffum IV; and Mark McKenna, Class of 2014, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McKenna.

High honors are earned by compiling an overall average of 90 or above. Honors are earned for an overall average of 85 or above. Students earn commendation for achieving an overall average of 80 or above with no grade below 75 and no more than one grade between 75 and 80.

Keep up the good work, everyone!

Rochester

David Patrick Toomey, a sophomore majoring in biochemistry at the University of Rochester has been named to the dean's list for academic achievement for the fall 2010 semester.

David, a resident of Cohasset, is the son of Mark D. and Sheila Toomey and a graduate of Cohasset Middle High School. Great work, David!

Xaverian

Edward Culhane, Class of 2012, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward James Culhane Jr., earned second honors for the second marking period of the 2010-2011 school year at Xaverian Brothers High School.

To qualify for second honors, students must earn all grades of 80 or above.

Awesome news, Edward.

Caleb Woodworth Patton, grandson of Woody and JoAnne Chittick, is already planning a visit to Cohasset this summer! COURTESY PHOTO

New arrival

Caleb Woodworth Patton was born Jan. 8 in Chicago to Chloe (Chittick) and Andrew Patton. Caleb "Cal" is the grandson of Woody and JoAnne Chittick and the very first cousin of Aydin and Eren Tiryaki, sons of Can and Juliana (Chittick) Tiryaki, of South Main Street. The Cohasset families are looking forward to introducing Caleb to Sandy Beach when he visits this summer.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm. Cell phone photos are not usually the best as they have low resolution.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

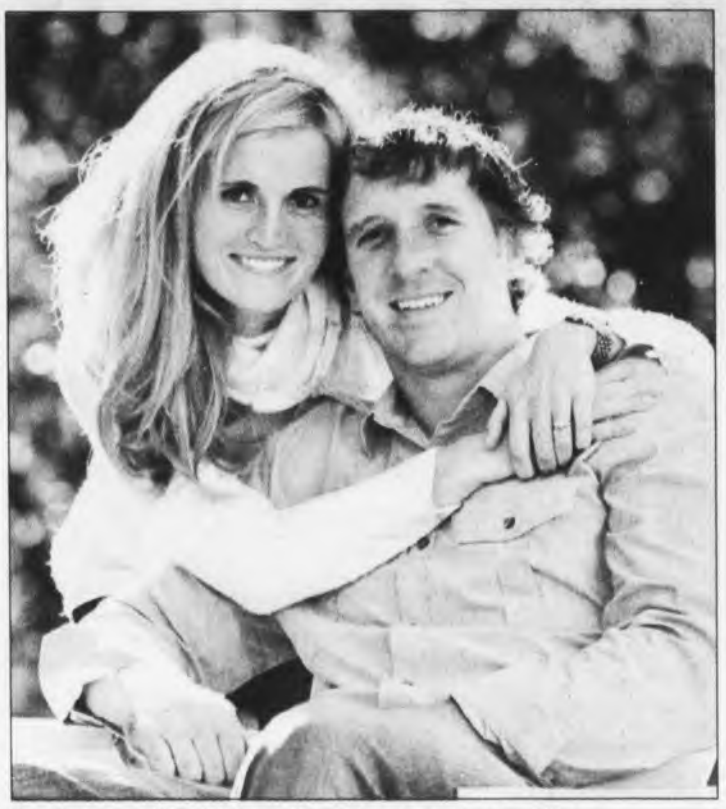
Weddings - Engagements

Murray — Lindemuth



Richard Murray and Deborah Meehan of Cohasset, announce the engagement of their daughter, Zoe Murray to Lee Lindemuth. He is the son of David and Linda Lindemuth of Catawissa, Pa.

The bride-to-be graduated from Tabor Academy in 2004. She received her bachelor's degree in Corporate Finance from Villanova University in 2008. She was a member of Alpha Chi Omega and played varsity tennis. She is currently attending Rosemont College where she will receive her masters in elementary education in May. She owns and runs her own market research firm, Strategic Partners and Associates.

Her fiancé graduated from Bloomsburg University with a bachelor's degree in Exercise Science. Lee played varsity soccer at Lebanon Valley. He is currently an account executive at WB Mason.

Zoe and Lee met through their love of fitness and sports. Lee was Zoe's physical trainer and they continue to run road races and play tennis together.

The couple is planning a June wedding in Cohasset. Zoe's friend, Katie Fleszar will serve as her maid of honor. Lee's cousin, Tyler Servose will serve as his best man. They plan to honeymoon on the Amalfi Coast. The couple will reside in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

Fulk – Grimm

William Grimm and Deborah Shadd of Cohasset announce the marriage of their daughter, Katharine Marie Grimm, to Mackenzie Elliot Fulk, son of Bernard and Marcia Fulk of Kiawah Island, S.C. on Oct. 10, 2010.

The bride graduated from Cohasset High School in 2002 and from Georgetown University with a bachelor or arts degree in English and Psychology in 2006. She is the manager of Merchandising and Planning at Bonobos, Inc., an on-line retailer of men's apparel in New York, N.Y.

The groom graduated from The Landon School in Bethesda, Md. in 2002 and from the McDonough School of Business of Georgetown University with a bachelor of science degree in 2006. He is a vice president at Wolfe Trahan & Co., in New York, NY, a boutique research firm dedicated to sell-side transportation and macro research.

The wedding and reception were held at The Kiawah Island Club at Cassique on Kiawah Island, S.C. The bride's friend Maggie O'Neil served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sarah Pease, Suzanne Lynner, Julie Southerton, Sarah Kalamchi, Kelly Brennan, Manya Timmons, Meg Scannell and Adrienne Fulk, the groom's sister-in-law. The bride's niece Ziva Rosenfeld and Maya Modi served as flower girls.

The groom's brother Matthew Fulk served as best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brothers, Jon and Michael Grimm, Matt Avery, Chris Ourisman, Kevin Sanford, Matt Ward and Chris Roth. Kiran Modi served as ring bearer.

The bride's friend Caitlin Walsh and the bride's aunt, Kristina McCooey were readers.

Following a honeymoon to Peter Island in the British Virgin Islands, the couple is living in New York City.

HOLLY HILL

Hill is an oasis of sorts with five-acres of working farmland surrounded by 140-acres of conservation land with trails. The farm doubles as a hands-on teaching classroom.

Belber and his crew of volunteer farm teachers are readying to host about 30 school groups this spring season. The groups, ranging from pre-kindergarten age to high school students, come to farm to get an up close and hands-on experience with plant and animal life within the confines of an organic farm.

"We want people to come see the farm and be a part of it as it wakes up," Belber said. The students and their teachers tour the greenhouses, view the fields and visit the woods.

"It's really a hands-on program that connects to the school's curriculum," Belber said. If the kids are learning about the stages of a plant's life, or the parts of a plant, the farm field trip reinforces what is in their textbooks.

"We hope when they see the activity up close it will last a little bit longer, too," Belber said.

Many of the field trips to the farm and connected in another way back at the schools. Belber has helped establish school gardens at several high school and elementary schools in the area.

"The farm can serve as a laboratory, a place of learning and growing," Belber said.

Arthur Almeda places a green pea seed into a hole that he poked into the soil while learning about farming at Holly Hill Farm.

Learn how to garden organically

There are ample opportunities for kids and adults to learn the basics of organic gardening at Holly Hill this spring and summer.

One of the unique programs for kids 9 to 12 offered this spring and summer is "Market Gardeners." Holly Hill is a staple vendor at the Cohasset Farmers Market – and this year they'll have a second table with some of the farm's youngest farmers.

Last summer, Belber piloted a program where young farmers grew their own produce and then sold their vegetables at the Thursday afternoon market.

Belber is building on this idea this summer. Beginning with a program on Wednesdays after school this April where the kids will ready the plants for opening day of the market in June. The program will continue with weeklong sessions for kids 9 to 12 throughout the summer (beginning the week of June 20).

"Kids get a portion of the sales and learn to grow good, healthy vegetables," Belber said.

For adults wanting to learn how to grow an organic garden there is a four-part workshop on that very subject.

"If people want to grow their own food and do it in a responsible way, we can help both the novice and experienced gardener," Belber said, adding it doesn't matter if the gardener has a postage stamp or 40 acres to grow on. The workshops will cover seeding, transplanting, cultivating, nurturing and finally, harvesting. Workshops are held on Saturdays from 10 to noon (April 2, April 30, May 14 and June 11).

The spring season will officially kick off at the farm with a special event to showcase the farm's recently built mud oven. Foccaccia bread and pizzas can be made in the outdoor oven. The Break Bread with the Farmers event is coupled with the annual Think Spring Annual Members Meeting on Saturday, April 9 from 1 to 3p.m.

The Friends of Holly Hill Farm organization has over 500 members from all over the South Shore.

The spring season at Holly Hill will culminate in late May with the annual Holly Hill plant sale held over two weekends (May 21 and 22, 28 and 29).

Triathlon to partner with Cohasset non-profit

The Cohasset Triathlon is excited to announce an opportunity for organizations in the community to be the local beneficiary of the annual sporting event. Starting this week, Cohasset-based non-profit organizations can submit via email their intent to partner with the race.

Organizations need to be based in Cohasset and have a 501c3 or non-profit status. Race coordinators will select one organization by April 22. The selected organization will work closely with the triathlon to develop a plan to give back to their organization.

Interested organizations should email Bill Burnett at bill@streamlineevents.com no later than Friday, April 8. E-mails should include the organization's mission statement, the top three initiatives for the year, and the reasons why they would like to partner with the Cohasset Triathlon.

KNOW YOUR LIBRARY PART II

A community hub

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

Both the library's meeting room and Historical Room provide comfortable venues for civil discourse and community affairs...

Today's libraries bear little resemblance to those hushed repositories of books we borrowed from not so long ago. Libraries still have stacks, reference areas, reading rooms, and study areas, but some of the many strengths of Cohasset's library lie in both its cutting edge technology and educational programs.

At the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, patrons can check out their own books at the automated check out station. A read-out will display the amount of overdue fines which can be paid now, later, or placed on a credit card. Although someone is always at the circulation desk to help, the entire process can be mechanized. Well-trained staff is on hand to handle book requests, reference questions, or assist with technology based content.

In addition to the 12 computer stations, nine laptops can be checked out to use anywhere in the library. An MP3 Player and two eReaders are also available for patrons to borrow. Three computers in the Young Adult Room and seven in the Children's Room all enjoy many hours of daily activity.

In the Children's Room, story time, story and craft hours, Mama Steph's music, as well as an occasional visit from Eyes on Owls are all regular programs that youngsters have come to love. Special programs always require early registration to assure a spot.

Every Tuesday night, high school National Honor Society students tutor Middle School students on the second floor of the library. Now into its third year, the library's Homework Center has enjoyed huge success and has become a model for other communities.

For adults, the library offers myriad day and evening opportunities for both recreational and life long learning experiences. Independent film nights and afternoon matinees, writing and computer workshops, author talks, monthly book club discussion group, Great Decision discussion group, and knitting group are some of the ongoing favorites. But patrons should watch for special programs such as this year's Next Chapter series, speakers on topics of particular interest, or author visits.

Both the library's meeting room and Historical Room provide comfortable venues for civil discourse and community affairs — Recreation Department, Town Democratic Committee, Veterans Affairs, Cohasset Sailing Club, and the Town Democratic Caucus all use the library for meetings.

In an effort to encourage meaningful dialogue among both families and diverse community groups, the library launched Cohasset Reads Together 5 years ago. Each year, a book is selected that holds not only special significance for the town but also poses a number of ideas for exploration — moral/ethical dilemmas, conflicting truths, psychological insights, historical inquiry, and human fragility are some of the topics that have provoked discussion in recent selections. Each year, an author talk is scheduled, when possible, along with programs designed to enrich understanding of the book.

Patrons who belong to book clubs or are interested in starting one will want to look over the library's growing collection of fiction and non fiction book kits, i.e., multiple copies of a text with suggested discussion topics. See Kitkeeper to discover what collections are available for a given month and reserve on line or contact Gayle Walsh for assistance.

Next Chapter, a hugely popular series of life long learning programs, was made possible this year by grant funding. Although the program will end in June 2011, the library has a growing collection of books that complement each one of the workshops. See Gayle Walsh for more information.

Cohasset's library is a vibrant community hub where visitors can learn the native tongue or a new foreign language, send an email, visit Face book or Twitter, look for a job, research genealogy, read journals and newspapers in the sun-filled reading room or on-line, conduct research, write, or leisurely browse the stacks.

Life happens at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. Check it out! Visit the library on line at www.cohassetlibrary.org, join it on Face book, follow it on Twitter, or phone 781-383-1348.

Youth leadership awards available

Rotary invites students to apply

Candidates must be in the 10th or 11th grade and Cohasset residents.

Leading is a skill, not a gift; it must be learned and nurtured.

Rotary International District 7950 is hosting a Youth Leadership Conference at Cape Cod Sea Camps, Brewster, Mass. from June 3-5 and the Cohasset Rotary is pleased to be sponsoring two Cohasset students to be "leaders of tomorrow." Sponsorship includes transportation, room, board and program fees.

In 2010 Cohasset High senior Tara Goodwin and B.C. High junior Jay Salerno attended the conference.

"RYLA has been a valuable experience for me. I got the opportunity to meet people from all over Massachusetts and really get to know them well," says Goodwin. "I learned how to network and communicate with my peers through the informing and exiting workshops that were held daily. I would definitely do it again if I had the chance."

Students will learn the fundamentals of leadership; ethics of positive leadership; importance of communication skills in effective leadership; problem-solving and conflict management; Rotary's purpose and service to the community; building self confidence and self-esteem; and the elements of community and global citizenship.

Candidates must be in the 10th or 11th grade and Cohasset residents.

"The Cohasset Rotary Club is pleased to offer scholarships for this incredible weekend of leadership training," says Rich Fitzpatrick, who along with Lisa Hewitt, are the co-chairs of the Youth Leadership Committee. "A child in school may learn many things about many different subjects. However, the tools needed to identify and recognize what is needed to be a great leader is much different than day to day learning. This conference brings out the best in these kids."

The Youth Leadership Awards are just one example of how the Cohasset Rotary Club gives back to the community. For more than 60 years the local club has contributed thousands of hours of community service and hundreds of thousands of dollars to support local and international humanitarian projects. The upcoming Cohasset Road Race by the Sea is an example of how funds are raised for these important projects.

The deadline to apply is March 31, visit www.cohassetrotary.org for a link to the online application. Questions can be emailed to rotarycohasset@gmail.com

Veterans agent visiting hours

Cohasset Director of Veterans Services Joseph McElroy will be at the Paul Pratt Library, Room 2B, as follows:

- Saturday, April 2, from 10 a.m. to noon.
- Monday, April 4, from 6 to 7:45 p.m.
- Wednesday, April 6, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Do drop in or call ahead of time. Visiting hours are not only for veterans, but also for spouses/surviving spouses and those concerned with aging parents, veterans/spouses, as well as for general advice. If the schedule does not meet residents' needs, McElroy will meet at a convenient location and time.

For information, call 781-383-0505 or send e-mail to cohjoe@aol.com.

Register now for road race, fun walk

For 35 years Cohasset has been home to one of the most scenic 6.2-mile road racecourses in New England. Race organizers expect a sell out within the week. So register now at roadracebythesea.com to secure your spot at this year's race, which takes place on Sunday, April 3rd at 1 p.m. There will not be any race day registration.

There is also a fantastic family event and fun walk...the Fran Coffey Memorial Walk by the Sea, which starts and ends at Sandy Beach at 10 a.m. that same day. Walkers are encouraged to register on line at roadracebythesea.com

If running or walking is not your idea of fun, then please volunteer and help make the race the best it can be for all of our participants. If you have a group of friends, family or coworkers who would like to help out at registration, water stops or along the route, please contact roadracebythesea@gmail.com

This local race is possible because of support by our major sponsors Colospace, Graham Waste, Pilgrim Bank, The Red Lion Inn, RW Rosano Corp., and Suburban Contract Cleaning. These companies and many, many others make the Road Race by the Sea a reality.

It used to be that registering on race day was the norm. This year the race is capped at1770 — a number of historical significance...it's the year in which this town was incorporated and the event is well on its way toward reaching that field size limit. So if the Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea 10K is on your list of "must do" events for 2010 please register now! Don't allow your hometown race to start with out you! EDITORIAL

'Tis the election season

Here at the Cohasset Mariner, we love races because there's nothing like a few contests to get people talking about the issues. Therefore we are happy to report there is a four-way race for two seats on the Board of Selectmen. This is the first time in several years that there has been competition for selectmen's seats.

Selectman Fred Koed and Selectman Karen Quigley are both seeking reelection. Also in the running are Mary Snow and Diane Kennedy.

In keeping with our tradition, we will pose a Question of the Week in the Mariner to candidates in races. Stay tuned to next week's Mariner when we will announce the first questions. The Mariner reminds candidates that the Question of the Week is a free service offered by the Mariner and participation is voluntary. We ask that candidates endeavor to stick to the issues in their responses.

Also, the Cohasset Mariner will publish a weekly Candidates' Corner, which will be limited to a few paragraphs (about 150 words), from any candidate (opposed or unopposed) who chooses to submit dates of coffees, fund-raisers, short issue statements and the like. Candidates who want their Candidates' Corner items to run that week, should submit them by noon, Wednesday.

The Mariner also allows all candidates – opposed or unopposed – to submit formal statements announcing their candidacies along with a photograph. If a candidate does not have a photograph, he or she can stop by the Mariner office in downtown Hinghamand we will take one.

There is no word limit on the formal statements, which are written by the candidates and/or their campaign committee. However, due to space limitations, we urge candidates to be as concise as possible. Long submissions may have to be held a week or two if space is a problem. Again, formal statements should be submitted with a photograph, and we welcome announcements from all candidates, opposed or unopposed.

Formal statements should concentrate on the candidate's background, his or her goals, and how he or she would could a difference. They should not include personal attacks on a fellow candidate.

We will not accept letters to the editor from candidates or letters endorsing or attacking particular candidates. The Mariner will publish letters about campaign issues from citizens not seeking election.

If you have questions, or would like to suggest a Question of the Week, call Mary Ford at 781-741-2933 or contact her by e-mail at mford@wickedlocal.com

Candidates may reply by e-mail to mford@wickedlocal.com; by fax at 781-741-2931, or by dropping off their responses at Cohasset Mariner office, 73 South St., Hingham Square. However they choose to deliver their notices, candidates should adhere to the noon, Wednesday deadline.

Candidates with questions about advertising should contact account executive Claudia Oliver at coliver@wickedlocal.com.

For questions about absentee ballots or voter registration, call the Town Clerk's Office at 781-383-4100.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stepping down as RTC chairman

Editor's note, Mr. O'Donnell provided a copy of the following letter to the Cohasset Republican Town Committee for publication.

Cohasset Republican Town Committee members and friends:

I am resigning my cherished Chairmanship of the Cohasset Republican Town Committee today. I will continue to serve as an active member of the Committee. Vice Chairman David Farrag will take over until the next meeting, when pursuant to the bylaws a new Chairman will be elected.

I have reluctantly concluded that I must resign due to the increased time demands of my work and family responsibilities that includes extensive travel time out of state.

I have thoroughly enjoyed my time as Chairman. I must thank my wife Donna for her support during my term. The opportunity to get to know you and so many wonderful people all over the South Shore and beyond is inspiring. I have been serving as Chairman since 2003 after Janet Fogarty moved to Scituate. This Committee is successful because we set aside our differences and work together for the election of Republican candidates.

I did not hastily arrive at this decision and sought advice from trusted advisors. As a result I will place in nomination for Chairman Raymond Kasperowicz. Ray is a long-standing member of the Committee. He is well know and respected in town as a steady hand when he served on the Sewer Commission.

He is well know and respected all over the South Shore due to his recent Campaign for U.S. Congress. With Ray's temperament and experience our Town Committee will continue to be a leading committee in the state. Of course any other member can be nominated chairman and voted upon on March 30, at 7 p.m., at Bancroft Hall. –Kevin O'Donnell, Former Chairman Cohasset Republican Town Committee

CHIEF'S CORNER

Vehicle acquisition spelled out

CHIEF MARK DELUCA

This is the first in a series of articles designed to keep the town's citizens informed on what is happening at the Cohasset Police Department (CPD).

CPD recently acquired two unmarked vehicles at no cost to the town. The first vehicle was generously donated to the town by a neighboring community. Approximately $5,700 was spent to make the vehicle mechanically sound and an additional $2,840 was spent to replace certain emergency equipment, complete body work and repaint the vehicle. Included with the vehicle was a digital police radio and emergency equipment, valued at approximately $8,000. When the police department relocates to the regional dispatch center all police radios will need to be digital and we will need to purchases one less radio.

The newer vehicles do not increase our fleet size...

The second vehicle was purchased for use by the Cohasset Detective Bureau for $11,295, using drug forfeiture money seized by the town's detectives through drug arrests. Massachusetts General Laws require all money seized from drug forfeitures be spent on investigations. This is the third vehicle purchased by the Cohasset Police Department with drug forfeiture money over the years. I applaud the efforts of our officers, and I'm thrilled Cohasset is benefiting from their hard work.

The acquisition of these two vehicles will allow us to retire two older cars, one of which has about 260,000 miles on it. The newer vehicles do not increase our fleet size and will surely lower our overall vehicle maintenance line item because the older cars were in need of constant repair.

Mark DeLuca is Chief of Police in Cohasset.

Transient vendor increase on table

Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr reported he received a call from a Cohasset resident regarding licenses to sell food and beverages at the beach during the summer months. Under town bylaws there are three transient vendor licenses available each year. Vendors from past years have already spoken for all three licenses (Del's Lemonade, Nona's Ice Cream Truck and Fun Times Ice Cream Truck).

Carr asked for the issue to be placed on an upcoming agenda to consider raising the number of transient vendor licenses to four.

Board member needed on CEA

Cohasset Elder Affairs has an opening on its board of directors, director Coral Grande said. The town is looking for someone who is interested in what the department is about and helping achieve its mission. Residents of any age are encouraged to volunteer.

If interested in becoming more involved, contact Grande at 781-383-9112. Selectmen appoint the Cohasset Elder Affairs board of directors.

Tax rate certified

Because of a Special Town Meeting vote last week the town was able to balance its fiscal 2010 budget and prepare a tax rate for the current year. Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard said the Department of Revenue certified the town's tax rate as of Friday, March 18.

The property tax bills for the third and fourth quarter will be prepared and sent out by April 1. Both quarters' tax bills will be due on May 1.

The tax rate for fiscal 2011 will be $11.59 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. The tax rate represents a 37 cent jump over the previous year.

In the past year, the average valuation of residential property (including single family homes, condominiums and multi-family homes), decreased slightly from $781,000 (in fiscal 2010) to $779,186. In the same vein, the average tax bill will increase from $8763 to $9031, or a $268 increase.

The average valued single family home is assessed at $853,994; that is a $4,006 loss from last year's assessed value of $858,000. For the average valued single family home the tax bill will be $9897 up from $9627 – an increase of about $270 or $22.50 a month.

Lombard thanked the 200 citizens who came out to Special Town Meeting and took action on the budget transfer.

On with the Show! at Jordan Hall and in Duxbury

BY ROY HARRIS

The Atlantic Symphony Orchestra's season continues – I am very happy to report – with an exciting Saturday, April 2, "Masterworks Gala" at Jordan Hall in Boston, followed that Sunday by "Masterworks Classical" at Duxbury's Performing Arts Center.

Recent successes in the fundraising among ASO supporters who were asked to "Save Our Symphony" – coupled with economizing by the Board – made it possible to keep our entire season intact. And, in fact, the musical presentation being prepared by Music Director Jin Kim is more exciting than ever.

■ The Gala concert at New England Conservatory's glorious Jordan Hall – one of the great performance centers of the world – features Ravel's "Valses nobles et sentimentales," along with Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 2, and Beethoven's Symphony No. 6, the charming "Pastorale" that many of us first heard in Walt Disney's "Fantasia." Pianist for the Liszt is Hung-Kuan Chen, one of the most decorated pianists of his generation. And Hingham Institution for Savings, through a generous grant, is helping us bring 300 students from Boston Latin School into the audience in this amazing concert space.

■ At Duxbury's Masterworks Classical, the Ravel and Beethoven will appear on the program around Mendelssohn's vibrant Violin Concerto, with the ASO's own Ethan Wood, winner of our orchestra's 2010 Concerto Competition, as soloist. The Mendelssohn, with its poignant opening gypsy strains, may be the most beloved violin concerto in the repertoire – and it's my personal favorite. And ASO fans who have observed Ethan playing with the orchestra will get a chance to see what a wonder he is as a soloist. This fits very nicely with the ASO's theme: that we are a "personal orchestra" for the people of the South Shore.

■ While I'm on the subject of getting to know our musicians better, the intimate April 10 "Classical On Tap" program at Bridgeman's Restaurant, overlooking Nantasket Beach and the Atlantic Ocean beyond, is a special opportunity. Clarinetist/saxophonist Ryan Yure will talk about his instruments, and his love of classical music, while playing in a setting that can only be described as stunning.

Meanwhile, even as the fundraisers were doing their job for the orchestra, magnificent performances continued. Hingham's historic Old Ship Church was the site of the well-attended Feb. 20 Chamber Concert, where Maestro Kim conducted a program that featured Ethan Wood and Ryan Yure, along with ASO favorite Konstantinos Papadakis on piano. Konstantinos's playing of the Liszt Liebestraume, Nocturne No. 3, was sublime.

And the excitement is still buzzing from the Atlantic Symphony Concerto Competition on March 6. A captivated audience at the Thayer Academy Center for the Arts in Braintree watched as six finalists from around the country were showcased on a variety of instruments. Judges honored clarinetist Jin-Sung Moon with the $1,200 first prize for his thrilling performance of Rossini's "Introduction, Theme and Variations." As the winner, he will perform the Rossini with the ASO next season. The $500 second prize went to violist Eleanor Kendra James, and the $300 third prize went to soprano saxophonist Dennis Shafer. Violinist Hyunah Chang won the Audience Choice award. The broader result: Four musicians have now had their young careers enhanced by what the ASO, and you the audience, have done for them.

And get ready for Pops, too! On May 1, back at Braintree's Thayer Center for the Arts, the program features concert suites from Bernstein's West Side Story and John Williams' Star Wars. What a treat that will be.

On a managerial note, the ASO welcomes Duxbury's Jim Hartford as its interim executive director. Hartford, who has been serving this year as a member of the ASO board of directors, replaces Ronald Vigue, who left as a result of an ASO restructuring. Helping Jim out is a team of experienced volunteers including a newly elected ASO trustee, Nina Wellford, who also is a former managing director of the orchestra.

The board of directors, with trustee support, is continuing to examine ways to restructure for the long-term success of this wonderful South Shore organization. Your financial support is still needed to sustain our quality concerts and events.

For more information on upcoming performances, see our website at www.atlanticsymphony.org, or email admin@atlanticsymphony.org. For a personal response, call Jim Hartford or one of our volunteers at the Weymouth office, 781-331-3600.

Roy Harris, a Hingham-based journalist, is co-president of the Board of Directors of the Atlantic Symphony Orchestra, serving with Hingham's Vicki Quinn.

Finding a spot for your news

GREGORY MATHIS

With limited staff and resources, we have always needed your help in covering the community the way it should be covered.

Your news has always been important to us. We don't have a staff of hundreds covering your community, and in most cases we have less than a handful of people dedicated to producing the news stories, features, sports stories and photos you see in your newspaper and on the Wicked Local website that covers your community.

With limited staff and resources, we have always needed your help in covering the community the way it should be covered. We rely greatly on school principals and PTO contacts to send us information about their students, staff and programs, as well as photos from school-related events. Libraries, councils on aging and recreation departments get word out about their programs by using the pages of our newspaper to reach residents. And there are many other groups and organizations in the community who benefit from having their information printed in the newspaper and posted online. We not only want that kind of information, we need it to be able to provide the most comprehensive local coverage possible and meet the expectations you have when your newspaper arrives or you visit our website.

So the idea behind the Your News page that launched in the newspaper last week is really nothing new. Throwing the Your News banner across the top of the page just gives a dedicated page each week to present and package the photos and news items you send us. Mainly, it's a renewed focus and commitment on our part to make sure we're highlighting the people who live, work and play in the community.

Your News will continue to evolve, mainly because it depends on how you chose to use it and what type of community information we receive.

As far as guidelines for what might make good Your News content, here are some suggestions to help get this new initiative started. (Please note: Your News will not replace the popular Cohasset Around Town column).

- Reader-submitted photos from our callouts, giving your photos a prominent spot in the pages of the newspaper.
- Wedding, engagement and anniversary notices and photos.
- Birth announcements with cute pictures of newborns.
- Student accomplishments from all levels, from preschool through college.
- Local people being promoted at their place of business.
- Updates on local men and women serving in the Armed Forces.
- Any other achievements, honors, or awards that don't fit into the above mentioned categories.

Again, the success of Your News will depend on you. Your continued support will lead to success. If you have something to send, locate the contact information in the top right corner of the Your News page and send your story or photo to your local editor.

HEALTH NOTES

Chicken owners should be neighborly

By Steve Bobo
Special to the Mariner

The Board feels that an informed chicken owner is a better neighbor to abutters.

Barn Animals — In the effort to confirm the change of Cohasset from a strictly rural community to a suburban town we have been looking into matters relating to our pets and assorted other animals. Little white puppies (chitzu's) and chi Wawa's; (tiny dogs with intelligent brown eyes) may signal our dog population has changed. Other animals have doubtless followed suit. Furthermore, a quick check of our licensing history prompts us to ask: what, after all, about the others?

We have received an increase in complaints by individuals about neighbors who keep chickens (the live ones). Accordingly, we seem to have a growth in our chicken population; thereby questioning the utility of local regulations governing the keeping of chickens covered by a regulation on the books, unchanged since 1987. Hence this discussion of our regulations related to retaining them, along with the pets and other animals to which they apply. This is not the first whiff of controversy about our wild or semi undomesticated creatures for which the Town has regulations. After all, we have had problems with rats; herewith with regulations attached. Seagulls may have caused some complaints but are tolerated.

As to chickens, the Board feels that an informed chicken owner is a better neighbor to abutters – who mainly complain about the lack of consideration by their neighbors when it's perhaps just lack of proper information.

And look at what we say about dogs including the tiniest fuzzy white ones; General: 1.) Any person who owns, possess, cares for or controls a dog shall take every precaution to not permit his or her dog to defecate on any sidewalk, street, parking lot or any other public place (a regulation in place since January 2000). Further, the above can pertain to private property not owned by the above person. " It is the responsibility of any person cited above to promptly remove any fecal matter deposited on a public place or on private property not owned by that person and properly disposed of." There's more, but this part of the regulation covers the essence.

Other animals are dealt with by a Health Board regulation issued in 1989 covering horses, cows, goats, swine and poultry. Small numbers (in quantities fewer than 12) of these animals may not require permits — except roosters that require a special permit. (It seems they are dominant individuals or whatever.) The permits expire annually and must generally be accompanied by letters of consent from all abutters. Other provisions apply. In addition, the Regulation requires licenses, in many cases, for the dwellings that the livestock inhabit.

The list of livestock is extensive; meant to cover everything including riding stables, etc. and is 5-1/2 pages long. The regulation does not prohibit responsible management of outside pets and other animals, but, by the same token, the abutters have rights associated with their expectations consistent with a neat neighborhood and attractive neighboring grounds and furnishings. Frequently Board of Health regulations require inoculations of appropriate animals. We can also suggest some conditions of maintenance and handling which may reduce controversy with neighbors.

Expectations have changed about the way we manage our neighborhoods, but it should be remembered that not everyone is accustomed to municipal or suburban settings. And sometimes the settings in Cohasset have unexpected characteristics and neighbors — not wrong— but different.

For a listing of regulations applying to pets and animals in Cohasset, please contact the Board of Health. Copies of the regulations pertaining to animals are available for purchase.

But most of all, the Board advises tolerance of one's neighbors. Strange or not, we all should get along.

For more information call Tara Tradd at 781-383-4116.

Steve Bobo is a long-time member of the Cohasset Board of Health.

'Blood drive

The American Red Cross is holding a special blood drive in memory of Christopher Henderson on Saturday, March 26, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at St. John's Church, 172 Main St., Hingham.

In February, Christopher lost his battle with head and neck cancer after a brave two-year fight. Christopher's wife, Heather Henderson, says Christopher believed in blood donation. "Christopher wanted people to do things to help others. We all have something so important to give, and donating a unit of blood can do so much for someone else."

To make an appointment to donate blood at this drive, or for more information about donating blood, call 1-800-RED CROSS or visit redcrossblood.org.

Sustainable Expo

Sustainable living related companies are invited to sign up to exhibit at the eighth Annual Sustainable Living Expo, an Earth Day event, at the DCR Mary Jeanette Murray Bathhouse, inside and outside, 204 Nantasket Ave., Hull, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Saturday, April 16. Admission is free.

Relay for Life welcomes all Teams are forming for ACS event

By Nancy White

The theme of last year's Relay For Life was "Imagine a world with more birthdays." Here, John Dunn, Beth Tarpey, Martha Ogrodnik, Betsey Pinkus and Sarah Downing pretend to blow out the candles on a giant cake. Each candle represented the name of a survivor. PHOTO/LAURA SINCLAIR

Everyone is welcome at the Relay For Life.

Organizers of the 15th Annual American Cancer Society Relay for Life in Cohasset want to get more families, more teens, more seniors, more cancer survivors – and everyone in between – involved with the Relay.

The overnight event is a celebration of life and hope, a time to remember those who have passed and honor those who have survived.

Over the past 15 years the Relay has become the major cancer fundraising event for the communities of Cohasset, Hingham, Hull and Scituate. In its 14 years of existence the Relay has raised about $1.5 million for the American Cancer Society and its ongoing research, support programs, education and advocacy.

"Our small communities are making a difference," said Harry St. Onge, who chaired the Relay for the past five years.

The relay will begin at 3p.m. on Friday, June 24th and conclude on Saturday, June 25th at 10a.m. While the overnight event is still three months off organizers are inviting those interested in participating to an informational meeting on Wednesday, March 30 at the Second Congregational Church. Those interested in forming a team, joining an existing team, or simply find out more about the event are welcome.

Cohasset resident Courtney Finn, who is co-chairing this year's Relay, started a team with another mom as a way to get her kids involved in giving back. Last year, her team, Re-lei for Life, had 25 mothers and more than 60 kids as participants.

"The Relay is the perfect event for kids. They feel like they are helping do something good," Finn said. "Starting a team is easy — you can have 15 people or 50, it doesn't matter the size."

The overnight event is a celebration of life and hope, a time to remember those who have passed and honor those who have survived.

The Relay is a team-based event. Each team is charged with having at least one member of its team walking the track at any given time. Participants are asked to raise at least $100. But mostly the Relay is about bringing people together and raising awareness.

"Cancer is an indiscriminate disease. At the Relay so many of us understand what it is like to lose someone to cancer. The Relay is a time to be together as a community," said Robin Teague of Hingham. She lost her father to cancer and is leading a team with her mother-in-law Bee Teague, who is a cancer survivor.

For the second year running the Relay will be held on the Cohasset High School back practice field. This year the activities of the Relay will revolve around the theme, "Carnival of Hope." One big tent will be set up on the field, reminiscent of a circus tent. Cotton candy, popcorn and carnival games will be part of the festivities.

There will be music by the Rusty Skippers and local restaurants will donate food for "The Taste of the Relay."

The parts of the Relay many look forward to will, of course, be part of this year's event. Friday night's schedule includes the survivors' lap at 6p.m. and Luminaria Walk at 9p.m.

It means hundreds of participants will still come out to walk into the wee hours of the night and there will still be a sense of community and "positivity" — and thousands of dollars will be raised to support the American Cancer Society. Everyone comes to the Relay with a reason for being there.

"I do the Relay for my grandparents who has cancer and I do it for anyone who has had the disease. I do it to help others and increase awareness — and to find a cure," said Jennifer Lord, co-chair of this year's event. She has been a part of the Relay for six years.

"Once people come to the event they want to get involved. It's the type of event once you see it you want to come back and participate in a bigger way," Finn said.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

The Statehouse and other state and local government buildings in Suffolk County's Boston, Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop were open on March 17 for the first time in many years. Evacuation Day, a controversial legal holiday celebrated since 1941 only in those four communities, commemorates a victory for the American patriots in 1776 when General George Washington and his troops drove the British out of Boston. March 17 is of course also St. Patrick's Day, and critics charge that Evacuation Day is a hack holiday invented to allow state workers to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. In prior years, all those offices were closed on that day.

The March 17 opening of government offices in Boston, Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop came as a result of a new state law approved by the Legislature in 2010. It retained the holiday's official status and the day off for most, but also required that all offices "be open for business and appropriately staffed." The law does not define "appropriately staffed." Alex Zaroulis, a spokesperson for the Gov. Deval Patrick administration, said that "each agency will determine appropriate staffing levels to maintain proper operations." The new law is a compromise between supporters of the status quo, who want all Suffolk County government offices to be closed on that day, and opponents, who want to abolish the holiday altogether.

Thousands of local and state workers in these communities took the day off this year. Thousands of other union state employees in all other cities and towns across the state are also given the day off per their collective bargaining agreements or may use it as a "floating holiday" — a procedure under which they can take off a day of their choice during the year. The same controversy surrounds Bunker Hill Day (June 17), another holiday celebrated only in Suffolk County. It commemorates the Battle of Bunker Hill and faces similar criticism.

What about the House's and Senate's employees? Seth Gitell, spokesman for House Speaker Robert DeLeo, told Beacon Hill Roll Call, "The House will be appropriately staffed as per current law." Senate President Therese Murray's spokesman told us, "It's a regular work day. All members are informed by phone that the Senate is open for business. The Senate President's office is fully staffed."

Senate Republican Leader Bruce Tarr said, "For Senate Republicans, today was a routine work day spanning a range of activities, from the Senate session to office meetings in the Statehouse to constituent meetings in the communities that we represent."

House Republicans held a special meeting at the Statehouse on the holiday to discuss healthcare and its impact on residents of the Commonwealth.

The House met in a brief nine-minute session while the Senate gathered for six minutes.

A well-placed Statehouse source who requested anonymity told us that the Statehouse still had the empty feel of a holiday and offices were, at best, staffed at 50 percent. Another Statehouse observer told us the corridors were very quiet and the 50 percent estimate was far too generous.

Opponents of the two holidays argue they cost taxpayers millions of dollars in pay for thousands of public employees who do not work on those two days. Critics are even more vehement about the Evacuation Day holiday and contend it is just an excuse to provide a day off to celebrate St. Patrick's Day in Boston. They note that most residents have no idea of the significance of Evacuation Day and that nothing is really done to celebrate this "important" event. Many point out that the bars are loaded with people celebrating St. Patrick's Day. Some say that many years ago Boston's Mayor James Michael Curley assigned an aide to find an "important" historical American event that occurred on St. Patrick's Day and the aide came up with Evacuation Day. They note that then-Gov. Leverett

Saltonstall actually signed the legislation in green ink.

Supporters of the two holidays argue that both dates commemorate important events in the city of Boston and say it is unfair and cynical to attempt to eliminate them. They say critics should spend time educating people about the historical significance of these two dates instead of complaining about them. They dispute the "Mayor Curley Theory" and call it an unproven legend. They note that these two holidays are not unreasonable in light of the salary cuts many public employees have been forced to accept over the past few years.

Legislation to eliminate these two holidays is likely to surface again this year.

Here's how local legislators voted in 2009 and 2010 on proposals to abolish the holidays:

78-78 TIE VOTE IN HOUSE SAVES TWO SUFFOLK COUNTY-ONLY HOLIDAYS

House on a 78-78 tie vote, rejected in 2009 an amendment that would have abolished the Suffolk County legal holidays of Evacuation Day and Bunker Hill Day.

Under House rules, a majority of votes in the affirmative is required for an amendment to pass. A tie goes to the negative side. If any single representative had voted to abolish the holidays instead of for retaining them or if any legislator who did not vote had instead voted to abolish the holidays, the abolition would have been successful.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment eliminating the two holidays. A "No" vote is against eliminating them and favors the two holidays.)

SENATE FIRST VOTES TO SAVE AND THEN TO ABOLISH THE TWO HOLIDAYS

Senate 17-22, rejected in 2009 and then 25-12, approved in 2010 an amendment that would end the Suffolk County legal holidays of Evacuation Day and Bunker Hill Day.

Six legislators who voted "No" in 2009 switched their votes to "Yes" in 2010. The list of switchers includes Sens. Harriette Chandler (D-Worcester), Cynthia Creem (D-Newton), Susan Fargo (D-Lincoln), Patricia Jehlen (D-Somerville), Richard Moore (D-Uxbridge) and Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy).

(Both roll calls are listed. The first is from 2009, and the second is from 2010. A "Yes" vote is for the amendment eliminating the two holidays. A "No" vote is against eliminating them and favors the two holidays.)

MELISSA'S BILL (H 2204) - The Criminal Justice Committee held a hearing on legislation that would impose life prison sentences, without the possibility of parole, on criminals found guilty of a felony three times. Emotional testimony was offered by Les Gosule, whose daughter Melissa was murdered 12 years ago. He has been fighting for this law since that time and said, "I implore you. I beg you to let us have a bill come out of this committee. Let the 200 people in this building vote on this bill."

NOTIFY VICTIMS (H 399) - The Judiciary Committee's hearing also included consideration of a proposal to require that victims be notified when their offender is transferred to another facility, discharged or escapes. The measure also requires the victim to be informed when the offender is scheduled for a parole hearing.

REDISTRICTING - The committee charged with redrawing the state's legislative and congressional districts unveiled a website that it says will help keep the public informed about the progress of the committee. The website can be accessed at www.malegislature.gov/redistricting.

$20 MILLION FOR DAM SAFETY (S 367) - The Committee on Environment, Natural Resources and Agriculture approved a bill creating a $20 million loan fund for repairs of some of the 2,894 dams across the state.

BUDGET

what the town has said it can afford. The town recommended a school budget of $15.402 million.

Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard said the $330,000 difference would trigger an override question for the school budget. Yet, the School Committee, as a whole, was not committed to seeking an override.

Lombard made it clear there were no pockets of money on the town side that could be transferred to the school budget.

"The revenues I have developed (and estimated) are conservative, but I'm not prepared to increase them," Lombard said. "At this juncture the two choices are to make reductions or go for an override. (The town) does not have revenue to give (the schools.)"

While no one wants to stand up and call for an override, Lombard said the town was in a situation where it must be discussed.

Advisory Committee chair Sam Wakeman agreed.

"We can't continue going the way we are going; we don't have that ability without an override," Wakeman said.

Members of the School Committee identified some ways the school could get closer to its level services budget number without an override.

First, the schools are expecting to have funds remaining in some line items at the close of fiscal 2011. Those funds can be used to "pre-pay" special education tuition or purchase supplies.

School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz said there could be as much as $200,000 to use for this purpose. Pre-payment for special education tuition and supplies is something that the schools have done annually for several years.

"If we count on these pre-payments every year it's a bad practice," Slanetz said. The under-funding of the budget and using pre-payment as an offset in the fiscal 2012 budget is a one-time "stop-gap" and could make next year's budget even more difficult to balance, he said.

At last week's School Committee meeting, the board discussed other possible reductions to the current certified budget. The schools could have some retirements and the replacements for those positions would likely come in at a lower salary yielding some level of savings for the budget.

There were also some line items that could be adjusted, including the $135,000 unemployment line item. Based on the current year's actual cost it could be reduced to $80,000, school business manager Dave DeGennaro said.

School Committee member Paul Schubert suggested the unemployment cost, which now rests on the school operational budget, be moved back to the town side of the budget. The town transferred the cost of unemployment over to the school budget in fiscal 2010.

The discussion also became a sort of brainstorming session for ways the schools and town departments could work better together.

"We need to be thinking as one big family and work together on this," said School Committee chair Helene Lieb.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley concurred, "I don't think anyone in this town is against providing a quality education to our children, but we do have other services we have to provide."

Quigley pushed for a proposal from the School Committee to seek an override question on the May 7 town election ballot.

"There are so many wonderful things we can do together in the future, but we have to deal with the problem at hand: the fiscal 2012 budget," Quigley said, adding the town budget was living within 2.5 percent and would not consider the potential of a joint school/town override.

Selectman Paul Carlson said the approval of an override by the townspeople this year was "slim to none."

"I don't think people in town are getting a 2.5 percent increase in their budget...on the town side we have had to defer items, (like) road repairs, facility maintenance, et cetera," Carlson said.

The School Committee did not proceed to ask for an override ballot question on Tuesday night.

"We have some homework to do...we're going to go back to the table," Lieb said.

If an override were to be considered, a majority of the Selectmen would have to vote to place it on the town election ballot. The Board of Selectmen is the only body that can place an override question on the ballot.

A Proposition 2-1/2 override is a two-step process. First, it has to be approved by a simple majority at Town Meeting. Then, it has to garner a simple majority at the ballot.

The last chance for the Selectmen to entertain an override question is Tuesday, March 29. The School Committee would need to come forward with the override request by that date. As of press time, the School Committee had not scheduled a meeting to discuss the budget before that deadline.

Cohasset has not considered an override since 2006. An override for the schools was sought that year; it failed at the ballot box. The last time voters approved a Proposition 2-1/2 override was 2004.

TEN QUESTIONS TO ASK OVERNIGHT/SLEEPAWAY CAMP DIRECTORS Part 1

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

With the camp open house season starting to heat up, here is a list of questions families can ask the camp directors or representatives they will have a chance to speak with:

1. What is the camp community like? It's important to understand the most highly regarded values that the camp holds and to learn about the people who lead the adventures and experiences the camp provides.

2. What happens on a typical day? There may not be a "typical" day at camp, but there are certain things that may happen every day – meals, bunk inspections, lessons, group gatherings, etc…Having a good general sense of what the camper will be doing on a daily basis will help you know what to expect and help you to prepare your child.

3. How is communication handled between camp and home? Talk to the camp director and staff about the best way to keep in touch about the camper's adjustment to camp. Some camps may have a system in place for parents and guardians to follow; most camps encourage letter writing by both campers and family members.

4. How does the camp help children adjust to camp life at the beginning of the session? Some camps may ask that you send a letter to the camp before the child arrives so that (s) he will have something from home to read upon arrival. Others may recommend refraining from contacting the child by telephone (for a certain period of time or at all) to allow them to settle in. Try to plan ahead so all family members understand how the

5. How does the camp recruit, screen and train its staff? Ask how the camp screens and trains its staff—and where it recruits them. Certain state regulations address background checks. ACA Standards address many aspects of staff hiring and training.

Brophy's Scorpions Soccer Club shines at Jefferson Cup

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

If people like University of Notre Dame Women's Soccer Head Coach Randy Waldrum talks about looking forward to watching Elite Clubs National League (ECNL) club soccer tournaments, you know he's going there for a reason and that there's some talent to be found. Waldrum knows all about talent, having built a Notre Dame women's team that won the 2010 NCAA College Cup.

College coaches descend upon tournaments featuring ECNL teams, and there was plenty of ECNL talent on display at this past weekend's Jefferson Cup in Virginia. A handful of that talent came straight from Massachusetts and featured several local players.

Cohasset does indeed have a crew program, one that features 3 of the fastest sliding seat coxed fours on the open water racing circuit of New England.

Each year, well-trained and superbly conditioned Cohasset High School students place in the top five- if not outright win- in some of the area's most prestigious open water rowing events.

Cohasset's crew team is made up of males and females, grades 9-12.

Athletes looking for off season training options will be surprised to learn just how fit one must be to pull on an oar at full strength over the course of miles of open water.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS

Training program offered

The Scituate Recreation Department, in conjunction with Scituate Special Olympics, is offering a Track and Field training program for youth ages 7 through Grade 8 who have been identified with some form of intellectual disability or other special need. The program will take place on Sunday mornings, from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., at the Scituate High School track, beginning April 3 for 12 weeks. This instructional program will include training in 25M assisted walk, 50 and 100 meter runs, wheelchair, Turbo Javelin, long jump, softball and tennis ball throws, and will be coached by track coaches certified by Special Olympics.

We also welcome peers who will act as roles models and may compete as Unified Partners in Special Olympics. The program is designed to prepare runners for Special Olympics competitions later in the spring – although competition is not required. All you need is a water bottle, sneakers, and a desire to run and have fun doing it.

Students from area towns are welcome to participate in this program which is free of charge.

Please contact the Scituate Recreation Department at 781 545-8738, Betsy Callanan at 781 545-5023, or Taffy Nothnagle @ 781 383-0895 to register or to ask questions.

SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

Spring is here

With the winter on its way out, thoughts can now turn to spring, and the spring sports that were so successful last season in Cohasset.

It won't be long before the baseball and boys lacrosse teams gear up to defend their State Championships. In fact, it's less than two weeks. The baseball team is scheduled to scrimmage Hingham today and opens their season April 2 at 11 a.m at Scituate.

The boys lacrosse team is scheduled to host a jamboree tomorrow and gets the season going on March 31 against Martha's Vineyard at 4 p.m.

The boys tennis team will host Martha's Vineyard the same time for their opener.

The softball team starts their season April 4 by hosting Hingham, while the girls tennis team hosts Notre Dame Academy at the same time.

The girls lacrosse team also starts April 4, hosting Duxbury at 4 p.m.

Cohasset players swarm the mound after winning the Div. 4 State Championship last June. Baseball is back and will open the season with a scrimmage today against Hingham if the weather holds. STAFF FILE PHOTO/MARK GARDNER

SOUTH COASTAL HOCKEY ROUNDUP

Sharks hold off Stingers

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The first-place Sharks in the Legends Div. of the Men's South Coastal Hockey League needed to do a little bit extra in holding off the Stingers.

Mike Valenti of Marshfield scored the only goal in the shoot out as the Sharks defeated the Stingers, 3-2. Art Riccio and Richard Petrosino of Marshfield scored for the Sharks in regulation.

Steve Lemish of Pembroke had a goal and an assist and Norwell's Joe Murray scored for the Stingers.

Hanover's Tom Shaughnessy scored two goals and assisted on another to lead the Saints to a 5-2 win over the Whalers in a Legends Div matchup.

Todd Roach and James McNeil added a goal with an assist each and Tim O'Loughlin of Marshfield scored a goal for the Saints.

Bill McMahon and Skip Tufts both of Scituate scored a goal each for the Whalers.

Paul Brinkman scored a goal and assisted on another one, Pembroke's Jim Holmes, Wayne Murohy of Rockland,. Dave Currier and Norwell's Patrick Reynolds added a goal each in the Toros' 5-2 win over the Crusaders in a Legends Div. game.

Mike Hankes and Mike Simon scored a goal each and Scott Mondeau had two assists for the Crusaders.

Abington's Dan Sloan and John Dogenik scored for the Bruins in their 2-1 Classics Div. win over the Red Wings. Joe Derrane scored the Red Wings goal.

Mike Ryan, Dave Denton of Marshfield and Dave Salvaggio scored goals in the span of three minutes as the Maple Leafs rallied for a 3-2 win over the Black Hawks in Classics Div. game.

Tim Fallon and Jim Polito of Abington scored the goals for the Black Hawks.

Rockland's Jim O'Toole and Pembroke's Daron Jacobs both scored a goal and assisted on another as the Rangers in a Classics Div. game held off the Canadiens, 3-2. Mike Crisp added a goal for the Rangers.

Brian Geddes and Mike Evans scored the goals for the Canadiens.

COLLEGE CORNER

Cohasset's Driscoll scores six goals at UMass Boston

Junior midfielder Pat Driscoll (Hingham, MA) and freshman attackman Dean Driscoll (Cohasset, MA) each scored six goals and combined for 18 total points to lead the University of Massachusetts Boston men's lacrosse team over Wheelock College, 23-3, Wednesday afternoon on the UMass Boston campus. Due to unplayable field conditions, the game was played as a home game for Wheelock and was the program's first ever home contest. The Beacons improve to 1-2 with the victory while the Wildcats drop to 0-2 in the early goings of the 2011 season.

The Beacons return to action on Saturday, March 26 when they host Clark University in a 1:00 p.m. non-conference matchup while Wheelock returns to action the same day when they travel to Becker College for a 1 p.m. tilt.

SCORPIONS

Group B, featured Cohasset High School's Michaela Brophy. Coached by Keith Caldwell, the U17 girls are ranked 40th in the nation, 15th in Region 1, and second in Massachusetts. They started off the tournament with a 4-0 win over Albertson SC Fury 93 of New York, a team ranked 10th in the nation, fourth in Region 1, and first in New York. Scorpions lost, 2-1, to McLean Strikers (seventh in the nation, first in Region 1, first in Virginia) and then lost, Crusa FC Bucks Xtreme of Pennsylvania.

The U17 Scorpions have a busy spring and summer ahead. They'll play in the Region 1 Premier League, followed by a PDA College Showcase in New Brunswick, N.J. in May. Then in July, the team will compete in the ECNL National Championship.

Fred Marks' U-16 girls, the 2010 Jefferson Cup champions, finished third in their group. They beat Chantilly YA Firecats (Virginia), 3-2. The Firecats are ranked sixth nationally. Scorpions then suffered a 3-1 loss to SDFC 09 Lynx (New Jersey) and a 2-1 loss to Bethesda SC, ranked third in the nation, second in Region 1, and first in Maryland.

The U-16 girls are scheduled to play in the ECNL League Regional Games on March 26 and 27 in Braintree, followed by the MA State Cup the weekend of May 21/22 in Lancaster, Mass. From May 28-30, the team heads to New Jersey for the ECNL League PDA College Showcase. The MA State Cup semifinals and finals take place from June 4-5 in Lancaster, but the team must qualify in order to compete. The girls also must qualify for the Region 1 Championship in Pennsylvania, a tournament that runs from June 30-July 5. Then, from July 14-16, the girls have a chance to play in the ECNL League National Championship in Aurora, Colo.

In addition to coaching the U-16s, Marks also coaches the U-13 Scorpions Elite girls' team, which finished third in Top Flight at the Jefferson Cup. The team, which also won the Scorpion Bowl 2011 earlier this month, beat Crusa/FC Bucks Freedom (Pennsylvania), 1-0, in the third-place match. The Freedom were ranked 12th in the nation, seventh in Region 1, and first in Pennsylvania East, while Scorpions is 18th in the nation, 10th in Region 1, and first in Massachusetts.

After a 2-1 loss to the second-best team in the nation, FC Sting Dynamite of New Jersey, to open the Jefferson Cup, the Scorpions beat Penn Legacy FC 97 Black (ranked 11th in Region 1) by a 6-1 score. Scorpions then played to a 1-1 draw against Montgomery SC MSC Coyotes Green, the top team in Maryland.

At the Scorpion Bowl in Lancaster, Mass., back on the weekend of March 5-6, the U-13s went 1-0-2 in group play before beating Connecticut FC CFC Wolves, 1-0, in the finals. The Wolves were ranked 13th in the nation, eighth in Region 1, and first in Connecticut. In the group stage, Scorpions began with a 1-1 tie against New England Aztec Soccer Red Devils, and then followed it up with a 1-1 draw with Mass Premier Soccer MPS Renegades. The Scorpions finished group play with a 3-0 win over Southeast U13 Girls.

Next up for the Scorpion U-13s is the Needham Invitational Memorial Day Tournament, which takes place from May 27 to May 30.

Summer school

It's not what you think

COLLEGE BOARD

Summer school may make you think of remedial classes for students who slacked off during the school year. But that's not the whole story.

Summer school can also mean attending classes at a college, in programs students actually compete to get into.

A variety of programs and benefits

There are summer schools for just about every type of student, whether you'd like to work on academic subjects or developing skills such as playing an instrument or sport.

Pursue your interests

Use a summer program to develop a talent or interest in the arts, humanities or sciences. Or choose a college that allows you to participate in explorations in engineering, math, science and technology, ecology, outdoor adventure, and a variety of social sciences and humanities areas.

Gain experience outside of the classroom

Summer school programs often involve a lot more hands-on learning that you'll find in your regular classes. Many residential summer school programs include sports, travel and social activities in their curricula. Personal development and leadership skills are also major themes.

Improve your high school transcript

Attending a challenging summer school program can increase your chances of getting into a competitive college. In fact, some summer school programs are as competitive as colleges, requiring an extensive application complete with SAT or PSAT/NMSQT scores, teacher recommendations and a personal essay.

Try your hand at real college work

If you're craving more in-depth study of a subject you're interested in, and high school classes leave you wanting more, college-level classes may be the answer. Or, if you simply want to explore a particular school, or experience college classes, it's a great preview.

Most colleges welcome anyone who wants to learn into their normal college-level classes. Of course, they give priority to students who are enrolled full time, but more often than not room is available. Call the colleges on your wish list. Ask if they have a summer semester and get them to send you a catalog.

If you are motivated and able, it's also possible to enroll in college classes during your normal school year. But make sure the extra workload won't interfere with your high school work.

Summer school tips

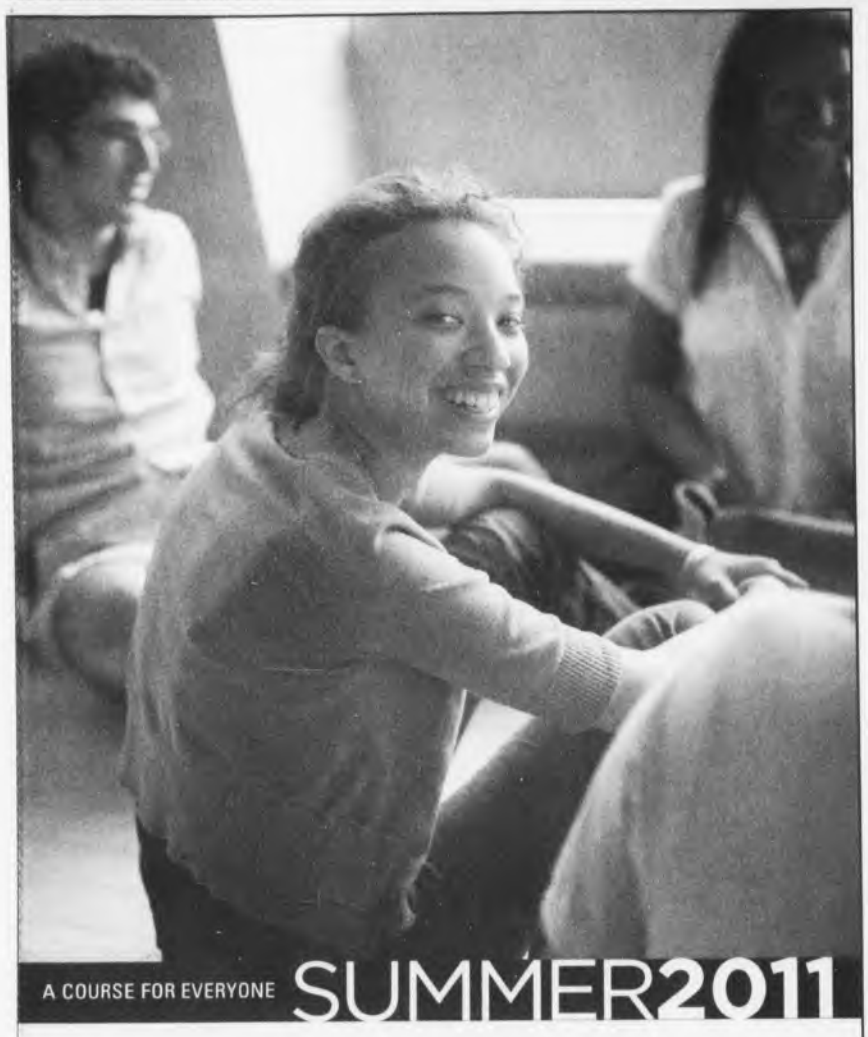
When looking for a summer school program, here are some important factors to consider:

➤ How much of the summer do you want to commit to school? Programs range from five days to eight weeks.

➤ What do you want to get out of summer school? Do you want to turbocharge your academics? Act in a play? Teach young children? Learn how a political campaign is conducted? Polish up a second language? Work with engineers in the computer industry?

➤ Where do you want to stay? Do you want a residential program where you live in dorms with other students or would you prefer to live at home, attending school only during the day?

➤ Can you get high school (or college) credit for summer school courses? Receiving credit depends both on the school where you take the course and on your home school.



➤ How much can you spend on summer school? If the answer is nothing, are there free programs available in your state or school district?

Bottom line

When evaluating whether summer school is right for you, the real question is what you aspire to learn and what type of summer program provides the best experience for it.

For more advice and for information about specific programs, talk to your high school counselor.

Your Summer at Roger Williams University

Summer camp – it's not just toasting marshmallows anymore.

Roger Williams University offers summer academies in both Architecture and Visual Arts. You will learn from professors who are experts in their discipline - in classrooms, studios, seminars and in the field. You'll live in university residence halls, take field trips to some of the many historic locations in New England and have free time to enjoy RWU's beautiful waterfront campus. All students will receive advisement on the college application process, including portfolio advice; Visual Arts students are eligible for college credit.

GIMME SHELTER

Barlow was originally a house cat but was living outside and being fed by the local mailman for more than a year. COURTESY PHOTO

Barlow is a good-natured guy

Hull Seaside Animal Rescue has a new Maine Coon cat named Barlow. He was originally a house cat but was living outside and being fed by the local mailman for more than a year. Barlow is so good-natured that he is now simply glad to be inside and warm. Come meet him. He's gentle and loving and deserving of a happy home.

You can check out all of felines at our web-site www.hsar.org. HSAR has open hours on Saturday from 2-3 p.m. and Monday from 6:30-7:30 p.m.. If these hours aren't convenient, please call the shelter at 781 925 3121 and leave a message and Judy, the Adoption Coordinator will get back to you.

Barlow is so good-natured that he is now simply glad to be inside and warm. Come meet him. He's gentle and loving and deserving of a happy home.

The shelter is located at 50 L St., Hull; the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, PO box 787, Hull, MA. 02045. Email is hsar@verizon.net.

The shelter offers a monthly low cost spay-neuter program. If interested, check out our website or call Mary at 781 925 3121.

HSAR says thanks to its dedicated volunteers, to those who give homes to their felines and the people who generously donate to their cause.

CEF event to host Hawaiian luau

The Cohasset Education Foundation would like families to know that the spring event will take place on Saturday, April 9, at the Cohasset Golf Club. A fun-filled Hawaiian luau is planned.

E-mail invitations will be sent out this week. Tickets may be purchased via the on-line invitation, through www.cohasseteducation.org, or at the door, for a slightly higher fee.

If you would like to donate an item for the auction, advertise in the booklet, or help with the event, contact Ginni Froio at ginnifro@comcast.net.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church: Experience the season of Lent with us

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church is an inclusive, Christ-centered community committed to exploring the intersection of our faith and our lives. We invite you to join us in this exploration on Sunday mornings and through a variety of special programs during the week. All are welcome to worship God with us at St. Stephen's!

From Ash Wednesday (March 9) through Easter (April 24), we are moving through the season of Lent, the time in the life of the Christian faith in which we dedicate special time focusing on how we could live our lives closer to God. Please join us during this holy season! This Sunday, a group of parishioners is going to the Long Island Homeless Shelter to serve a meal, part of St. Stephen's commitment to serving the hungry and those without shelter.

On Sundays, join us for our normal schedule of services of Holy Communion at 8:00am and 10:00am. Also on Sunday mornings, the Living Faith 24/7 adult education group meets at 9:00am, the Godly Play children's program and R.O.X. JV (middle school youth program) meet at 10:00am. R.O.X. (senior high youth program) meets at 11:30am.

AA meets at St. Stephen's three times a week: Sundays at 7 p.m., there is a Closed Big Book Study. Tuesdays there is a Women's step meeting at 6:30p.m. and a closed discussion meeting at 8 p.m. All meetings take place in the Watermelon Room at the church office.

Please call the church office at (781) 383-1083 or visit ststephenscohasset.org for more information.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF APRIL 4, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Regarding your upcoming challenges, the Aries Lamb should very quickly size things up and allow you to make the best possible use of whatever resources you have on hand. Good luck.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You rarely blame others for missteps that worked against you. But this time you need to lay out all the facts and insist that everyone acknowledge his or her share of the mistakes. Then start again.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might want to start making vacation plans. And don't be surprised by unexpected family demands. Maintain control. Be open to suggestions, but don't get bogged down by them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Work with both your Moon Child and Crab aspects this week to keep both your creative and your practical sides balanced. Your intuition sharpens, giving you greater insight by the middle of the week.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat finally should have all the information needed to move on with a project. If not, maybe you'll want to give everything a new and more thorough check before trying to move on.

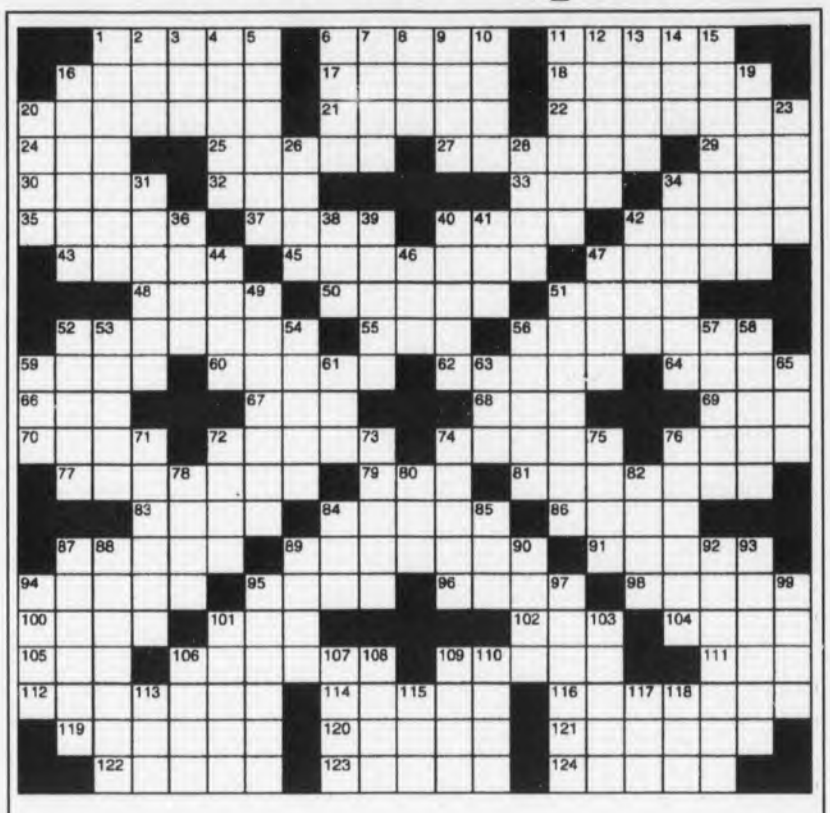
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Too much emotional pain caused by someone you can't win over as a friend? Then stop trying to do so. You have other things you need to work on this week. Go to it, and good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to reassess where and how your strengths can help you build, and where your weaknesses can hinder you. Remember to build on your strongest foundation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That personal matter that seemed so hard to deal with should be less confusing now. Don't rush. Let things happen easily, without the risk of creating even more puzzlement.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Change continues to be a strong factor in many important areas. Keep on top of them, and you won't have to worry about losing control. A personal situation takes on a new look.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A business offer sounds intriguing. But if you don't check it out thoroughly, you could have problems. Take a set of questions with you when you attend your next meeting.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your self-confidence should be coming back. That's good news. But it might be a bit over the top right now, so best to let it settle down before you start making expensive decisions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your life, your decisions. Good enough. But be sure you have all the facts you need to put into the decision-maker mixing bowl and hope it will come out as it should.

BORN THIS WEEK: You find much of your creativity with new people who give you much to think about.

Level: Challenging

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

LIFE AT CHS

College letters in the mail

NATALIE DIGNAM

When you think of the first days of spring, the first thing that comes to mind isn't usually a snowstorm, but we live in New England so weather is always a surprise anyway. You're more likely to find a CHS senior waiting at the mailbox than frolicking in the snow (or in the sun on those unsuspecting warm weather days) because spring means college acceptance letters! There are a thousand ways to say rejected, and now that I finally know what they all mean, I can feel a little better about being put on this imaginary "waiting list" or "deferred." There is, however, only one way of saying accepted, and it usually begins, "Congratulations! The university of blah blah blah is excited to welcome you..." etc. Some advice to upcoming high school graduates, you don't have to check your email every five minutes or wait at the mailbox, you'll get accepted somewhere!

With that said, what's going on at CHS this week besides college? This Tuesday, new members were inducted into National Honor Society from the senior and junior classes. Congratulations to the new members of NHS, who will hopefully enjoy volunteering at Tuesday Night Homework Club at the Paul Pratt Library as much as we did! On Wednesday, a Gay/Straight alliance meeting in the library at lunch continued to welcome new members and support diversity at the high school. Also, a Blood Drive will be held in the gym on March 29th, so don't miss your chance to contribute (sign up forms will be in the main office for students 16 and older).

After such a tough defeat for the boy's basketball team, CHS athletes geared up for the spring season this week. The softball team is still looking for a few more varsity players, so go see Mrs. Lafort and help the girls get out on the field this season! That's all for this week CHS, enjoy the upcoming warm weather!

Natalie Dignam is a senior at CHS. Her column runs weekly during the school year.

SSAC to host 'Fools, Fakes & Forgeries' fundraiser

South Shore Art Center , will host its annual gala at 7 p.m., on Saturday, April 2, at Black Rock Country Club in Hingham. The event, "Fools, Fakes & Forgeries," will include an auction of art, jewelry, travel and more. Artists have created paintings, photographs, collages, monoprints and sculpture done in the style of well-known artists such as Andy Warhol and Joan Miro or have copied some of art history's masterworks, including Degas' "Dancers at the Bar" and John Singer Sargent's "La Biancheria."

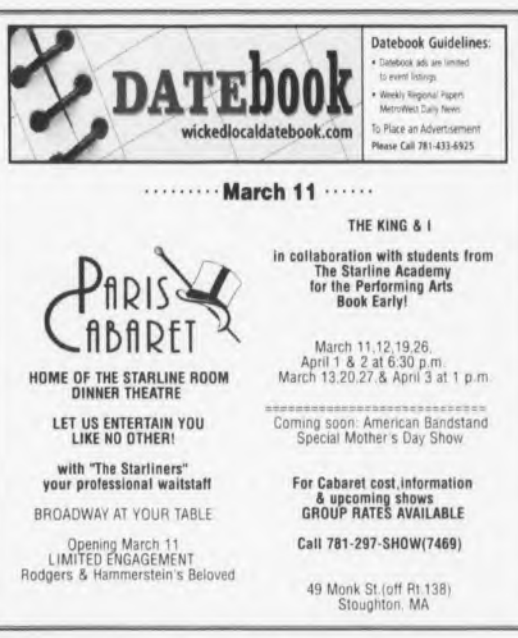
A highlight of the Art Center event auction will be a sapphire and diamond copy of the Royal Engagement ring donated by King Jewelers.

A highlight of the Art Center event auction will be a sapphire and diamond copy of the Royal Engagement ring donated by King Jewelers of Cohasset. The ring is valued at $2,100. Trips offered on auction will include a vacation package to the 2011 Primetime Emmy Awards.

Tickets for Fools, Fakes & Forgeries are $100 for Art Center members and $125 for non-members. All proceeds will support the exhibitions and education programs of South Shore Art Center. To reserve tickets, visit www.ssac.org or call the Art Center at 781-383-2787.

Tennis instructors

The Cohasset Recreation Department is seeking experienced and qualified tennis instructors to provide summer youth lessons and to assist the summer playground program.



Tennis Lessons take place during morning hours, Monday - Friday. Additional hours are available in the afternoon assisting the summer playground program.

All individuals who are interested in filling the position are required to attend departmental staff training in June, a USTA tennis coaches clinic (date tba), up to date CPR certification (classes are available with CRD) and pass a CORI check.

For information about the position, call Ted Carroll at 781-383-4109. For a complete job description, please visit the Department website at www.cohassetrec.com

Legal Notices

SENIOR CITIZEN CENTER PROPOSALS
LEGAL NOTICE
THE TOWN OF COHASSET

The Town of Cohasset, Massachusetts, acting through the Town Manager and Board of Selectmen, is seeking proposals from interested parties for the acquisition of lease premises of approximately 2,500 square feet, for use as a senior center.

Leased premises must be located in Cohasset, Massachusetts. Desired occupancy is on or about July 1, 2011. A three year lease is desired, with a month to month extension after the initial thirty-six (36) months, with a ninety (90) day option to terminate, at the sole discretion of the Town Manager and contingent upon appropriation funding. This solicitation is being conducted in accordance with the provisions of Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 30B, Chapter 16 and all lease documents must be awarded strictly in accordance with the requirements of the Request for Proposal regarding Real Property Transactions. If it becomes necessary to revise any part of the RFP or otherwise provide additional information, an addendum will be issued to prospective proposers who receive copies of the original request. Responses are due on Thursday, April 14, 2011, 12:00 noon in the Town Manager's office, located in Cohasset Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue, Cohasset, Massachusetts, 02025. Bid opening will occur Monday, April 18, 2011, at 2:00pm at Town Hall. All proposals shall remain in effect for sixty (60) days, Saturdays, Sundays, and Legal holidays included, after deadline for the submission of Proposals. The successful proposer must enter into a lease with the Town of Cohasset, said lease to contain those provisions set forth in the Term Sheet attached hereto as Table B within sixty (60) days of the award. Specifications, information, and required forms regarding the Request for Proposal may be obtained at the Office of the Town Manager on or after Monday, April 4, 2011, during normal business hours (Monday, Wednesday, Thursday 8:30 – 4:30, Tuesday 8:30 – 7:00, and Friday 8:30 – 1:00). An award will be made within sixty (60) days. Responses must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, and shall be plainly and properly marked on the outside: "Town of Cohasset – Lease of Space for Senior Center" prior to the deadline. The opening of the responses is public. The Town Manager reserves the right and to accept the Proposal deemed to be in the best interest of the Town of Cohasset.

Cohasset reads together

This spring, the Paul Pratt Memorial Library is once again harnessing literary powers to bring the residents of Cohasset together. Next week, the library will kick off its fifth annual "Cohasset Reads Together" initiative — the beginning of eight weeks of events, discussions and lectures. The program will culminate in late May with a visit from the chosen book's author.

CPD works toward certification

Goal is to be accredited by state

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

Only a few dozen towns across the state have an accredited police department.

If all goes well in the next few months Cohasset could soon be among these select few.

At the Board of Selectmen's meeting Tuesday night, Police Chief Mark DeLuca presented an update on the accreditation process. Accreditation is a voluntary, self-initiated outside assessment of a police department to ensure compliance with operational, administration and procedural standards set by law enforcement professionals. To be accredited departments must show compliance with 151 standards.

DeLuca initiated the accreditation process when he became Cohasset's police chief in early 2010. DeLuca said accreditation increases the professionalism, the effectiveness and the efficiency of the department.

Special police officer Sasha Geddes had led the department initiative. Much of the accreditation process involves ensuring there are policies and procedures in place and standards, she said.

Within the next few weeks the department will be going through a "mock assessment" done by volunteers to ensure the department is ready for certification. The mock assessors will review the department's policies, walk through the station, and evaluate the cruisers and cells.

"It irons out the wrinkles before the formal assessment," DeLuca said.

After adjustments are made following the mock assessment the formal assessment is initiated.

"The whole self-assessment process has been a good process for everyone," Geddes said, though she said there have been some surprises – good and bad – along the way.

If the department gets positive marks on the assessment it will be classified as certified.

Once the department gets is certifications, DeLuca said, there is only a "short leap" to full accreditation.

Selectman Fred Koed thanked Geddes and the department for their hard work in this process.

The future's great scientists, doctors, mathematicians and engineers may be sitting at desks in the Joseph Osgood School. Thanks to a grant from the PSO, the Osgood STEM lab (STEM is an acronym standing for science, technology, engineering and mathematics) is giving Cohasset's youngest students the opportunity to experience science in a hands-on discovery environment. Capital requests

$212,000 in spending before Town Meeting

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

Capital Budget Committee chair Steve Gaumer said his group had to be very "Scrooge-like" this year with their recommendations.

Over the past few months, the committee has heard requests from nearly all town departments. All together the requests totaled more than $1.7 million.

In the end, the capital budget committee is recommending town meeting support just 12 percent of those requests in fiscal 2012, or $212,000.

Gaumer said the committee conducted several on-site visits and evaluated each of the requests with the same discipline and process.

"We worked hard to prioritize the funding requests to maximize the limited resources of the town while at the same time meeting the substantial needs of the various departments looking for capital," Gaumer said.

The Capital Budget Committee oversees the capital stabilization fund. It semi-annually reviews the town's

WHAT'S GOING ON HERE?

Disks wash up on beach

What is it: Small white thin circular mesh disks approximately two inches in diameter were released into the Merrimack River from the Hooksett, New Hampshire Wastewater Treatment Facility on March 6 following heavy rainstorms. Hooksett officials estimate four to eight million of the disks were released from the plant. This past week the disks washed up on Sandy Beach and around Cohasset Harbor.

What is the issue: Testing of the disks by the MassDEP show some bacteria, but at ranges that do not exceed levels of concern. Although the low levels of bacteria are typical of those present in any form of litter or debris that washes up on beaches, out of an abundance of caution, health officials advise that the public should treat the disks like any litter and avoid contact unless taking precautions.

What to do if you see one: If picking up or handling the disks, the public should wear protective plastic gloves and thoroughly wash their hands, and make sure not to put their fingers in their mouth, eat, drink or touch their eyes before washing their hands. Children and pets should not be allowed to play or come in contact with the disks.

Potential clean-up: Health Inspector Tara Tradd said an environmental clean-up company is overseeing the proper disposal of the disks in communities that have been greatly affected. Tradd said if the discs continue to come in, especially in the harbor, the clean-up company would be called to remove the disks.

EXTRA in YOUR MARINER

Name: Daniel P. Cronin.

Occupation: Advisor Custody/Brokerage Director.

Best day of your life: Two of them: When our boys were born

Best vacation: Maui, HI: 2011.

Favorite season: Summer.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Favorite junk food (or meal): Pizza.

Best book (or magazine): "The Last Lecture," by Randy Pausch.

Best movie (or actor): "The Fugitive."

Best TV show: "Law & Order."

Best music, group, or artist: Peter Meyer (great vocalist/guitarist better known as Jimmy Buffet's lead guitarist).

Pet peeve: Lack of accountability in business, government and education.

Most embarrassing moment: When working as a waiter years ago I was opening a champagne bottle for a large group that was celebrating a special occasion. The restaurant owner who trained us a certain way to "quietly" open a bottle of champagne was watching my technique. The cork came out faster than I expected and launched with a pop straight into the low ceiling leaving a small dent right above the table. The owner's reaction said it all. He shook his head and walked back into the kitchen. Oops.

Goal: Run my first marathon to raise funds for Cohasset schools via the CEF.

Person you'd most like to meet: Steve Jobs.

Biggest worry: Governments leaving massive debt for our children to deal with.

Best part of Cohasset: The rocky coast.

Car break-ins in common area

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

The break-ins are under investigation. Police urge homeowners to lock their cars.

Police are investigating a spate of car break-ins that occurred sometime overnight last Tuesday (March 22) in the North Main Street and Highland Avenue area.

A 58-year-old North Main Street resident reported that during the night her 2010 Subaru and her 2000 BMW 740I were entered. The contents of the glove boxes were emptied out all over the seat. Missing were earrings valued at $50. Both cars were unlocked.

A 62-year-old Highland Avenue resident reported three vehicles were entered overnight on March 22: a 2003 Honda station wagon, a 1996 Honda sedan and a 2008 MINI Cooper. Police said the contents of the glove boxes were emptied on the floor. Nothing was missing; the cars were unlocked.

While police were canvassing the area, they stopped to talk with a 40-year-old Highland Avenue man to see if he had seen anything suspicious. He then realized that his vehicles: a 2006 Land Rover and a 2006 Audi A4, had been entered. Police said 10 compact discs were missing from the Land Rover; nothing appeared to have been stolen from the Audi. Both vehicles were unlocked.

The break-ins are under investigation. Police urge homeowners to lock their cars.

Car crash

A 33-year-old woman from Allston is being summonsed to court on charges of unlicensed operation, failure to drive in marked lanes, and speeding, following a head-on crash on upper King Street near the Water Plant last Thursday (March 24) at about 8:50 a.m.

Police said the Allston woman was headed south on King Street when she went over the double yellow line into the opposite lane hitting a Volkswagen Jetta head on. The operator of the Jetta, a 42-year-old Cohasset woman, was transported to South Shore Hospital with what appeared to be minor injuries.

The Allston woman did not have a license only a Brazilian passport, police said. Both vehicles were towed.

Annoying calls

Police investigated annoying phone calls reported by an 80-year-old Cohasset woman. A 49-year-old Weymouth woman whom the Cohasset resident had employed as a home health aide made the calls. The aide is now being evaluated for mental health issues, police said.

Attempted theft

The owner of a nail salon on King Street reported last Monday (March 21) that while she was working at her spa a woman came in and asked about the store's products. She then asked to use the bathroom where the storeowner saw her rifle through her purse in the back room. When confronted, the woman who was described as white, in her mid-20s, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, with a white sweatshirt, black pants and white hat, took off in a silver Mercedes. The storeowner was unable to provide the plate number. Detectives are investigating.

Credit card

The 65-year-old owner of a business on Parking Way reported to police last Thursday (March 24) that someone had fraudulently used his credit card for $510 in charges. He notified the police and his bank. He also filled out an identity theft packet.

Police make major seizure of cocaine

On Saturday, March 26, at about 9:40 a.m., the Cohasset Police Department received a call from a resident reporting a suspicious male sitting inside of a car on Beechwood Street at the Beechwood Cemetery.

Cohasset Police officers Patrick Kenney and James McLean responded and encountered the male who was later identified as Michael F. Rasmussen, 25 years of age, 8 Mercer St., South Boston. As a result of the officer's investigation, over 120 grams of cocaine was seized along with oxycontin, oxycodone, $428 in U.S. currency, a digital scale, and other drug paraphernalia

Cohasset Police have charged Rasmussen with the following crimes:

1) Trafficking in Cocaine in excess of 100 grams

2) Trafficking Cocaine in a school/park zone (Beechwood Ball Park)

3) Possession of class B (OxyContin) with the intent to distribute

4) Possession of class B (Oxycodone) with the intent to distribute

Rasmussen was held over the weekend Cohasset Police Station on $10,000 cash bail. He was arraigned on the charges Monday and released on $2500 cash bail.

The Norfolk County DA's office will be handling this case, which will most likely be moved from District Court to Superior Court because of the seriousness of the charges, police said.

Police Lt. William Quigley praised the officers and the resident who reported the suspicious activity.

Town Manager search timeline explained

The search for a new town manager has begun. A Town Manager screening committee has been formed and has met once to discuss the process with the town's search consultant, Groux and Associates. South Main St. resident Michael Milanoski was named the chair of the screening committee. The deadline for applications from interested candidates is Friday, April 15.

On Tuesday, April 4 at 5p.m. the screening committee will hold a public comment period for residents to provide input on what kind of town manager they are looking for. At 5:30p.m. the screening committee will meet with town employees. Both comment sessions will be held at the Community Meeting room at the Cohasset Middle High School (where the school committee meets).

Milanoski said the committee intends to have a recommendation of finalists by the first week in June. Interim town manager Steve Lombard can stay on with the town until the end of June.

Rockland Trust to host mortgage seminar

Rockland Trust is hosting a free Mortgage Seminar titled "Buying a Home: Start to Finish" at its Cohasset branch located at 733 Chief Justice Cushing Highway in Cohasset on Thursday, April 21, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Learn about the home buying process from a panel of professionals including a Rockland Trust Senior Loan Officer, a local real estate attorney, and a local realtor. Light refreshments will be served. RSVP to Catherine Duggan at 781-982-6397 by April 15, 2011.

Cohasset Police Association launches fundraiser

The Cohasset Police Association will be conducting a fundraising campaign. For the next several weeks area businesses and residents will be contacted during this time and asked to sponsor an ad or family listing in the Cohasset Police Association Community Safety Handbook. This handbook will contain valuable information for children about Internet safety and Internet predators and what to do in case of an emergency. Donations raised will be used for local scholarships, youth athletic programs, and other community programs. In today's uncertain times, these programs are essential in leading our community into the future.

Road Race by the Sea is Sunday

What: The 35th Annual Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea

When: Sunday, April 3, 1p.m.

Where: The race begins and ends at Cohasset Common

Distance: 10K (6.2 miles)

Participants: 1770 runners have pre-registered for the race. There will be no race day registration.

What to know: Streets will be closed for a short time around 1p.m. to allow the racers to run safely. The race begins at Cohasset Common (From William B. Long Road) down South Main Street, to Elm Street, to Margin Street, down Atlantic Avenue past Sandy Beach, to Jerusalem Road, to Forest Avenue, to North Main Street, back to Highland Avenue ending just outside Town Hall.

Walk the route: In conjunction with the race is the Fran Coffey Memorial Walk held the same day at 10a.m. The walk begins and ends at Sandy Beach. Walkers can traverse the same 6.2-mile route as the road race or do an alternative 4.5-mile route (from Sandy Beach down Atlantic Avenue to Jerusalem Road, to North Main Street, to Ripley Road, to Depot Court, to South Main Street, to Elm Street, onto Margin Street, back onto Atlantic Avenue back to Sandy Beach).

About the Cohasset Rotary: The Rotary Club is made up of about 25 business and community leaders from Cohasset or with ties to Cohasset. They have been putting on the race as a fundraiser for their charitable efforts for 35 years.
The Rotary Club supports local organizations, programs and people. Each year the Rotary offers scholarships to Cohasset High seniors. They also support organizations like the food pantry and the historical society. They help Eagle Scouts fund their projects and provide support for enrichment programs at the schools. The Rotary also works with other Rotary Clubs around the world in efforts to eradicate polio and provide clean water to impoverished areas.

Tri safety plan

Race tweaked to lessen impacts on town

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

There are less than three months until the Cohasset Triathlon – and its 850 athletes – descend on Cohasset. But, race and public safety officials have already crafted an updated safety plan to address concerns raised by selectmen following last year's race.

The Cohasset Triathlon is a swim, bike, run race and its course includes much of the town's main roads. The race is scheduled for Sunday, June 26.

Following last year's race, complaints about the triathlon's impact on the town were up as some residents found it difficult to get to where they needed to be. People had difficulty getting in and out of church services, or to jobs and other obligations.

As a result the selectmen asked the triathlon organizers back in the fall to make some changes to reduce the impact of the race on residents.

Race Director and Cohasset resident Bill Burnett has changed the order in which the athletes enter the water (the first leg of the race is a swim off Sandy Beach). The slowest waves (beginner triathletes) will be entering the water first. The expectation is to shorten the time racers are on the course overall.

"The same number of bikes will be on the course, but the time will be compacted," Burnett said.

The race has also been moved back one hour and is set to begin at 8a.m. (for the first time last year the race started at 9a.m.).

Cohasset Triathlon Race Director, Bill Burnett, stands with Massachusetts Senator Scott Brown who completed last year's triathlon with a time of 1:07:56. PHOTO/LAURA SINCLAIR

In conjunction with Burnett, the police department, spearheaded by Lieutenant William Quigley, has re-vamped the race's safety plan. Hot spots, particularly along the 12-mile bike course, have been identified and increased officers will be along the course. A five-man squad of bike officers led by a sergeant will move throughout the course to address issues.

"They will be very fluid throughout the course," Quigley said. If more officers are needed in a certain area, they will be pulled from the less impacted areas to address issues.

Detail officers and volunteers will be at all major intersections of the race.

The triathlon is responsible for the cost of the many detail officers along the course. All road closings are expected to be open before 11a.m.

The hot spots are primarily where there is expected to be church traffic. Extra officers will be deployed to the areas where church traffic is expected (between Main Street and Ripley Road/Pleasant Street, near the Common, Scituate line to Depot Court).

To give residents real-time updates on the race's progression throughout the morning, the triathlon is setting up a Twitter account (the Twitter name is StreamlineEvent). An high school student who is part of the Explorer program will update the Twitter feed as the swimmers enter the water, begin the bike course, when the last runners are on the course, etc.

"It will help us get more information out faster," Burnett said.

The Selectmen were satisfied with the plan and how the issues were addressed.

"I think this is the best plan and I think it's a safe plan," Selectmen Chair Karen Quigley said.

In addition, Karen Quigley said the triathlon affords the public safety departments the opportunity to train for a large-scale event and allows the departments to work with regional organizations.

"It's a good training exercise for us," Karen Quigley said.

The selectmen thanked both Burnett and the police department for developing a thorough safety plan and addressing their concerns for residents.

Catrina's uncle is in her corner

To tackle Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge

Stephen was drawn to running with the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge because of all Dana-Farber and The Jimmy Fund did for Catrina and her family.
COURTESY PHOTO

Catrina Herman, a 6-year-old Cohasset resident, will be taking part in the Boston Marathon as a participant in the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge Patient Partner Program. Catrina was diagnosed with Wilms tumor in March of 2009. Her treatment consisted of surgery, radiation and eight months of chemotherapy. On her sixth birthday, Catrina had her 16 months post-treatment check-up appointment.

Catrina is a typical 6-year-old, and is all girl. Catrina loves gymnastics and to play with her friends. She also dances and is a very good skier. She has a 9-year-old sister Jenna, and 12-year-old brother Jack. Catrina wants to be a doctor when she grows up.

The Patient Partner Program is a cornerstone of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge. Runners are paired with Dana-Farber's Jimmy Fund Clinic patients and serve as inspiration for each other. Runners undergo intensive and grueling training to prepare for the 26.2-mile run and look up to their young patients as motivation to keep running regardless of what hurts. The young patients develop an optimistic mindset, distracting them from their illness as well as gaining a new life-long friendship.

Catrina's patient partner is her uncle, Stephen Silberman, of Jacksonville Fla. Stephen lived in Cohasset for a short while. Now Catrina's uncle is a pediatrician in Jacksonville and this is his first marathon. He was drawn to running with the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge because of all Dana-Farber and The Jimmy Fund did for Catrina and her family.

All proceeds raised from each Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge runner go directly to fund the Claudia Adams Barr Program in Innovative Basic Cancer Research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, a world-renowned leader in cancer research and treatment. Since its inception in 1990, the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge has raised more than $47 million for the Barr Program and hopefully through generous contributions this year's goal of raising $4.5 million will be met.

SSAC to host 'Fools, Fakes & Forgeries'

South Shore Art Center , will host its annual gala at 7 p.m., on Saturday, April 2, at Black Rock Country Club in Hingham. The event, "Fools, Fakes & Forgeries," will include an auction of art, jewelry, travel and more. Artists have created paintings, photographs, collages, monoprints and sculpture done in the style of well-known artists such as Andy Warhol and Joan Miro or have copied some of art history's masterworks, including Degas' "Dancers at the Bar" and John Singer Sargent's "La Biancheria."

A highlight of the Art Center event auction will be a sapphire and diamond copy of the Royal Engagement ring donated by King Jewelers of Cohasset. The ring is valued at $2,100. Trips offered on auction will include a vacation package to the 2011 Primetime Emmy Awards.

Tickets for Fools, Fakes & Forgeries are $100 for Art Center members and $125 for non-members. All proceeds will support the exhibitions and education programs of South Shore Art Center. To reserve tickets, visit www.ssac.org or call the Art Center at 781-383-2787.

Food Pantry donations sought

The Cohasset Food Pantry has come a long way in filling its shelves over the past few months, but, there is a constant need, especially for certain items.

In addition, the pantry needs industrial strength shelving for its back room. Contact co-director Jane Corry for more details at corryjm@gmail.com.

Donations can be dropped off at the rear entrance of St. Anthony's Rectory on South Main Street from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Tuesdays, at Stop & Shop or at local churches on Sundays. Donations may also be left at the St. Anthony Parish Center, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3.m.

To give a monetary donation, the food pantry mailing address is Cohasset Food Pantry, P.O. Box 297, Cohasset, MA 02025.

To contact the food pantry call 781-383-0219, ext. 25. Someone will return the call.

Needed items include saltines, chicken broth, cereal, dish detergent, canned fruit (with Splenda), jams, jellies, coffee (regular ground), mayonnaise, canned carrots and white potatoes, fruit juice, shampoo and conditioner,paper goods (paper towels, toilet paper, napkins, tissues), laundry detergent, bars of hand soap and cleaning products

The Cohasset Food Pantry does not accept expired or already opened food.

AROUND TOWN

Happy April Fools' Day!

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

April Fools

Hello Cohasset and Happy April Fools' Day. I hope that any and all jokes played today are fun in nature, not too overboard and enjoyed by all. I hope that you are enjoying the new layout and design with the newspaper. Just like everything, change is sometimes a little hard to adjust to however in this case, I think the change is a pretty cool one to get used to. Always remember that the news, celebration information, town events and all other "Around Town" notes and photos for the column are still due no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm and you can still submit this by email at aroundtowncohasset@yahoo.com or by phone, 781-733-4133.

BC High

Congratulations are being sent to Jay M. Salerno and Taylor C. Golz (both juniors at BCH) who were recently inducted into the Robert Fulton, SJ Chapter of the National Honor Society at BC High. Selection is based on Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character. Nice work boys and your family and friends are very proud, keep up the great work.

Our World

Now that it is April, I hope that each day gets warmer and brings us closer to a wonderful Spring. Here is an event that will help bring in the springtime spirit. Next Saturday, April 9th from 9:30-12:30 pm at the Our World Children's Discovery Museum & Playground, a "Spring has Sprung" celebration will be held. This event is free to all who attend and will include a Local Children's Author, Richard Trust and his book reading & signing, a craft activity, Springtime Movie in the Museum Theatre, Interactive Museum Exhibits and a light snack. Special thanks are being sent to the event donors, Aubuchon Hardware and Harbor Light Toy Company. Grab your family and friends and head to the Museum where fun will be had by all.

Rabies clinic

The Scituate Animal Shelter, in cooperation with Scituate Animal Control, will sponsor a Rabies Clinic on April 2 at the Shelter, located at 780 Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A), Scituate. Services provided by Black Pond Veterinary of Norwell. Dogs must be on leash (no extended/flexi-leashes please). Cats must be in carriers; no feral cats please. Cats 9am - 10:30am; Dogs from 10:30am -12 noon. $10 per rabies shot; other services provided at additional cost. Call (781) 545-8709 with questions.

Yard sale

Donate your Spring-cleaning treasures for the one of the South Shore's biggest yard sales to benefit the Scituate Animal Shelter. New or gently used, clean items gratefully accepted at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Scituate on April 2 & 3 from 10am-2 pm. Unable to accept: clothes, linens, TVs, computer/ski/exercise equipment and large furniture items. Yard Sale is April 9 from 9-3 and April 10 from 10-1 at Knights of Columbus Hall, Scituate — featuring books, collectables, household items, children's toys and more... don't miss it! region. ScituateAnimal Shelter.org or call (781) 544-4533.

Financials

Here is a public service message to any and all who would like to attend. On Wednesday, April 6 at 7 p.m. Representative Garrett Bradley and Senator Robert Hedlund will present to the public, at the regularly scheduled School Committee meeting, the economic forecast for state funding for education. They will be discussing what impact funding could have on education programs in Cohasset Schools. The School Committee meeting will be held at Cohasset High School in the Community Meeting Room.

Spring bistro

On Friday, April 8th at 4:30 the Friends of Elder Affairs will host a Spring Bistro for all at the Lightkeepers House to mingle and welcome Spring! Families are welcome. A delicious pasta dinner will be served. Donations welcome. Call 383-9112for reservations by Wednesday April 6 as seating is limited.

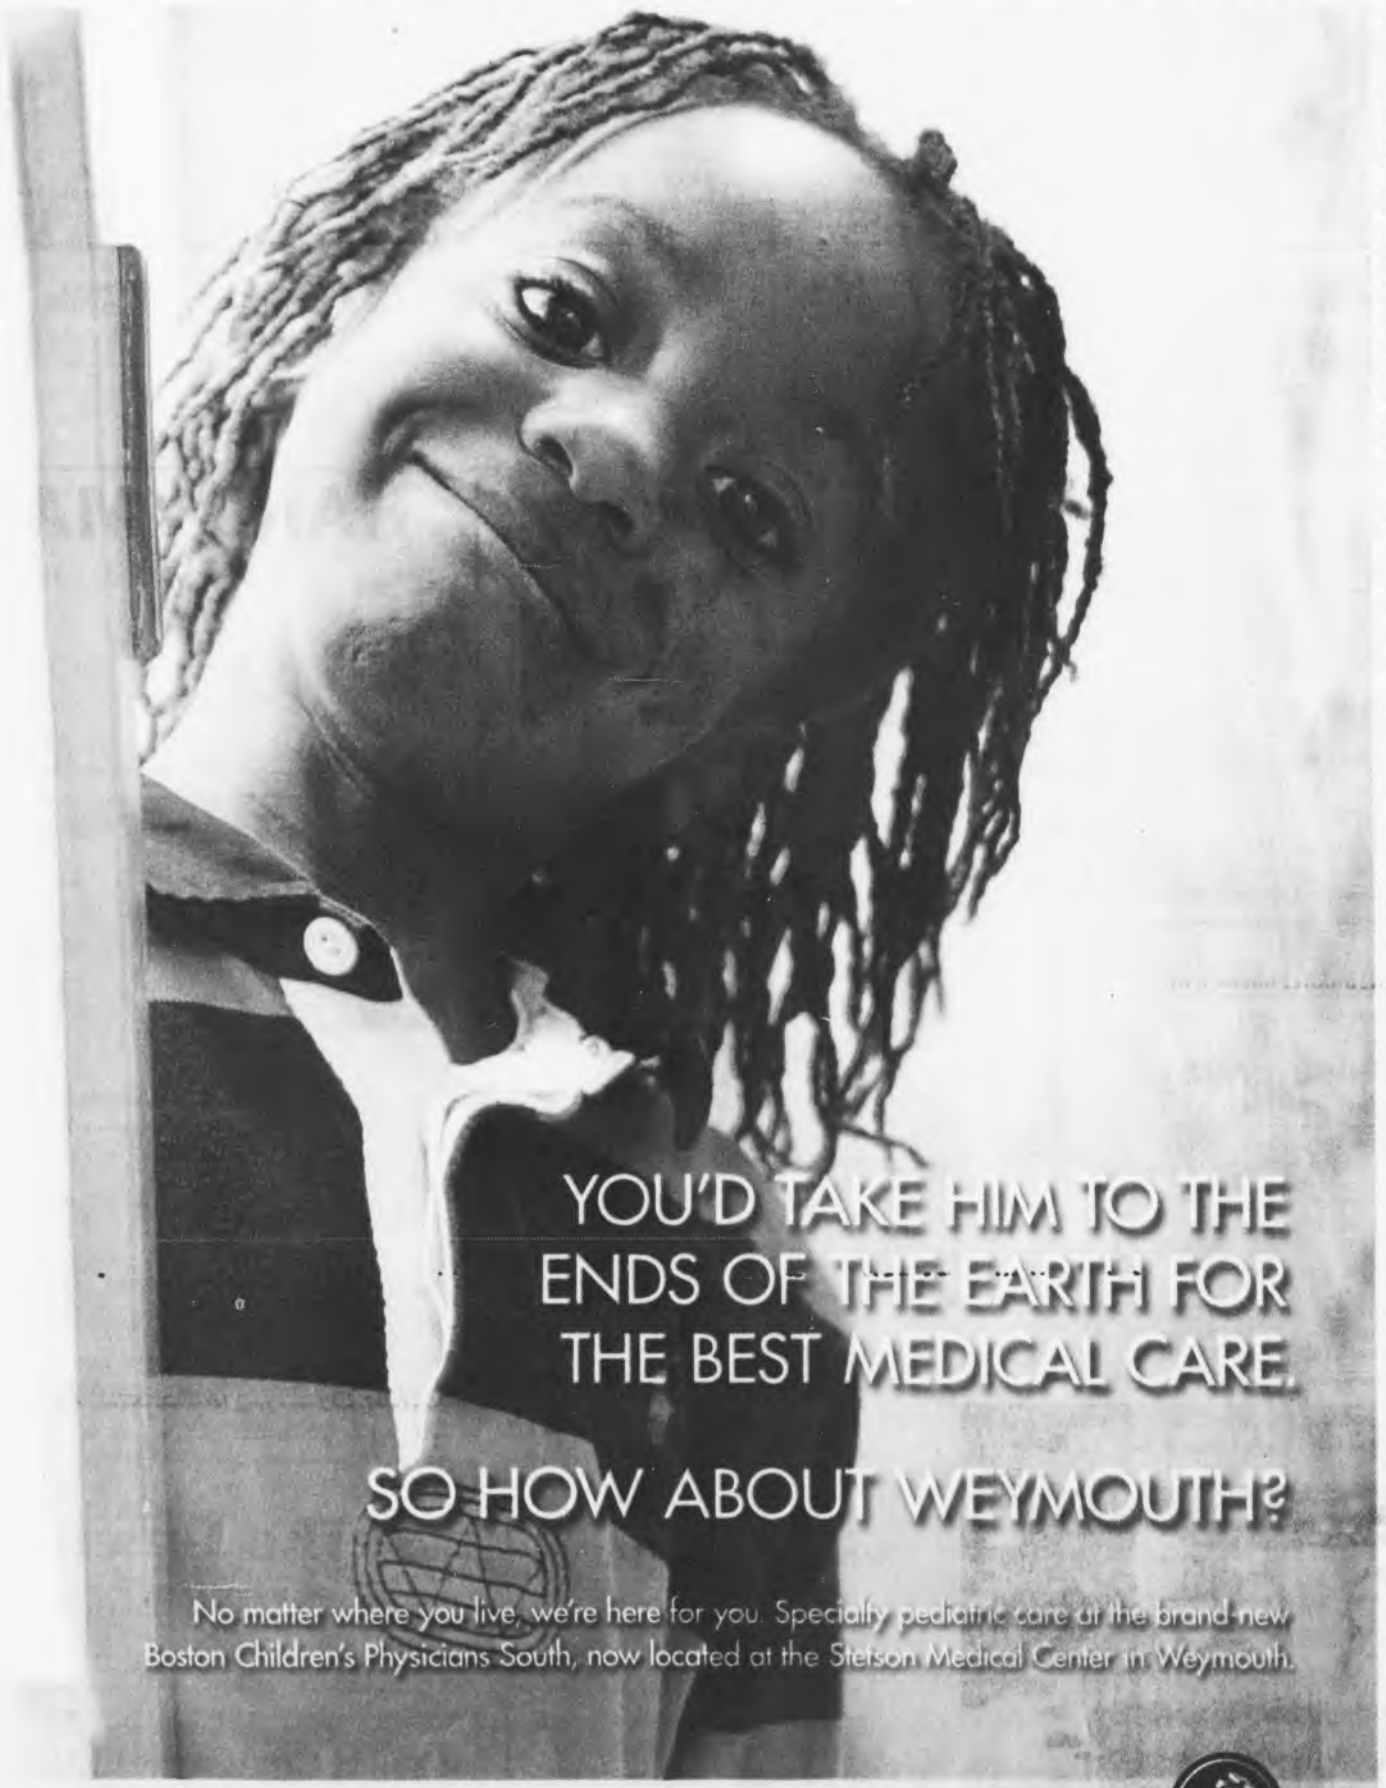
To order a copy, please call Shaun Galvin at 781-424-2197(cell) or email your request to galvin_shaun@yahoo.com Requests can also be mailed with a check for $20 per DVD to Shaun Galvin P.O. Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043.

Spring event

The South Shore Community Center wants you to join them for their 2nd Annual "Spring Around Town" event taking place on April 30th. The festive evening consists of cocktails, dinner and desert all at surprise venues around town. Tickets can be purchased by visiting www.southshorecommunitycenter.com or calling 781-383-0088. This event sold out last year, so order your tickets early to ensure you get to enjoy this wonderful event with us.



That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm. Cell phone photos are not usually the best as they have low resolution.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

Local bank helps area food pantries

As part of its continued commitment to the community, Rockland Trust will host the "Food for Friends" food drive to collect non-perishable food products and other items of need for local food pantries from April 1 through 30. Items will be collected at all Rockland Trust branches. In addition to the food drive, Rockland Trust will make a monetary contribution to a food pantry in each town the bank serves, and is encouraging their employees to volunteer at local food pantries.

"In the current economic environment, the demand at our local food pantries is higher than ever," said Chris Oddleifson, president and chief executive officer of Rockland Trust. "We are delighted to unite our customers and employees in this effort to help feed our friends and neighbors in need."

Cohasset Reads Together in its fifth year

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

A book can spark discussion and propel change; it can make the reader laugh, or cry, and think until his/her head hurts.

Books have been influencing readers since the advent of the printing press. No other entity understands that better than the library.

This spring, the Paul Pratt Memorial Library is once again harnessing literary powers to bring the residents of Cohasset together. Next week, the library will kick off its fifth annual "Cohasset Reads Together" initiative — the beginning of eight weeks of events, discussions and lectures. The program will culminate in late May with a visit from the chosen book's author.

This year's book choice for the Cohasset Reads Together program is "In the Heart of the Sea: The Tragedy of the Whaleship Essex," by Nathaniel Philbrick.

"In the Heart of the Sea" recounts in vivid detail the ordeal of the whaleship Essex — an event as mythic in the nineteenth century as the sinking of the Titanic was in the twentieth. In 1819, the Essex left Nantucket for the South Pacific with 20 crewmembers aboard in the hunt for whale and its valuable oil. While in the middle of the South Pacific the ship was rammed and sunk by an angry sperm whale. The crew drifted for more than 90 days in three tiny whaleboats, succumbing to weather, hunger, disease, and ultimately turning to drastic measures in the fight for survival.

This year's Cohasset Reads Together book choice is "In the Heart of the Sea" written by Nathaniel Philbrick, pictured. The program will culminate with a visit from Philbrick on May 17. COURTESY PHOTO

"Sea wreck adventures are always so compelling. The hardships you have to survive are a true test of the human spirit," said library director Jackie Rafferty.

Drawing largely from a long-lost account by the cabin boy on the Essex, Philbrook paints a picture of the Essex fateful journey and Nantucket whaling culture. The true-life tale of the Essex later became the basis of Herman Melville classic American novel, "Moby Dick."

"(Philbrick) creates this wonderful world – the book is non-fiction, but it reads like fiction," said Library Trustee Marylou Lawrence.

Each year, a committee meets during the summer months to determine the best book for the Cohasset Reads Together program.

"The ultimate book choice for Cohasset Reads Together is not an easy thing to determine. There are lots of great books in the world, but not many have universal appeal," Rafferty said.

The maritime subject matter seemed appropriate for Cohasset's geography and population, while the true-life survival story is sure to elicit moral questions and passionate discussion.

Lawrence said there are local connections to both fishing and whaling on the South Shore. Cohasset was once a key mackerel fishing port in Massachusetts and commercial lobstermen still work out of harbor. Whale ships, like the Essex, were once built in the Norwell's North River, Lawrence said.

To complement the reading of the book the library will have lectures, movie showing and book group discussions (see sidebar for full list).

"The program is important because it brings the community together. I hope families read this book and talk about it at home," Lawrence said. The book is appropriate for high school aged kids and older. "It's wonderful to thinkg of the whole town reading something together."

Children's librarian Sharon Moody picked complementary books that pick up on the themes embedded "In the Heart of the Sea."

Moody chose "The Dory Story by Jerry Pallotta, a picture book, for the youngest readers and "Burt Dow, Deep Water Man" by Robert McCluskey, a picture fiction book, for elementary school readers. "Revenge of the Whale: The True Story of the Whaleship Essex," an abridged version of "In the Heart of Sea" written for grades six through 10 by Philbrick is the young adult book choice.

Multiple versions of "In the Heart of the Sea" – hardcover, paperback, unabridged audio – are available at the library, as well as extra copies of each of the young adult and children's choices.

"The Cohasset Reads Together program offers the opportunity to explore a new book and share it with others. This program is about discovery," said research librarian Gayle Walsh. "This is great book, an exciting author and it will be fun to share it with everyone."

Cohasset Reads Together activities

All programs are held at the library, unless otherwise noted.

- Thursday, April 7, 7p.m., documentary showing, "Hunt for Moby Dick." In this BBC documentary by director Adam Low, Philip Hoare, author of "Leviathan, or The Whale," embarks on a four-year adventure in search of the whale. Filmed in Britain, New England and the Azores, The Hunt for Moby-Dick confronts the world's perennial fascination with this extraordinary animal, and the book it inspired: Herman Melville's "Moby Dick."
- Wednesday, April 27, 10a.m., "In the Heart of the Sea" roundtable book discussion.
- Thursday, May 5, 7p.m., documentary showing, "Into the Deep: America: America, Whaling, & the World." Director Ric Burns takes viewers through three centuries of American whaling, combining a fantastic sea adventure, a cautionary economic and environmental tale, and a mythic saga of man and nature.
- Friday, May 13, 2p.m. Sue Haley from the National Park Service presents on the history and legacy of whaling on Cape Cod and the Islands.
- Tuesday, May 17, 7p.m., high school auditorium. "In the Heart of the Sea" author Nathaniel Philbrick comes to speak. Tickets are $10 and are available at the library.

Previous Cohasset Reads Together books

- 2007: "The Last Pick," an autobiography about David J. McGillivray, race director of the Boston Marathon.
- 2008: Companion books, "Walden" by Henry David Thoreau and "A Walk in the Woods" by Bill Bryson.
- 2009: Companion books, Honorable Judge Julian Houston's "New Boy" and David Blight's "A Slave No More."
- 2010: "Mountains Beyond Mountains" by Tracy Kidder.

Library offering several programs

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

Diane Danielson returns on Wednesday, April 6, at 10:30 a.m., with her workshop on E-Newsletters.

There's no missing the cacophony of birdsong in the morning or the increasing number of landscapers' trucks or yellowing vines of forsythia — April's frenzy has arrived.

One might think that the Paul Pratt Memorial Library's calendar was set to coincide with spring's awakening. With so many activities at the library over the next two months, Cohasset needs the mockingbird to spread word of daily happenings. Be sure and visit the calendar on the library's website to keep abreast of all that is going on. In addition to regular programming and Cohasset Reads Together events (see Nancy White's article), "Next Chapter" will sponsor the following three workshops during April.

Diane Danielson returns on Wednesday, April 6, at 10:30 a.m., with her workshop on E-Newsletters, which will provide beginners with the strategies that lead to successful creation of newsletters; she will speak to cutting-edge styles, graphics that flesh out content or distract from content, and the difference between formats that create interest or chaos.

In addition, Danielson will talk about concepts that underlie model newsletters, techniques used to target and create an audience, and the tools needed to track their responses. Best practices, formatting, appropriate language use, and marketing strategies will also be part of her presentation.

Barbara Andrews will return on Tuesday, April 12, at 10:30 a.m., with her workshop on Protecting PC's from Security Threats. Cybercrime is now a global phenomenon, and it's not just the trade secrets, research and marketing plans of large companies that are at risk. People who use a social network, Web browser, public computer, ATM, credit card, or cell phone unwittingly jeopardize their PC, bank accounts, and personal privacy.

Andrews will look at the latest security threats such as spyware, bots, phishing, keyloggers, rootkits, ransomware and more, and the steps that can be taken to minimize risk. Free tools and utilities for monitoring PC's and removing threats will also be demonstrated.

On Friday, April 29, at 10:30 a.m., Michael Brophy, professional genealogist, will teach a class for beginners on researching family records on Internet databases. He will demonstrate navigation around Ancestry and Heritage Quest sites, and discuss tools to research World War I draft cards, Revolutionary War pension files, and records of the African American Freedman's bank.

All programs are free and open to the public. No preregistration is necessary.

"Next Chapter" is funded by grants from the Social Service League of Cohasset and by a federal Institute of Museum and Library Services grant awarded by the MA Board of Library Commissioners.

HAPPENINGS

Organic Gardening at Holly Hill Farm

The public is invited to Holly Hill Farm, 236 Jerusalem Road, from 10 a.m. to noon, on Saturday, April 2, for an Organic Gardening Workshop to learn what is needed to create an organic vegetable garden. Attendees can work with Holly Hill Farm staff and receive tips on how to organize a garden, sources for compost, seeds, organic fertilizers and tools, as well as learn how and why to build a raised bed, season extension and seed starting tips.

This workshop is number one of a four-part series of spring gardening workshops at Holly Hill Farm. Future workshops will cover starting seeds on April 30; direct sowing of seeds and transplants on May 14; and organic garden maintenance and care on June 11. Cost is $12 for members, $15 non-members. For more information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org or call education director Jon Belber at 781-383-6565.

Farmers' Market seeks your input

The Cohasset Farmers' Market is your Market. As the organizers gear up for the 17th season they are reaching out to the entire community to find out what would enhance the Market experience.

Henri looking for a home

This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue would like to feature Henri. He is a black and white young adult male Tuxedo cat. He once had a loving home and is quite friendly. He enjoys being petted and loves to play. He is waiting patiently for someone to come and meet him and hopefully give him a "forever home." He promises to be good, use his scratching post, sit in the sun by the window and curl up next to you on the couch.

You can check out all of the felines on the website at www.hsar.org. We have open hours from 2 to 3 p.m., on Saturdays, and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays. If these hours aren't convenient, please call the shelter at 781-925-3121 and leave a message and Judy, the adoption coordinator, will get back to you.

Henri is waiting patiently for someone to come and meet him.

The shelter is at 50 L Street, Hull. The mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA. 02045; email, hsar@verizon.net. The shelter offers a monthly low-cost spay-neuter program. If interested, check out the website or call Mary at 781-925-3121.

Thanks to our dedicated volunteers, to those who give homes to our felines and the people who generously donate to our cause. We couldn't do it without you.

Results are in for Pinewood Derby

Cohasset's Pack 38 Cub Scouts participated in the annual Pinewood Derby Race. The Cubs and parents had to carve, construct, decorate and paint their cars for the upcoming event.

The winners were:

Tigers - first place, Brian Hixon; second place, Jackson Soderberg; third place, Nathan Charron.

Wolf - first place, Pran Teelucksingh; second place Kyle Brierley; third place, Jonathan Tulio.

Bear - first place, Aleksander Fever; second place, Tucker Fulton; third place, Oliver Hobson.

Weblos I - first place, Tyler Mulhern; second place, Tommy Olson; third place, Ben Grimes.

Weblos II - first place, Joshua Liberty; second place, Alex Arnold; third place, Sullivan Mulhern.

The first place overall winner was Alek Fever.

Troop 28 Boys Scouts assisted with the Pinewood Derby Race. Rob Hillman officiated the computer for logging in and the race results. Quinten Hill, Dillon Marot and Davis Hillman set up the track and placed the cars in starting position. Cubmaster Roger Hill and Linda Farrag, Jane Long, Becky Bates McArthur and Andy Krueger organized the divisions and weighed the cars. It was an exciting evening at the raceway.

Spring event at Community Center

South Shore Community Center invites the public to its second Spring Around Town event, which will take place Saturday, April 30. The evening will consist of cocktails, dinner and desert, all at surprise venues around town.

OUR VIEW

They're off!

The Cohasset Road Race by the Sea is Sunday – but this week another important race kicks off in earnest: a four-way contest for two seats on the Board of Selectmen.

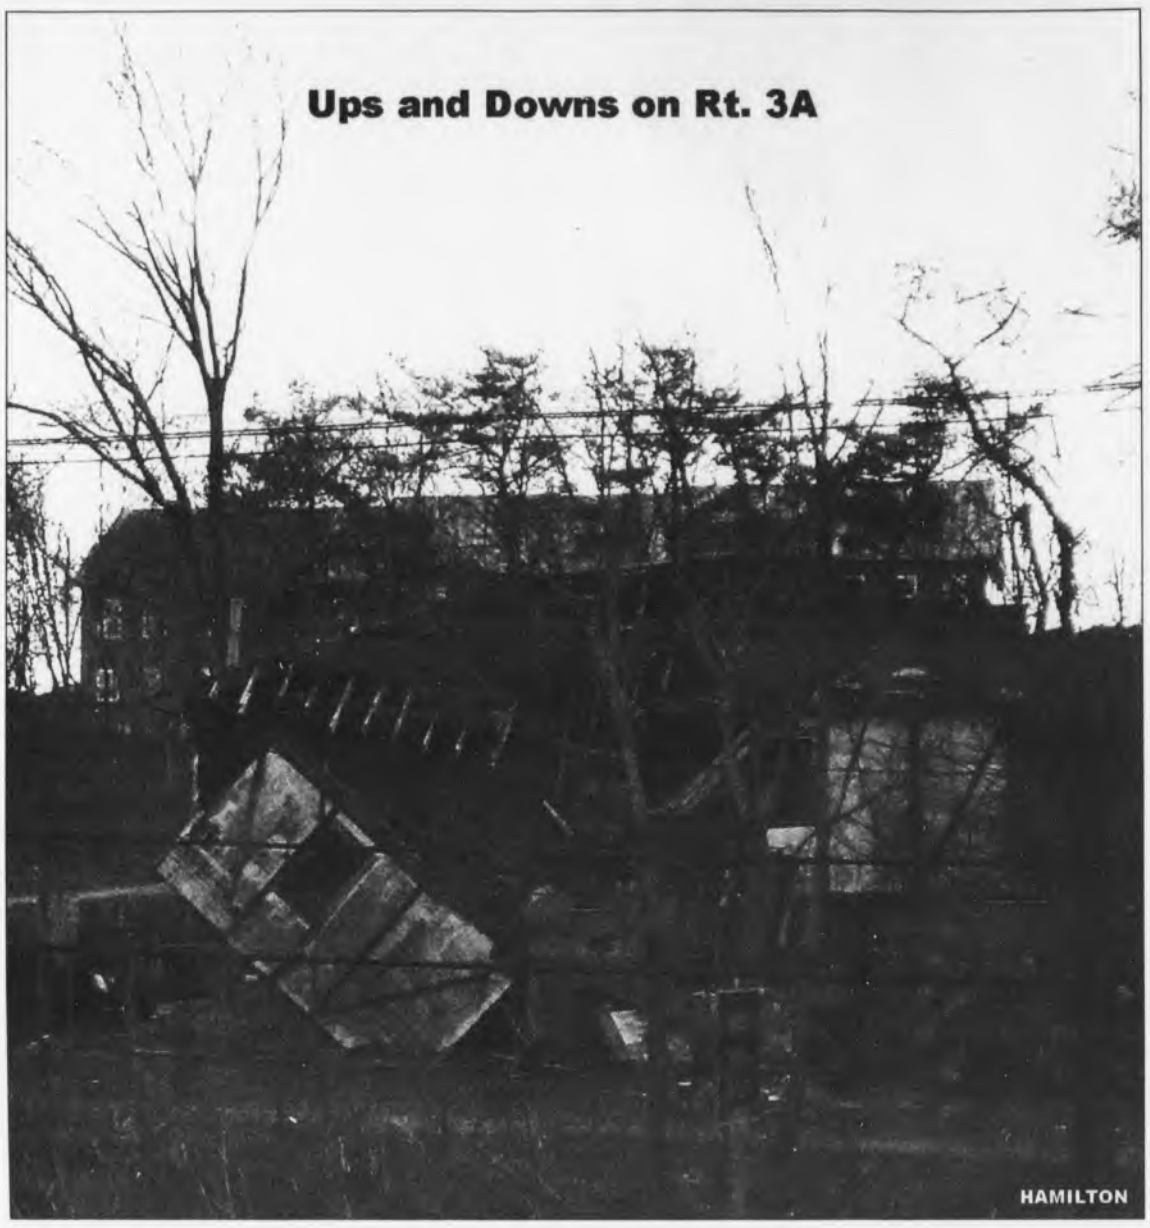
Long-time incumbent Fred Koed and current Selectmen Chairman Karen Quigley are both seeking reelection. Residents, Mary Snow and Diane Kennedy, have also thrown their hats into the ring.

As we have stated many times, election contests are healthy and can provide a great way to bring issues to the forefront and increase debate and excitement among the electorate.

We are starting our weekly Question of the Week posed to candidates in contested races.

Starting next week, we will feature candidates' answers to the Question of the Week. Responses should be brief — no more than 250 words — and must be received by noon, Wednesday. Candidates are asked to be specific and make every word count. Submissions will be cut if they exceed the word limit. (We use the word-count feature on the computer to determine the number of words.)

The following is the first Question of the Week for the selectmen candidates:



In the 1990s and early 2000s, Cohasset selectmen supported a policy of seeking a Proposition 2-1/2 override every three years to maintain services. That policy has fallen by the wayside. Would it make financial sense to seek more overrides?

Candidates may reply by e-mail at mford@wickedlocal.com; by fax at 781-741-2931, or by dropping off their responses at the Cohasset Mariner office in the Hingham Journal Building, 73 South St., Hingham Square. However they choose to deliver their answers, candidates should adhere to the noon, Wednesday deadline.

We will also publish a weekly Candidates' Corner, which will be limited to a few paragraphs (about 150 words) per week, from any candidate who chooses to submit dates of coffees, fund-raisers or short statements on issues.

The Mariner will not accept letters to the editor from candidates or letters endorsing or attacking particular candidates. The Mariner will publish letters about campaign issues from citizens not seeking election.

If you have questions, or would like to suggest a Question of the Week, call Mary Ford at 781-741-2933 or contact her by e-mail at mford@wickedlocal.com.

CANDIDATES CORNER

Diane Kennedy campaign events

Lisa and Kevin Dooley of 124 Doane Street will host a Meet the Candidate reception for Diane Kennedy at their home on Friday evening, April 1, at 7 p.m.

Diane is running for a seat on the Cohasset Board of Selectmen. RSVP: the4dooleys@comcast.net or 383-0958 and visit www.Kennedy4Cohasset.com to learn more.

Please join us on Wednesday evening, April 6th from 6-8 pm for an opportunity to meet candidate for Cohasset Selectman, Diane Kennedy. At Darilynn's in Cohasset Village 64 South Main St. RSVP to Darilynns@verizon.net

Karen Quigley kicks off campaign

An Open House to Kick-off Karen's Re-Election Campaign will be held between 3 and 5 p.m. Sunday, April 10 at the Lightkeepers House. If you know her, come to show your support. If you don't, come to meet her and talk about the issues and challenges facing Cohasset.

The only donation is to the Food Pantry. Please bring canned foods and/or non-perishables.

For more information about Karen and why you should give her one of your two votes for Selectman, visit the campaign website www.karen-quigley.com or call Karen at 781-383-6368.

Mary Snow hosts open house April 10

Board of Selectmen candidate Mary Snow will be holding an open house on Sunday, April 10th from 3-5 p.m. at the Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum located behind the Paul Pratt Library at 100 Sohier St.

Voters are encouraged to stop in and ask questions, voice their concerns and enjoy refreshments. Donations will be graciously accepted. For folks unable to attend, you may contact Mary at Marysnow2011@yahoo.com .

HEALTH NOTES

Family health and safety guide

STEVE BOBO

Many of us are surprised by the various disasters besetting various parts of the world these days. The media is rife with fires, earthquakes, etc. But in a small suburban town like Cohasset, the expectations for disaster at least within the scope of towns like us, are reasonably simple. Home fires are the most common disaster the Red Cross responds to and also the most preventable. It's appropriate to take a few simple precautions to avoid tragedies: First; Have working smoke alarms on every level of your home. Check batteries semi-annually. Create escape plans in place to get everyone out of the house safely.

The American Red Cross recommends that you:

- Identify two ways to escape from every room in the home.
- Practice your escape plan at least twice a year.
- Select a safe location away from home where your family can meet.
- Consider buying and storing escape ladders for rooms above ground level and train family to use them.
- If you must exit through smoke, crawl low under the smoke.
- Before escaping through a closed door, feel the door before opening it. If it is warm, use second route.
- If smoke, heat or flames block exit routes, stay in the room with door closed.
- Place a rolled towel beneath the door.
- Signal for help with brightly colored cloth or flashlight at the window.

If the phone works call 911 and tell them your exact location inside.

Steps to Preparedness

When doing periodic planning, at a minimum, keep the following supplies in a kit to use at home or evacuate:

- Water-one gallon per person. Carry a three-day supply for evacuation; keep two weeks as home supply.
- Food, non-perishable, easy to prepare; also carry 3 day for evacuation, two week at home)
- Flashlight, battery powered or hand crank; radio (NOAA Weather equipped, if possible)
- Extra batteries First aid kit, medications (seven day supply) Multipurpose tool;
- Sanitation and personal hygiene items.
- Copies of personal documents (medication list and pertinent medical information, proof of address, deed/lease to home, passports, birth certificates, insurance policies)
- Cell phone with chargers. Family and emergency contact information. Extra cash
- Emergency blanket Map(s) of the area

Consider the needs of all family members and add supplies to your kit. Suggested items to help meet additional needs are:

- Medical supplies (hearing aids with extra batteries)
- Glasses, contact lenses, syringes, cane)
- Baby supplies (bottles, formula, baby food, diapers)
- Games and activities for children
- Pet supplies (collar, leash, ID, food, carrier, bowl)
- Two-way radios
- Extra set of car keys and house keys
- Manual can opener
- Special for disasters common to small suburban towns like Cohasset
- Surgical masks
- Matches
- Rain gear
- Towels
- Work gloves
- Tools/supplies
- Sturdy clothing
- Plastic sheeting
- Duct tape
- Scissors
- Household liquid bleach
- Entertainment items
- Blankets
- Sleeping bags

Make a plan.

Meet with your family or household members and discuss how to prepare and respond to emergencies that are most likely to happen where you live, learn, work and play. Identify responsibilities for each member of your household and plan to work together as a team. If a family member is in the military, plan how you would respond if they were deployed.

Plan what to do in case you are separated during an emergency

Choose two places to meet: Right outside your home in case of a sudden emergency, such as a fire.

Outside your neighborhood, in case you cannot return home or are asked to evacuate.

Once this plan is articulated and the necessary work is done check the condition of the plans as you would any other part of your inventory of needs such as the lawnmower in spring; or when you check the smoke detector. Generally the time for planning around Cohasset is in the fall — and, of course, during special events such as major weather disturbances or large local storms.

Choose an out of area emergency contact person. It's probably easier to text or call long distance.

Plan on local phone lines being overloaded or out of service. Everyone should have emergency contact information in writing or programmed into cell phones.

For more information call Tara Tradd 781-383-4116.

Steve Bobo is a longtime member of the Cohasset Board of Health.

FOR THE RECORD

Now a word from your sponsor...

GREGORY MATHIS

One of the things we don't do often enough is promote the good work we do in the community.

From an editorial standpoint, our focus is to remain as objective as possible in our coverage of the community, although you will find some subjectivity – our opinion or the opinion of others – on our editorial pages (clearly noted Opinion or Forum at the top of the page).

Recently I wrote about the number of awards our group received from a prestigious regional New England editorial contest. That kind of self-promotion is even more uncomfortable for us to write about, because let's face it, we're not the news. It's our job to report the news.

So I'll spare you from more self-promotion, but I do want to let you know there are ample opportunities available for us to help promote and sponsor community events that matter to you.

Fortunately we have a very competent promotions department that works with organizations all over eastern Massachusetts to assist with a variety of events.

One of the sponsor partnerships we're most proud of is our longstanding relationship with the American Cancer Society and its Relay For Life program. GateHouse Media New England, the parent company of your weekly newspaper, has been a corporate sponsor of the community Relay For Life events for the last four years. Prior to that, as Community Newspaper Company, the association dates back to at least 2001. During that time the number of sites nationwide has grown tremendously, as has the amount of money raised for cancer research. We're proud to be a corporate sponsor.

This year, there will be 35 Relay events taking place across Massachusetts that will be sponsored by GateHouse Media New England, including: Abington, Braintree, Cohasset, Marshfield, Weymouth, Bridgewater, Lakeville, Middleboro, Taunton, and Plymouth. Of course residents from many surrounding towns participate in one of the Relay events at locations listed above, so the program reaches far wider than the many towns noted.

What you might not know, however, is our sponsorship of community events goes beyond the Relay For Life. For a list of upcoming events GateHouse is backing, log on to:

http://community.wickedlocal.com/events/.

Here in Cohasset, we sponsor the annual Citizen of the Year selection process and reception.

Requesting sponsorship assistance is as easy as a few clicks of the mouse. The link can be found at http://community.wickedlocal.com/ or on your Wicked Local homepage. Hover over the first option on the main navigation bar you'll see an option to "Submit Your News." Click on that link and it will take you to a page that reads: "Share your news, photos and events with us." Scroll to the bottom on that page and you'll see a link titled "Ask us to sponsor your next event." When you click on that link, it will take you to an online form that will go directly to the GateHouse Media New England promotions department.

We take great pride in participating in as many of your community events as possible and the online form helps us streamline the request process, as collectively our newspapers reach 1.7 million readers and our websites have 2.9 million unique online visitors. As you might imagine, our promotions department receives a number of requests from organizers of community and non-profit events across Eastern Massachusetts. We obviously can't meet every request, but we try our best to find a way to help out in the communities we cover.

Gregory Mathis is editor-in-chief of GateHouse Media New England's South unit, with offices in Marshfield, Plymouth and Raynham.

CHIEF'S CORNER

CEA, police join forces

MARK DELUCA

The Cohasset Police Department is excited to announce its latest partnership with Cohasset Elder Affairs, Fire Department and Norfolk Sheriff's Department introducing Safety Net. Safety Net is the newest technology offered by Lojack. This technology would aid public safety in locating individuals diagnosed with Alzheimer's, Autism or any other affliction, who may have wandered from their homes or are otherwise lost.

Under the direction of Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Belotti, members of Cohasset's Police Department, Fire Department and Coral Grande from Elder Affairs were trained this past week in the use of this program. Instructors from the Norfolk Sheriff's Department were Deputy Superintendent Bill Knight and Sergeant Bill Morgan. Eligible recipients of this program will wear bracelets that transmit a signal that is received by equipment designed to pick up the signal. This technology will enhance public safety's ability to quickly recover lost persons , minimizing potential harm.

This technology would aid public safety in locating individuals diagnosed with Alzheimer's, Autism or any other affliction, who may have wandered from their homes or are otherwise lost.

Below is a website with information regarding the program and its cost. Any resident who may qualify for this program and cannot afford it should contact Coral Grande from Cohasset Elder Affairs or the Cohasset Police Department for assistance. The Cohasset Police will have brochures for this program in the police lobby. Additional information will be given to all local doctors' offices, Sunrise Assisted Living and Golden Living Center in the coming weeks. Department contact for this program is Sgt. Jeff Treanor, (781)-383-1212 x 1034

For information on this new program, contact Lojack at 1-877-FIND-THEM (434-6384) or visit: www.SafetyNetByLoJack.com

Fiscal Year 2011 actual tax bills issued

The Town of Cohasset has issued the fiscal year 2011 actual tax bills, which include the billing for the third quarter and the fourth quarter. The fiscal year 2011 property tax assessments and the new Little Harbor Sewer Betterments will be reflected on this tax bill. The fiscal year 2011 tax rate is $11.59 per thousand dollars of assessment. The tax bills are due on May 2.

Applications for Abatement of Real or Personal Property Tax must be received in the Assessors' Office by the close of business on Monday, May 2.

SENIOR SCENE

Cohasset Café opens April 11

LOUISE SMULLEN

Here we are into spring. Old man winter was loathed to leave, giving snow showers and cool temperatures during the first week of spring. However, signs of the season can be seen all around. Birds are singing, lilac buds are plump, crocus in bloom and daffodils coming right along. Also the male goldfinches are beginning to don their spring coats of golden yellow.

Spring is bringing with it the opening of the Cohasset Café at the Lightkeepers on April 11 from 9 to 11 a.m. Drop in and visit with old friends and new while enjoying a good mug of coffee and pastries to go with it. If you need transportation, give the Center a call at 781-383-9112 by the Friday before, and arrangements will be made to pick you up.

Officer Gregg Hartnett, the Cohasset Police Department's liaison with the CEA, quite often puts in an appearance at the luncheons. At one seminar he spoke about what to do in an emergency, such as many experienced in one of our bad snowstorms during the winter. There were many power outages and loss of telephone service.

At the same program, Mary Goodwin, town nurse, told about the emergency center at Deer Hill School. In case of power outages, one can go to the school. Cots, food and showers are provided. Be sure to bring your meds, glasses, one day's supply of clothing and a towel. No pets allowed.

We've been introduced to the Knox-Box Rapid Entry system. This is a high security key box. It allows fire and EMS personnel faster access to your home in an emergency instead of using force if you are unable to open the door because of a medical problem. If you wish to know more about this, please contact Cohasset Elder Affairs or the fire department.

We've been introduced to the Knox-Box Rapid Entry system. This is a high security key box.

Native son, Nate Murray, spoke at one of the seminars. With him was Kim Griffin, LSW, both of Visiting Angels. Their topic was taking care of your brain and ways to help stave off memory loss. They introduced their program by dancing a few steps of the cha-cha. It seems that ballroom dancing can keep you sharp.

Kim Griffin visited again to speak about navigating your way through hospital, rehab and nursing facility stays. She explained how the different systems work and how Medicare, supplemental, and private insurance help with the cost. As always, the topic was open for questions and discussion.

Perhaps you saw the photos in last week's Mariner of the annual corned beef dinner at St. Anthony's Parish Hall. Anna Abbruzzese, Paul Guinee, and Dan Volungis were chief chefs, aided by other wonderful volunteers. We enjoyed our dinner as we listened to familiar Irish melodies played on the accordion by Fran Collins. Lastly, three little tots, a boy and twin sisters, treated the gathering to some lively Irish step dancing.

We bid good-bye to March and look forward to April and sunshine and some showers, too.

Louise Smullen's column runs monthly in the Cohasset Mariner.

Is your teenager 'troubled?'

Back by popular demand, the Cohasset Special Education Parent's Advisory Council is hosting Dr. Barbara Green. Dr. Green, who has a clinical practice in Hingham, will present "Your Teen... Troubled or Typical?"

Dr. Green will help families identify how to recognize a troubled child versus normal adolescent behavior. She will give families information on how to deal with typical teens and how to get professional help when needed. This is your chance to gain knowledge from and speak to Dr. Green! Dr. Barbara Green is a clinical psychologist and founder/director of Youth Health Connection.

The presentation will provide an overview of normal adolescent development and the spectrum of mental health concerns which may arise during the teen years. Discussion will include statistics, signs and symptoms and assistance in accessing evaluation and treatment should it be appropriate. We know that normal adolescence can be a roller coaster time emotionally, socially, and academically. Fortunately, we have good research and resources now available to provide points of reference and help. Many mental health concerns are first demonstrated during adolescence and the earlier identified the easier and more successfully they can be addressed. A fundamental goal is to reduce stigma for mental health issues and to help parents develop a foundation of understanding for distinguishing typical from troubled and to reach out for help when uncertain.

As part of her community service, Dr. Green acts as lead clinician for Cohasset Coalition for a Caring Community (CC4CC) as part of the diverse town-wide organization supporting a community of RESPECT.

Dr. Green's presentation is part of the Cohasset SEPAC's monthly meeting to discuss educational topics of interest to the community. The meeting will be held Tuesday, April 5 at the Paul Pratt Library at 7:00PM for coffee and conversation and 7:30-9PM for Dr. Green. Admission is free. Please check our website at:

www.CohassetSEPAC.org for more information about Dr. Green and other presentations throughout the South Shore.

Pint-sized scientists

Hands-on learning in Osgood STEM lab

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

The future's great scientists, doctors, mathematicians and engineers may be sitting at desks in the Joseph Osgood School.

This school year, Cohasset's youngest students are being given the opportunity to experience science in a hands-on discovery environment to nurture the students' interest and knowledge in the sciences.

The Osgood STEM lab (STEM is an acronym standing for science, technology, engineering and mathematics) is a classroom laboratory, equipped with the latest in learning technology.

In the lab, the students get hands-on experience, interactive activity, learn the scientific method and understand science phenomena. The STEM lab was made a reality through a $23,000 donation from the PSO last year.

"The lab affords our students the opportunity to have a real authentic learning experience in the classroom. We really want to get kids excited about science," Osgood Principal Janet Sheehan said as she watched the student's eyes light up when they saw the fizz produced from dropping an antacid tablet into a cup of water.

"The ultimate goal is to get kids excited about science," Sheehan said.

And excited they are.

"The lab is awesome. It's fun to do the projects and not just look at a piece of paper," said second grader Kira Jamieson.

In the lab, the students transform into pint-sized scientists by donning lab aprons and safety goggles (if needed). They sit at miniature lab desks (Osgood had to find a company to cut off part of the tables legs to make them appropriate for the primary school) and the teacher puts on a white lab coat with "Osgood School Lab" monogrammed on the left side to lead the lesson.

Each teacher has a dedicated weekly scheduled block in the STEM lab so all 430 students get a chance to get their hands dirty, so to speak. Teachers can book additional time, too, as available.

"It's a nice place to roll up your sleeves," Sheehan said. "Just the idea of the STEM lab gets them excited. If the kids miss their time in the lab they are upset."

The teachers, too, have embraced the STEM lab.

"The teachers are very willing to take risks. They are so excited, they're trying new things and sharing ideas with each other," Sheehan said. "It's amazing how much more fun learning is in that environment. It's very motivating for students and teachers."

The teachers, who have received basic training on the STEM equipment, can use existing learning programs or develop their own to suit a particular curriculum unit or learning objective. The lab is equipped with the latest of interactive learning technology: a SMART board, a SMART table, a document camera and digital microscope.

Second grader Chloe Cichanowski stirs sodium bicarbonate into the water dyed green.

Second grader Quinn Havlicek puts her book on whales under the digital projector so that her classmates could see what text features she used.

The Osgood STEM lab follows in the footsteps of the Deer Hill STEM lab, which was donated to the school by the Cohasset Education Foundation in 2008.

The STEM labs at both the Osgood and Deer Hill are unique across the state, and possibly the nation. Sheehan said she has tried to locate schools that have similar setups, but has found they are few and far between at the elementary level.

"We're so lucky to have the support of the PSO. (To have this STEM lab) is really, really unique and we're hoping to see the benefits down the line," Sheehan said.

Increased interest in the sciences, and science-related career opportunities as well as improvements in standardized test scores are just two of the projected benefits of the lab, Sheehan said.

This past Wednesday, a second grade class led by Mrs. Barbara Wells saw first hand the different states of matter – liquid, gas and solid.

Before the STEM lab this type of lessons were done in the more traditional classroom setting, but the lab gives the experience a whole new feel.

"At the PSO our goal is to maximize our student's educational experience. By having the STEM lab at this young age, it's going to get them on the right track," said PSO president Jenni Milanoski. "The students are excited about it, the teachers are excited about it and those two things are really important to us."

Sponsoring programs that provide a hands-on experience to students and support and enrich the curriculum is key focus of the PSO. All yearlong the PSO brings programs and projects to complement classroom learning. The PSO has spent more than $8000 each at Osgood and Deer Hill on curriculum enrichment programs. They also routinely bring programs to the Middle High School as well.

The STEM lab is a space to provide curriculum enhancement everyday, Milanoski said.

More than simply a place for science experiments, the STEM lab is equipped with the technology to enhance lessons across the curriculum.

On Wednesday, Karen McDavitt's second grade class was sharing recently completed non-fiction books with the aid of the lab's document camera and SMART board.

"We've always gone had a process of sharing our writing...but before the lab we couldn't achieve this level of sharing and interaction," McDavitt said. A student placed his/her book, both with writing and illustrations, underneath the document camera and the book was enlarged on the 55-inch screen for the whole class to see.

The student presenter talked about their book and McDavitt made it an interactive experience by asking the student audience questions about what was on the screen.

"The lab isn't just for science and experimenting – it's for anything (the students) do in their days," McDavitt said.

Jacob's Meadow culvert project nearing completion

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

"Both the speed and volume of water exchanging will be infinitely better."
— Mark Brennan, engineer overseeing project

Next to the American Legion Hall is the only means water from Jacob's Meadow is exchanged with water from Cohasset Harbor — and that pathway has been in desperate need of repair for several years.

The culvert was physically collapsing and, as a result, was significantly obstructing the flow of water into and out of Jacob's Meadow. The effect was some serious flooding issues on the Elm Street properties that abut the meadow over the past several years.

In early December work crews began carefully de-constructing and re-constructing the culvert on the Legion/Jacob's Meadow side. The winter weather hampered the project's speed, but the project is nearing an end, hopefully in time for the spring rains.

"Not only have we had fun weather to deal with, we've also had the tides to deal with...it's been a long siege," said Mark Brennan, the town's engineer overseeing the project.

The heavy-duty construction is expected to be complete this week with the pouring of concrete for the culvert walls. The anticipated installation control panel and sluice gate is mid-April, Brennan said.

The project has a price tag of $450,000 and is being paid for by a capital infrastructure improvement grant received from the state in 2009.

The James Brook/Jacob's Meadow watershed covers over 860 acres of town. The James Brook watershed begins at Sanctuary Pond spreads out to the MBTA right-of-way and the former Edison plant on North Main and ends at Jacob's Meadow, which flows into the harbor.

In recent years major storm events have caused severe flooding in Jacob's Meadow. The intense flow of stormwater has caused the wastewater treatment plant, located on Jacob's Meadow to overflow, and flooded basements and backyards on Elm Street properties abutting the meadow.

The new design of the tide gates and a smoother channel are expected to provide two benefits, according to Brennan: increased flood control by allowing more water to empty from Jacob's Meadow and salt marsh restoration by allowing more salt water into the meadow to control phragmite growth.

"The project is impressive – the before and after is stark. To say the difference is night and day doesn't do it justice," Brennan said.

The new culvert is 2.5-times bigger than the previous culvert. It is a six-by-10 foot box.

"Both the speed and volume of water exchanging will be infinitely better," Brennan said.

In addition to speed, the new culvert and tide gates give the town "a lot more control in what goes in and out of the meadow," Brennan said. "This is a project that will benefit the town for years to come."

The project has been in the works since 2007. Brennan and his fellow town engineer Tom Gruber have worked closely with town officials and state regulatory agencies, in particular Coastal Zone Management, to bring the project to reality.

CAPITAL

needs for capital expenditures, from building repairs to vehicle purchases to investments in technology. Town Meeting has final say over how the capital stabilization fund is spent.

The anticipated amount in the stabilization fund for fiscal 2012 is $614,000. A Town Meeting article requesting a transfer of roughly $480,000 needs to be approved to reach that anticipated number (see sidebar).

The largest recommended purchase is for the town-wide accounting software system. A total of $91,000 would pay for the licensing of the software, as well as its implementation, in fiscal 2012. The purchase of a new accounting software system has been a recommendation of the last several town management audits. The current system is inefficient and creates redundancy within the town, officials have said. The Capital Budget Committee has also recommended paying the annual licensing fee of $34,600 over the next three years from the stabilization fund (future town meeting votes for this may be required).

The Board of Selectmen requested the capital purchase. The selectmen also requested $20,000 to complete the permitting and engineering related to the Bound Brook dam and culvert on Beechwood Street, which is in desperate need of re-construction.

A purchase of kitchen equipment for Osgood School, which has never had the ability to cook its own food, and Deer Hill School is also recommended. The request of $15,000 will purchase a commercial stove and ovens for Osgood and ancillary equipment for Deer Hill.

School department requests for visitor bleachers at Alumni Field and computers for classrooms were deferred.

The Capital Budget Committee recommended the capital purchase of several new computers and technology equipment ($10,000) for the fire department to facilitate the town's integration to the Regional Dispatch Center.

The tennis courts on Bancroft Road are the only courts in town. The Recreation Department requested $25,000 to refurbish the court surface and repair a retaining wall.

"These public courts receive regular and heavy use by the public, as well as the high school teams," Gaumer said. The courts have not been resurfaced in about 15 years.

The Capital Budget Committee supported two requests from the police department: a $20,000 request for a state-mandated cell upgrade and $31,000 request for a new marked cruiser.

Other requests, including a $10,000 for library public access computers, $15,000 for police firearm replacement and $14,000 for a fire department thermal imaging camera, were not recommended by the Capital Budget Committee.

How the capital stabilization fund works

The capital stabilization fund was created at the 2008 Annual Town Meeting as a mechanism to fund future capital purchases. At each subsequent annual town meeting, the voters have been asked to authorize a transfer of "roll-off" from the town's non-excluded debt service schedule to the capital stabilization fund for the end of fiscal year.

The idea is to use the portion of the budget that had been previously used to pay for capital purchases to maintain and replace the town's capital assets.

An article at the upcoming Town Meeting requests voters to transfer roughly $480,000, which is a combination of the reduction of non-excluded debt service and funding (about $33,000) that went unused from previous capital expenditure authorizations.

Recommendations at a glance

Department	Capital item	Cost
Schools	Kitchen equipment for Osgood and Deer Hill	$15,000
Fire	Computer equipment necessary to integrate with Regional Dispatch Center	$10,000
Recreation	Refurbishment of the tennis court surfaces and repair of the retaining wall	$25,000
Police	State mandates cell upgrade	$20,000
	Marked cruiser	$31,000
Selectmen	Town-wide accounting software	$91,000

Volunteers needed for Shine program

Norfolk County regional SHINE program is currently recruiting volunteers to be trained as Serving the Health Information Needs of Elders counselors, The SHINE program is sponsored by the Executive Office of Elder Affairs and staffed by a network of volunteer counselors who provide information, counseling and assistance to Medicare beneficiaries.

Volunteers participate in a 12-day training program that provides a broad understanding of Medicare, Medicare Supplement Insurance, Medicare HMOs, the Medicare Prescription Drug Program and a number of public benefit programs. Volunteers receive certification from the Executive Office of Elder Affairs upon completion of the training program. A training session will start Monday, May 16.

Those who are looking for a volunteer experience that is interesting, challenging and offers a great deal of fulfillment, this is it.

For more information, call the SHINE program at 800-243-4636.

NAME: Melissa Daigle
SCHOOL: Rockland
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Point guard
STATS: Melissa Daigle hit her stride in mid January when she scored 69 total points on the week, including 22 against Hanover, 30 against Hull, and 7 against Norwell. According to her coach, Daigle plays hard from the opening tap to the final buzzer.

NAME: Megan Otto
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Guard/Forward
STATS: Otto led Scituate with 15.6 points per game, scoring 374 points over the season. She chipped in 6 rebounds per game. Always seemed to make the big bucket when it was needed.

NAME: Amanda Hawkesworth
SCHOOL: Abington
YEAR: Sophomore
POSITION: Forward
STATS: This is Hawkesworth's second appearance on the Super team and it won't be her last as she leads and impressive group of underclassmen into the 2011-12 season and beyond. Coach Steve Moore calls Amanda a "workhorse" at both ends of the court.

NAME: Kelly Martin
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Sophomore
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Martin is the spark that makes Scituate run. She averaged 12.3 points per game and 7.1 assists per contest to go with 3.3 steals and 4 rebounds. Beyond the numbers, Martin is a fantastic playmaker on both ends of the floor, and her speed and tenacity create turnovers and wreak havoc on opponents. She also made 78 percent of her free throws.

YEAR: Senior
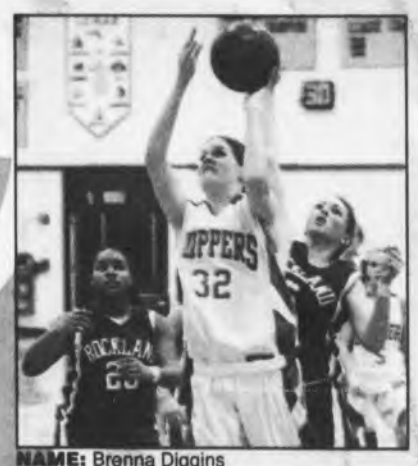
POSITION: Forward
STATS: The greatest female basketball player in the history of Marshfield High School, Beresford average 22.9 points per game and scored 458 points during the regular season, second best in the state in both categories. The Atlantic Coast League all-star is the school's all-time leading scorer.

NAME: Erin Doherty
SCHOOL: Marshfield
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: The Atlantic Coast League all-star was the second-highest scorer in the ACL, averaging 14 points per game. The go-to player down low when Beresford was double-teamed, Doherty was also strong on the boards, and she played a huge part in securing the Rams' second straight ACL title.



NAME: Michela North
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Sophomore
POSITION: Center
STATS: North averaged 17.5 points per game and scored 333 points during the regular season, second best in both categories in the Patriot League this winter. Also named to the Patriot League all-star team.

NAME: Shannon Brady
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Center
STATS: Brady averaged 13.6 points per game and added a solid 8.9 rebounds. She was especially strong on the offensive boards, pulling down 112 of her team-high 214 rebounds on the offensive end. She added 2.6 blocks per game. Played some of her best games against top competition.

NAME: Carli Haggerty
SCHOOL: Cohasset
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Haggerty stepped up big to average 18 points per game and contributed outstanding defense as well. In a playoff game against Blue Hills, she dominated with a stretch of 13 straight points, a bunch of steals and 21 points in the first half to set the tone for a dominating victory.

NAME: Brenna Diggins
SCHOOL: Norwell
YEAR: Sophomore
POSITION: Center
STATS: Averaged a double-double throughout the season, including a string of 19 double-doubles in 20 games. A South Shore League all-star, Diggins was in the top three in the league in scoring, rebounds, and blocked shots, helping the Lady Clippers win the South Shore League title and post their best record ever at 21-2.

NAME: Paige Marshal
SCHOOL: Braintree
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Junior point guard Paige Marshall was a Bay State Conference all-star for the second straight season. She was second in scoring on the Wamps behind McKenney, the second leading scorer in the conference, and led the Wamps in assists.

Skippers put title in past, shoot for new one

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The feeling of winning a title is still something special for the Cohasset baseball team and coach Pete Afanasiw, but with opening day just a day away, Afanasiw knows it's time to be moving on.

"I tried to beat that out of their heads," Afanasiw said of his team. "It's still kind of surreal. We talked about it the first day. There's a nice banner in the gym, but that was last year's team. We have to create our own identity this year. Hopefully that will come off the shoulders of experience in how we can get there again."

Cohasset has the weapons to do it.

They lost Brendan Doonan, Andy McKenna and Kevin O'Connell to graduation, but have plenty back.

It starts with Jeff Cavanaro and Drew Cobin.

"Brendan got so much attention over the past several years and he deserved it," Afanasiw said. "But what what went overlooked was the work Drew Cobin did during the regular season to get us there. Brendan was unavailable until about the 17th game. Drew and Jeff did

New coach takes helm

Tom Flanagan steps into big shoes as Cohasset enters a new boys lacrosse era

It won't be easy for the Cohasset High School boys lacrosse team to top its performance from last year, when it went 22-2 and won the Division 3 state championship – the school's third title in the past five years.

For one thing, there's the transition period which is always a factor in high school sports. Cohasset's biggest graduation losses were up front, where star attackmen Will-

BIG DREAMS

a great job. When Brendan came back, Drew took his more limited role in the postseason really well."

This year, it will be up to Cobin and Cavanaro to lead the way.

"One key is if we can get two solid games from those two each week," Afanasiw said. "They're a solid 1-2 punch."

The notoriety of a title has helped a resurgence in numbers for baseball.

"We had close to 40 kids try out," Afanasiw said. "That's the hardest part of coaching, making cuts. The interest is there. That bodes well for the program."

Many who tried out will be waiting in the wings with the JV.

For the new season, Afanasiw plans on carrying 13 players on the varsity.

Most are returnees from the title team.

"Some teams carry 22 or 23 players," Afanasiw said. "Some of them are just pitchers. I don't feel we need that. I'd rather have Cavanaro in the field on days he's not pitching."

Last year's squad was young, with two freshmen starting and four sophomores.

With so many players returning, Afanasiw already has a feel for his lineup.

"I'm waiting for Shane Haggerty to have a big season," he said. "He'll bat leadoff and will play centerfield. When he got on, he made the lineup click."

Anders Goetz will be high in the lineup as well.

"It will be hard for Anders to repeat the numbers he had," Afanasiw said. "He hit .570. He's geared up."

Cavanaro is expected to move into the No. 3 spot in the lineup with Jamie Faber hitting cleanup.

Jamie Timothy will be right behind him.

Other returners on the team include Mike Monaco, Sean McKenna, Connor Goetz and Chris Murphy.

Newcomers include Pat Kearney, who was at B.C. High and played for the Cohasset/Scituate American Legion team over the summer. Kearney should be in the outfield mix.

Cohasset is scheduled to open at Scituate on Saturday morning at 10 a.m., although weather could change that.

The opener is a perfect fit for the Skippers, who mix with Scituate players in the summer for American Legion play.

"I wouldn't call it a heated rivalry," Afanasiw said of Scituate. "Abington, East Bridgewater are more heated. Scituate is more of a fun rivalry."

Last season, Scituate won theopener by a big score, but Cohasset came back and won a 17-16 barnburner in the second game of the season.

That said, Afanasiw, who is also Cohasset's football coach, is looking at the season in a practical way.

"We'll take it one game at a time," he said. "If we do that bigger things will take care of themselves."

COACH

Wise (137 points last year) and Dean Driscoll moved on to what should be solid collegiate careers. Goalkeeper Jack Murphy was another savvy senior who played a major role in the championship season, and leaves big cleats to fill.

But the biggest change may be at the coaching position, where longtime mentor Stu Curran left the Skippers to take a similar position at Thayer Academy. Curran's top assistant. Anthony Roman, also left, taking over as head coach at Norwood High. Cohasset selected long-time South Shore lacrosse figure Tom Flanagan, an assistant coach at Marshfield last year, for the unenviable task of following Curran.

"I feel very humbled and fortunate to get this job," Flanagan said Tuesday, before the Skippers' second practice of the spring. "This is a great group of players, very energetic, with a lot of chemistry – but last year's over. I'm keeping my cards pretty close to the vest so far, but I know we have some outstanding talent coming back, like Thomas Flibotte, Alex Kinnealey, and Sam Leahy.

"I have no worries about any particular position, and I really feel like stepping into this job is an honor."

Flanagan played high school lacrosse in his native New Jersey, then entered the military service upon graduation. After his service career he settled on the South Shore, and has since coached and played all over the area, including a long stint with Hingham Youth Lacrosse and as head coach at Norwell High before coaching at Marshfield.

Flanagan, therefore, knows many of the players on his new team.

"I have coached against most of these guys for 18 years," he laughed.

"I was at Norwell for five years, then at Marshfield more recently, and active in youth programs all over, so I know most of these players already.

I'm excited and thrilled to be here coaching them, and we'll be ready to go when the season starts."

Flanagan has assembled an impressive staff, with Matt Pageant and Greg Paul following him from Hingham, while Cohasset's own Jake Previte is making his coaching debut.

Cohasset's Thomas Flibbote (17) winds up for a shot in fourth quarter action of last year's MIAA Div. 3 Championship game. Flibotte, who returns for this season, had a hat trick in the victory. STAFF FILE PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

Returning from last year's staff is defensive specialist Adam Hardej, widely credited with being a huge factor in the Skippers' recent success. "Adam is a great defensive coach, and we are lucky enough to have him staying with us," said Flanagan. "Jake Previte, a local legend, is coming back. And Greg and Matt are two guys I taught the game to in Hingham years ago.

"I coach this team about 80 percent of the way, and these younger guys in their 20s provide the rest of the knowledge, relating to the kids in a different way.

"And one more advantage," Flanagan added, "is that we have Alex Kinnealey, one of the top faceoff men in the state. Matt Pageant is one of the toughest faceoff men I've ever seen, so Alex will be able to sharpen his skills by going against him every day."

The Skipper seniors are all dedicated to the notion of not looking back. Several have already decided where they'll be playing college lacrosse, like Kinnealey (Colgate), Leahy (University of Albany), and Flibotte (Bucknell), but for now, the four co-captains' goal is leading the 2011 squad to another winning campaign.

"We lost some good players to graduation, but we also returned a lot of good players," said Kinnealey. "We have high expectations. We all know, as state champs, we'll have targets on our backs this year, and we have also added some tough teams to the schedule."

"Having a new coach doesn't add to the pressure, but as seniors we want to set the tone," Kinnealey continued. "Change is always good. (Curran) got a good opportunity at Thayer, and we can't blame him for taking it. But we're definitely excited about playing for coach Flanagan, and we know him from the places he's worked before."

"We've already forgotten about last year," said Flibotte.

"We don't even talk about it.

Yes, we lost two good attackmen, but we feel we have the people to fill those positions.

Our focus is totally on our first game, March 31, against Martha's Vineyard. We only have seven practices before our first game, so we have to focus right away."

"I think we're all pretty excited to start the new season," said Jake Kissick. "We have young kids stepping in to take over where we need them. We have a very good group of freshman. Mainly these first few practices with coach Flanagan have been very intense, and we love it.

We love it, because we know we need it."

"I think, because of the players we know we lost, we all know we have to be more focused from the start," added Justin Yeager. "We are more intense, trying to show the younger kids how it's done.

"Playing for coach Flanagan has been a lot of fun so far, but we have seven games before the Chowda Cup in mid-April, so we all realize we have to get it together pretty quickly."

Flanagan seems to be reveling in his new job, interrupting the practice routine at intervals to have the team drop and perform push-ups, and barking encouragement as they run laps.

During a shooting drill, he's showing the players how to keep the ball low, aiming for a corner of the net. On an opposite side of the field, a group of long-stick defenders practice poke checks on each other, while younger players perform throwing-on-the-run drills at the far end of the field.

"We did 200 push-ups in the snow (Monday), in the parking lot and on the turf field," Flanagan noted with a grin. "We'll probably do 250 by the end of today. We did our first practice in the snow, and now we're playing in the mud. I love it.

"We have about 45 kids here, which is about perfect for two teams (varsity and junior varsity). We'll play a physical brand of lacrosse: If it moves, we'll hit it.

"I'm concerned mostly with building men, and what happens on the field is whatever happens," Flanagan continued.

"The key to this game is you must have a love of the game in your heart.

"Coming off a state championship and a 22-2 season, we won't sneak up on anybody.

But I had my eyes wide open when I came here, and we'll be ready to go."

SOUTH COASTAL HOCKEY ROUNDUP

Saints hold off Toros

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The Toros and the Saints are on a collision course to meet in the up coming Legends Div. playoffs in the South Coastal Hockey League.

The two teams gave an indication of what might to expect as Mike Ryan scored a first period goal assisted by Hanover's Tom Shaughnessy and goaltender Justin Stratton of Marshfield stopped 20 shots as the Saints held off the Toros, 1-0.

Marshfield's Richard Petrosino and Harry Denley scored second period goals and Norwell's Dana Dolabany scored in the third period as the Sharks clinched the top seed in the Legends Div. playoffs with a 3-0 win over the Crusaders. Rick Kelly of Hanover and Barry Kaiser combined to stop 24 shots between them for the shutout.

In the other Legends Div. game, Kevin Mackin of Duxbury scored a goal in regulation and scored the deciding goal in the shoot out to give the Whalers a 4-3 win over the Stingers. Scituate's Steve Concannon had a goal and an assist and Bill Carrico scored for the Whalers, who won the shootout, 3-1.

Pembroke's Steve Lemish had a goal and an assist, Dave Christensen also of Pembroke and Peter MacPherson of Hanover added a goal each for the Stingers.

Steve Mudge of Marshfield scored two goals, Pembroke's Jim Smith, Norwell's Don Studley, Chris Harrington also of Marshfield and Jeff Gauthier added a goal each as the Maple Leafs crusied to a 6-1 Classics Div. win over the Bruins.

Tom MacInnes scored an unassisted goal for the Bruins.

Vin Joyce scored three goals, Kevin Ryan and Drew Fitzgerald had a goal each as the Black Hawks rolled past the Rangers, 5-1 in a Classics Div.

game.

Mike Crisp scored the goal for the Rangers.

Kirk Souza, Mike Fahie of Pembroke and Tom Lema and Tim McCrystal both of Marshfield each had a goal and an assist to lead the Canadiens to a 6-2 win over the Red Wings in a Classics Div. game.

Duxbury's Don Dudley and Michael Fay both added a goal for the Canadiens.

Kevin Barnard and Tom Pipenbrink both scored a goal each for the Red Wings.

cisive 3-1 victory in the championship game.

In the first game, Select raced out to a 3-0 half time lead en route to a 6-0 victory over NEFC Liverpool. The defense anchored by Brooke Jones (Rockland), Alyssa Fleming (Marshfield), Annie Pyne (Cohasset) and Dorothy Tilden (Hanover) did not even allow a shot on goal during the contest.

Select started fast in the second contest scoring just 20 seconds in to the game when Sam Smith's (Hanson) shot found the net after a pretty pass from Gabby DelPico (Brockton). DelPico added two more goals of her own in the contest and the goaltending tandem of Olivia Papay (Weymouth) and Bethany Dunk (Brockton) posted their second consecutive shutout en route to the 4-0 victory over the Oakwood (CT) Soccer Club.

Sunday featured two more games for the girls and they were once again up to the task. The first game pitted Select against the Red Stars who were undefeated in the tournament up to this point. Meghan McDonough (Rockland) started the scoring early with a bullet into the corner of the net and Catherine Barry (Hingham) took advantage of a goalie miscue to make it 2-0 halfway through the first half. Daley Tilden (Hanover) continued to apply pressure to the Red Stars defense in the second half as the Select offense put up 3 more tallies and won the contest 6-1.

The championship game on Sunday proved to be the best challenge of the weekend when they played the NEFC Revs for the title. Select fell behind 1-0 early in the contest but rallied back to tie the score at 1 before halftime. With a stiff wind at their back in the second half, Select dominated the game and got the go ahead goal from Catherine Barry after a nice feed from Maeve Humphrey (Cohasset). Sam Smith put the finishing touches on the game with a laser into the top corner with under 5 minutes to play to seal the victory and the championship.

Overall, it was a very successful weekend and truly a complete team effort as they helped a teammate find a cure while helping each win a tournament. This is the third consecutive tournament championship for this team over the past 6 months. Select was also crowned champions of the prestigious Stars of Mass Tournament and CFC tournament in Connecticut in the fall. They will begin their Maple league schedule this Sunday, in the top U-11 division after going undefeated throughout their fall season.

Fifth graders finish season in grand style

The Cohasset 5th grade boys travel basketball team completed a highly successful season with an overall record of 28-6.

The boys capped an undefeated regular season in the Abington Stars League with a playoff win over Kingston and then played extremely well to defeat Norwell in the championship contest.

The team journeyed this past weekend to the Cape to play in the 19th Annual David Busnengo Memorial Basketball Tournament, which is one of the largest double elimination tournaments on the East Coast with 125 entrants. The boys dominated the 5th grade division, winning five straight games over two days by an average margin of 18 points per game.

"The best basketball teams play their best basketball in March. We challenged these boys and they delivered," noted the team's coaches.

LIFE AT CHS

Seniors relegated to the Café

NATALIE DIGNAM

This week is a sad week for the senior class. Due to some mysterious granola bars left on the floor and frequent food fights, we're back in the Café. This may seem like a setback at first glance, but really I can't wait to be first in the lunch line, using my senior superiority to get some of those delicious cookies. Anyway, we can hopefully escape to the outdoors if the freezing weather doesn't continue.

This week at CHS, the annual Red Cross Blood drive was a huge success. Thank you to the volunteers and students who gave their time and energy to the cause. With that said, if you were planning on missing a certain stats class, you'd better safe your money for the bus ride home.

In other news, congratulations to juniors Maggie O'Grady, Emily Castro, and Ellie Tedeschi for their award winning science fair project on the foam in Cohasset Harbor (because really? what is that stuff?). The girls won third at the South Shore Regional Science Fair at Bridgewater State and are on their way to State Fair on May 6th and 7th. Using their data from CSCR last summer, they concluded that while the foam contains high levels of bacteria, the water does not, so it's not dangerous. Phew! How could we jump the bridge, I mean paddle our kayaks otherwise?

Most importantly, the seniors (and many juniors) are getting set for prom, and that means the infamous prom dress search. So far, the ladies are keeping it classy as always, despite not knowing anything about where post prom will be held (school cafeteria? seeing as the seniors seem to love it so much). And as a side note, because prom is more important than higher education, don't stress if you seem to be waitlisted EVERYWHERE. There are probably some comforting words in that email they sent you because the admissions office can't even send a hard copy of sad rejection. And you didn't even want to go there anyway! That's all for this week CHS!

Natalie Dignam's column runs weekly during the school year.

Book Fair at Joseph Osgood School

Joseph Osgood School Parent School Organization will host a Scholastic Book Fair Fundraiser from 2 to 7 p.m., on Thursday, April 7, at the school, 210 Sohier St., Cohasset. Families, teachers and all members of the community are invited to attend the fair, which will feature a special theme: Book Fair Carnival, Your Ticket to Read.

The Book Fair will offer specially priced books and educational products, including new releases, award-winning titles, children's classics, adult books and current bestsellers. Attendees can also help the school build classroom libraries and the school library by purchasing books for teachers through the Classroom Wish List.

The PSO is a nonprofit organization. The role of the PSO is to act as an advocate for public education. It is the official link between parents and schools. The PSO voices parental responses to school issues, and provides forums for administrators, teachers and students to present their programs and policies to the public. Through fundraising efforts, like the upcoming Book Fair, the PSO provides programs and activities that enrich the school experience for students, teachers and parents.

SCHOOLS

French-American friendship going strong

The 2010-11 SCS (Scituate-Cohasset-Sucy) French Exchange has now come full circle. As reported last fall, 43 families hosted 43 exchange students from Sucy-en-Brie, France for 12 days in October. The French friends have now returned the favor, hosting 45 South Shore students and teachers in their homes for 12 days in late February/early March. This experience marks the completion of the third and largest exchange to date between Scituate, Cohasset, and Sucy. Although planning such a program for so many participants is indeed a daunting task, the French teachers of Scituate and Cohasset high schools strive to introduce as many of their students as possible to the intricacies of a culture so appreciated by many – from French cuisine to couture, from savoir-faire to savoir-vivre. Thanks to the warm welcome of the French host families, the daily agenda of cultural visits, and fun leisure activities, the group returned to the South Shore on March 4th with a wealth of unforgettable experiences.

Due to a series of unprecedented travel snafus, the Scituate-Cohasset group arrived in France 30 hours behind schedule. Nevertheless, the intrepid travelers headed straight to Normandy for a two-day tour featuring the American Cemetery at Colleville-Sur-Mer and the magical Mont Saint Michel. At the American Cemetery, the US Government-sponsored guides went out of their way to provide a moving, informative, and thorough tour of the grounds overlooking Omaha Beach, renowned for the D-Day landings of Allied troops on June 6, 1944. The guide, a retired U.S. serviceman, shared numerous human-interest anecdotes about men (and a few women) buried in Colleville, enabling the group to truly appreciate the sacrifices made by their countrymen and allies in the name of freedom. The visit became personal for CHS Senior Emily Toomey who was able to locate the headstone of a great uncle who died in Normandy during World War II's Operation Overlord.

On day 2, an early morning ecological walk led by a naturalist allowed the group from coastal Massachusetts to understand the dramatic tidal patterns of the bay surrounding the fortified town of Mont Saint Michel. After lunch within the village walls, a strenuous trek up the one steep, windy, shop-lined village street led to the Gothic abbey perched upon the rocky islet of Mont Saint Michel and afforded an expansive view of the bay and the coasts of Normandy and Brittany. After a damp, wind-swept day in Normandy, the group headed towards its primary destination, the town of Sucy-en-Brie in the Paris suburbs.

When the Americans arrived at the Sucy town hall, their French correspondents, families, teachers, and members of the Sucy town council gave them a rousing celebration including welcome speeches in two language and gifts of t-shirts designed especially for the exchange. Once settled into their host families' homes, the students proceeded to make the most of their next 9 days in the Paris area, visiting the Palace of Versailles, climbing the Arc de Triomphe and the Eiffel Tower, strolling the Champs Elysees and Montmartre, appreciating art at the Louvre, Orsay, and Modern Art Museums, and viewing the dramatically lit Paris bridges and monuments during an evening boat ride down the Seine. The students' pre-departure study of the sites, art, and history of Paris ensured that they had a solid basis for interpreting these visits.

All of the sightseeing was well worth the trip, but the true purpose of the SCS French Exchange is the cultural and linguistic immersion that comes with temporarily becoming part of a family in another culture. In this, the families of the French high school students in Sucy were the real educators, introducing our Yankee students to escargot and raclette, baguettes and brie, fashion and foie-gras. After spending years learning French in a classroom, the students made a quick leap to communicating with their host families in French and adopting the slang of the French teenagers of Sucy. ("Ouiais...") They also became skilled in the French arts of cheek-kissing, elbowing one's way into the metro at rush hour, and ordering espresso and dessert.

To complement the cultural activities planned by the teachers, the French host families orchestrated a variety of additional experiences: shopping in Paris, visiting the Grévin Wax Museum, and enjoying Euro-Disney to name just a few. For sports and recreation, the town of Sucy organized a day of handball (a sport in which the French have long been internationally dominant) for students from the three high schools and a scavenger hunt involving clues left around town leading to spots of historical significance. For a taste of high school "French-style," the Sucy students, teachers, and families hosted a dance party at the school for all 80+ participants.

By the end of the 12 days, a good number of the Scituate-Cohasset students would not have minded at all if their teachers left them in Paris rather than taking them home. It seems safe to say that for many of them, this exchange is the beginning of a life-long appreciation for the French language, food, culture, and people.

Anyone interested promoting the relationship between Sucy, Scituate, and Cohasset or becoming involved in exchanges between organizations beyond the high schools is invited to contact Patricia Jacquart at pjacquart@scit.org or Beth Marat bmarat@cohassetk12.org.

TEN QUESTIONS TO ASK OVERNIGHT/SLEEPAWAY CAMP DIRECTORS Part 2

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

With the camp open house season starting to heat up, here is a list of questions families can ask the camp directors or representatives they will have a chance to speak with:

6. Are references available? Find out what others have thought of the camp. Ask the director for references—most likely parents of current or past campers—new campers of a similar age to your child. Most will be happy to connect you with a parent of a current camper. Talking with a parent in the know can help determine if this camp is the right fit for your child.

7. Can you tell me about your counselors? Perhaps most importantly, parents should find out what the staff-to-camper ratio is. Parents can also find out about the ages of the counselors – the ACA recommends that 80 percent of the staff be 18 or older and that all staffers be at least 16 years old and a minimum of two years older than the campers they supervise. And finally, ask how many members of the staff are returning from previous years. Fifty percent is considered a good benchmark. If it's lower than that, don't be afraid to ask why.

8. How does the camp handle discipline issues? Let's face it – kids will be kids from time-to-time. Just like any other environment, there are times where campers need discipline. Ask what the camp's policies and rules are. Consider whether or not the camp's discipline policies are aligned closely enough with yours at home.

9. Are there financial discounts/incentives available? Each camp is responsible for the way they structure their financial systems, so don't assume what holds true at one camp is true for all of them. If you really like a camp, but think paying for it may be a challenge (especially if you have multiple children attending), talk with the director to see if there is anything they can do to help you out. Some may offer discounts for sending more than one child, while others may offer payment plans.

10. What do you wish campers and their families asked you about your camp? Summer camps intentional communities created for children's benefit and learning. Often times a camp director or representative can provide information or a sense of the camp community and culture that rounds out what you've already learned from the website, printed materials, and references you've checked. The answer to this question is always interesting!

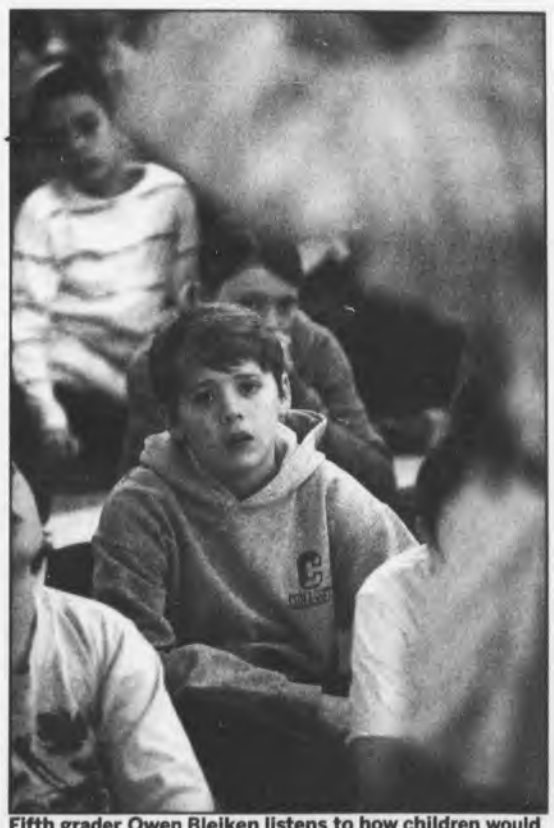
Fifth grader Will Thomas models the "Whispering Stick," a colonial form of discipline for an unruly pupil, the thin block of wood would actually have been inserted into the students mouth for a simple indiscretion readily overlooked in present times.



Assisted by fifth grader Lucy St. Sauver, Bay Colony educator Carol Neville illustrates the common punishment of the day for a student guilty of to much wiggling in their seat.

Bay Colony educator Tim Green demonstrates how in colonial times it was necessary to light a fire by striking a flint against a piece of steel to "hold a spark" in a piece of charred cotton cloth.

Fifth grader Jimmy Norton (center) joins his classmates in moments of disbelief as they learned what life was like for children in Massachusetts during the colonial days.

Fifth grader Owen Bleiken listens to how children would have had to make soap in colonial times. The process involved stirring a pot for hours at a time.

Fifth grader Jaylen Fonfield looks on as Bay Colony educator Tim Greene displays the wooden shoes commonly worn by the children living on Massachusetts Bay in 1750.

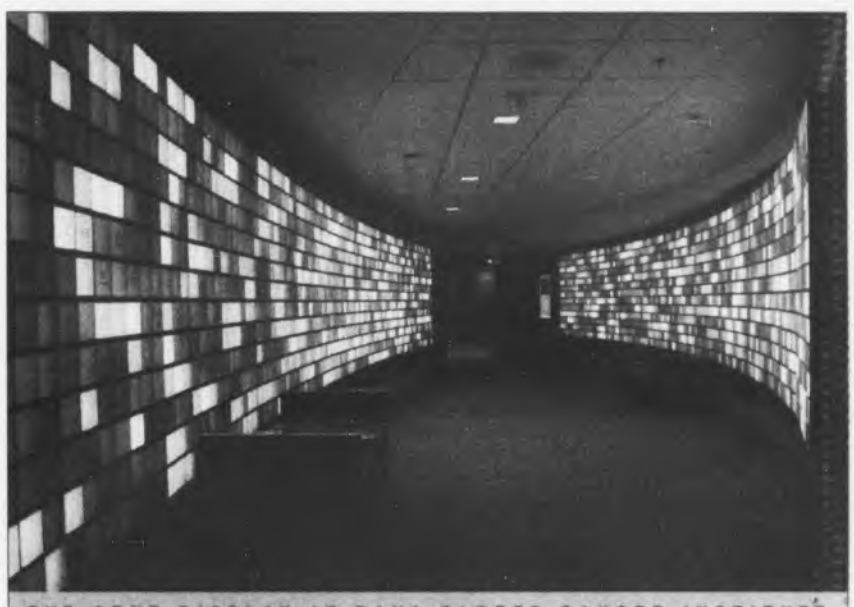
CEF hosts Spring Gala April 9

Spring will be coming early to the Cohasset Golf Club this year when the Cohasset Education Foundation hosts its fifth annual Spring Gala on April 9 from 6 to 11:30 p.m.

Pull out your flip flops and come celebrate the schools as this year the committee has a Hawaiian Luau in store for all guests, complete with Tiki Bars, music by the band Steel Rhythm, and a delicious sampling of Hawaiian fare. There will also be a fabulous selection of auction items, including six nights at a Lake Tahoe townhome for a ski or golf vacation, a box for 12 at the Garden for either Celtics or Bruins tickets, and a night at the Marriott Longwharf. There are class projects that have been made by students across all grades, as well as a fabulous selection of gifts for both Mother's and Father's Day. And, don't miss out on the chance to win an iPad 2—raffle tickets will be sold at the event as well as purchased on the web site.

In just under five years, through the incredible generosity of the community, the CEF has made significant contributions to the educational experience for all students in the Cohasset Public Schools. Most recently, grants for a Mobile Notebook Computer Lab at the Deer Hill and Classroom Computers at the Osgood School have been funded and installed.

Tickets start at $75 per person and will increase to $85 after April 3. For more information and for tickets visit www.cohasseteducation.org.



Third Grade Students Connor McGovern and Sarah O'Callaghan just finished signing the class locker. Students in the class purchased the locker with a "dollar for a locker" program and all autographed it. There are also lockers for the fourth and fifth grades. They will all be auctioned off at the CEF Spring Gala April 9. COURTESY PHOTOS

THE GENE DISPLAY AT DANA-FARBER CANCER INSTITUTE

Make your mark on cancer. Name a gene today.

Be a part of the cancer revolution. We have created the Gene Display in our Yawkey Center for Cancer Care, where you can name a gene in honor of a family member, friend, or caregiver or inscribe it with a personal message of hope. This visual and dynamic display represents the real genetic information that leads us to discover and develop lifesaving cancer treatments. Join with us at this very exciting point in time by naming a gene in our newest building.

Leave your personal mark on cancer research and care.

Reading is cool

Deer Hill students end PSO Readathon on a high note

The students in Mrs. Henry's class were able to rack up the most reading minutes during the three-week PSO Readathon.

Deer Hill student Sarah Rath, 9, holds the Beaudry Book Bandits sign for her class.

A pile of new children's books await readers at Deer Hill School. The annual Readathon raises money for the PSO and, in turn, many curriculum enrichment programs for the schools.

Deer Hill School student Alex Grossman tests out his new reading light. Each student was awarded an iRead t-shirt and reading light. Classrooms received new books as well.

Enthusiasm abounded among Deer Hill School students for the Readathon program. The students designed posters for their classes.

Baking the old-fashioned way

Stone and mud oven at Holly Hill

By Janice McPhillips
Special to the Mariner

Doesn't the idea of combining a warm crackling fire with the smell of fresh homemade bread just out of the oven sound like a comforting idea on a cold day? Paula Marcoux of Plymouth knows all about that. Paula knows a lot about baking bread. She's been a baker for most of her life and teaches others about the art and craft of bread making in various local venues, including at Bay End Farm in Bourne where she works as a farmer and cook. Paula has had a number of interesting jobs including working as an historical interpreter at Plimoth Plantation where she worked on all sorts of clay building projects, including the English Village bread ovens, recreations of 17th century ones.

Since leaving Plimoth Plantation, Paula has enjoyed building these wood-fired "mud" ovens both for individuals and organizations. Her most recent project was to construct a stone and mud oven at Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset. The oven was built by first creating a base of large stones, weighing from one to 100 pounds, found around the property. The core of the cylindrical base was filled with cinderblocks for stability and the tower was built up to be about 3-1/2 feet tall. Next she laid down a cooking surface for the oven, which is a special heat-resistant brick known as firebrick. Sounds easy, right? Well the hard part is to create a dome that obeys the laws of physics and yet, still meets the capacity needs of the baker. One would construct a smaller dome for baking smaller quantities at a time and a larger dome for baking larger quantities. A smaller shallow dome, while tricky to build, is really the most economical to fire and makes the best bread. When constructing a dome, Paula needs to consider the weight load of the dome as well as the expansion and contraction properties of the clay and mud mixture that the dome is made from. There is an additional secret ingredient that we'll talk about later. This "mud" needs to be tough stuff because the heat inside the dome can get as hot as 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit and since the oven is outdoors, the material will freeze in the winter.

There are books written on this subject, and suffice to say, Paula has read them, studied the principles and has figured out how to make building an oven look way easier than it really is. I watched her do this at Holly Hill Farm over the course of a couple of weeks last fall. It was like watching a bridge being built. After she constructed the base, she carefully built a mound of sand on top of the firebrick baking hearth. The sand had to be wet but not too wet, and then it had to be packed down and formed to a precise height and shape. Next, Paula put a layer of newspaper on top of the sand. More about that newspaper later.

'Mud' oven

Finally it was time to put the dome on the oven. These ovens are referred to as "mud" ovens even though the dome is really made of a mixture of mud and clay. Anyone who's been to Holly Hill Farm knows there is plenty of mud and clay to be had around the farm, but Paula knows where to get some really good clay that was extracted from deep below Boston Harbor as part of the Big Dig. Yes, it's true, someone was smart enough to recognize that the material they were pulling out of the ground could be of use some day and there is a repository of this valuable stuff stored nearby.

And what's the secret ingredient you ask? Well, one day I came by and found her with her feet in a wheelbarrow mixing the mud and clay that would form the exterior shell of the oven. Much to my surprise there was a bucket of horse manure sitting next to the wheelbarrow and yes, she was mixing the horse manure into the mud and clay with her feet! That got everyone's attention to say the least. Holly Hill Farm is an organic farm and horse manure is a precious ingredient that is usually reserved for making compost for fertilizer. Well, it turns out that the horse manure adds some important structural stability to the dome that the mud and clay mixture alone can't provide. And do we need to worry about bacteria in the manure?

"Absolutely not," says Paula. The heat generated by the fire inside of the oven takes care of that. Paula carefully placed this mud, clay, and ahem, manure mixture on top of the newspaper, leaving room for a precisely measured door that is just large enough to fit a small pizza peel through, but no larger to prevent any unnecessary heat from escaping. She carefully smoothed the dome's outer surface and scored it a bit so the next layer would stick to it, covered the dome and let it dry for a few days. She returned a few days later to put the final coat of mud on the dome. This time she smoothed the mud mixture to a perfect shape. Before the outer layer hardened, the imprint of holly leaves was pressed into the mud as a decoration.

After the mud dome dried for a day or two, it was time to do the fun job of scooping all the sand out from the small doorway to create the baking chamber. I didn't witness this process but I imagine it must have been a bit like digging for treasure. Paula knew she was done when her hand reached newspaper marking the dividing line between the sand and the hard outer layer of the dome. She cleaned out all of the sand and pronounced the oven ready for curing. To cure, the mud needs to dry in a slow and controlled way. To do this, we built a series of small fires inside the oven over the course of a couple of days. During this process, the newspaper burned away exposing the inside of the dome. This is a nerve-wracking process — too much heat too fast and the dome can crack and would be useless. The heat evaporates the moisture from the mud and after a few successful "burns" Paula pronounced the oven ready for baking. Malcolm White, nephew of farm resident and owner Jean White, constructed the oven's door out of wood found on the farm. The door is soaked in water before baking to assure that it doesn't burn.

Art of baking

There's an art to baking inside a mud oven. There is of course, no way to regulate temperature inside a mud oven. To heat it up, you light a fire with dry hardwood and burn it like crazy until the clay is hot enough to bake once the fire has burned away and the ashes are swept out. This is not the sort of oven one uses casually as it could take three or more hours to reach optimal internal temperature for baking. It takes a lot of preheating to reach 700 degrees, the perfect temperature for baking flatbread or pizza, which is done with a small fire still burning to one side. To bake bread, the oven is swept out and the door clapped shut tight to hold the heat inside. Cooler temperatures are for roasting vegetables or baking casseroles. It's nice to have a full roster of baking planned to take advantage of as much of the oven's residual heat as possible. One could plan for a day of baking with friends and neighbors after using a substantial quantity of wood to heat the oven for hours while it achieves baking temperature.

The oven at Holly Hill Farm had its debut at the Friends of Holly Hill Farm Members' picnic last September. We baked a few dozen flatbreads, several loaves of bread, some casseroles of roasted vegetables and a cobbler. The oven has been covered since that time to protect it from the elements. This feels a bit like being six years old and getting a great Christmas present that needs to be left behind when it's time to go to Grandma's house! We're all very excited that the cover is going to come off this spring and the oven will be in use for a fun event, "Bake Bread with the Farm Family and third annual Think Spring Members Meeting" on Saturday, April 9, from 1 to 3 pm. The public is invited to see Paula's great creation in action. Come meet new farm manager Fred Beddall and find out what's new for Holly Hill Farm for the 2011 season. And please bring a loaf of bread to bake, as if you were a member of the Plimoth Plantation community in 1621. No period clothing required.

Holly Hill Farm is at 230 Jerusalem Road in Cohasset. The Friends of Holly Hill Farm is a nonprofit education center that uses the resources of the farm to teach children and adults about the value of sustainable farming principles that result in healthy food and promote responsible stewardship that protects the land. Please note, "Break Bread" was originally scheduled for Saturday, March 5, but was rescheduled to April 9 due to snow. Rain date for the event is Sunday, April 10. For directions and more information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

HOLLY HILL

Register now for summer programs

It's time to sign up for summer programs at Holly Hill Farm located at 236 Jerusalem Road in Cohasset. The Friends of Holly Hill Farm offers programs for children ages 3 through 16 beginning with the preschool program on June 6. Sessions for all ages continue through Aug. 19. Children will learn about growing healthy organic food and nature through fun activities, songs and games. Children will have fun outside, unplugged from the TV and the Internet, doing farm chores like planting seeds, caring for plants, weeding, making compost, and preparing a meal from food grown on the farm. A special program for children ages 9 to12 called "Market Gardeners" begins as an afterschool program at the farm on Wednesday, April 6. Market Gardeners will develop a plan for a market garden with the goal of growing and selling produce at the Cohasset Farmers' Market on Thursday afternoons beginning in June. Children will keep a portion of the proceeds from market sales. For complete information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org or call 781-383-6565.

Is this the year you are going to create your first vegetable garden? Do you currently have a vegetable garden and want to make it organic? Now is the time to plan your garden and start growing early spring crops! Come to Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset on Saturday April 2 from 10 a.m. to noon for an Organic Gardening Workshop to learn what you will need to create your own organic vegetable garden. Come work with Holly Hill Farm Staff and receive tips on how to organize your garden, sources for compost, seeds, organic fertilizers, and tools. Learn how and why to build a raised bed; learn season extension and seed starting tips. This workshop will offer advanced ideas and tips to have you planting like a farmer and growing like a master gardener. This workshop is number one of a four part series of spring gardening workshops at Holly Hill Farm. Future workshops will cover starting seeds (April 30th), direct sowing of seeds and transplants (May 14th), and organic garden maintenance and care (June 11th). Cost: $12 members, $15 non-members. For more information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org or call education director Jon Belber at 781-383-6565.

Break Bread with the Farm Family and third annual "Think Spring" Members' Meeting at Holly Hill Farm, 236 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, on Saturday April 9 from 1 to 3 p.m. Bring a loaf of bread to bake in the new wood-fired outdoor mud oven and break bread with the farm family including new farm managers, Fred Beddall and Deanna Levanti. Learn how the oven was built and how to create a tasty warm, outdoor treats. Or just come and taste how delicious bread made in this special oven can be. Find out what is coming for Holly Hill Farm's 2011 growing season. This event is free for Friends of Holly Hill Farm members, $15 per family for non-members. Rain date is Sunday, April 10 from 1 to 3 p.m. Drinks provided. Pre-registration suggested, call 781-383-6565 or email jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com. Unicorn Singers perform April 1, 3

The Unicorn Singers will present a program of French sacred music on April 1 and 3 at House of Prayer in South Hingham. This concert by three French composers, whose birth years are separated by only a few decades, will allow the audience an opportunity to hear the development of the French style from the early 19th to the mid 20th century.

Highlighted will be the Choral Mass of Charles Gounod in one of the rare live performances one is likely to hear anywhere – this could even be the first performance in New England. Additionally, the chorus will present the Requiem of Gabriel Fauré. Completing the program will be three of the Lenten motets of Francis Poulenc.

The Unicorn Singers will perform at 8 p.m., on Friday, April 1, and 4 p.m., on Sunday, April 3. Tickets at $15 are available at the door at House of Prayer, 916 Main St., Hingham. For more information, call Kathy Reardon at 781-749-0162, or visit the Unicorn Singers @ www.bcc-us.org.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF APRIL 11, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It isn't always easy for the rambunctious Aries to give a second thought to their often spur-of-the-moment choices. But aspects favor rechecking a decision before declaring it final.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Information emerges for the business-driven Bovine who feels ready to restart a stalled project. Be prepared to make adjustments as needed at any time during the process.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Part of you wants to complete plans for an upcoming event, while your other self wants to see how things develop first. Compromise by moving ahead with your plans while being open to change.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An unexpected change in a relationship could open up a problem or could lead to a much-needed and too-long-delayed reassessment of a number of matters. The choice is yours to make.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Time for the Lion to total the plusses and minuses resulting from recent personal and/or professional decisions. See what worked, what didn't and why, and base your next big move on the results.

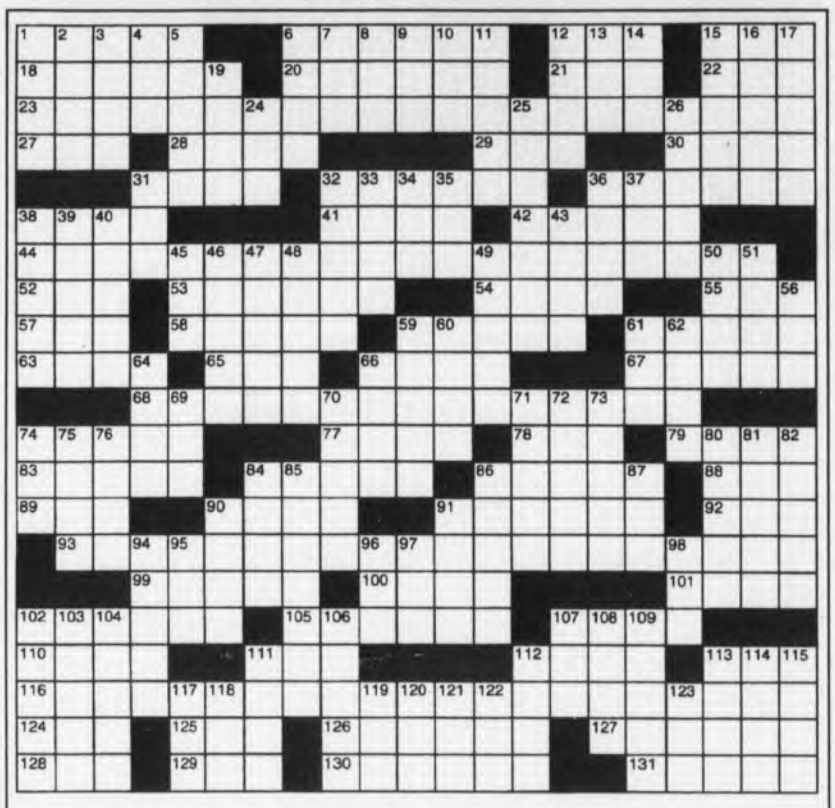
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The clever Virgo can make persuasion work by presenting a case built on hard facts. Sentiment might touch the heart, but it's good, solid information that invariably wins the day.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You usually can win over the most stubborn skeptics on your own. But this time you can benefit from supporters who have been there, done that and are willing to speak up on your behalf.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You win admiration for your determination to do the right thing. Don't be distracted from that course, despite the offer of tempting alternatives that might suddenly turn up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) While you still need to maintain control of a dominant situation, a new development emerges, making the task easier and the outcome potentially more rewarding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) New factors might have a positive effect on a still-pending matter, but only if the information proves to be credible. Trusted colleagues might be able to offer needed advice.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The week favors moderation, especially if a health problem is involved. Resist the impulse to do more than might be good for you at this time. You can catch up later.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You could feel more than a mite upset by someone or some people who might be creating problems for you. Find out why they won't change their ways. Their reasons might surprise you.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

WORSHIP NOTES

Fauré Requiem at St. Stephen's

Parishioners at St. Stephen's Church will have a chance to hear something really special at the 10 a.m. service on Palm Sunday, April 17. Music Director Dr. John Whiteside reports that the choirs will sing Requiem by Gabriel Fauré during the service.

Written in the last decade of the 19th century, Fauré's Requiem is a musical setting that consists of seven short movements, each incorporating a different part of the mass. The first movement includes a Kyrie; the second the Offertory; the third a Sanctus. There is also an Agnus Dei and a final setting, the In Paradisum. Whiteside says "since many of these movements match what we use in our service each Sunday, we can perform each part of the Requiem in its appointed place. This will make our service something truly extraordinary."

Palm Sunday is a day that commemorates two events. First is Jesus's joyful entrance into Jerusalem. Second, during the service the Passion Gospel is read.

The Requiem fits both these events. The music, while written for a requiem mass, is composed in a style, which is almost immediately accessible to anyone who hears it.

Palm Sunday services will be held at St. Stephen's on Sunday, April 17 at 8 a.m. with no music, and 10 a.m. with full music. The church is located on the Cohasset Common at 16 Highland Avenue. There is plenty of on street parking, as well as parking in the Town Hall parking lot.

Lecture series at Glastonbury Abbey

Glastonbury Abbey's Lecture Series Listening to Other Voices: Be Not Afraid: Do Justice, Act Kindly," will be presented at 7:15 p.m., on Thursday, April 14. Bernard Glass man will present a lecture titled "Engaged Buddhism: Applying Insights and Teachings and Meditation Practice to Societal Suffering and Injustice.

The founder of Zen Peacemakers, Glassman, evolved from a traditional Zen Buddhist monastery-model practice to become a proponent of social engagement as a spiritual practice. He is a creative force in western Buddhism, creating new paths, practices, liturgy and organization to serve those who fall between the cracks in society. He will describe how one can apply meditation insights and dharma teachings to situations of social, political, environmental and economic suffering and injustice. A pioneer of Buddhism in the west, he is the founder of Socially Engaged Buddhism and spiritually based Social Entrepreneurship. He will trace the history of Engaged Buddhism from its roots in Vietnam through the Buddhist teacher Thich Nhat Hanh, to the west where it has grown in popularity.

Lectures are free – donations welcome. The program will take place in the Conference Center at Glastonbury Abbey, 16 Hull St., Hingham. Reservations will not be taken. Seating is limited and on a first-come, first-served basis.

Regional dispatch on horizon

Center could open in late summer, officials say

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

It looks like change is coming to the public safety dispatch center.

The targeted opening of the regional emergency communications center (RECC) in Hingham is August.

The build-out of the center, which is housed in Hingham Town Hall, is about 98 percent complete, Fire Chief Bob Silvia said. But, the technology that comes with the RECC is still being gathered and finalized.

"We still in the process of designing different aspects of the department," Silvia said at the Selectmen's meeting on March 29. "No one a year ago thought the technology piece would be as labor intensive as it is."

Cohasset, Hingham, Norwell and Hull agreed to establish a regional dispatch center last year. The signing of the inter-municipal agreement was the culmination of two years of talks between each town's town manager/administrator, fire and police chiefs.

The public safety leaders and previous town manager have said the regional dispatch center would save the towns money, find efficiency, and provide a better service to the citizens of the four towns.

State grants, which total more than $3 million, will pay for the capital

Turbine lawsuit

Abutters want decision overturned

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

When the Cohasset Planning Board members cast their votes unanimously in favor of special permit for a wind turbine on Turkey Hill several members said it was almost assured their decision would be appealed.

Just 18 days after the board's decision was filed came a Boston Land Court suit: the Golden Living nursing home, located less than 1000 feet from the proposed turbine site, and the owners of four Hingham residences have joined forces to seek an annulment of the decision.

The controversial project, which was the subject of several heated public hearings, was brought forward by the Trustees of Reservations and is the first wind turbine project to garner a special permit in Cohasset.

The Planning Board approved a single wind turbine at the height of 410-feet (including the height of the blades) to be built in the northwest corner of Cohasset close to the Hingham line on land owned by the Trustees of Reservations. The 1.8-megawatt turbine is projected to produce enough energy to power all the Trustees

Interim superintendent needed

Schools to appoint internal candidate

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

As of April 1 the Cohasset Schools were without a superintendent.

Superintendent Denise Walsh resigned from her position as of that date, and the new superintendent, Barbara Cataldo, is not starting until July 1 leaving the district without a clear leader for three months.

To fill the void, on Wednesday night the School Committee discussed several options available to them.

Before the meeting, School Committee chair Helene Lieb spoke with school business manager Dave DeGennaro about taking on the position going as far as discussing a potential stipend. But, while the other school committee mem-

PROJECT UPDATE By Nancy White | nwhite@wickedlocal.com

Meeting House Pond's new look

What is it
One of the Cohasset's landmarks is in better shape than it has been in decades. This spring the iconic Meeting House Pond on the Common completed its makeover, thanks to community preservation funding.

History
The project has been years in the making. It was the fall of 2009 when Beechwood Street resident Merle Brown came forward as a private citizen to seek community preservation support for the project. He would return to seek funding three times over the next two years. The project ultimately received $275,000 in community preservation funding from voters at Town Meeting.

What's new
The renovation created a system where water can be re-circulated through the fountain. Previously the pond was fed almost continuously with domestic water. More controls were incorporated to limit the waste of water. The former four-foot wide sidewalk was extended an additional foot to accommodate a new retaining wall. A new clay bottom was added. Disheveled concrete stairs were replaced with an ADA-compliant ramp for increased accessibility.

Thanks to taxpayers
A bronze plaque on a native pudding rock will be placed near the pond to commemorate the support the project received from the citizens of the town and community preservation. "This gem of Cohasset should last many years for the townspeople and visitors alike to enjoy," said Merle Brown.

Celebrate
A ribbon cutting ceremony will be held at Meetinghouse Pond on the Common on Saturday, April 16 at 10a.m. Over the years, the pond on the common has been called by many names and almost never by its true, historical name. "Hopefully now people won't be calling it Common Pond, duck pond or frog pond, now they'll call it Meeting House Pond," Brown said with a laugh.

Curious about something going on in town? Send an e-mail to nwhite@wickedlocal.com or call 781-741-2935.

POLICE BEAT

Left-turn factor in two collisions

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

• At 12:34 p.m. on Friday (April 1), a 2000 Saturn SL2, operated by a 46-year-old Weymouth woman, was heading north on Route 3A by Stop & Shop when a 2008 Toyota Solara, operated by an 82-year-old Scituate woman attempted to turn left into Stop & Shop cutting in front of the Saturn, causing a collision.

The Scituate woman was cited for failure to grant right of way. The Weymouth woman was transported to the hospital with what appeared to be minor injuries. Both vehicles were towed.

• At 12:01 p.m. on Saturday (April 2), a 2007 Nissan Quest, operated by a 20-year-old Cohasset man, was headed south on Route 3A by Beechwood Street, when he attempted to make a left onto Beechwood Street cutting in front of a 2006 Saab 95, operated by a 47-year-old Cohasset man, causing a collision. There were no injuries; the 20-year-old was cited for failure to grant the right of way. Both vehicles were towed

Expired license

At 2:24 p.m. on Monday (March 28), police pulled over a 77-year-old Scituate woman in a 2001 Nissan Maxima on Sohier Street for traveling 40 mph in a 20 mph school zone. The woman was unable to produce a valid license; her license had expired on her birthday in November. She is being summonsed to court on the charge of unlicensed operation and speeding. Her car was towed and a friend gave her a ride home, police said.

Car break-in

A 71-year-old Cohasset woman reported last Tuesday (March 29) that her 1998 Audi A4 was entered sometime between 8 and 10 p.m. on Sunday (March 27). Taken were one pair of prescription sunglasses; binoculars; a Swiss Army Knife; and a pocket-sized Bible. The car was unlocked. The incident is under investigation.

Sick child

A 53-year-old Cohasset man, who was transporting a sick child to the hospital, was let go with a verbal warning after being stopped last Tuesday (March 29) at about 9:51 p.m. at Chief Justice Cushing Highway and Beechwood Street on a witness report of erratic driving, tailgating and speeding.

Windshield

A 61-year-old Cohasset man reported that a golf-ball-sized rock hit his windshield at about 7:43 a.m. on Friday (April 1) about 300 feet from the ball fields on North Main Street. Police said the car was not damaged; they checked the area but think the incident may have been weather-related in that an object may have come out of a tree and hit the car. Weather was inclement last Friday.

Marijuana

At 6:26 a.m. on Saturday (April 2), an officer on radar patrol pulled over a black Jeep, operated by a 26-year-old Weymouth man, on Route 3A and Beechwood for traveling 50 in a 35 mph zone. The officer could smell raw marijuana coming from the Jeep and saw some of the drug in plain view. A search was conducted and police seized less than one ounce of marijuana. The Weymouth man as issued a civil citation for possession of less than one ounce of marijuana and he was also issued a speeding ticket.

Warning

A 17-year-old Cohasset teen in a 2000 Jeep Grand Cherokee was stopped a given a verbal warning for speeding a failure to keep right at about 3:38 p.m. on Sunday (April 3) on Pond Street after a caller reported seeing the Jeep weaving all over the road on Route 3A.

Liquor license hearing slated

Village Wine & Spirits under scrutiny

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

The Board of Selectmen voted to hold a liquor license hearing over an alleged license violation at the Village Wine and Spirits, located at 27 South Main St.

The alleged violation stems from an incident on Tuesday, March 8. An officer on patrol saw a man staggering down Elm Street carrying a 12-pack of beer. According to the officer, the man was visibly intoxicated. While an officer was speaking with the man, he fell to the ground and hit his head. EMTs responded to the scene and he was taken by ambulance to South Shore Hospital.

Further investigation by officers revealed the 12-pack of beer as well as six vodka nips had been recently purchased at the Village Wine & Spirits.

The sale of the alcohol to an intoxicated person is a violation of the liquor license.

In a memo to the Selectmen, Police Chief Mark DeLuca said this is the first offense for the license holder and in the past Cohasset Police have recommended warnings for first offenses. However, as the town's licensing authority, it is up to the selectmen to determine appropriate action after hearing from all sides.

In the memo, DeLuca suggested issuing a warning and giving employees additional training to avoid future incidents.

The Selectmen had little debate on whether to hold the hearing before taking a unanimous vote.

"Let's have a hearing, hear all sides and make a determination," Selectman Fred Koed said.

At a liquor license hearing the Selectmen will give both the license holder and the police a chance to present their sides of the incident. The time and date of the hearing has yet to be set.

Hold-up try at Tedeschi's

On Sunday, April 3, at about 6:40 a.m., Cohasset Police Officers were called to Tedeschi's Food Mart, on South Main Street in Cohasset Village, for a report of an attempted hold-up. The victim in this case, who owns the store, called 911 and stated that a white male with a black hat and green coat, who was wielding a carpenters hammer, just attempted to rob his store. The victim stated that he refused to give the robber any cash and the robber subsequently fled the scene.

Cohasset Officers responding to the store located the suspect approximately 1/8 of a mile from the scene. The suspect, who has been identified as Caleb D. Slotnick, 37 years of age, from 190 South Main St., Cohasset, was arrested at gunpoint by Officers Paul Wilson and Daniel Williams.

Slotnick is being held at the Cohasset Police station on $25,000 cash bail. He was arraigned in Quincy District Court on the following charges:

1. Attempting to commit a crime (armed robbery)
2. Armed assault with the intent to rob
3. Assault by means of a dangerous weapon (hammer)
4. Threatening to commit a crime

Police said Slotnick is being held in county jail pending a psychological evalution.

Cohasset Police Lieutenant William Quigley said that he was happy with the outcome in this case because nobody was hurt, but recommended that victims of robberies should always try to comply with the suspect's orders, especially if they are armed.

Jewelry suspect arrested, charged

On March 9 patrol officers from the Cohasset Police Department responded to an Ash Street address to take a report of larceny of jewelry. Officers spoke with a female resident that reported that her diamond engagement ring, along with a diamond pendant, were missing from her jewelry box. The combined value of the jewelry was over $7400.

The case was turned over to Cohasset detectives who began to look into the theft. Through investigation, detectives were able to determine that the only strangers that had access to the home during the time of the theft were a neighbor and his girlfriend. Detectives interviewed both, who categorically denied any knowledge of the missing jewelry, police said.

Detectives, armed with descriptions of the stolen jewelry, canvassed dozens of pawnshops throughout the area. On March 31, Detective Lieutenant Gregory Lennon received a telephone call from a pawnshop owner in Boston. The pawnshop owner told the Lennon that he might have purchased the jewelry from a Cohasset woman days before.

Detectives brought the alledged victim of the theft to the pawnshop in Boston where she positively identified the jewelry as hers. Detectives viewed surveillance video from the pawnshop that recorded Danielle L. Schiavo, 30, of 32 Ash Street, Cohasset, selling her neighbor's stolen diamond ring and pendant to the pawnshop.

Schiavo was called to Cohasset Police Headquarters for a follow-up interview on April 4. When confronted by detectives with the evidence, Schiavo provided a written confession regarding the theft and she was arrested. She was arraigned at Quincy District Court on Tuesday, April 5, on the following felony charges: larceny from a building; and larceny over $250.

Schiavo was released by the court on personal recognizance and will appear back in Quincy District Court at a later date for a pre-trial conference.

Cohasset Chief of Police Mark DeLuca said, "This case illustrates the extreme commitment and high level of determination that our detectives have."

EVENT UPDATE

Still time to order flag of honor

WHAT:
Once again The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 118 of Cohasset, will post hundreds of United States Flags in a poignant display honoring local veterans. The Field of Honor recognizes the veterans who have so valiantly served our country to protect and preserve our freedom.

WHEN:
For the fifth straight year, the flags will fly from the lawn facing the Veterans Memorial which itself will be encircled by the flags of the 50 states. Residents of Cohasset and the surrounding area will experience this inspiring display of flags from May 21 to June 4 as the Stars and Stripes flutter proudly atop eight-foot poles set in ordered lines. This touching memorial is free to the public.

HOW TO PARTICIPATE:
For $25 individual flags may be sponsored in memory of family or friends honored. Checks should be made payable to the Sons of the American Legion with a note on the memo line of the check indicating Field of Honor. Sponsored flag can be retained as mementos of this year's Field of Honor which can be then be displayed from home or business. Sponsored flags will be available for pick up from the field after 1p.m., on June 4th.

FOR MORE INFORMATION:
To find more information or to sponsor a flag online, visit www.healingfiled.org/cohasset. For details on becoming an event sponsor or to obtain applications for field flags, please contact the American Legion Post at telephone 781-383-9657 or stop by at the Post at 98 Summer St. anytime weekdays after 3 p.m., on Saturdays after 10 a.m. or on Sundays after 12 p.m.

'Permitted projections'

Planning and ZBA at odds over zoning amendment

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

In Cohasset, if you want to make a minor cosmetic change to the front of your home, such as a bay window to your living room, you may not be able to without a trip to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

At the upcoming Annual Town Meeting the Planning Board is looking to change that situation by adding a definition of "permitted projections" to the zoning bylaws.

But, after several rounds of review, the bylaw amendment may be sent back for further revision. While Planning Board member Clark Brewer said the amendment is a minor one and mirrors similar bylaws in similar towns, the Zoning Board of Appeals feels it needs more review and more precise language.

The amendment would create the opportunity to add minor architectural details beyond the main building wall, such as eaves, bay windows, balconies, and chimneys, within the zoning setbacks without the need to seek Zoning Board relief.

"This definition is conspicuously absent from the bylaws," said Brewer. Brewer, who is an architect by trade, said homeowners get discouraged from improving their homes if they need to go before the zoning board. Other Massachusetts towns, including Hingham, have a similar bylaw.

"Right now, homeowners are putting these things in and hoping they don't get caught. It's not a good position to put residents in," Brewer said.

Building inspector Bob Egan admitted over the years he has taken notice of a new bay window in a home that jets out into the setback, but has not taken any action.

"What is being proposed (in the bylaw) are things that someone should be able to do with confidence," Egan said.

Zoning Board of Appeals chairman Woody Chittick said it was "with regret" his board voted unanimously against the article.

"If a bylaw should be changed it should be done with very precise language," Chittick said. The current language of the bylaw makes no distinction between buildings that conform with zoning and building that don't conform with zoning or any distinction between front, rear and side setbacks.

Chittick was concerned the bylaw allowed for little oversight, "I'm worried about certain people who may try to game the system."

He suggested a possible solution could be to make the permitted projections allowable with a special permit. But, he said the bylaw needed a thorough review and a convening of the zoning advisory committee.

"If we allow homeowners to make these changes as of right there's no scrutiny," Chittick said.

While the zoning board agreed with the intention of the bylaw, Chittick said there was too much vagueness in the current language.

"We're not anti-intention, we're anti-vague language," Chittick said.

After hearing both sides of the issue, the selectmen weren't convinced the amendment was ready for the primetime.

"My concern is zoning articles can be contested on the floor of town meeting. The littlest thing can lead to hours of long discussion," Quigley said.

Selectman Fred Koed said it's important with zoning articles to have all major boards that deal with planning issues on the same page.

"In the past when the zoning advisory committee has vetted a bylaw, (the town) ends up with a better product," Koed said.

The selectmen decided to wait on their recommendation. Brewer said he would bring the board's input back to the Planning Board.

A majority of the Planning Board voted to recommend approval of the article, but Brewer said they would revisit the issue.

The Planning Board could seek the input of the zoning advisory committee, which includes members of the zoning board of appeals, and come forward with a new amendment at a future town meeting.

Stuart Ivimey resigns from the CPC

Stuart Ivimey, the town's first and only chairman of the Community Preservation Committee, intends to resign from his post. Selectmen chair Karen Quigley announced the resignation at Tuesday's Selectmen meeting.

Ivimey has served as the chair of the Community Preservation Committee, a Selectmen appointed board, since the committee's inception. The town adopted the Community Preservation Act in 2001.

"I've enjoyed being part of the committee and believe we have done a lot of good work around town," Ivimey said in a phone interview. "I will miss serving in this capacity but, it has become too difficult with increased demands on my time. I look forward to assisting in any way I can (in the transition)."

Ivimey is also a member of the Planning Board; he intends to continue serving on that board.

With this resignation, which will take effect after this Town Meeting cycle, the town will be looking for a citizen-at-large to serve on the Community Preservation Committee. Interested citizens should send an e-mail explaining their interest and skills to the Selectmen's office at Town Hall.

Input wanted on next town manager

The search for a new town manager is underway.

A Town Manager screening committee has been formed and has met twice to discuss the process with the town's search consultant, Groux and Associates. South Main Street resident Michael Milanoski was named the chair of the screening committee. The deadline for applications from interested candidates is Friday, April 15. Milanoski said the town has received applications from over 60 candidates thus far.

This past Monday evening the screening committee held a public comment period for residents to provide input on what kind of town manager they are looking for. Written comments are still being accepted until April 20.

"The purpose of the stakeholder pubic comment period is to allow vested groups (citizens, town employees, and other officials that interact with the town manager on different levels) the opportunity to provide input on skill sets/qualities they think are important for the (screening) committee to consider in recommending their slate of candidates to the Board of Selectmen for the new town manager," Milanoski said.

All written comments from the public should be submitted by Wednesday, April 20. Written comments can be submitted by e-mail to the town manager's office at Town Hall or directly to town's search consultant, Thomas Groux at tgroux@comcast.net.

The committee intends to have a recommendation of finalists by the first week in June. Interim town manager Steve Lombard can stay on with the town until the end of June.

Fire protection officer position in budget

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

This year's proposed budget for the fire department includes a new captain position that would serve as the town's fire protection officer.

All the area towns, with the exception of Norwell, already have a dedicated fire protection officer, Fire Chief Robert Silvia said.

"Our neighboring towns have someone with the technical expertise to do these very technical inspections," Silvia said in a recent phone interview.

While Cohasset has someone in the department with the technical expertise, he does not have the time needed to properly do the job. The new full-time position was negotiated into the union contract during the last negotiation process.

Silvia hopes to offset the increased cost associated with the position by incorporating a fee structure and through overtime savings.

Captain Mark Trask has served as the fire protection officer for 27 years and Silvia said several other firefighters would be trained for the position.

The creation of a new full-time position adds a line item of $68,319, plus health insurance, but does away with the overtime line item previously associated with the fire protection role yielding a savings of about $20,000. The fire protection officer is a fourth captain position.

The fire protection officer's primary responsibilities include fire code enforcement, such as state mandated inspections, and plan review for proposed buildings. The person will be a fixture at the Planning Board and zoning board meetings, as well as work closely with the building inspector.

Silvia aims to further offset the cost of the new position through the establishment of fees associated with the review of plan sets. Other towns with fire protection officers have a per square foot cost to go with the review of plan sets for compliance with fire safety, Silvia said.

At the March 22 Board of Selectmen's meeting Silvia said the town would charge $75 per 3000 square feet of building to issue a fire protection permit. The fee is broken down into three parts at $25 each (plan review of fire sprinklers, rough inspection of fire sprinklers and final sprinkler inspection). Inspection fees will not be charges for buildings less than 500 square feet.

"With the advent of projects like Avalon and Cook Estate, the fire protection officer is getting busier and busier."
– Fire Chief Robert Silvia

"We're not looking to gouge anybody, we're just looking to cover our costs," Silvia said.

The currently underway Avalon project is bringing 220 new apartment units to the town, and the fire department expects to collect $10,875 in fire inspection fees from that project alone.

"With the advent of projects like Avalon and Cook Estate the fire protection officer is getting busier and busier," Silvia told the Advisory Committee at a meeting during the budget review process.

Currently, the fire protection officer works one day a week, eight hours a day and is paid at an overtime rate to do so.

The officer will also serve as an ambassador to the school district as the department's SAFE (student awareness of fire education) officer.

"This will be a very, very busy person," Silvia said.

Installing a fire prevention officer in the department has been one of the Silvia's goals since being named chief.

"I really think the benefits of this position will outweigh the increase in cost. It will be money incredibly well spent and moreover we are a little behind the eight ball," Silvia said.

At the March 29 Board of Selectmen meeting, Selectman Lee Jenkins said the creation of a new position within the fire department should have been aired before the board and in the public.

DISPATCH

costs to design and build the center. Further, because the state favors a regional approach, more annual grants, nearly quadruple what the towns receive now, are expected as well.

With the opening of the regional dispatch center, which is expected to be sometime in August 2011, fire and police dispatch will no longer come from the Cohasset Police Station. All 9-1-1 and emergency calls from all four towns will be fielded at through the RECC in Hingham. It's unclear how business calls to the police station will be handled.

Hingham will be the first town to begin using the RECC, and then, after working out any kinks, the other towns will make the switch one at a time.

"We have to be 100 percent sure it works and works properly — we can't have it any other way," Silvia said. Both Cohasset's and Hull's switch have a layer of complexity because they are rolling over to a new radio system at the same time.

The RECC is being built with possibility of expansion and incorporation of other town's dispatch services.

One of the big questions with regional dispatch is if and how the Cohasset Police Station will be manned during the overnight shift. Right now, the dispatcher is typically the only person in the station during the overnight hours.

In a phone interview, Police Chief Mark DeLuca said he is still developing potential options.

There are currently six full-time dispatchers. A seniority list compiled of all four towns dispatchers was developed to determine who would retain their job when the new dispatch center opens. DeLuca said in a phone interview three of Cohasset six full-time dispatchers are likely to move over to the RECC.

At the Selectmen's meeting this week, interim Town Manager Steve Lombard said he needs to sit down with the other town managers and figure out what the new regional dispatch center is going to cost the town in fiscal 2012.

"I don't have the exact numbers on what the cost might be," Lombard said. In the fiscal 2012 budget going to town meeting he has allocated $160,000 for the regional dispatch. The funds were taken out of the dispatch line item in the police department budget.

AROUND TOWN

Road race kudos to one and all

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Hi everyone. How is Cohasset doing? I wanted to congratulate all who ran the Road Race last weekend as well as say huge congratulations to all who worked, volunteered and put together another successful race. Always amazing to me how well it all is done. It is so nice to see the "Spring" that is now appearing in everyone's steps now that the season is finally peeking out from under all of winters snow. A lot to share in this week's column so here we go.

Jazz night

I am so excited to share this piece of news and entertainment with you all. I know that sports are very important in our town and that all of our student athletes are awesome. I also know that many, many of our community members, both young and old are also awesome as they share and value what they do with the arts including theater, drama, singing and band, graphic art, photography and, well you get the idea. Everyone is special and here is an event that is going to be so wonderful for all to attend. It is called, "Jazz Through The Ages" and is happening next Wednesday, April 13th at 7 pm in the CHS auditorium.

Grab your family, call some friends and come celebrate and enjoy the journey as the month of April is Jazz Appreciation Month. From New Orleans to the New Ages, join us on a journey through Jazz, guided by the CMHS jazz musicians. Live on stage, the Middle and High School jazz ensembles will perform a variety of tunes from the past 10 decades. Come hear the classics....a live jam session and some new composition along with a multi-media presentation of videos, sounds, lights and live music! Tickets are $5 at the door for adults and students are free.

Box office

Another event that shows how close we are to the warm, musical and entertaining season of Summer. The South Shore Music Circus box office in Cohasset opens for the season on Saturday, April 16 at noon. Starting April 16th, the box office will be open daily from noon until 6 pm for in-person sales. The Music Circus box office opening day celebration will feature complimentary Dunkin' Donuts coffee & donuts, courtesy of the Music Circus, complimentary bottled water, courtesy of Tedeschi's Food Shops, live music by Katrin, Taste of Cohasset: food sampling by; 5 South Main, Mangia Neopolitan Pizza, Bia Bistro and others, a display of the Music Circus through the years by the Cohasset Historical Society, appearances by artists-in-residence at the South Shore Art Center, WATD broadcasting live, WPLM broadcasting live, a visit by Boston Music Spotlight, and enter-to-win contests with prizes from Cohasset Chamber businesses. For concert updates and new show announcements, visit the Music Circus web site at www.themusiccircus.org.

Dana Hermanson and his Boxer pup, Abby, watch for runner Emily Wadsworth as she runs along the route in the Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea. For more on Sunday's race, see sports.

Cookies

Mmmm, mmmmm, mmmm, COOKIES! Girl Scout troop #74029 will be holding a cookie sale tomorrow, Saturday April 9th from 12-4pm at Stop and Shop in Cohasset. Come buy a few boxes and show your support!

Shelter

The Scituate Animal Shelter is holding a huge yard sale both Saturday and Sunday this weekend from 9-3 on Saturday and 10-1 on Sunday at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Scituate on Route 3A. Thousands of items featuring books, collectables, household items, holiday decor, children's toys and more. Admission: $1 suggested donation. More information call (781) 544-4533.

Relay

Here is a "Save The Date" for everyone to put in the date books. This year's Relay For Life of Cohasset, Hingham, Scituate and Hull will be held at Cohasset High School June 24th and June 25th from 3 pm Friday until 10am on Saturday. This year's theme is the "Carnival of Hope" with tons of food, games, entertainment and and fun for the whole family. This is a wonderful way for anyone to become involved in the Relay for Cancer and you can join or start a team to show your support. For more information, contact Jen Lord at jennifer_quinn_99@yahoo.com or Courtney Finn at courtney.finn@yahoo.com. Put it in that date book and we will see you there!

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm. Cell phone photos are not usually the best as they have low resolution.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

On May 5, the Community Garden Club of Cohasset is launching its "Four Seasons in the Garden" Tour beginning at 9:30 a.m. with an informative lecture at the Lightkeeper's Cottage. COURTESY PHOTO

Four Seasons in the Garden Tour

Have you ever thought: "That house has attractive landscaping. I wish I could see its rear garden?" Here is your opportunity. On May 5, the Community Garden Club of Cohasset is launching its "Four Seasons in the Garden" Tour beginning at 9:30 a.m. with an informative lecture at the Lightkeeper's Cottage, 15 Lighthouse Lane, followed by a tour of two gardens, lunch and several more gardens in the afternoon. A total of six tours throughout the year, each day will begin with a talk, concentrating on landscaping ideas, planting tips, care instruction, etc., relevant to the South Shore and to that time of year.

There will be a horticultural table with specimens from the gardens to be visited that day. The examples will be labeled so that notes can be made, even before finding the flowers and plants in the gardens. There will also be information sheets to take away to help you remember the main points of the day. Several gardens will be available to be visited each day of the tour: two or three of those gardens will be visited each of the six days; they will be seen in all four seasons, to see how a garden can be planted to bring pleasure throughout the whole year. The other gardens will be chosen to exemplify teaching points or just because we could not resist showing off their beauty.

There will be one day each in summer, autumn and winter. Spring, however, is the huge growing season on the South Shore of Boston. Spring has mini-seasons within itself. Thus, "Four Seasons in the Garden" will highlight spring by looking at gardens three times during that part of the year. May 5, the middle of spring, the days of lilac and lily of the valley, will be our first meeting. The other seasons will follow: summer will be July 14; autumn will be Oct. 6; and winter will be Jan. 26, 2012. The last two garden tours will place us back into spring: April 4, 2012, the time of daffodils and other bulbs, and then we'll conclude our yearlong journey on June 14, 2012, when the scent of roses fills the air.

In addition to being greeted by a hot drink and home baked goodies as you arrive on each of the six tour days, enjoying the plant table, being engaged and educated by the seminar, there will also be two lunches included during the first and last of the garden tour dates. If you purchase in advance all of the above, the price is only $75. If you choose to pay per program, the lunch days will be $40 per day and the other days will be $20 each time. Tickets purchased on the day of the tour will be charged an additional $5. Tickets are available at Buttonwood Books, Windsor Tea Shop, and Darilynn's in Cohasset or from Diane Benson at dnbenson@comcast.net or Judy Dickstein at judyd617@comcast.net. There is no rain date for any of the tours, so come in appropriate dress, bring an umbrella and a sense of humor. Additional information can be obtained at www.communitygardenclubofcohasset.org.

CGCC is hoping that these garden walks will be an educational experience for our entire community. It should also be a lot of fun. These are days that can be shared between friends, a mother and a daughter, or as an introduction to our area for someone new to the South Shore. A year of gardens, instruction, and lovely food would make a great gift for Mother's Day, a birthday, or just as a personal treat. Walking through the private gardens of Cohasset is not an opportunity which comes very often.

So if you've ever wondered "Mary, Mary, quite contrary. How does your garden grow?" This is your chance to find out. Come and get a peak at some exquisite gardens never before open to the public, as well as learn some tips on gardening for that time of year. You will also be helping to support CGCC's various programs benefiting our community: maintaining the Lightkeeper's Cottage garden, the Cohasset Historical Society, and Constitution Park, funds for landscape design for the proposed senior center, garden therapy for seniors at Golden Living, junior gardeners at Osgood School, student scholarships, Arbor Day tree plantings, and more.

HAPPENINGS

Cohasset names subject of talk

Historian David Wadsworth will be the featured speaker at the Cohasset Historical Society's monthly Wednesday Lecture Series on Wednesday evening, April 20. David asks, "What's In a Name?" and answers with tales of how the various neighborhoods and areas in Cohasset acquired their designation.

David Wadsworth is a lifelong native of Cohasset and has a broad knowledge and understanding of the community. He brings both personal experience and research to his presentations. These Wednesday evening Historical Society Lectures are open to all in the community with an interest in getting to know more about our varied topics and about Cohasset in particular. Join us at the Pratt Building at 106 South Main St. The program begins at 7:30 p.m., there is no charge and light refreshment will be served.

Feed the Need 5K walk Saturday

Feed the Need, an all-volunteer group that organizes road races to collect food for local pantries, will sponsor a spring 5K walk/run through Wompatuck State Park in Hingham at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 9. Entry fee is 25 cans/boxes of food, or $20. One hundred percent of food will be delivered to local pantries.

Also featured at the event will be fun runs for children, a diaper dash and toddler trot. Age group medals, T-shirts, food and prizes will be offered.

For information or to register, visit feedtheneed.org or send e-mail to 5Kfeedtheneed@gmail.com.

Mother's Day Brunch offered

Sunrise Assisted Living of Cohasset will hold a Diabetes Awareness Mother's Day Brunch. Call for details and to RSVP 781-383-6300.

Historical Society Spring Dinner

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its annual Spring Dinner on May 1, at Atlantica Restaurant on Border Street. There will be a cash bar starting at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at approximately 6:15 p.m. The guest speaker for the evening will be Dave Downs, a retired school teacher with a masters degree in Creative Arts in Education, who will bring "The Marvelous Amusing Quack Medicine Show." Mr. Downs will present his unique and fascinating view of medical practice in the 18th and 19th Centuries.

The menu for the evening consists of mixed green salad, rice pilaf, seasonal fresh vegetables, and a choice of either pork loin with an apple raisin glaze or stuffed sole as the entrée. A sorbet with fresh berries is planned for dessert. All Historical Society members as well as guests are welcome to attend. The cost for members is $31 and for non-members is $36. Checks are payable to Cohasset Historical Society. Call the Historical Society at 781-383-1434 to make reservations and indicate your choice of entrée prior to April 22.

CANDIDATE ANNOUNCEMENTS Editor's note: The candidates and/or their campaign committees provide the candidate announcements.

Fred Koed to seek reelection

The days ahead will test Cohasset and its leadership. This will not be easy, but that is precisely why Selectman Fred Koed has chosen to run again. Fred has always acted on a single principle: What is best for the Town of Cohasset? Recently he analyzed our Town's current situation as follows:

"The past few years have presented challenges, the outcome of which will significantly affect the character and direction of our town. I hope to continue as selectman during this critical period, continuing to bring common sense and the perspective of a lifelong resident to the table. Now, more than ever, I believe I can make a difference."

Cohasset is divided not only on issues, but also on the ways we choose to achieve our goals. We all want to balance budgets; maintain excellence in education; provide affordable housing for seniors; preserve the character and open spaces that define Cohasset; protect our water resources; and plan for and manage development. My goal is to represent these separate interests to the best of my ability while making sure it is in the best interest of Cohasset residents.

A systems analyst for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Selectman Koed holds a Master of Science degree in Public Affairs from the John W. McCormack Institute, and a BA from UMass-Boston.

Mr. Koed has demonstrated his interest and abilities in all aspects of Cohasset governance through the number and variety of boards and committees upon which he has served: Advisory Committee (appointed by the Troika, 1983-1987), Fair Housing Committee (appointed by Selectmen, 1987-1989), Housing Authority (appointed by the Governor, 1987-1992), Water Commission (elected, 1994-1997), Selectman (elected,1999-present). Fred has served as chair on three boards, the Advisory Committee, Water Commission and Board of Selectman.

Ron Goodwin is the Campaign Manager. Sam Hassan has been appointed campaign treasurer. If you are interested in learning more about Fred's positions, or wish to become involved in his campaign, please contact Fred directly at 781-383-6640 or fred.koed@gmail.com. The campaign mailing address is "Committee to Elect Fred Koed, PO Box 142, Cohasset, MA 02025".

Kennedy announces run for selectman

Diane Kennedy of Jerusalem Road Drive has announced her candidacy for a seat on the Cohasset Board of Selectmen.

Kennedy, a 12-year Cohasset resident has been active in the community through her work at the South Shore Art Center and through her many volunteer activities, as board member of the Cohasset Education Foundation, member of Cohasset Middle/High School Council, religious education instructor at St. Anthony's Parish, and chair of the Cohasset Cultural Council. Kennedy is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Wheaton College.

"I look forward to continuing the many conversations I have had over the past few weeks. We have a wonderful community of engaged citizens and I hope to have the opportunity to put my skills and energy to work as a member of the Board of Selectmen," Kennedy commented.

A number of events are planned to introduce Diane as a candidate.

bers were not opposed to having DeGennaro take on the role, some expressed concern that other employees who are state certified to be a superintendent were not asked.

"I'm feeling uncomfortable that we did not approach the other people in the district to see if they are interested," said school committee member Linda Snowdale. "It's a sign of respect."

The school committee knew of at least three employees with the certification: middle high school principal Joel Antolini, high school vice principal Mike Gill, and Director of Student Services Denise Messina.

The School Committee directed Lieb to speak with those employees to gauge their interest in the position. A $12,000 stipend (in addition to the employee's regular salary) for the three months would be offered.

School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz said there are other possibilities as well, outside of the district. He said there are at least two retired superintendents in the local area who have retained their certifications. Slanetz had concerns about one person doing two jobs within the district. But he was alone in considering this option.

"It's great (there are external) candidates, but they wouldn't be familiar with our district, they don't know our particular budget issues, they don't know the personnel," said school committee member Jeanne Astino.

There were financial considerations as well to hiring an internal candidate. Hiring an outside candidate to come in for three months was more significantly more expensive than choosing someone internally, Lieb said.

"It's a strength to have someone familiar with the finance, knows the budget, knows all the players. (DeGennaro) is a great candidate for the position," school committee member Jeanne Astino said.

Lieb said out of all the internal candidates DeGennaro had the most overlap of responsibilities with the superintendent. She likened the committee's predicament to a "chess game" where they had to use each of their pieces appropriately. For example, on Walsh's recommendation, she aimed to tap Messina and Deer Hill Principal Jennifer deChiara to co-chair the search committee for a new Osgood School principal (current school principal Janet Sheehan is leaving the district in June).

"We have too few people and we need to use them wisely (to get through this time)," Lieb said.

Messina, who was in the audience at the meeting, said she would not be interested in serving as the interim superintendent.

In a prior school district, she served as interim superintendent, in addition to director of student services, for six months.

"You face a lot of challenges and you need support from the entire team," Messina said.

After approaching the other employees in the district, the committee will re-convene on Monday at 7p.m. in the school community room to appoint an interim superintendent.

In the meantime, to ensure there was someone in control of the school district, the committee appointed DeGennaro as acting superintendent with a stipend in addition to his own salary effective April 1. That stipend would come out of that $12,000 allocation for the interim superintendent.

Turbine bylaw makes an encore

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

Over the past four years the Cohasset wind turbine bylaw has been through a lot.

First, it was welcomed with open arms when Annual Town Meeting approved it unanimously. When reality set in and the first application under the bylaw was filed in 2008 the bylaw was subject to extreme scrutiny and controversy.

Debate over bylaw continued when a group of citizens called a special town meeting to place a "moratorium" on the wind bylaw so it could be revised. The effort failed and the bylaw stood as it was originally proposed.

But, that action set into motion the revision of the bylaw, which was largely undertaken by the Alternative Energy Committee (AEC) in partnership with the Planning Board.

In the meantime, two applications for wind turbines have come before the Planning Board for consideration. The first from CCI-Energy, a private developer, for twin 100-meter turbines on Cohasset Heights was denied, remanded back to the town for further consideration and denied again.

The second application came from the Trustees of Reservation for an 80-meter turbine atop the Cohasset side of Turkey Hill. The Planning Board approved the application with conditions in February, but an appeal in Land Court has already been filed (see related story).

At Annual Town Meeting on Saturday, April 30, citizens will once again consider the wind turbine bylaw. The proposed amendments to the bylaw address many of the major concerns brought up through the permitting process for the two-turbine project proposed by private developer CCI-Energy during 2009 and 2010.

Among the benefits of having a wind turbine bylaw is it establishes regulations and clear parameters for turbine development. It also enables the project to go through a special permit process overseen by the planning board, which includes a public hearing process.

The revised bylaw places clearer and in some cases more stringent regulations on turbine construction in Cohasset.

"It's been long extensive process that clarifies previously vague conditions," said Conrad Langenhagen, a once opponent of the CCI-Energy two-turbine project and now an AEC member. Noise, height, setbacks and shadow flicker are addressed in the amended bylaw (see sidebar).

"We had to balance visual concerns with the practical measure developers need to make their projects economically viable," Langenhagen said. "We had to figure out what was right for Cohasset."

At Town Meeting, voters will choose from two options: accept the proposed amendments to the bylaw or keep the current wind turbine bylaw.

Now that the wind turbine bylaw has been through the paces on two applications – and given the controversy that came with both applications – Selectman Paul Carlson said residents might want to consider a third option: not allowing turbines at all in Cohasset.

Planning Board chair Al Moore said it was something to consider. After overseeing the public hearing process for two turbine project applications – all of which were highly charged and controversial – Moore said the town should have a chance to say, "I don't want a wind turbine."

This change in the bylaw, like the amendment proposed, would have to be vetted in a planning board public hearing process. After a brief discussion it seemed removing the possibility of turbines would require more consideration than time before the April 30 town meeting allowed.

Langenhagen said the proposed wind turbine bylaw might allow more turbines throughout town, but each on a smaller scale if closer to homes.

"This bylaw makes (turbines) possible, but not very easy...if one goes up it s not going to ruin a neighborhood," said AEC member Rod Hobson.

Langenhagen said potential sites where turbines could be sited under the new bylaw are large swaths of open space, including Cohasset Heights, Trustee of Reservation (Whitney Thayer Woods), Wompatuck State Park, land surrounding Lily Pond, Wheelwright Park, and the town of Cohasset's former landfill.

"The amended bylaw certainly is an improvement (over the current bylaw)," Carlson said.

The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to recommend approval of the zoning bylaw.

Major changes to the bylaw

Issue: Maximum height
Current bylaw: 100-meters (350-feet)
Proposed bylaw: 80-meters (260-feet)
Note: Height in both versions of the bylaw is measured from pre-construction grade to the highest point reached by the nacelle, the hub where the three blades meet.

Issue: Setbacks
Current bylaw: A turbine cannot be sited within a distance equal to the total height of the turbine from any property line in a residential district.
Proposed bylaw: A turbine cannot be sited within a distance equal to the total height of the turbine from buildings, critical infrastructure, or private or public ways. Additional protection for residential buildings is included: turbines must be sited at least three times the total height of the turbine from the nearest existing residential structure. The final setback addition is the turbine must be sited 1.5 times the total height of the turbine from the nearest property line.

Issue: Noise
Current bylaw: The turbine must adhere to Massachusetts noise regulations. An analysis prepared by a qualified engineer must be presented to show compliance with the noise standards.
Proposed bylaw: The proposed bylaw keeps this current wording and expands upon it. A definition of "ambient" was added. The revised bylaw also calls for a noise analysis to be completed within 90 days of initial operation of the turbine. It also contains a clause to address the noise regulations as it might mean for two turbines within a half-mile of each other.

Issue: Shadow/flicker
Current bylaw: The turbine must be sited in a manner that does not result in significant shadowing or flicker.
Proposed bylaw: A shadow/flicker analysis must be performed by a qualified engineer using industry recognized software to determine the worst-case shadow flicker that could be experienced by all private structures occupied during daylight hours within a half-mile of the turbine. The maximum allowable worst-case daily shadow flicker should not exceed 30 minutes each day.

LAWSUIT

of Reservations' buildings throughout Massachusetts with some to spare. The Trustees established a private corporation, Conservation Wind LP, to lease the land in order to construct the turbine.

The special permit came with a host of conditions the Planning Board felt were needed to ensure a safe project that complies with the town's bylaws throughout the life of the structure.

Yet, the Land Court suit argues the project does not comply with the town's zoning bylaws in a variety of respects.

At the top of the list is the impact of "shadow flicker," a strobing effect produced when the sun passes behind the blades of the turbine.

"The flicker effect will have a substantial adverse impact on those residents at Golden Living's facility as well as those who reside nearby, including causing these persons to experience up to 100 hours per year of flicker," the lawsuit states. Golden Living nursing facility is home to about 200 elderly residents.

The portion of the zoning bylaw dedicated to wind turbine does not give a specific threshold for shadow flicker, only that there should not be "significant shadowing or flicker impacts."

During the hearings the "industry standard" of no more than 30 hours per year of shadow flicker was discussed frequently.

One of the 37 conditions given in the approval for the project is monitoring of the actual shadow/flicker at five locations near the turbine. According to the decision, excessive flicker is defined as more than 30 minutes per day and/or more than 30 hours per year. If either of these maximum levels of flicker is exceeded the planning board requires the applicant to undertake measures (i.e. shut down the turbine during certain hours) to mitigate the shadow/flicker.

The lawsuit contends the planning board cannot use conditions to ensure the project complies with the bylaw.

"If a turbine imposes significant shadowing or flicker impacts, the proposed turbine cannot satisfy the bylaw and no measure of mitigation can correct this deficiency," the suit states.

Susan Haralson, spokesperson for Golden Living, said the proposed wind turbine construction would have a direct, negative impact on the patients, residents and employees at Golden Living Center in Cohasset.

"We are particularly concerned about the close proximity of the proposed turbine to our Living Center, the noise created by the turbine's operation, the shadowing that the turbine will cast, the flicker of the turbine...and other safety issues associated with turbines," Haralson said in an e-mail. "(All of these issues are) of special concern given the age and healthcare needs of our patients and residents."

For Hingham resident Charles Dale, who is a plaintiff in the lawsuit, both the process and the ultimate decision to allow the wind turbine were "fatally flawed."

"The planning board was much more interested in giving the citizens of Cohasset what they thought they wanted than hearing the concerns of the residents who would be affected and impacted by the turbine, in particular those 200 elderly residents at the nursing home," Dale said in a phone interview. His home on Turkey Hill Lane is approximately one half-mile from the potential turbine site.

In addition to shadow flicker, the lawsuit names loss of property value, noise from the turbine and disruption caused by the construction of the turbine. The materials to construct the turbine must be brought to the site up Turkey Hill Lane, a narrow residential street.

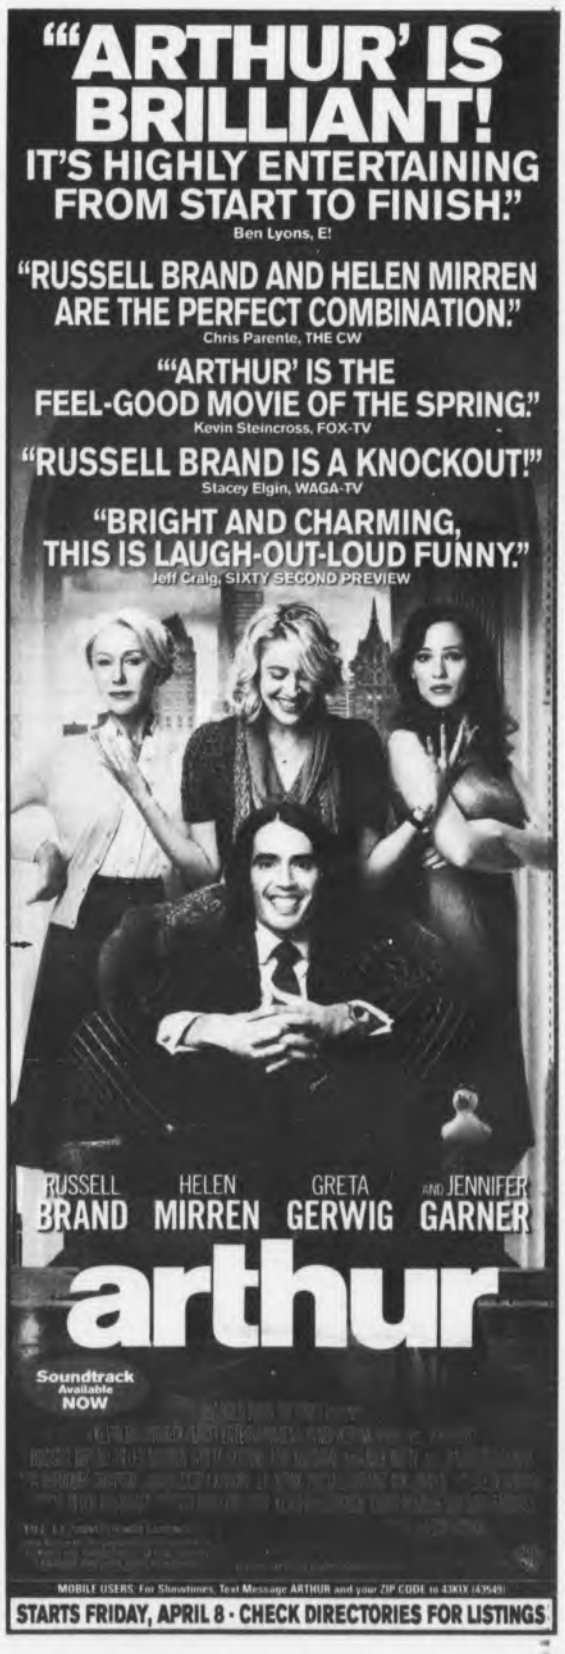
The Trustees of Reservations are hopeful the Land Court lawsuit is only a step in the process.

"We still feel the project is appropriate and that we can address the concerns of Golden Living and their residents. We are still committed to making this project work," Steve Sloan, Trustees of Reservations Greater Boston Regional Director, said in a phone interview. "Working toward sustainable energy alternatives is directly connected to our role as good stewards of conservation land."

The Trustees have been working toward this project for several years, and Sloan said overcoming this appeal of their special permit is part of the process.

"Our next step is to win the appeal and move forward with the project," Sloan said.

The Planning Board and each of its members are named as defendants in suit, in addition to the Trustees.



Planning Board vice chair Stuart Ivimey said he was "disappointed" the appeal was filed.

"The board dedicated significant time to hearing, understanding and studying the abutters' complaints and concerns and I believe those are appropriately addressed by the conditions of approval set forth in the decision," Ivimey said in a phone interview.

OUR VIEW

Is it worth it?

We have preached again and again about the dangers of underage drinking, which are of epidemic proportions no matter what town or state you live in.

Spring has arrived and therefore, spring break is right around the corner – so this is a good time for us to get back on our soapbox.

Kids and alcohol are a national problem and our children are part of a multi-billion dollar culture that promotes drinking as cool for the young.

Over the years we have covered stories about minors with alcohol – the toughest ones are those involving a fatality. Talking to friends and family about this type of tragedy is one of the most difficult parts of a reporter's job.

We applaud all efforts by parents, schools and police to educate young people and to provide alcohol-free activities such as post-prom and post-graduation events.

Drinking irresponsibly at any age is serious business. We are often amazed, though, at how many parents think "kids will be kids" and there is little one can do about teens and alcohol use.

While teens and driving never mix, alcohol can be a killer even when no car is involved.

A family from Rhode Island used to sponsor a traveling play about their son, who became drunk at an underage party and choked to death on his own vomit. A young recovering alcoholic would play the role of Eddie while students at the high school where the play was being produced would play the other parts. A frank discussion with the student audience followed.

The following facts about drinking may be useful to minors and their parents.

You may be arrested if you are under 21 and are:

- Drinking an alcoholic beverage
- Carrying an alcoholic beverage
- Transporting alcohol in a vehicle
- Driving under the influence
- In possession of or using a fake I.D.

A guilty conviction could result in:

- Depending on the offense: loss of license, fines and/or jail time
- A criminal record
- Increase in auto insurance premiums

What could happen when an underage person holds a house party and alcohol and other drugs are present?

- All people under 21 can be arrested
- Host can be charged under the Social Host Law plus possibly charged with keeping a disorderly house.
- Parents of the host can be sued if a person gets sick, hurt or gets injured after leaving the party, even if the parents were not aware of the party.
- A person 21 or older who provides alcohol for minors is subject to criminal and civil liabilities.
- Providing alcohol to someone under 21 may be punished by imprisonment for six months and fines of $2,000.

Reading all this, parents and their under-age children need to ask themselves the question: Is underage drinking worth it?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Race supporters

On behalf of the Cohasset Rotary Club we would like to thank everyone in town for their support of the 35th Road Race By the Sea & Fran Coffey Fun Walk. The event was a huge success with almost 2,000 runners and walkers crossing the finish line on a beautiful Sunday afternoon. Chief DeLuca, Chief Silvia, the entire Police and Fire departments, Steve Lombard, the Board of Selectman, Tara Tradd, the Board of Health and the DPW were incredibly supportive in making sure the event was safe while minimizing the impact on residents. Lt. Bill Quigley, Mary Goodwin, Tom Wigmore and Paul Murphy were especially generous with their time and effort.

We had close to 200 volunteers who helped in every facet of the race from registration to the post-race picnic. Cohasset resident, Mike Dick, did a fantastic job coordinating our volunteers and we had equally great results from Dave Clinton, coordinator of the water stops with volunteers from the Appalachian Service Project, Rob Hillman, coordinator of the Boy Scouts at the Finish Line and McSweeney and Ricci Insurance calling out the times at the mile markers.

We'd like to thank our sponsors: Colospace, Graham Waste, Rosano Excavating, Suburban Contract Cleaning, The Red Lion Inn, Pilgrim Bank, Cohasset Dental, Rosano Davis, J.F. Kehoe Excavating, Lehr and Barnes, Hingham Lumber, Cohasset Collision, 5 South Main, Bia Bistro, The Good Sport, Dr. Lisa Lewis of Cohasset Family Chiropractic, Robbins Garage, Dean and Hamilton, Coastal Countryside, Hingham Car Wash, Sullivan, Garrity and Donnelly, Virtual Homes Real Estate, Your Project Office, Curtis Liquors, Kinnealey Meats, Balance Studio, Mariposa Massage, Atlantic Bagel, Cohasset Mariner and Goodwin Graphics.

The Rotary Club uses the funds to support community service projects and provide humanitarian aid in Cohasset and around the world. Our largest program is college scholarships for graduates of Cohasset High and we have supported the Cohasset Food Pantry and many other important projects.

On March 8 we lost a dear friend when Gerard Linskey passed away suddenly; he was the club treasurer and a key member of the race committee. Gerard lived the Rotary motto "Service Above Self" and he will be missed. The club dedicated this year's race to his memory and we're pleased that the winners of the Men's and Women's divisions knew Gerard personally and had his initials on their running shoes.

On a personal note the race the Race Committee would like to thank Jeanne, Michael, Morgan, Matthew and Jack for their patience and support.

All Band Night

I would like to commend our CHS Music teachers and our children on their outstanding performance last Thursday evening at the 8th Annual All Band Night. Energy exuded throughout a packed gymnasium of parents watching the fourth and fifth grade through the Middle/High School bands and even on up to the Rusty Skippers guest performance!

They performed pieces they learned this year, ranging from a precise, rhythmic "Celebration Prelude" to the sophisticated "Kaleidescope" In unison, all the bands played the Event's traditional grand finale of "When the Saints Go Marching In".

Mrs. Moriarity, Mr. Biagini, and Mr. DeWaal directed with such professionalism and passion! You could tell the children truly enjoyed what they were doing, as well as those teachers. This was one of the most energized performances we have listened to in some time.

Even with the recent school budget hurdles and the constant juggle of practice time between band and sports, our music department should be praised for their steadfastness and dedication to our children. What a superb team!

Barbara Canney, 353 South Main St.

Making music

As a member of the Rusty Skippers band, I participated last night (March 31) in an amazing event unequaled in my over 60 years of playing the clarinet — close to 400 kids from fourth grade to seniors in high school making music together, demonstrating everything that is good about education in our public schools. Kids engaged, excited about their performance, and working as a group towards a common goal.

Hearty congratulations to the three music teachers who pulled this off — Stephanie Moriarty, John DeWaal and our own leader, Steve Biagini — who work 12 or more hours a day in their unflagging commitment to our kids — and to the taxpayers of Cohasset as well who recognize the power of music in kid's lives and are willing to support a strong music education program.

I am working with community leaders in New Bedford where, in a student population of over 12,000, only 16 students remain in the high school band. With over 100 members it was once one of the state's best. In this era of limited financial resources if anyone has any idea as to what to do, we'd appreciate any and all suggestions.

COMMENTARY

Cat Dam and odor decrease

MURRAY CAMPBELL

Some State officials and a few Cohasset residents have sacrificed rationality on the altar of "naturalism."

It may seem obvious that natural tidal flushing of Inner Little Harbor (ILH) will best reduce the odors produced from decay of organic matter. But many years ago some thoughtful individuals realized that the severe odor and scum problem in summer resulted in large part from lack of water cover over the shallow bottom of ILH at low tide, plus the sun's heat. The rational and intelligent response was to develop a compromise between (a) natural tidal flushing at each tide and (b) sufficient water retention to cover much of the bottom during some of the low tides. This was accomplished by installing one-way hinged flapper gates (check valves) in the channel between Inner Little Harbor and Little Harbor to restrict tidal outflow to Little Harbor when closed. In the summer months the flappers should be (and are) raised (to the open position) part of the time to permit the desirable flushing, but left closed part of the time in order to retain some water on the bottom of the shallow ILH. This has greatly reduced odors created by decay of organic matter. Although the desirable flushing has been slightly reduced, the effect is much more than offset by the increased water, as evidenced of the much reduced odor.

The gates are left open full time during the several other months when temperatures are low enough that organic decay and odor production are diminished and the effects of unimpeded flushing are sufficient.

This rational compromise greatly reduced the odors, and thus has been a demonstrated success for many years. Of course, some further improvement to odor reduction may be achieved by fine-tuning of valve closure timing and duration.

That the odors in ILH were not reduced to the level experienced in Little Harbor does not mean that the compromise was a failure; it means only that the generally shallower configuration of ILH encourages greater odor production and its abatement more difficult. The salient fact is that the compromise (between free flow and moderated free flow) to provide some controlled water retention has greatly reduced odor release relative to that experienced with unmoderated free flow. The passage of time is no argument for regressing to free flow. The nutrient load must have increased since inception of modified flow, by the addition of homes and failures of septic systems, yet the horrendous odors of decades past have not returned. Nor should it be assumed that the conversion to sewers sufficiently reduces nutrient load and odor production enough to outweigh the demonstrated advantage of controlled outflow from ILH.

Note that the Cat Dam gates are intended to control the outflow from ILH so as to somewhat prolong water retention and reduce bottom exposure time to air, whereas tide gates elsewhere typically are used to prevent inflow of sea water to an estuary. The difference needs be recognized in assessing the literature on the subject of estuary health.

"Seeking a Healthy Harbor" is a worthy objective, but the intervention measures that have demonstrably reduced odor release are not counter to that objective, regardless of what biological/ecological treatises are cited in support of unrestricted flushing.

"Natural" is good, but not always better than intelligent intervention.

MAKING TRACKS

An update on Jacobs Meadow

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project — Making Tracks has returned from our winter hibernation. A lot has happened since our last report to you. We'll do our best to bring you up to date on what has happened on our major Cohasset projects. The Greenbush Office's main effort has been reconstructing the extremely deteriorated outfall channel system from Jacobs Meadow to the harbor.

Let's back up and refresh your memory about this project. Jacobs Meadow is a 14-acre meadow fed by James and Stewart Brooks. These two brooks collect the storm water from approximately 25 percent of Cohasset. So, when extensive rains occur, Jacobs Meadow receives a significant volume of water before it can be released to the harbor, tides permitting. The condition of the outfall channel between the meadow and the harbor is very important and its deterioration increases the build-up of water in Jacobs Meadow by slowing the release of the storm water.

Over the years, the stone channel that connects the meadow to the harbor had begun to collapse. The first photo, which was taken last year, shows the collapsed wall, looking toward Elm Street. The channel was seriously narrowed and rubble in the bottom of the channel compromised the ability of the channel to drain the meadow.

Cohasset was awarded a grant from the Commonwealth to reconstruct the drainage channel and reconstruct its outlet at the edge of the harbor. The town had to apply for multiple permits from federal and state authorities, which took about 1 year. The construction work started just before winter started last year.

The second photo shows the same view as it looks today after the channel was reconstructed. The storm water can now flow from the meadow to the harbor more efficiently. Similarly, due to the reconstructed channel, salt water can flow into the meadow with much less obstruction. Over the next several weeks, we'll talk about the steps that were taken to go from the channel as it was to the configuration you see in the second photo. In addition, we'll also review the work being done on the harborside for this project.

A Bit of New Important Greenbush Information: You may have read about the fact that the MBTA has discovered a problem on the older sections of the Old Colony rail lines. They have found that the concrete ties used throughout these older lines have deteriorated very prematurely. This deterioration could seriously affect the safety of the rail system. So far, no such problems have been found with the concrete ties used in the Greenbush construction. The MBTA is embarking on a massive project to replace the deteriorated ties.

Unfortunately, there will be an impact on Cohasset rail service on weekends only. To explain, it is important to remember that from Braintree into Boston all legs of the Old Colony trains (including the Greenbush) operate over common trackage. When they begin replacing the ties on this section of track, the work will be done only on weekends so that weekday commuter traffic will not be interrupted. Thus, there will be NO commuter rail service on weekends from April 30th until the project is complete sometime in 2012. Weekday service on the Greenbush will be unaffected.

To find more information, go to the website MBTA.com and enter OCCR in the search box. A direct link will be found to the MBTA tie replacement project.

FOR THE RECORD

Asking for your opinion

GREGORY MATHIS

Long before there were careless bloggers spewing opinions loosely based on fact or worse – tossing around random, hurtful thoughts to see what would stick – there were letters to the editor.

Before there were vicious and mean-spirited comments posted on stories on websites, there were thoughtful commentaries sent in by reputable members of the community.

It wasn't too long ago that the pages of the newspaper were the place to express your opinion on all matters relating to the community.

We still get thoughtful letters to the editor and commentaries, but the days of the newspaper being the sole landing spot for that collection of vibrant community interaction are gone with the wind and the Web.

The newspaper's editorial page and op-edit page, which fall under the Opinion banner head on these pages, should be and can be an important place for varying opinions in the community.

In many instances the editorial page starts with us, and our opinion. Our goal is to have relevant local editorials leading the Opinion page. We sometimes get criticized for our editorials being "biased", which can pose a bit of a dilemma at times. The writer of the local editorial is most often either the paper's editor or reporter, the same people who need to be as objective as possible when covering and reporting the news. How can one have an opinion and be objective? A good question without a good answer, although I think our readers – you – want your community newspaper to voice opinions on what's happening around town.

While the editorial page may start with us, it's really about you. Letters to the editor, in my opinion, still hold a lot of weight. Maybe even more weight than our editorials. A letter-writer puts a lot on the line, as we require letters to be signed, so that person willingly puts their thoughts and opinions out there for everyone to see.

On occasion, we'll convert a longer letter focused on a particular theme into a guest commentary. These commentaries add depth and variety to the editorial page.

We also have regular columnists contributing to these pages. Some are ultra conservative, some are extremely liberal, some fall a little closer to the middle, some are funny, some come from organizations that serve the community. Regardless, any exchange of thoughts, ideas and opinions is a healthy one and this is where that community interaction can happen.

Some of our papers still carry anonymous phone-in lines. We call them Speak out! in some, Sound off! in others. Many have and still do question the merits of allowing people to call in to a message machine and rant and rave anonymously, but it's still a popular outlet in the towns where we still have it. Whether or not you approve of this form of expressing an opinion, it does give people another opportunity to express what's on their mind. The calls and the callers, however, don't carry the same credibility as letter writers or columnists who are willing to sign their names to their opinions.

The Internet has given people another place to share their thoughts and ideas through blogs and comments on stories and other Web postings. While we want our Web viewers to contribute to that online dialogue, readers shouldn't forget about the importance of the Opinion page in the newspaper and how much your contributions through commentaries, letters to the editor, and yes, even Speak out or Sound off, make it a true community forum.

HEALTH NOTES

'Negativitis' is not good for you

STEVE BOBO

Angst and Trauma — Angst is defined as an intense feeling of apprehension, anxiety or inner turmoil. In modern usage, psychological "trauma" refers to an experience that is emotionally painful, distressful, or shocking, which often results in lasting mental and physical effects. Both can affect health. A recent quote from a teen describes the plight of many youngsters at one time or another. "Sometimes I have a panic attack/angst fit where I feel like everything horrible is going to happen to me. My hands get cold and shivering; I'm sweating with a high pulse while my friends obviously are having fun." Hopefully, as we mature, we have abandoned the superficial worries of youth and developed an optimism about life's problems and how to attack them.

How we feel emotionally and our attitudes in life are a significant factor in our health and well being. Someone who is relaxed and happy will always be much healthier than someone who suffers from depression or has much stress in their life. The body can cope with only a certain amount of worry and uncertainty before general health is affected. Negativity will damage your health just as much as any physical illness affecting your immune system and leaving you vulnerable to sickness and the ability to cope.

One such example of negativity is depression. Medical research has shown that those who develop depression during illness will take longer to recover and possibly increase chances of complications occurring. Instead of the body healing, depression takes over and one loses the ability to fight to heal itself. Research shows that patients who have suffered a heart attack and develop depression afterwards have an increased chance of dying in the subsequent six months. People suffering from depression will usually need more medication to help them recover and added healthcare; increasing their chances of developing illness and suffering more severe forms of the illness.

Loneliness: another example of negativity affecting health. Fortunate are those with friends or family willing to listen when they have a shoulder to cry on or a sympathetic ear. Support, whether it's just unloading everyday niggles or moaning about irritating colleagues, makes all the difference and as they say a problem shared is a problem halved. Those who have no friends or relatives don't have this support and have to deal with grief, depression and pressure alone. Rush hours and other everyday stresses; debt problems add to angst, and the strain of careers means we don't get much time for rest and relaxation. Dealing with continuous stress is certain to damage our health eventually and unfortunately it's often too late before we realize the danger.

So, beware of that insidious disease known as 'negativitis' (negative thinking); as pervasive as the common cold, but far more damaging. It mutilates, cripples, and corrodes the human spirit. Those infected are broken men and women aimlessly plodding along. The dark clouds brooding over them obscure their vision and cause them to become confrontational, apathetic, and cynical. Their lives are like flat champagne, without any sizzle. So, how do we inoculate ourselves against such a harmful disease? It was only after learning about the horrible effects of smoking that people began to give it up. It may be wise to do the same here.

Although Massachusetts compares favorably to most other states, overweight and obesity are still major public health problems in the Commonwealth. Consider these facts: More than half of the adults and almost one-third of high school and middle school students in Massachusetts are overweight or obese. Between 2003 and 2007, black adults were 60 percent and Hispanic adults were 50 percent more likely to be obese than their white counterparts.

Angst Causes Obesity: More than two-thirds of adults in Massachusetts are not eating the recommended 5 or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day. Only 15 percent of high school and middle school students in Massachusetts report eating the recommended 5 or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day.

In 10 years, the percentage of adults in Massachusetts with diabetes has almost doubled (3.8 percent in 1998 vs. 7.4 percent in 2007). According to a 2006 CDC report, $1.8 billion of medical expenses in Massachusetts are attributable to adult obesity.

Unless the numbers decrease, overweight and obesity will soon pass smoking as the leading cause of preventable death in the Commonwealth and in the nation.

We are a Town focused on change: with the coming of new technology, mainly in communications; affecting our reading habits; our working habits and the food we eat- produce, perhaps better looking , but less tasty and diverse albeit, more uniform.

The best way to relieve ourselves of negativity is to take daily exercise and consider a change in our lifestyle. Smoke less or give up completely; cut down on the coffee and develop more moderate alcohol habits, listen to relaxing music regularly and take a 30-minute stroll on the waterfront or the Common rather than slouching in front of the television. Relax by reading a book or do what takes your mind off your troubles; and remember to appreciate the good things in life.' Oh, and it may pay to ignore the occasional feisty Cohasset neighbor.

THIRD IN A SERIES

Backstage at the library

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

The recent history of Cohasset's library goes back to 2000 when Town Meeting authorized $2.9 million for a new library in the old Joseph Osgood School, provided the Trustees raise $700,000 and Cohasset receive a Massachusetts Library Construction Grant. In 2003, the new $4.4 million Paul Pratt Memorial Library opened with more than one-third of it paid for by generous private gifts.

Although Paul Pratt Memorial Library is an integral part of the fabric that weaves Cohasset's community together, like other public libraries, it has recently undergone state and federal cutbacks, which have had a significant impact on its services.

On the other hand, the library's program offerings and progressive technologies continue to impress patrons. So what is the key to the paradox? If you asked a trustee, one might attribute the library's "grace under pressure" to prudent money management, another to generous volunteerism, and yet another to dedicated, competent staffing.

All trustees, however, agree the library is an investment in the community's future; therefore, the town and when possible, individuals, must invest in the library's future.

According to trustee Sheila Evans, "In the last several years, two trends have worked against us. First, costs have increased due to greater library usage and a rapidly changing, technologically oriented, more expensive library world. Second, as other pressures on the town have increased, the library's share of Cohasset's annual budget has steadily decreased. We have more library cardholders, more visits, more programs, and more computer use than ever before. We need to be fiscally resourceful in order to meet those demands."

In 2006, to increase the library's endowment and manage its financial future, trustees established the Cohasset Library Trust, Inc. (a 501(c)(3) corporation). Currently, the library has an endowment of roughly $1.2 million, the result of less than 30 unsolicited gifts over more than 100 years. In recent years, the library has used about 4 percent of the endowment to support its annual operating budget. This takeout rate sensibly protects against the effects of inflation in order to preserve the real value of the endowment. Since 2006, the Library Trust has added gifts of more than $170,000 to the library's endowment.

Donors of $5,000 or more are honored by inclusion of their names, or someone selected by them, on a wall display, titled Endowment Gifts to the Cohasset Library Trust, located in the entry way to the library from the Ripley Road parking lot.

In addition to the Library Trust, many programs and the technology that supports those programs are made possible by grants from local, state, and federal sources. For example, the current Next Chapter series is sponsored by two grants — one from the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners and the other from Cohasset's Social Service League. Director Jackie Rafferty keeps a vigilant eye out for grants that would be appropriate for Cohasset's interests.

Library volunteers enable not only increased program offerings but provide the hard labor that makes for efficient operations — behind the scenes. In addition to the individual volunteers who serve the library, the Friends sponsor several programs, such as the Homework Center, Cohasset Reads Together, museum passes, and many of the children's and adult events. The Friends raise funds through an annual town-wide mailing and used book and video sales.

Together with fundraising, Friends volunteers help make the library available to everyone. Each week, a Friend visits the Sunrise and Golden Living Centers, as well as Elm Street homes, to reach seniors who might otherwise be unable to take advantage of library resources. Homebound visits are also available through the Friends.

The culture of the library would be noticeably different without its current staff. Director Jackie Rafferty, Children's Librarian Sharon Moody, and Reference Librarian Gayle Walsh all work together along side staff to meet the needs of patrons and assure that the library's mission, "to provide a welcoming environment and through technology, a window to the world beyond," is fulfilled.

Lastly, the nine elected trustees act as not only advocates for the library but are responsible for overseeing the library's operations, establishing policies and plans, and determining the library's budget. The trustees meet every month on the second Wednesday at 7 pm. Meetings are open to the public and are held at the library.

FISCAL 2012

Schools grapple with budget gap

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

What's clear is the School Committee is still in support of the $15.732 million budget for fiscal 2012.

What isn't clear is how the School Committee plans to make up the projected revenue gap between that number and what the town has said it can afford. The difference is $330,000.

Both the school recommended budget of $15.732 million, which is a level services budget and a 4.32 percent increase over the current fiscal year, and the town manager's recommended budget of $15.402 million will appear on the Town Meeting warrant.

Town Meeting will have the ultimate say on the town and school's budget on Saturday, April 30.

"It's important for the town to realize the budget number we are putting forward is level services; it keeps what we have. We have to make it clear (the $15.732 million budget) is the cost to run a quality school system," said School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz said.

The School Committee believes there will be some funds, potentially as much as $200,000, left over in the fiscal 2011 budget that could be used to "pre-pay" certain items in fiscal 2012. The pre-payment combined with other tweaks in the budget could place the budget within the ballpark of the committee's targeted number.

The school committee said the combination of several open positions this year, including a curriculum coordinator and STEM program supervisor, and the receipt of a federal stimulus grant, buoyed the budget creating a higher surplus than might be typical.

The under-funding of the budget and using pre-payment as an offset in the fiscal 2012 budget is a one-time "stop-gap" and could make next year's budget even more difficult to balance, members of the committee said.

"It's only going to get tougher next year (in fiscal 2013)," said School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz.

Adrienne MacCarthy of Doane Street and a former school committee member said the school committee needed to be very clear about their budget on the floor of Town Meeting.

"If (members of the school committee) are not there to protect the number and stand up and fight for it someone can propose a motion – and that motion can be even lower than the (town manager's recommended budget)," MacCarthy said. "There's a sense in the town right now that everybody's broke."

Michael Milanoski of South Main Street said he did not see the committee "speaking as one voice."

"I'd encourage (the committee) to be clear about what its message is," Milanoski said.

School Committee chair Helene Lieb said the committee had to figure out, if the school committee was able to cover the $330,000 gap in this year's budget through pre-payment and other means, what effect that may have on future budgets.

The committee is holding a budget sub-committee meeting on Wednesday, April 13 to discuss the issue further and draw up some specific numbers on how the budget difference could be covered.

The full committee will meet again on Wednesday, April 27.

"The more information we have then, the better," Lieb said.

BRIEFLY

Our Town hosts candidate debate

A Board of Selectmen candidate debate is scheduled for Thursday, April 14th at 7p.m. The debate will be moderated by Our Town co-host Mark DeGiacomo and will be taped the town's new 143TV local cable studio. There are four candidates (incumbents Fred Koed and Karen Quigley and challengers Diane Kennedy and Mary Snow) for two open seats.

This will be the first live event recorded in the new studio located in the high school library. Although the event will take place in a closed studio setting to ensure the best audio quality, it will be re-broadcast several times before the election on Comcast channel 10 and Verizon channel 37.

Watch for announcements of re-broadcast times on 143TV's soon to be released community bulletin board or by finding 143TV on Facebook.

Superintendent contract signed

The Cohasset Public Schools officially has a new superintendent.

School Committee chair Helene Lieb announced the town has a signed contract with the committee's number one choice for superintendent, Barbara Cataldo.

Cataldo will start in the district on July 1, 2011. A copy of the superintendent's contract was not provided to the Mariner by press time. Look for an update in next week's Mariner, or check in with us at www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset.

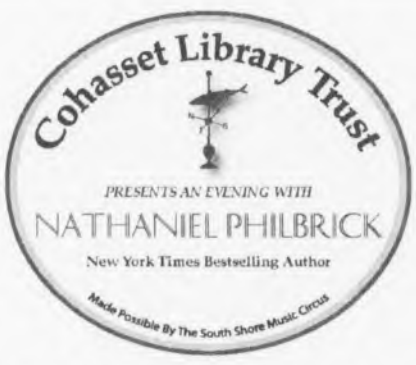
Cataldo comes to the district from Milford, where she has served as assistant superintendent since 2007. She is pursuing her doctorate in educational leadership at Northeastern University. She has a background in special education having served as the director of special education in Arlington for two years (2005 to 2007) and special needs coordinator in Cambridge (2002 to 2005).

Earlier decisions for warrant

This year, many of the Board of Selectmen's recommendations on Town Meeting articles will be made on the floor of Town Meeting. The warrant with 22 articles was voted on by the selectmen Tuesday night and will be sent to the printer later this week.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley said in the future she'd like to see the board "take control of the warrant and set some deadlines."

"This has been an extraordinary years, (but in the future) to me it's unfair to the public to have a warrant that goes out and doesn't have recommendations (or other key information)," Quigley said.



The other selectmen agreed there could be better time management in regard to the warrant preparation.

Best selling author coming to Cohasset

New York Times best selling author Nathaniel Philbrick comes to Cohasset, Tuesday, May 17th at 7 p.m. Tickets are on sale now!

The Cohasset Library Trust is honored to announce that Nathaniel Philbrick will be speaking in Cohasset as part of the Cohasset Library Trust's Speaker's Program which focuses on bringing distinguished authors to the Cohasset Community.

Philbrick is The New York Times bestselling author of In the Heart of the Sea: The Tragedy of the Whaleship Essex; Mayflower; Sea of Glory: America's Voyage of Discovery and The Last Stand: Custer, Sitting Bull and the Battle of Little Bighorn.

Philbrick's visit will coincide with Paul Pratt Memorial Library's 2012 Cohasset Reads Together Program which encourages all town residents to read Philbricks's, In the Heart of the Sea. He lives on Nantucket and is an avid sailor.

Tickets are a $10 donation to the Cohasset Library Trust and may be purchased on line at cohassetlibraryphilbrick.eventbrite.com, or in person at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library and Cohasset Historical Society. A sell out crowd is anticipated; please get your tickets early.

GIMME SHELTER

Susie will make you purr

This week Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is featuring Susie, an adult domestic, short-hair white female with a bit of gray adorning her head.

Susie was found wandering urban streets and was rescued and brought to the shelter. It's obvious from her behavior that she once had a home, albeit a temporary one. She has lovely green eyes that look up at you and seem to say "please take me home." Little Susie enjoys being petted and will purr contentedly. She would make a welcome addition to most any or family looking for a snuggle-bug companion cat.

If you'd like to meet little Susie, we have open hours on Saturday from 2-3pm and Monday from 6:30-7:30pm. You can also click on our web site at www.hsar.org to check out our adoptable cats.

If you'd like to arrange an appointment, you can leave a message at 781 925 3121 and Judy, the adoption coordinator, will return your call.

Question of the Week

Candidates for Selectmen were asked the following question (responses were limited to 250 words):

In the 1990s and early 2000s, Cohasset selectmen supported a policy of seeking a Proposition 2-1/2 override every three years to maintain services. That policy has fallen by the wayside. Would it make financial sense to seek more overrides?

SELECTMAN/ Diane Kennedy

Raising an individual's property taxes above the Proposition 2-1/2 threshold should never be a policy; certainly it's something that is never palatable to anyone.

The past few years have seen little new revenue growth and stagnant property values, while most fixed costs have increased (health insurance premiums, utilities, supplies, etc.), creating the perfect storm of trouble for communities. This is happening not only for the town of Cohasset, but also for us all: Cohasset residents and business owners.

No one happily punches yes on any ballot question that costs them money. If and when an override were to be proposed, I hope that the town would feel, as a whole, that every option to avoid requesting an override had been thoroughly investigated and acted upon. Any override proposal would have to be a timely and necessary action to bridge a budget shortfall that could not otherwise be met, or for an initiative that has widespread community support and unquestioned need.

One of the reasons I decided to run for selectman, now, is that I believe we must have more frequent, substantive conversations about our needs and values as a community. And, everyone in town should be involved, or represented, in these discussions. I hope to have the opportunity to refocus some of the conversations and to re-envision how we approach the town's services and budgeting, so that we always have the best public safety, public works, schools and other services for our residents.

SELECTMAN/ Fred Koed

No. These have been rough economic times for the town, the state and the country.

Overrides in the past were successful because there was a strong economy and a willing electorate to maintain our traditional support for public safety, public health and education. A high-quality school system helps to maintain our strong property values. Cohasset still values these traditions, but this weak economy has forced many to think twice before increasing their real estate taxes.

Cohasset's leadership has the task of balancing the demands of the townspeople against current and future available revenue. The last few years, we've been through a difficult storm. It is wise to take shelter in a safe harbor and regroup. We should begin to focus on paying down our current debt load, which will further stabilize our town government. Once the economy starts improving, the sooner we address unfunded health care and pension liabilities the stronger the town will be in the long run.

Eventually, the economy will start picking up, companies will start hiring again and at some point the bottom of the economic cycle will be behind us. With the construction start at Avalon, 220 apartment units will be coming on line over the next year. These construction jobs are a good sign that the economy is starting to shift. Another sign to watch for will be a continuing decline in the unemployment rate. Let us not forget we have made significant improvements in our infrastructure over the last 20 years.

SELECTMAN/ Karen Quigley

No. Periodic overrides as a matter of policy imply there is a bottomless pit from which to draw funding without consequence. It is precisely this lack of discipline that contributed to a Town debt of $99 million. It was this lack of seriousness that led to laxness in oversight of our core financial management and to the departure of the Town Manager and the Finance Director.

The economic challenges are only going to get more difficult but the answer is not to spend our way out of it. People are making hard choices between what they want and what they can afford in their private lives. We're going to have to do the same as a community.

I firmly believe the residents of Cohasset will entertain any reasonable plan and request for funding; this is a very well educated voting population fully invested in the future of its Town. But some Town officials abused the public's trust and continue to do 'business as usual' even after the stunning revelations of the audits. It's time for Town officials to win back public confidence and until we do, the public should keep their hands firmly on their wallets — especially if they hear the suggestion of an override.

SELECTMAN/ Mary Snow

I am not in favor of general overrides because of the permanent increase in residents' taxes left in their wake. I also believe overrides should never be used as a tool to maintain services on an annual basis. I am more in favor of departments bringing forth budgets that are a true indication of their departmental needs to provide required services

If department heads have done due diligence and made cuts where they can, investigated regionalizing services or changed line item amounts to reflect savings or increases and can show why these additional monies are needed, then I would not be opposed to bringing an override question to a ballot for voters to decide upon. But this should only be done when absolutely necessary.

Having said that, I believe the time has come for us all to come together as a community and decide what services we are willing to pay for. I am in favor that all money requests, whether it be for overrides, budgets, capital projects, debt exclusions or unforeseen expenses to be done by ballot at the town's yearly election.

NEXT WEEK'S QUESTION:

The town anticipates a significant increase of fresh water entering Cohasset Harbor resulting from the hook-up of additional homes utilizing the Water Treatment Plant. What cost-effective steps, both short and long term, would you recommend to stop further inner harbor deterioration caused by declining salinity levels?

Candidates are reminded their responses should be brief — no more than 250 words — and must be received by noon, Wednesday. Candidates are asked to be specific and make every word count. Submissions will be cut if they exceed the word limit.

Candidates may reply ~~by~~ e-~~mail~~ at ~~mf~~ord@wickedlocal.com; by fax at 781-741-2931, or by dropping off their responses at the Mariner office in the Hingham Journal Building, 73 South St. However they choose to deliver their answers, candidates should adhere to the noon, Wednesday deadline.

We will also publish a weekly Candidates' Corner, which will be limited to a few paragraphs (about 150 words), from any candidate who chooses to submit dates of coffees, fund-raisers, short position statements and the like.

Candidates for any elected office are invited to submit formal statements of their candidacy with a photo.

The Mariner will not accept letters to the editor from candidates or letters endorsing or attacking particular candidates. The Mariner will publish letters about campaign issues from citizens not seeking election.

If you would like to suggest a question of the week, email Mary Ford at: mford@wickedlocal.com

ATM voter registration deadline today

Friday, April 8, will be the last day to register to vote for the Annual Town Meeting on Saturday, April 30, and the Annual Town Election on Saturday, May 7. Registration will be held at the Town Clerk's office from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Any citizen of the United States who is a Massachusetts resident and who will be 18 years old on or before a town meeting or Election Day may register to vote. There is no waiting period to be eligible to register to vote. If you move, you may register to vote as soon as you move into your new home. Registration is closed for a brief period before each town meeting and election to allow election officials time to prepare the voting lists. If you register during a "closed" period, you will be eligible to vote only in later town meetings or elections.

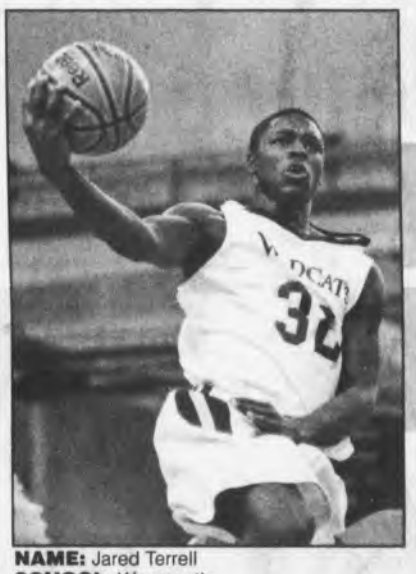
EXTRA in YOUR NEWSPAPER BASKETBALL EXTRA in YOUR NEWSPAPER

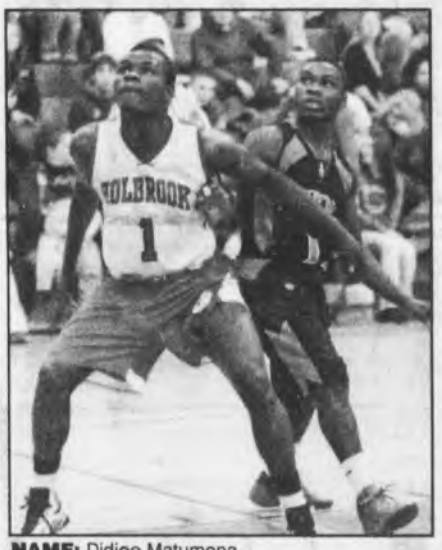
NAME: Patrick Deegan
SCHOOL: Weymouth
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Comes from a basketball family, his older brother is the all-time Weymouth scoring leader. Was a part of Weymouth's 0-22 team as a sophomore and was part of the transition. He can shoot like his brother, and would have put up big numbers elsewhere, but at WHS, everyone shared the scoring duties.

NAME: Nick Volpe
SCHOOL: Norwell
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Volpe delivered big time for the Clippers. The South Shore League all-star averaged 19.8 points per game, placing the junior into the top 20 in the state.

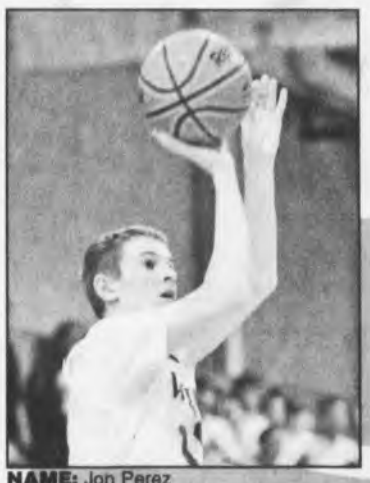


NAME: Robert Jones
SCHOOL: Cohasset
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Jones led Cohasset's attack, averaging more than 18 points per game while keeping his teammates involved in the action as well. He joined the 1,000 point club during the season and had one of the best clutch performances of the season with his 14 fourth-quarter points in the Div. 4 South Sectional Final.

NAME: Barrett Murphy
SCHOOL: Marshfield
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Murphy went out in style. The senior forward hit the 1,000-point plateau this season, finished third in the state in scoring (24.4 points per game), brought an Atlantic Coast League title to town, and helped take the Rams into the tournament.

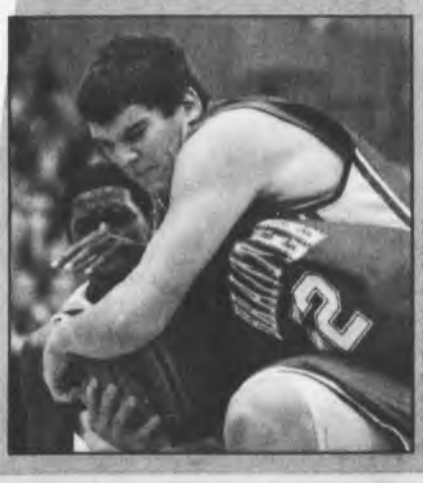


NAME: Damien Wilson
SCHOOL: Abington
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Wilson did not have the luxury of a Ryan Chambers or a Kristian LaPointe as a running mate with the Green Wave and opposing teams had the opportunity to double team him. But Wilson still found a way to put the ball in the basket for Abington.



NAME: Jared Terrell
SCHOOL: Weymouth
YEAR: Sophomore
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Terrell is the go to player that makes the Weymouth offense work. Part of what might be the best basketball team in the history of Weymouth, one of four players who earned a berth on the All-Bay State Conference team. He is college material.

NAME: Tyler Park
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Park was a sparkplug for Scituate with a deadly three-point shot. He broke the 30-point barrier twice this season and was effective in all facets of Scituate's game, including defense and leadership.



NAME: Didjoe Matumona
SCHOOL: Holbrook
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Matumona's one season at Holbrook High School will not be easily forgotten. He turned the program around with his infectious style of play, leading the Bulldogs into the Div. 4 South Sectional Tournament after a year's absence.

NAME: Jon Perez
SCHOOL: Weymouth
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Swing
STATS: He is Mr. Clutch for the Wildcats, hitting key shots throughout the season. Like Deegan, Perez was part of the 0-22 team two years ago and he graduates with the greatest accomplishment, turning around a losing program, a program that will be a contender for years to come.

NAME: Sam Richardson
SCHOOL: Cohasset
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Guard:
STATS: A South Shore League All-Star, Richardson was invaluable in Cohasset's resurgence this season. A solid defender and explosive scorer, Richardson scored the winning bucket in closing seconds against Rockland and dropped 12 points in the third quarter of the Division 4 South Sectional final to keep the Skippers in the game. Richardson also provided great leadership.

NAME: Pat Delano
SCHOOL: Braintree
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Center
STATS: Delano was a dominating big man for the Wamps and a key to any success with his play away from the ball. A tireless defender, he earned Bay State Conference first team honors. However, basketball is only one sport he excels. Delano is an accomplished pitcher, who is recovering from arm troubles.

NAME: Terrence Gibson
SCHOOL: Rockland
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: One of Rockland's top multi-sport athletes of all-time. He was an outstanding running back for the Patriot League championship football team two years ago before injuring his knee; he's a state champion sprinter and in one season of basketball, led the Bulldogs into the state tournament.

NAME: Curtis Owen
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: One of the top shooting guards in the region, Owen led the Patriot League in scoring, pouring in 16.5 points per game. Owen, a junior captain, helped lead the Dragons to a Patriot League title and a spot in the postseason tournament.

Coastal Stars U14 news

The Coastal Stars U14 girls lost a tough semifinal game to No. 1 seed Milton on Sunday at Mark Bavis Arena in Rockland. Milton came out strong with a full team as the Stars fought hard to stay in the game, despite being short several players. Forward Valerie Farren of Cohasset scored the Stars' only goal in the 5-1 loss.

The entire team showed incredible sportsmanship, stamina, and finesse throughout the game. Although its season came to an end sooner than they had hoped, the team enjoyed a great year of hockey and camaraderie led by the coaching staff of Matt Boudreau, and Clive Perry-Gore of Marshfield and Mike O'Brien of Cohasset.

The Coastal Stars Girls U14 2010-2011 roster included: Kristen Shanley, Tori McDonough, Lilly Boudreau, Sara Coletta, Rachael Perry-Gore, Jessie Perry-Gore, Shaelyn Tobin, Maura Hayes, Grace Lennon, Sydnee Reardon and Kali Denty of Marshfield; Samantha Johnson, Corey Murray, and Oriana McDonough of Scituate; Valerie Farren and Jenna O'Brien of Cohasset, and Emily Siroonian of Abington.

BASEBALL

Tune-Up camp

Cohasset High School Baseball Team will host their annual Spring Tune-Up Baseball Camp on Wednesday April 13 from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Cohasset Little League baseball fields.

The camp is offered to all Cohasset Little Leaguers.

The cost is $25 per child. The camp provides hot dogs and drinks in the last half hour. The camp is a fundraiser for the Cohasset varsity and JV baseball teams.

Registration is at 2 p.m. at the Barnes Baseball Complex. Pre-registration is available by emailing Karin Doonan at k.doonan@comcast.net Please give the name and age of the camper.

The campers will be rotating between different stations and will be instructed by the varsity baseball players and coach Peter Anfanasiw.

The camp will include calisthenics/stretching, warm-up throwing, infielder drills, outfielder batting practice, outfielder drills, infielder batting practice and base running instruction.

Edged in season opener

Scituate's Burns shuts down Skippers

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

In last year's season opener, the Cohasset baseball team was knocked around by Scituate in a 14-3 loss before Cohasset returned the favor with a 17-16 win in a rematch a few days later.

This year's opener was more of a pitcher's duel, but still had the same ending as Scituate hurler Casey Burns, who recently committed to pitch at Southern New Hampshire University, edged Drew Cobin in a 3-1 Scituate win in the season-opener for both teams on Wednesday afternoon at Scituate High School.

The game had been scheduled for Saturday, with Wednesday's game set for Cohasset.

The weather didn't play along and the game was postponed three times, leaving Wednesday's match as the opener.

Field conditions moved the game to Scituate.

With cold and high winds, it was a perfect day for pitching, and both sides got it.

"I'll take this differential over last year's," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "There were a lot of positives for us today. Drew Cobin pitched well. He threw 105 pitches and only gave up four or five hits. He went the entire way and would have come back out in the seventh."

Cobin had several strikeouts and his only troubles sprouted from walks.

Scituate scored once in the fourth inning and twice in the fifth.

Cohasset scored their run in the sixth on a walk by Shane Haggerty another walk, a fielder's choice to advance to third and a fielder's choice from Jamie Faber.

"Jamie Faber beat out what could have been a double-play ground ball," Afanasiw said. "Shane scored on that."

Afanasiw pointed out more things he liked from his team.

"We didn't make any errors," he said. "We had a few base hits and we had some good base running. I'm not complaining at all. We still have 19 more games left."

Playing teams like Scituate and pitchers like Burns can only help.

"We could schedule a powderpuff game," Afanasiw said. "But that won't help us get ready for league play. Every game in the league is tough. To stay competitive you have to play the best teams in the area."

The Skippers also didn't have time to dwell on one game. They were at Harwich on Thursday. Results were unavailable at press time.

Cohasset beat Harwich 6-2 in the Div. 4 South Sectional Finals last year.

Jeff Cavanaro was scheduled to make the start for Cohasset.

Getting back on the field was a good feeling.

"Being in and out of the gym, on the turf with no routine has been hard," Afanasiw said. "It's hard getting into a rhythm. It is a little tough to focus. It was good to play."

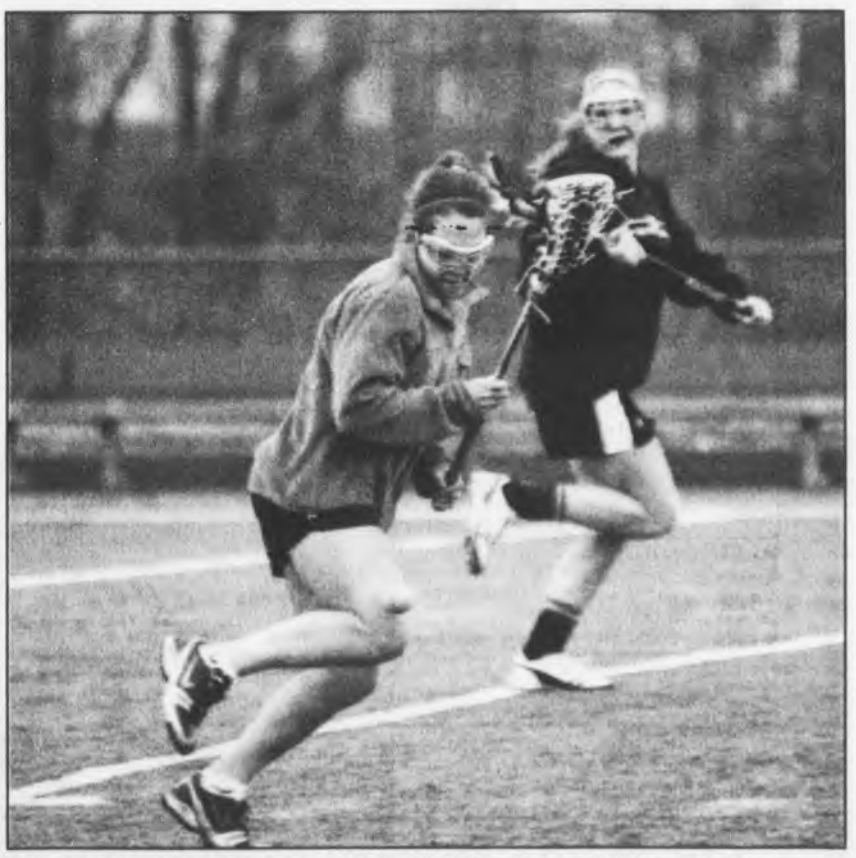
Ready to get going

Girls lacrosse prepared to start new season

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset girls lacrosse coach MaryEllen O'Neill knows a few things about her team.

Heading into he second year as Cohasset's coach, O'Neill knows her team has talent, a strong work ethic and what should be a pretty potent attack.



A year ago, Cohaset finished their season with a 12-6 record, including playoffs.

This year they're hoping for another strong campaign.

Cohasset only lost four seniors to graduation, and have four seniors this year.

"We're a young team," O'Neill said. "It's a great group of girls. They're working really hard. They give it 100 percent."

LACROSSE

The squad will be led by the scoring tandem of Kelsey Erler and Whitney Jaffe

Erler was last year's scoring leader, while Jaffe led the way in assists.

The two could be battling for the school's career points record by the end of the season.

O'Neill doesn't see a problem with that.

"They might talk about it off the field," O'Neill said. "But on the field they feed off each other. Whoever has the best shot takes it."

Another potential star for Cohasset is Hope Kissick, who won a State Championship swimming over the winter.

"Hope is a phenomenal player," O'Neill said. "She starts at center and runs the midfield. She's a great athlete."

O'Neill feels that her squad can make noise.

"We have strength in defense through the midfield and into the attack," she said. "We're strong all-in-all. If we can click, we can be unstoppable. Our attack is going to be a force if they connect."

With the athletic tradition at Cohasset, O'Neill said she sees a strong focus.

"There is a special determination and commitment to teamwork," she said. "That's a strength in Cohasset athletes. They've become very close."

The team has benefited from the youth program as well.

"The youth program is organized and motivated," O'Neill said. "Girls coming up have an intensity and inspiration to work hard. They have a drive for success. That shows up in practices."

Like other Cohasset teams, the girls don't shy away from tough competition.

This year's season opener was yesterday against Hull (score was not available at press time). They follow with a game against Notre Dame Academy. Duxbury and Hingham on the schedule.

They will also play Canton and Arlington.

"We want the exposure and opportunity to play good competition," O'Neill said. "Playing those types of teams will prepare us for the postseason."

Tuesday Night Golf

Teams battle for final playoff spot

South Coast Men's Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The Red Wings and the Black Hawks will battle for the final playoff spot in the final game of the regular season in Classics Div. of the South Coast Men's Hockey League.

The Wings tied their game with the Maple Leafs, 2-2 with a goal by Kevin Barnard with 40 seconds left, but the Leafs' Dave Salvaggio broke the tie with 6.6 seconds left to give them a 3-2 win.

Chris Harrington and Mike Maher both of Marshfield also scored for the Leafs, while Pat Burke scored a goal Ron DiCecca also of Marshfield had two assists for the Wings, who lead the Black Hawks by one point for the final playoff spot.

Duxbury's David Howe scored two goals while Bruce Humfreys added a goal and an assist in the Black Hawks, 5-1 win over the Canadiens. Vin Joyce scored a short handed goal and Tim Fallon added a goal and Drew Fitzgerald had two assists for the Black Hawks, who face the Bruins on Sunday.

Marshfield's Glen Harnisch scored the goal for the Canadiens.

The Rangers, who will face the Red Wings got a goal and two assists from Jim O'Toole of Rockland in their 5-1 win over the Bruins. Marshfield's Tom Smith, Pembroke's Daron Jacobs, Jeff Uva and Mike Crisp also scored goals, while Jim Hutchinson had three assists and Joe Craig also of Marshfield had two assists for the Rangers.

Hanover's Jim Toner scored the goal for the Bruins.

Rick Kelly of Hanover and Barry Kaiser combined for their second straight shutout, third over all in the Sharks' 2-0 Legends Div. win over the Whalers. Fred Bickford of Norwell and Richard Petrosino of Marshfield scored the goals for the Sharks, who clinched the top-seed for the Legends Div. playoffs.

Rockland's Eric Jacobson scored a short handed goal with 13:50 left in the game to break a 1-1 tie to give the Crusaders a 2-1 win to clinch the four and final playoff spot in the Legends Div. Jon Choate also scored for the Crusaders, while Frank Elwood scored for the Saints.

Ray Degaust scored his second goal of the game with 5:19 left to break a 3-3 tie and give the Toros a 4-3 win over the Stingers. Paul Brinkman and Mark McGreenery of Norwell also scored for the Toros.

Scott Kelly scored two goals and Kevin Coyne of Marshfield scored a goal for the Stingers.

LASELL COLLEGE GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

Time management tips for your graduate education

By Tiffany Breyne
Web Content Producer, Lasell College

"I have a firm belief that anybody can be a successful student if they know how they learn best and if they can organize their time," says Joan Dolamore, dean of Graduate and Professional Studies at Lasell College in Newton. Dolamore has given several presentations on time management and is dedicated to helping graduate students succeed. Here are her top tips for balancing school and life.

1. Embrace your role as student. It's critical that you respect your new role and make the commitment it takes, or no one else around you will.

2. Schedule time to study. Block out study time in your calendar beforehand. Factor in study breaks as well.

3. Choose a place to get your work done. Set up a space that can become your designated study area. This space should be free of distractions but also it should be a place where you enjoy spending time. If you can't create a space at home, college libraries provide an excellent environment.

4. Learn to say "no." It's hard to turn down family, friends and work, but in order to be successful it might mean that you have to say "no."

5. Re-think the way you read. The student "muscle" needs to be built up over time. Read the most difficult parts of an assignment when you're most energetic. When starting a new assignment, read the summary first, and then flip through the pages to get an idea of what the material covers. Then go back and read what interests you.

Dolamore has an Ed.D. in Human Development and Psychology from Harvard University and has focused her academic career on developing innovative programs for adult learners. Lasell College offers graduate degree and certificate programs in a number of different areas. Each is designed to provide students with a specific skill set and foundation of knowledge that will sharpen or supplement their professional background.

Lasell's graduate courses are delivered to fit a busy lifestyle. Courses are available 100 percent online or on campus in the evenings. On-campus courses are offered in a hybrid format, where online assignments are complemented by face-to-face class meetings in the evenings. The online courses run in a six-week accelerated format and are highly interactive.

Learn more about Lasell's Graduate and Professional Studies at one of the upcoming graduate information sessions. Attend an on-campus information session on Saturday, April 9 at 10 a.m. in the Holt Classroom/ Winslow Academic Center, 44 Maple St., Auburndale. Or join the information webinar on Wednesday, April 13 at 7 p.m. Register at www.lasell.edu/gradrsvp.

Lasell's campus is conveniently located at the junction of routes 128/95 and the Mass Pike in Newton.

For information or to schedule an appointment, contact Adrienne Franciosi, director of Graduate Admission, at 617-243-2400 or at gradinfo@lasell.edu.

ADVERTORIAL: CAMBRIDGE COLLEGE

Providing access to educational quality, flexibility, affordability

By Jeff Imperato
Executive director of Marketing & Communications, Cambridge College

Almost 40 years ago, Cambridge College was created for experienced students and workers seeking access to high-quality affordable education to help begin new careers, or to enhance their potential for professional advancement. Far ahead of the curve in providing access to great instructors, knowledgeable peers and a respectful environment, Cambridge College is designed to deliver the best education in a way that fits busy lives and careers.

Cambridge College, nationally recognized for breaking down barriers in access to quality education, continues to expand its mission of meeting the needs of students in Massachusetts and beyond. Students who have overcome great challenges have always been central to the college's mission and enjoy a great deal of mentor support. All students are encouraged to meet regularly with faculty and academic advisors to discuss their progress and help ensure success.

Although higher education has become an often-expensive necessity in the modern world, Cambridge College is committed to providing one of the lowest tuition rates among private universities and independent colleges in Massachusetts. What's more, the college's courses are both academically excellent and time-efficient. Because many adults hold down full-time jobs and support their families, flexible class schedules are a priority, so classes are held during evenings and weekends.

Cambridge College offers bachelor's degree (B.A. and B.S.) programs; master's degree (M.Ed. and M.M.) programs in education, psychology, counseling and management, and a doctor of education (Ed.D.) program in educational leadership, as well as certificates of advanced graduate studies (C.A.G.S.). Students may transfer up to 90 credits from regionally accredited institutions into undergraduate degree completion programs and 9 or more credits into a master's degree, depending on the program.

A leader in providing education to a diverse student body, the college has been recognized for serving the African-American and Latino communities in New England. With seven regional centers across the country, it is helping over 9,000 adults realize their own power to change their lives through advanced education.

Discover Cambridge College for yourself at an information session on Thursday, April 28 at 6 p.m. at the main campus, 1000 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, between Central Square and Harvard Square on the Red Line. If you can't attend, contact an admissions counselor at 800-877-4723 or visit www.cambridgecollege.edu/info24 for more information.

LIFE AT CHS

Convinced winter is gone for good

Soon the seniors will be enjoying their rightful place in the sunny courtyard and the environmental science class will finally be working in the garden.

NATALIE DIGNAM

It's finally spring! One 60 degree day later, I'm convinced winter in gone for good! Freezing rain? Slush? Snow? No problem, because personally, I'm over winter. And so is CHS, because apparently we decided it was spring this week and turned off all the heat, but I'm not complaining, I like the optimism. Soon the seniors will be enjoying their rightful place in the sunny courtyard and the environmental science class will finally be working in the garden. But before I get ahead of myself, a recap from last week; last Thursday was the All-School Band Night. Students from grades 4 through 12 came together for a night to celebrate the outstanding music program at Cohasset. Great job to all participants and thank you parents and teachers for the support!

Students are beginning to look forward to April vacation for a well deserved break. The quarter ended this Wednesday, and while some students will be taking midterms for their semester classes, others will be switching to new courses. Hopefully there will be less schedule conflicts this last quarter (waiting for entire periods in the guidance office is fun though). More importantly, AP exams are fast approaching. Most take place in early May, so students will be sadly highlighting review books for most of the vacation. All checks for AP exams should have been given to the guidance office in January.

And what could be more important than AP exams in May? Besides the seniors last day, prom is coming! So far, and I can't give away any of the secret details, we have prom committee planning a big, exciting something. It may involve a red carpet on the common, but I'm not at liberty to say anymore. That's all for this week, enjoy the spring weather!

Natalie Dignam is a senior at CHS; her column appears weekly during the school year.

Social Service League offering scholarship

The Social Service League of Cohasset is accepting applications for the Margaret F. Loud, R.N. Scholarship. Applicants must be seniors in high school or residents of the towns of Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell or Scituate who intend to begin or further studies in the fields of nursing, social work or allied health fields. One scholarship in the amount of $1,000 will be awarded for the 2011-2012 academic year. The scholarship is merit based.

Applications are available at the League office in Cohasset, 790 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., or in each high school guidance office. All applications must be submitted by mail to the Social Service League office in Cohasset no later than April 30.

For more information, call 781-383-0771.

CAMP, SCHOOL AND ACTIVITIES DIRECTORY

SUMMER CAMPS OFFER FACE-TIME

By Bette Bussel – Executive Director American Camp Association, New England

Unplugged from the constant buzz of computers, television, video games, and cell phones, children find themselves at camp — making genuine connections with other children, rediscovering the fun in physical fitness, learning their own strengths, and finding their own voices.

The world today is completely technology-centric, and children frequently spend as much solitary time "plugged in" to various forms of technology per day as they spend in school. Summer camps offer a refreshing and unique break from that routine.

Camps foster the development of social skills. Campers learn how to engage in-person with peers and adults as they pursue fun and interesting activities and build skills. And research shows that what campers learn can be extremely useful back at school and even at home. It's a common sight at camp for a group of campers and counselors to be sharing a meal while they also share animated conversation—swapping stories, enjoying a laugh, or debriefing an earlier adventure or experience. Kids connect with other kids throughout the camp day—during activities, between activities, after activities; and at camp, this opportunity for connection is facilitated by trained, caring role models known as counselors.

Campers also have many opportunities to interact with those role models and caring adults. It's this person to person opportunity for interaction that helps create "community" at camp, that gives kids the sense that camp is where they belong. Camp offers social networking at its best—face to face!

Provided by the American Camp Association, New England, the region's leading source for "all things summer camp." For more information please visit www.ACANewEngland.org, or call (781) 541-6080. Find us also at www.Facebook.com/ACANewEngland.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF APRIL 18, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Whether a waiting period is taking longer than expected, or just seems that way, the anxious Lamb would do well to create a center of calm within her- or himself, and not do anything rash.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Practical matters dominate the week, but cultural activities also are favored, especially those that can be shared with someone special in the Bovine's life. Some important news might be forthcoming.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You need to know more about a possible career move in order to see if it offers a real opportunity or just a change. You're sure to get lots of advice — some of it good — but the decision must be yours.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The arrival of hoped-for good news about a loved one dominates most of the week and provides a great excuse for the party-loving Moon Child to plan a special event to celebrate.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leos and Leonas rushing to finalize their plans might want to think about slowing down the pace, or risk overlooking an important consideration that could become a sore point down the line.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The week's challenges call for logical approaches. But sentiment also has its place. Sharing memories with a special someone, for example, strengthens the bond between you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A brand-new approach to a problem could have a good chance of succeeding if it's based on a solid foundation of fact to strengthen its potential for standing up to scrutiny.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A favorable report should give your optimism an important boost as you confront another phase of a challenge. Don't be timid about accepting advice from someone you trust.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might want to target another goal if your current aim is continually being deflected. But stay with it until you find that first sign of an opening, and then follow through.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although offers of advice might not always please the usually sure-footed Goat, good counsel is always worth considering, especially from those whose experience can be invaluable.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't rush to make up for lost time. Your productivity can be measured not only by what you do, but how you do it. Move carefully until the job is done the way you like it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Emerging facts about someone you know might cause you to rethink your relationship. But remember to make judgments in context of a full situation, not just on scraps of data.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church: Faure's Requiem at St. Stephen's!

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church is an inclusive, Christ-centered community committed to exploring the intersection of our faith and our lives. We invite you to join us in this exploration on Sunday mornings and through a variety of special programs during the week. All are welcome to worship God with us at St. Stephen's!

A week from this Sunday is Palm Sunday, the beginning of Holy Week, the week in which we walk with Christ through his trial, death, and burial in preparation of the joy of Easter. On Palm Sunday, the choir of St. Stephen's, along with a small chamber orchestra, will present Gabriel Faure's Requiem during the church service at 10:00am. Palm Sunday is always a service not to be missed, but the addition of the Requiem this year makes it doubly so. See you there!

On Sundays, join us for our normal schedule of services of Holy Communion at 8:00am and 10:00am. Also on Sunday mornings, the Living Faith 24/7 adult education group meets at 9:00am, the Godly Play children's program and R.O.X. JV (middle school youth program) meet at 10:00am. R.O.X. OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families, often through the services of a funeral director.

Mary N. Grassie

COHASSET – Mary "Betty" N. (Noonan) Grassie, age 89, a lifelong resident of Cohasset, passed peacefully on March 29, 2011.

Mary was the beloved wife of the late Paul A. Grassie and the devoted mother of Richard P. of Plymouth and Carol Grassie Beggan of Hull, formerly of Cohasset. She was the beloved sister of the late Nancy N. Wright of Hingham, and the late Robert M. Noonan of Scottsdale, AZ. She is also survived by six grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Betty was a graduate of Cohasset High School, Class of 1939. She attended the Perry Normal School in Boston with a degree in Early Childhood Education. She worked for 17 years as the director and teacher at the Cohasset Community Center Nursery School, and she also ran a Summer Beach School for local children at Sandy Beach. Betty was subsequently appointed Director of the Wilder Memorial Nursery School in Hingham where she taught for 20 years before retiring. She later worked for Talbots, Inc. in Hingham in customer sales. Betty was a member of the Cohasset Historical Society, the Cohasset Senior Center, Friends of the Cohasset Senior Center and chairman of the Town Committee. She also served as an elected member of the Cohasset Housing Authority.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated on Monday, April 25, 2011 at 11 a.m. in St. Anthony Church, Cohasset. Visiting hours omitted. Interment Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

In lieu of flowers, donations in Betty's memory may be made to the Cohasset Senior Center, 3 No. Main St., Cohasset, MA. 02025.

Celebration Saturday at St. Anthony's

On Ash Wednesday the Catholic Archdiocese of Boston introduced a new Lenten initiative called "Catholics Come Home." The program is a new way of utilizing media to reach out to and welcome people back to the Catholic Church communities who have been alienated from their faith for any reason whatever. Through a well produced set of commercials which have been aired on the Boston television stations, and a friendly interactive website, active Catholics are invited to share their faith while inactive Catholics are invited to come back to Church. All are encouraged to deepen their relationship with Jesus Christ, to grow in the understanding of their faith, and to become a more intentional witness for others in word and deed.

St. Anthony Parish will celebrate this initiative with a special "Welcome Home Catholics" social to be held in St. Anthony Parish Center on Saturday evening, April 9th, beginning at 7 p.m. All who feel separated from the church are invited to attend. Refreshments and conversation will be followed by a talk by Artie Boyle, a well-known and inspirational speaker from Hingham who will share his own faith journey with those attending. Deacon Mattie Henry will share his musical talent with us.

Cardinal Sean O'Malley has been welcoming Catholics back to church ever since his arrival in Boston. He wants former Catholics to know that the Church wants to welcome them back to their faith family. In introducing the Catholics Come Home program, Cardinal Sean is following the lead of other American dioceses including the Diocese of Phoenix, Arizona and Providence, Rhode Island where there have been inspiring stories of people returning to their faith roots. In the bilingual program in the diocese of Corpus Christ, Texas the program saw an increase of over 100,000 people in Mass attendance after only three months after the commercials began.

The Catholics Come Home program is an effort of evangelization that is the proclamation of Christ and his Gospel by word and the testimony of life in fulfillment of Christ's command. Each person has a special mission to fulfill through evangelization. For lay people this evangelization acquires a specific property and peculiar efficacy because it is accomplished in the ordinary circumstances of the world. It is our hope that all will feel welcome, and that members of our parish will invite someone they know who has been distanced from the church to be with us at the social gathering on April 9th.

Renaissance music coming to First Parish

Schola Cantorum, a highly acclaimed 12-voice Renaissance choir, will perform a stunning a cappella program of early music at First Parish Cohasset at 3 pm on Sunday, April 17. First Parish is located on the green at North Main Street. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children.

This is Schola Cantorum's 25th anniversary year, and all year they have been bringing back performances of their most beloved programs and pieces from over the years. This concert will feature Dufay's Missa Ecce Ancilla Domini, as well as motets by Victoria, Josquin, and Lassus. This is an extended version of the program they will have performed one week prior at the Rhode Island School of Design in honor of the reopening of their Renaissance galleries. First Parish Cohasset music director Allegra Martin is a vocalist with the ensemble.

Schola Cantorum is directed by Fred Jodry, who holds a degree from NEC, and has studied with Lorna Cooke de Varon and Donald Teeters. He was awarded the Chadwick Medal, given to a promising graduate for distinction in musical performance and academic excellence. He received a Master's degree in the Performance of Early Music in 1987, as a voice student of Laurie Monahan. Jodry is currently Director of Choral Activities at Brown University, where he teaches music history, theory and conducting. Since 2001 he has also served as Music Director for the First Unitarian Church of Providence. He previously held posts as Assistant Organist at the Church of the Advent, Boston, and as Music Director at historic Trinity Church, Newport, RI. He performs widely as an organist, harpsichordist, vocalist, and conductor.

While at conservatory, Mr. Jodry founded the Schola Cantorum of Boston, a 12-voice ensemble dedicated to the performance of Renaissance sacred music. For over 20 years, the group has been recognized for their lively and stylish performances of vocal polyphony. They have performed throughout New England, and have performed in numerous Boston Early Music Festival concerts. The Schola was invited to perform for the American Renaissance Society, and has often been recorded for broadcast on NPR. The Schola has collaborated with the Boston Camerata in recording 7 CDs, ranging from Nueva Espa-a: Music from the New World, to French Baroque works of Gilles and Charpentier, and American shape-note and Shaker Music.

Under the direction of Joel Cohen, Schola Cantorum Boston has been featured with the Boston Camerata for performances at Tanglewood and Merkin Hall, New York.

For more information about the concert, please contact Allegra Martin at (617) 872-0461.

HAPPENINGS

Movie night

This month's documentary feature will be "No Impact Man," a thought-provoking story of an unusual family's efforts to do their part to help protect their environment. This Fifth Avenue family goes very green when writer Colin Beavan leads his wife, Michelle Conlin, and their baby daughter on a yearlong crusade to make no net impact on the environment. Among their activities: eating only locally grown organic food, generating no trash except for compost and using no carbon-fueled transportation. This film, produced by Laura Gabbert and Justin Schein, premiered at the 2009 Sundance Film Festival.

Each month films of topical interest are presented on the third Friday at 7:00P at the library by the Cohasset Democratic Town Committee. Please join us this month for an interesting and informative evening at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, April 15th at 7 in the Meeting Room. All are welcome; refreshments are served.

New school chief to start at $153K

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset Public Schools officially has a new superintendent.

This past Wednesday, School Committee chair Helene Lieb announced the town has a signed contract with the committee's number-one choice for superintendent, Barbara Cataldo.

Cataldo will start in the district on July 1, 2011. The three-year contract names her starting salary for the first year as $153,000. Salary for second year will be $156,000 and the third year, $160,000.

After the initial three-year contract, the superintendent's contract will automatically extend an additional year unless the School Committee notifies Cataldo otherwise a year in advance of the expiring contract. The School Committee will have to negotiate compensation annually after the first three-year contract.

There will be an annual evaluation of job performance, which includes an open session component.

The contract requires the superintendent to give the district at least 120 days notice of resignation.

Twenty vacation days, 18 sick days and three personal days are part of the first year of the contract. During year's two and three of the contract the superintendent will received 25 vacation days.

The contract also stipulates "reasonable and adequate progress" should be made toward a doctorate degree. Cataldo is pursuing her doctorate in educational leadership at Northeastern University.

Septic assistance

For those with failing septic systems – or getting ready to tie into town sewer – a Town Meeting warrant article could help by offering a low-interest loan.

The loan program could help those with failing septic systems and those Little Harbor homes tying into town sewer. But, the article has caused conflict among town boards.

A taste of Ireland

Irish pub to open on Depot Court

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

A little bit of Ireland is coming to Cohasset Village.

Two men with Irish accents came before the Board of Selectmen this week to see a liquor license for a new restaurant to be located on Depot Court.

Mr. Dooley's Old Irish Pub has leased space in the 9 Depot Court building in the space formerly occupied by Atlantic Brokerage.

John Joe Somers, a 40-year restaurant business veteran, and Michael Carlyle, a 30-year restaurant veteran who will manage the restaurant, came before the Board to seek an all-alcoholic liquor license Tuesday night.

"We want to bring a small bit of Ireland to Cohasset," Somers said. He envisions a country village pub atmosphere that will be host to poetry readings and other cultural events.

The restaurant will be modeled after the two other Mr. Dooley's locations, one in Wrentham and one in the Financial District in Boston.

The liquor license will encompass four tables on an outside patio located on Depot Court. The former ice cream shop Scooter's Scoops

BY THE NUMBERS

Local liquor licenses

Nancy White | nwhite@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset has its share of watering holes and liquor stores. A total of 19 businesses, restaurants and liquor stores, have the ability to sell a beer. The number of liquor licenses in town is determined by population and as the liquor license authority the Board of Selectmen can determine if there is a need and apply to the state for additional licenses. The Selectmen approve new liquor licenses and the renewal of all liquor licenses annually in December. All new licenses and renewals are sent to the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) for its approval.

Here is a breakdown of all the liquor licenses in town:

All Alcohol on-premises licenses
Allowed: 14
Current number of holders: Seven restaurants (one is under state review), two inns and two clubs. 11 total.
Remaining: Three.
License holders: Atlantica, Ava Cucina, Bia Bistro, Cohasset Harbor Inn, Cohasset Golf Club, Constantine's, DiNero's, Feng Shui, George H. Mealy Legion Post, Mr. Dooley's Old Irish Pub*, Red Lion Inn.

Wine and malt on-premises
Allowed: 5.
Current number of holders: 3.
Remaining: 2.
License holders: 3A Pizza and Grill, South Shore Music Circus, Victoria's Pizza.

Retail all-alcohol package stores
Allowed: 3.
Current number of holders: 3.
Remaining: None.
License holders: Curtis Liquors, A Taste for Wine & Spirits, Village Wine & Spirits.

Retail wine and malt package stores
Allowed: 5.
Current number of holders: 2.
Remaining: 3.
License holders: Local Vines and Gourmet, Mullaney's Seafood.

*Pending state Alcohol Beverage Control Commission approval

There are 19 businesses in town with liquor licenses.

Last day of school year

The School Committee, barring any more snowstorms, has scheduled the last day of school for the 2010-2011 school year.

The last day of school for Osgood kindergarteners, Deer Hill (all grades) and the Middle-High School (grades three to 11) will be Thursday, June 23. Kindergarten will be released at 3:10p.m. Deer Hill at 11:30, no lunch served and Middle-High School at 10:30a.m. (no lunch).

Osgood first and second graders have to go two extra days due to two extra "snow days" called as a precautionary measure when there were roof concerns in late January. First and second graders will have to go to school through Monday, June 27. Both Friday, June 24 and Monday, June 27 will be early release days (dismissal at 12:10p.m., no lunch will be served).

Brush chipping day is April 16

Residential brush will be accepted at the D.P.W. parking area on Saturday, April 16, from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. No trees over 5-inches in diameter. No stumps, firewood, briars or weeds. No contractors.

Mortgage seminar

Rockland Trust is hosting a free Mortgage Seminar titled "Buying a Home: Start to Finish" at its Cohasset branch located at 733 Chief Justice Cushing Highway in Cohasset on Thursday, April 21, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Learn about the home buying process from a panel of professionals including a Rockland Trust Senior Loan Officer, a local real estate attorney, and a local realtor. Light refreshments will be served. RSVP to Catherine Duggan at 781-982-6397 by April 15, 2011.

RTF closed for Easter Holiday

The Recycling Transfer Facility will be closed on Sunday, April 24 in observance of the Easter Holiday. It will re-open on Wednesday, April 27.

Winter wreaths and baskets must be removed from all town owned cemeteries by April 15.

Mariner drop box is at Tedeschi's

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

Rain Barrels being offered

Aquarion Water Co. and the New England Rain Barrel Co., are offering discounted rain barrels in order to help residents conserve water and reduce pollution from storm water runoff. Rain barrels retail for $119.95, but are available for the bulk discounted price of $72.70.

Rain barrels capture and store rainwater from gutters for later use. People can use the collected runoff to water gardens and lawns. By capturing the rain falling on the entire roof area, even a gentle shower will provide plenty of water – as little as one-quarter inch on an average roof will fill a barrel.

For more information and to place an order, call New England Rain Barrel Co. toll free at 877-977-3135 or order online at www.nerainbarrel.com.

Orders must be placed by May 4, for pickup at the Aquarion Water Treatment Facility at 900 Main St., Hingham, on Saturday May 7, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Chimney fire on Beechwood

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

The fire department responded to a Beechwood Street antique home early last Friday morning (April 8).

A 9-1-1 call came in around 3:25a.m. with the caller reporting her chimney was on fire.

Two engines, a ladder truck, a squad car and ambulance responded to the fire at 541 Beechwood St. Hingham Fire Department provided mutual aid and covered the station while the units were out.

It took close to two hours for the firefighters to get the chimney fire under control.

Captain Paul Bilodeau, who was the commanding officer on the scene, said the officers found the chimney "chock full of creosote."

A fireplace stove was "red hot" when the firefighters arrived on the scene of the 1740 antique home, Bilodeau said. The heat of the stove and the unlined chimney made using water to cool the fire unsafe. With the age of the chimney, Bilodeau said he feared the chimney would crack if water was used. Instead the firefighters removed the potbelly stove right out of the fireplace and the home. They then used dry chemical fire extinguisher to extinguish the fire and the chimney.

"We were able to get the fire under control without too much damage to the home."
Captain Paul Bilodeau

Around 5:20a.m. the fire was under control and the units returned to the station around 5:50a.m.

"We were able to get the fire under control without too much damage to the home," Bilodeau said. "It's quite a process when you have an old house like that."

The Building Inspector Bob Egan was called to the scene. An unlined chimney is a violation of building code.

Bilodeau reminded residents of the importance of having a lined chimney and cleaning it annually.

POLICE BEAT

Teens face charge following beer party

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Ten Cohasset teens are being summonsed to court on the charge of being minors in possession of alcohol after police – responding to a call from a concerned neighbor – discovered an under-age party at an empty house on Whitehead Road on Saturday night.

Police said a neighbor called at 8:35 p.m. after noticing a group of teens walking up the street toward a vacant summer home. The neighbor knew the homeowner of the house where the teens were headed was out of state.

A cruiser responded and the officers walked up to the house where there was a loud party. They looked through a window and observed about 13 or 14 teens consuming alcohol. They waited outside for a third officer to arrive and continued to observe the teens drinking.

About five minutes later, the officers went inside and about four teens took off on foot. They detained 10 teens – all 16 years of age or younger – and brought them to the station where their parents picked them up. The parents were not called to the scene because of no cell phone reception in that area, police said. There was a mix of boys and girls with a couple of cases of beer at the party, police said. A lot of the beer had been consumed by the time police arrived. All the teens had been drinking.

The teens — who are all juveniles so their names were not released to the Mariner — are being summonsed to court. Police do not expect further charges but they have not heard from the homeowner. There was damage to a couple of screens at the house but it is unclear if that damage was existing, and possibly due to the stormy winter. Police said the house was not secure.

Lt. William Quigley said all the parents were cooperative and all responded to the station to pick up their children. He said under the Memorandum of Understanding with the Cohasset Public Schools, the high school was notified of the incident and was provided with a copy of the police report. All those being summonsed are CHS students. Under the MOU, the incident could affect the students' standing on athletic teams or school clubs.

Dust cloud

At 9:55 a.m. on Thursday (April 7), an officer observed a landscaping company at Cohasset Plaza blowing sand from the parking lot onto Route 3A causing a huge dust cloud. The landscaper was told to stop the activity, as it was a safety hazard.

Dog feces

The animal control officer is following up on a complaint last week (Thursday, April 7) from a home on Atlantic Avenue about a neighbor tossing dog feces over the fence into the yard.

Larceny

The Cohasset Yacht Club reported last Thursday (April 7) that a galvanized metal bike rack (valued at $1500) and four galvanized metal boat stands (valued at $800) were missing.

MV accidents

• At 4:48 p.m. on Thursday (April 7), a 2004 Toyota Tacoma pickup truck, operated by a 45-year-old Marshfield man, that was headed south on King Street (Route 3A) slowed down to let someone out of a driveway near USA Fitness, when the pickup was rear-ended by a 2005 BMW X33 operated by a 17-year-old Cohasset girl. The 17-year-old was cited for following too closely. Neither vehicle was towed and there were no reported injuries, police said.

• At 12:13 p.m. on Friday (April 8), a 72-year-old Cohasset man in a 2000 Jeep Grand Cherokee was approaching North Main Street on Forest Avenue when a 2008 Toyota Camry coming toward him on King Street from 3A took a left in front of him, cutting him off, causing a collision. Police said the Toyota took off. Witnesses provided a description of the car that had heavy front-end damage and the plate number.

A Hingham cruiser stopped the car on Hull Street. Cohasset police responded and found that the driver, an 85-year-old Hull man, was disoriented and unaware he had been in an accident. He was transported to South Shore Hospital for evaluation. Police filed an "immediate threat" with the registry and the man's license was revoked.

• At 9:10 p.m. on Sunday (April 10), a Cohasset police cruiser carrying a prisoner to the station hit a deer on Beechwood Street near Norman Todd Road. The deer was killed; the cruiser was not damaged, police said.

Non-extraditable

Madison, New Jersey police notified Cohasset police last Saturday (April 9) that they had a 33-year-old Quincy woman, who was wanted on an active warrant out of Cohasset. Madison PD wanted to know if Cohasset would extradite the woman. The warrant was for larceny under $250, which is a misdemeanor and is non-extraditable, police said.

No license

A 45-year-old Rockland man is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation after he was pulled over at about 10 a.m. on Saturday (April 9) for not having operating taillights on a trailer he was pulling with a six-wheeled landscaping truck. The man produced a Brazilian passport but no license, police said. He was also cited for operating with defective equipment (taillights).

Protective custody

A 31-year-old Hingham man was taken into protective custody on Sunday night after police followed up on a call about a small silver sedan being driven erratically. Police found the operator inside the convenience store at the Gulf Station at 3A and Beechwood Street. The keys were on the seat of the car; he was not near the car and police could not prove he had been driving. Police said he was intoxicated.

Move Over Law in effect

When an emergency or maintenance vehicle is stopped on the side of the road, move over to the next lane, or slow down if changing lanes is not possible. Under the Move over Law, failure to do so could result in a fine of up to $100.

Seatbelts prevented serious injury, police say

Mother, six kids all transported after accident

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

With four daughters and 11 grandchildren ages 10 and under, Jill Drohan of Hingham is used to a little drama.

But what she and her husband, David, were not prepared for was the dreaded call last Thursday (April 7) that one of their daughters and six of their grandchildren had been in a serious accident. The Drohans were at the Hingham Shipyard when one of the witnesses at the crash at Route 3A and Beechwood Street in Cohasset called them at the request of their daughter, Courtney Monnich.

Monnich had just picked up her three children and two of her sister's children at Su Escuela in Cohasset where they take Spanish after school. She also had her four-year-old in the car. She made sure all six kids were properly buckled up before heading home toward Hingham.

What happened next was anyone's worst nightmare. Police said a 2011 Infiniti SUV, operated by a 44-year-old Cohasset woman, ran the light and hit the passenger side of Monnich's Chevrolet Suburban, tipping it over. During the crash a third vehicle was also hit, a 2006 Ford Explorer, driven by a 49-year-old Scituate man.

Monnich and the six children, who all had bumps and bruises, were transported by ambulance to the hospital.

The 2011 Infiniti sustained major front-end damage in the collision with the Chevrolet Suburban last Thursday at Route 3A and Beechwood Street. The driver of the Infiniti was cited following the accident. COURTESY PHOTOS

None had to stay overnight, Jill Drohan said. "But none of us could sleep."

"We are very grateful to the police, all the emergency personnel and the passersby," Drohan said. "Everyone was wonderful and we are very fortunate people."

Monnich, who has 20 stitches on her chin, said she was the only one that was injured apart from bumps and bruises. She said immediately following the crash two men exited their cars and helped get the children out.

"Thank goodness it was a big car. It is worth the price of the gas."
Jill Drohan

"The children were all screaming," she recalled. A woman also put some of the kids on her lap.

Drohan said she was allowed to ride in the ambulance with a couple of her grandchildren. She said in the past she has often viewed her daughter's car as a gas-guzzler but now believes bigger is better.

"Thank goodness it was a big car," she said. "It is worth the price of the gas."

Police said the Cohasset woman who ran the light was issued a citation for failure to stop for a red light. Police received numerous 9-1-1 calls about the accident. The Infiniti she was driving had heavy front-end damage.

Cohasset Lt. William Quigley said seatbelts made the difference.

"The driver of the Suburban did an excellent job making sure the children were properly seatbelted and safety seated which clearly averted a tragedy," he said.

Ambulances from Cohasset, Hingham, Hull and Scituate responded. Three Cohasset police officers controlled traffic at the scene. Mutual aid from Hingham and Scituate police diverted traffic from Route 3A for about an hour at Pond Street in Cohasset and Henry Turner Bailey Road in Scituate, respectively.

A tow truck rotates the Chevrolet Suburban upright following a serious accident at Route 3A and Beechwood Street in Cohasset last Thursday. All the occupants of the Suburban are Hingham residents.

Cohasset Detective Lt. Gregory Lennon photos the Chevrolet SUV that 6 children and an adult were riding in. Children's toys are in foreground.

Boards conflicted on Town Meeting article

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

For those with failing septic systems – or getting ready to tie into town sewer – a Town Meeting warrant article could help by offering a low-interest loan.

The Board of Health is bringing forward to Annual Town Meeting (Saturday, April 30) a state-run betterment program that allows communities to loan out money for sewer improvements so the expense can be paid back over time at a low interest rate.

This is the second time this program has appeared on a Town Meeting warrant. In November, Special Town Meeting briefly considered the program, but strong opposition from the Capital Budget Committee and others raised enough concern about the program for voters and the motion was defeated.

This week, concerns about the process that the vetting of the article has followed and the potential impact of the program on the town's finances has led to some town officials not supporting the article.

The Community Septic Management Program is a state-run program. It is provided to towns through a state revolving fund loan at zero percent interest. Through an application process, the town then re-loans the money out to homeowners at a 2 percent interest rate. The homeowners then pay back the loan over 20 years.

The warrant article requests voters to authorize the town to join the state's Community Septic program and authorizes the borrowing of $3 million for the revolving loan.

The loans can be used for the repair, replacement or upgrade of a failed on-site system. On-site sewage disposal systems options include conventional septic systems (Title 5), innovative/alternative systems and connections to an existing sewer, if available. Homeowners apply for the betterment loan and it is doled out on a first-come, first-serve basis.

In addition to the 10 to 15 homes with failed septic systems the Board of Health sees every year, there are roughly 300 homes in the Little Harbor district to be hooked up to town sewer.

Many residents on septic systems still harbor resentment for having to pay a portion for other neighborhoods' town sewer hookups and not getting any help from the town when their septic systems failed. This could go a long way in addressing that issue, said Board of Health chair Peggy Chapman.

But, the fact the Capital Budget Committee (CBC) has not reviewed the proposal is a sticking point. Following town meeting, CBC requested a presentation and full vetting of the program.

"This is a use of the town's balance sheet and according to our bylaw we are required to give it a full and fair hearing," said CBC chair Steve Gaumer in a phone interview.

Chapman said the Board of Health wanted to wait on a meeting until they had all the answers to the committee's questions. They got answers to key questions about three weeks ago.

But, Gaumer said there is no time now to give the proposal the review it deserves. He said he does not oppose the program on its merits because he doesn't know enough about it.

"Our opposition is on the basis of process. It seems the process is being tossed out the window," Gaumer said, adding he expected the committee to oppose the article on Town Meeting floor.

Some of the selectmen agreed the process was not followed when it should have been.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley also had concerns about obligating the town to any more debt.

"The economy is very bad. People are losing their jobs through no fault of their own. Having a loan program with no credit checks, no restrictions (on maximum amount that can be borrowed)... I really have to ask if this is a good time for the town to get into the banking business," Quigley said.

Chapman said the loan program was not considered high risk because the town could place a municipal lien on the property if the loan defaulted.

"Nobody in the town's finance area past or present sees (the program) as a problem," Chapman said. Monies owed to the town have about a 5 percent default rate, which Chapman said made the issue negligible. "It's not considered high risk."

Selectman Paul Carlson suggested the Board of Health seek a lower amount — $1 million of $1.5 million — to lessen concerns.

"There's a lot of people very reluctant for the town to take on more debt. Without wholesome support from town boards (this article) is going to have trouble at Town Meeting," Carlson said.

The Board of Selectmen will discuss the article again at their meeting on Tuesday, April 26. Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr said he would talk with the CBC to see if they would hear the Board of Health's proposal before Town Meeting.

"There's a possibility this can be salvaged. There are still (two weeks) until Town Meeting," said Selectman Fred Koed.

On Tuesday night, the Advisory Committee discussed the Community Septic program as well. They voted 5 to 2 in favor of the article.

Those that voted against the article raised similar concerns to Quigley.

"Concerns against were the potential for additional debt to the Town and the increased management of the program to the Finance Director, Treasurer and Assessors," Advisory Committee chair Sam Wakeman said in an e-mail.

Other details on the Community Septic program

■ The cost to cover the administration of the program is borne by the homeowner. A $600 application fee, plus a $50 recording fee, is required. The town intends to contract with Old Colony Planning Council to manage the application process.

■ A Town Meeting vote is necessary to enter into the betterment program. The vote would allow the town to borrow the money, but the program is not designed to burden the town with more taxes. The homeowner receiving the betterment loans undertakes the primary repayment obligation. A municipal lien is placed on a property if the participating homeowner defaults.

■ There is no credit check to receive the loans, but the applicant must be up-to-date on property taxes or have other monies due to the town.

■ The Board of Health would oversee the program and the treasurer/collector would handle the re-payment of the loan. The state provides a one-time $15,000 grant to start-up the program.

■ Pembroke, Hanson and Kingston are other South Shore towns that are part of the program.

Fiscal 2011 tax bills

The Town of Cohasset has issued the Fiscal Year 2011 actual tax bills, which include the billing for the third quarter and the fourth quarter. The Fiscal Year 2011 property tax assessments and the new Little Harbor Sewer Betterments will be reflected on this tax bill. The Fiscal Year 2011 tax rate is $11.59 per thousand dollars of assessment. The tax bills are due on May 2.

Applications for Abatement of Real or Personal Property Tax must be received in the Assessors' Office by the close of business on Monday, May 2. The Fiscal Year 2011 Assessment by Street Listing is available on the Town of Cohasset website at www.townofcohasset.org under Forms and Documents. Property record cards are available at http://cohasset.patriotproperties.com.

had a small seating area there the last two summers.

Somers described the menu as international with an Irish flavor to it. The restaurant will serve breakfast, lunch and dinner. On the menu for breakfast will be a traditional Irish breakfast as well as tea and scones.

The Somers Group operates nine restaurants in the greater Boston area, including Hennessey's and the Green Dragon, both in the Faneuil Hall area.

Attorney Rich Henderson, who represented the Somers Group at the hearing, said none of the restaurants and bars operated by the Somers Group had ever had a liquor license violation.

Michael Carlyle, a new resident to Cohasset, will serve as the manager of the restaurant. He has worked for the Somers Group for 12 years. He said he fell in love with Cohasset the first time he saw it.

"As soon as I came down here I put my house on the market and bought a place down here," Carlyle said. Initially, the pair was eyeing the former Cohasset Hardware building, but when Pilgrim Bank bought that they found this location.

"It looks like a great spot," Carlyle said. They anticipate a seating capacity of about 40.

Sean Cunning, owner of the 15 Depot Court building next door, said he met with owners and was impressed with their high standards. His only concern was with the parking. His building has six private spots in front for their businesses and wanted to be sure they did not become restaurant parking.

"I don't think it's a hurdle we can't get over," Cunning said.

The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously in favor of the liquor license.

"Thank you for investing in Cohasset," said Selectman Fred Koed.

Somers said he hopes to open Mr. Dooley's in roughly six weeks.

AROUND TOWN

Cohasset students soar at BC High

Warm thoughts

Hello Cohasset, how is everyone this week? I cannot believe that we are already at the start of April School Vacation for the public schools. I hope that everyone who has this makes sure to enjoy all the fun moments, big and small and take a lot of photos to remember them by. I am crossing my fingers that the weather starts to improve a little and bring us some warmth and sunshine throughout the week. Also take some time this week to reflect on your life a little and be thankful for what we have around us each day. As we all know, life can throw us some giant snowballs on any given day and sometimes, those snowballs really hurt. Try to look ahead to each day in a positive way and make sure to acknowledge and help others who may be down as well. A little bit of "warmth" can go a long way for us all.

Swim team

Calling all Cohasset Swim and Dive Team people, new and old. The returning swimmer registration is being held on Saturday, May 14th from 8-11 am at the Town Hall Auditorium. Try-outs for new swimmers/divers are being held on Monday, June 20th from 3-5 pm for swimmers and 5-6 pm for divers. The raindate is Tuesday, June 21st at the same times. Please be advised that there is limited space available in the 10&under, 12&under and 14&under age groups (ages 9-14).

BC High

The following Cohasset students earned honor roll status at Boston College High School for the second quarter of the 2010-2011 academic year.

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

For high honors a student must have at least a 3.80 quality point average and all grades C+ or higher.

HONORS: Anthony J Testa, 2011; Brendan Patrick Voke, 2011; Kyle Joseph Healy, 2012; Alec Charles Hurd, 2012; Matthew Won-Yung Swanborg, 2012; Matthew T. Troy, 2012; Robert Joseph Hillman, 2013; William Theodore Patsos, 2013; Trevor Stephen Schramm, 2013; and Henry Thomas Brown, 2014.

To earn honors, students must receive a quality point average of at least 3.2 and all grades C- or higher.

Congratulations all!

UC Berkeley

Christopher Golden, a 2001 graduate of Cohasset High School and a 2005 graduate of Harvard University will be graduating in May at University of California-Berkeley with a doctorate in Environmental Science, Policy and Management and a masters degree in Public Health Epidemiology.

He has spent the last 12 years researching biodiversity conservation and human health outcomes.

Christopher will begin a new position in September as a post doctoral research fellow at the Harvard University Center for the Environment to expand upon this research. He looks forward to further be able to make connections between global loss of biodiversity, mass unprecedented trends of ecosystem change and the future effects this will have on human health.

Gardens

Have you ever thought: "That house has attractive landscaping, I wish I could see its rear garden?" Here is your opportunity. On May 5, the Community Garden Club of Cohasset is launching its "Four Seasons in the Garden" The Tour begins at 9:30 a.m. with an informative lecture at the Lightkeeper's Residence, followed by a tour of two gardens, lunch and several more gardens in the afternoon. There are a total of 6 seasonal tours throughout the year. Other tour dates besides May 5 are July 14 and October 6, 2011 and January 26, April 4, and June 14, 2012. A ticket covering all 6 tour dates, two of which includes lunch (May 5 and June 14) ,is available for $75 .

Tickets for specific tour dates can be purchased separately at a cost of $40 where lunch is included and $20 for a tour offering snacks only. More specific information can be obtained by going to the website at:

www.communitygardenclubofcohasset.org

Another event that shows how close we are to the warm, musical and entertaining season of Summer. The South Shore Music Circus box office opens for the season on Saturday, April 16 at noon. Relay

Here is a "Save The Date" for everyone to put in the date books. This year's Relay for Life of Cohasset, Hingham, Scituate and Hull will be held at Cohasset High School June 24th and June 25th from 3 pm Friday until 10 am on Saturday. This year's theme is the "Carnival of Hope" with tons of food, games, entertainment and fun for the whole family. This is a wonderful way for anyone to become involved in the Relay for Cancer and you can join or start a team to show your support. For more information, contact Jen Lord at jennifer_quinn_99@yahoo.com or Courtney Finn at courtney.finn@yahoo.com. Put it in that date book and we will see you there!

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Next week, make sure to send it all in to me no later than Tuesday by 5 pm. This can include celebration information, news, event info, new babies and any other items that you would like to share with the community.

Cohasset resident hosts own WATD show

It's tough when you get in front of a judge. The road to getting your day in court is often long, costly, filled with speculation, anticipation, fear, worry, hope, or sometimes deep anger and bitterness. Typically that one day is life altering, and not always in a positive way, even if you "win."

Join host and Cohasset resident Beth Myers every Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m. on WATD FM 95.9 as she interviews a list of renowned guest speakers who will answer your questions and share real life examples of:

- How you can better control your outcomes
- What mediation is and isn't
- Why and how mediation works
- When mediation makes sense in business, family and/or community matters
- Where you can find mediators
- What qualities and training to look for in a mediator
- When mediation isn't mediation... and what's all this "ADR" talk?
- Cost effectively managing the best of both worlds: mediating with the advice and support of Counsel.

A preview of confirmed guest speakers, likely dates and possible topics includes:

April 17 - Rachel B. Goldman, Boston Law Collaborative.

"Mediation and Co-Parenting During and After Divorce"

April 24 - John A. Fiske, Healy, Fiske, Richmond & Matthew.

"Staying In Charge of Your Life" and "Making Informed Decisions"

May 1 - Christopher P. Kauders, Pre-Trial Solutions, Inc.

"War Stories. The Importance of Saving Face, Removing Conflict."

May 8 - Michael L. Leshin, Ginsburg & Leshin, LLP

HAPPENINGS

Historical society spring dinner

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its annual Spring Dinner on May 1, at Atlantica Restaurant on Border Street. There will be a cash bar starting at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at approximately 6:15 p.m. The guest speaker for the evening will be Dave Downs, a retired school teacher with a masters degree in Creative Arts in Education, who will bring "The Marvelous Amusing Quack Medicine Show." Mr. Downs will present his unique and fascinating view of medical practice in the 18th and 19th Centuries.

All Historical Society members as well as guests are welcome to attend. The cost for members is $31 and for non-members is $36. Checks are payable to Cohasset Historical Society. Call the Historical Society at 781-383-1434 to make reservations and indicate your choice of entrée prior to April 22.

Cohasset names subject of talk

Historian David Wadsworth will be the featured speaker at the Cohasset Historical Society's monthly Wednesday Lecture Series on Wednesday evening, April 20. David asks, "What's In a Name?" and answers with tales of how the various neighborhoods and areas in Cohasset acquired their designation.

David Wadsworth is a lifelong native of Cohasset and has a broad knowledge and understanding of the community. He brings both personal experience and research to his presentations. These Wednesday evening Historical Society Lectures are open to all in the community with an interest in getting to know more about our varied topics and about Cohasset in particular. Join us at the Pratt Building at 106 South Main St. The program begins at 7:30 p.m., there is no charge and light refreshment will be served.

ANNIVERSARY

Tewksburys celebrate 60th anniversary

Hamilton and Shirley Tewksbury, formerly of 81 Elm St., Cohasset, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on March 24, 2011. Ham and Shirley met in Potsdam, N.Y., while Ham was attending Clarkson University and Shirley was studying for her elementary education degree at Potsdam State Teachers College. They were married in Canton, N.Y., Shirley's hometown, in 1951, and settled in Cohasset in 1953, where they resided until moving recently to assisted living facilities in Weymouth.

Ham worked as an industrial scale salesman, and in his spare time served as a member of the Cohasset Recreation Commission and on the board of directors of the South Shore Community Center. Following his retirement, he was perhaps best known to Cohasset residents as a driver of the senior citizen van, befriending many senior citizens as he transported them to medical appointments each week. He spent many years as an active member of the Government Island Study Committee, securing the Minot's Lighthouse lens that is now on display on Government Island from the U. S. Coast Guard, so that this piece of history could be preserved for town residents. He also served as a member of the Cohasset Historical Society, and was a founding member and avid supporter of the Cohasset Swim Center.

Shirley is equally well-known in Cohasset, having spent many years working in the Cohasset school system, first as a substitute teacher while her children were growing up, and later as an elementary teacher, where she touched the lives of countless children and families. Shirley was active in the First Parish Unitarian Church, working as Sunday School Director and in many other capacities. Both Ham and Shirley spent many years serving at the annual Christmas Bazaar sponsored by the churches around the common, with Ham running the cheese table and Shirley assisting at the White Elephant table.

Ham and Shirley gathered with their four children, Meredith Menton, Karen Dauer, Ellen Volpe and H. Thaxter Tewksbury, and six of their 10 grandchildren, on Saturday, March 26, to celebrate their 60th anniversary, enjoying lunch together at the Allerton in Weymouth. The children shared highlights and remembrances from the last 60 years, and Shirley offered words of advice to the grandchildren, noting that, "This day is possible because of the tremendous amount of love we have in our family. I hope that each of you, as you go forward in life, is able to experience the same type of love in your families and with your children."

GIMME SHELTER

Cupcake is so sweet!

This week Hull Seaside Animal Rescue would very much like to find shelter for Cupcake.

Cupcake is a longhaired, black-and-white female. She's a decade old and is not too happy to have to reside at a shelter. Her person died and she really doesn't understand what's going on. HSAR is hoping there's a senior citizen out there who would like to give this pretty, cuddly older cat a loving home. She will be so delighted to have a place of her own. She's healthy and up to date on all her shots. Stop by if you'd like to meet her. HSAR gives deep discounts to seniors who adopt senior cats.

You can check out all of felines at: www.hsar.org. HSAR has open hours on Saturday from 2-3 p.m. and Monday from 6:30-7:30 p.m.. If these hours aren't convenient, please call the shelter at 781-925-3121 and leave a message and Judy, the Adoption Coordinator will get back to you.

The shelter is located at 50 L St., Hull; the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA. 02045: email: hsar@verizon.net. The shelter offers a monthly low cost spay-neuter program. If interested, check out the website or call Mary at 781-925-3121.

Thanks to HSAR dedicated volunteers, to those who give homes to HSAR felines and the people who generously donate to the cause. HSAR couldn't do it without you.

HSAR hopes there's a senior citizen out there who would like to give this cuddly, older cat a loving home. COURTESY PHOTO

Event Chair Ginni Froio and CEF President Mary McGoldrick.

The band "Steel Rhythm" plays an island melody during the Luau.

CEF Hawaiian Luau, a big success

Saturday, April 9 the CEF celebrated it's fifth annual Spring Gala at the Cohasset Golf Club to support the Cohasset Public Schools. The Club was transformed into a Hawaiian resort complete with a Tiki Bar and music from the band Steel Rhythm.

Joining in the festivities were parents, teachers, school committee members and administrators. Said Mary McGoldrick, president of the CEF, "It was wonderful to have all of the stakeholders in the community out to support excellence in education — it was a great night."

Since its revitalization nearly five years ago the CEF has invested $560,000 in the schools and built an endowment fund of over $460,000. Proceeds from this event will be used to support upcoming grant requests and the endowment. For more information about the CEF, or to learn about volunteer opportunities, please visit www.cohasseteducation.org.

Nancy and Chris Oddleifson enjoy the evening.

At Hingham Lumber, Dean Simmon was known as a gentle and generous man whose compassion for and devotion to his family, customers and co-workers was paramount.

Hingham Lumber worker is fondly remembered

Celebration of life is this evening

Hingham Lumber Company is planning a tribute and celebration of the life of Dean E. Simmon, a beloved 23-year employee, from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Friday (April 15) at Atlantica Restaurant, 44 Border St., Cohasset. Customers, friends and co-workers are invited to attend.

Dean, 64, longtime paint department manager at Hingham Lumber Company, died tragically in a car accident on April 7 on Cushing Street in Hingham while commuting to work.

"Dean was a man of few words, but he had a positive impact on many whom he came in contact with. He was a terrific mentor. He will be sorely missed," said Tom McNulty, owner, Hingham Lumber Company.

At Hingham Lumber, Dean was known as a gentle and generous man whose compassion for and devotion to his family, customers and co-workers was paramount.

"Dean found no need to speak ill of anyone and always met everyone with courtesy and respect," said Lester Gammon, who works in Contractor Sales and was a longtime friend of Dean's.

As a true paint professional Dean had a keen eye for color and a genuine concern to see his customers succeed with their painting projects. Despite Dean's earnest work ideals, he was never a man who took himself too seriously and was a willing participant in countless shared laughs. For the legions that knew and depended on Dean, his absence will be felt forever. His friendly manner was often coupled with the expression, "Have a good one."

Dean, who was a 1965 Scituate High School graduate, attended Bentley College. Before Dean's 23-year tenure at Hingham Lumber he was well known for his work at Hancock Paint and Brooks Discount. He was a resident of Rindge, N.H., and former Scituate and Marshfield resident.

Dean leaves his sister Helen Russell of Rindge, NH, a brother Bruce of North Carolina; his half brothers David of Colorado and Richard of Arizona; his two nieces Melissa Norman and Heather Russell; nephews Carl Russell, Jr., Eric Simmon and Robert Simmon; 6 great nieces and nephews. He was the son of the late David A. and Madalyn (Meisner) Simmon.

Youth groups to host flower sale

The youth group of St. Anthony's in Cohasset and St. Paul's in Hingham will host a huge flower sale after all the Masses this coming weekend. Available will be Easter lilies and tulips. Each will be $10. People are encouraged to stop by and help to raise money for the mission trip this June.

There will also be a car wash from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., on Saturday April 16, in the parking lot of St. Anthony's. Cost is $10 per car.

Our World spring event well attended

The Mothers' Council of Our World Children's Museum hosted the "Spring has Sprung event" last Saturday for local families to learn more about the museum and to see how the volunteer group is beginning to renovate and update the current museum space.

More than 50 families filled the Our World Museum and Playground throughout the morning. Some families even brought lunch and had picnics on the Playground after spending time in the museum!

Local author, Richard Trust, signed copies of his book, The Lonely Dandelion, while mothers on the Council read, and did crafts with children attending the event. Balloons donated by Harbor Light Toys in Scituate lined the fence of the playground, as parents, grandparents, and children enjoyed a morning out exploring and playing on the museum's Ship of Dreams, in the Toddler Room, and the Playground.

The volunteer group has been busy updating the Museum with help from local companies and community members. Visitors on Saturday were able to see some of the changes underway and had many positive comments and feedback. Aubuchon Hardware on 3A painted the Toddler Room and has donated all the paint for the renovation.

Cohasset High School students are currently painting a mural in the Toddler Room, and Harbor Light Toys in Scituate, & Magic Beans Toy Store in Hingham, have both donated toys and equipment. The next phase of the renovation was on display for visitors to see the overall plan and will be complete at the end of the month. Magner Construction will be donating materials and time to help the volunteer group create "Imagination Stations" for children to have thematic based play stations.

The group's next event for families is scheduled for the Wednesday morning of April vacation.

Our World Children's Museum & Playground is at 100 Sohier Street (Behind Paul Pratt Library).

Hurray for spring break!

NATALIE DIGNAM

Spring Vacation is finally here! Hopefully the rain won't continue for too long, but for those lucky enough to travel somewhere warm, it doesn't matter much!

This week, the most exciting event was Jazz Night on Wednesday at the high school. Great performance jazz band! The gay straight alliance had another meeting in the cafeteria on Thursday and is always looking for new members, so don't hesitate to join. A.P. students should have completed the exam forms this Tuesday and Wednesday in Cafeteria after school, but if you still haven't, ask your guidance counselor for help. Also, scholarships were due this Wednesday, so get ready for another evaluation seniors.

When people talk about the "college process," I assumed that it would eventually end when I was accepted to college. My mistake. It never ends.

Also, the top-secret organization known as the "prom committee" has reportedly continued meetings, but no one can know for sure since everything is classified. We wouldn't want to find out the "top-secret" location or anything like that...

That's all for this week CHS, enjoy spring break!

Natalie Dignam is a senior at Cohasset High. Her column runs weekly during the school year.

HALE

A lifelong lover of marine life, Hale spent months helping researchers gather data on two species of dolphin living off the Australian coast and New Zealand Orca (killer whales).

Hale's Down Under work with marine life was not her first. As a marine biology major at UMASS-Dartmouth she earned an internship working closely with bottle-nosed dolphins between her junior and senior years.

"Through that experience I realized I really liked doing fieldwork," Hale said. After considering going immediately to graduate school, she decided she wanted to get more fieldwork experience.

She stumbled upon what looked like a "dream job" researching dolphins in Australia for four months. She applied and was chosen from more than 100 candidates.

Hale spent her days seeking out dolphins in and around Airlie Beach and its nearby islands in northeastern Australia. Working among a crew of four Hale collected biopsy samples from dolphins. The research was being used as part of a doctoral candidate's thesis project.

After two months in Airlie they headed south to Yeppoon in Queensland, Australia to continue research on humpback dolphins and Australian snubfin dolphins.

"We worked every single day we could get out on the water," Hale said. In addition to getting to closely observe the dolphins in their natural habitat, she also had encounters with humpback whales. In one instance, she witnessed a mother humpback whale teaching her calf different whale activities, such as spy hopping and slapping its fluke on the water.

"It was really cool and it's something that you don't really see that often," Hale said.

When the four-month internship concluded, Hale wasn't ready to come home. She headed to Sydney, Australia to stay with friends and explore the city.

"The hospitality is unbelievable," Hale said, almost everyone she met offered up their extra bed or couch.

Killer whales

While she explored the city she also was trying to find another research internship, in particular she wanted to do something with the killer whales, also known as Orca.

She found Ingrid Visser, founder of the Orca Research Trust in New Zealand. She sent off an e-mail and a week later she heard back — "can you be here next week?"

FILE PHOTO

"Orca can travel more than 100 kilometers a day. They are extremely fast swimmers. If the whales were close enough, we went."
Samantha Hale

She jumped at the chance. Off she went to New Zealand to see a killer whale for the first time.

The way the Orca Research Trust works is they are constantly on standby waiting for a call to come in alerting them of a killer whale sighting. If the whales are within driving distance off they go.

"Orca can travel more than 100 kilometers a day. They are extremely fast swimmers. If the whales were close enough, we went," Hale said.

For the first two weeks Hale was in Tutakaka, New Zealand (the northern part of the country) the Orca Research Trust didn't receive a single call alerting them to orcas. When, at long last, the first call came in they drove two hours south to the Bay of Islands, put the 19-foot rigid hull inflatable boat in the water and headed out.

When she spotted the very large orca, she said her jaw dropped.

"(But) this orca wanted nothing to do with us," Hale said with a laugh. While her fellow researchers were not impressed with this encounter, she was elated just to see one up close.

After waiting two weeks, lightning struck twice on the same day. When they returned home two Orca pods swam by the oceanfront property where the Orca Research Trust is based.

This first day of experience with the killer whale was only the beginning of many memorable moments up close with these cetaceans.

She sat on the bow of the boat as two massive killer whales were bow riding the small boat.

"I had this huge orca eyeball staring up at me!" Hale said.

She spent many of the days bouncing from different whale pods. Part of their job was to take up-close, in-focus shots of the whale's dorsal fin, saddle patch and eye patches. Like fingerprints, these three help identify the individual whale. Orca Research Trust has an extensive catalog of the whales.

Hale observed the whales feeding on stingrays.

"These animals are two-tons, but they are so agile and so maneuverable (in the water)," Hale said. Despite their size they will flip around and feed in shallow waters in the hunt for rays. The crystal clear water made every move the whales made visible, she said.

Blue whale

One of the most unique experiences was Hale's encounter with a blue whale with her calf. The blue whale is the largest animal in the world. Adult Blue whales are typically the length of four school busses.

"It's very rare to see these whales in shallow waters," Hale said, adding anything under 120-feet is considered shallow for these animals.

They observed the mother and calf feeding: jumping up and stunning the fish, then eating them.

"They didn't care about the boat," Hale said. In fact, the Blue whale was so curious about the boat it "spy-hopped" right next to the boat.

Spy-hopping is when a whale raises its head out of the water and holds the position. The whale then checks out what's in the area.

The group was able to photograph the Blue whale in this position. "As far as we know, there is only one other picture of a Blue whale doing this," Hale said.

The future

The experience in both Australia and New Zealand was impactful and convinced Hale of her career goals.

"I'd do it again in a heartbeat," Hale said. She plans to apply to grad school and pursue her doctorate degree in marine studies.

Hale said she has always harbored a love for marine life and the ocean, in particular whales. Her love and passion for these animals only grew through her recent adventures.

"I took a big chance, sent out a bunch of emails and the next thing you know I was in Australia....if you want something you just have to go for it," she advised other young people who have a passion for something.

Hale said there is so much to learn from marine life and over-development and pollution threatens to destroy it.

"We have to look below the water; step back and take care of it. These animals are a lot smarter than we think. They are as emotional and feeling, and intelligent as us. Something so intelligent deserves so much better from us. We have to respect it and revere it," Hale said.

In New Zealand, Cohasset resident Samantha Hale worked with the Orca Research Trust. This was the view she woke up to everyday. COURTESY PHOTO

Honoring the fallen

Memorial Day observances have grown

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset Memorial Day observance has grown by leaps and bounds over the past few years. What once was a small parade with a few veterans now brings out the whole community and extends well beyond Memorial Day.

Sons of the American Legion Commander Tom Wigmore announced the 2011 Memorial Day activity schedule at the Board of Selectmen meeting Tuesday night. But, first, he gave a brief history of the town's Memorial Day observances.

In the wake of World War I, Cohasset established the Legion Post, began decorating veterans' graves and instituted the Memorial Day parade, which included visits to the town's cemeteries and veterans' squares. Following World War II the number of squares dedicated to veterans increased.

Now, the town has 22 veteran squares and places more than 1,500 American flags on veterans' graves.

In 1984, the Cohasset Memorial Day parade hit an all-time low. Community participation was almost nil and just 30 veterans showed up to honor those who had fallen, Wigmore said.In 1991, shortly after Operation Desert Storm, Cohasset held its biggest parade in years. Since 2000 Memorial Day in Cohasset has grown exponentially.

"We've really pushed the participation," Wigmore said. He organizes the holiday's activities with his wife, Deirdre, who serves as the president of the Legion Auxiliary, and his father, Steve Wigmore, Commander of the Legion.

In a short time participation has tripled in veteran participation in Memorial Day. The Legion now needs three busses to take the veterans from cemetery to cemetery to pay respect to the fallen soldiers.

"More and more families are coming to the cemeteries and it's growing every year," Wigmore said. "This town is unique because it has an impressive parade and the community comes out and salutes its veterans. This parade and community is hometown Americana."

In 2007, in addition to the Memorial Day parade on Monday morning, the Legion installed the Healing Field, a field of hundreds of flags each honoring a veteran.

In 2010, a Rusty Skippers Band concert was added for the Tuesday night before Memorial Day (this year's concert will take place at 7p.m. on Tuesday, May 24).

Wigmore said the Memorial Day festivities would not be possible without the support of the community and various town departments.

"The men of the DPW do a lot of work out there and they don't get a lot of credit," Wigmore said. He heads to Woodside Cemetery at 2a.m. on Memorial Day to ensure everything is just so. "They make sure all the blades of grass stand at attention."

Police manage the traffic during the day and lead the parade with the motorcycles. Elder Affairs volunteers their van to take disabled veterans to the observances.

"And I'd also like to thank all the veterans in the community that participate. I challenge every veteran to come out and be part of the day," Wigmore said. The keynote speaker this year at the parade is likely to be hometown astronaut Steve Bowen.

Historical Society exhibit to honor veterans

- In collaboration with the Memorial Day observances, the Cohasset Historical Society is putting together a special exhibit from May 16 to June 10 to honor Cohasset's heroes with pictures and information on each of the men who died in service.
- The exhibit will also include information on the Memorial Squares, artifacts, personal memorabilia and uniforms from each war. The society has a good collection of uniforms from the Civil War through World War I. There will also be information on the Gold Star Mothers.
- The society is looking for any letters or photos of the servicemen and women from Cohasset. All property will be returned to the owners after the exhibit.

DeGennaro is interim superintendent

By Nancy White
nwhite@wickedlocal.com

School business manager Dave DeGennaro was named to the post of interim superintendent by the School Committee Monday night.

School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz said none of the other school administrators who currently hold their superintendent certification were interested in taking on the role.

As of April 1 the Cohasset Schools were without a superintendent.

Superintendent Denise Walsh resigned from her position as of that date and the new superintendent, Barbara Cataldo, is not starting until July 1 leaving the district without a clear leader for three months.

The School Committee delayed their appointment of an interim superintendent last Wednesday night to ask those employees if they were interested in serving in that capacity. They did, however, appoint DeGennaro acting superintendent in the meantime.

DeGennaro will take on a combined role of superintendent and business manager. His paycheck will include a $12,000 increase spread out over the next three months to compensate him for the added responsibility.

"Even though no one else that was certified had any interest in the position, now they feel as if they were part of the process and are supportive of the appointment," Slanetz said.

The administrators with superintendent certification are Middle High School Principal Joel Antolini, High School vice principal Mike Gill, Director of Student Services Denise Messina, Humanities program supervisor Louise Demas, Director of curriculum Nancy Mrzyglod (a contract employee).

CATALDO

According to the contract, Cataldo agreed to pay for an enrollment fee of $3,000 to the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents (M.A.S.S.) for participation in the "New Superintendent Induction Program" beginning in July. Cataldo will also participate in the mentorship program sponsored by M.A.S.S.

This will be Cataldo's first superintendent position.

Cataldo comes to the district from Milford, where she has served as assistant superintendent since 2007. She has a background in special education having served as the director of special education in Arlington for two years (2005 to 2007) and special needs coordinator in Cambridge (2002 to 2005).

Former school superintendent Denise Walsh salary for the current fiscal year was approximately $167,000.

During the hiring process, the School Committee set a maximum salary offer for any candidate at $175,000.

SLEEPAWAY/OVERNIGHT/RESIDENT CAMP READINESS: HOW TO KNOW WHEN A CHILD'S READY TO GO!

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

They show interest. Not surprisingly, this will differ from child to child, as they each have their own unique way of showing interest. Some may be more subtle about wanting to go to overnight camp. They might ask simple, general or hypothetical questions about it. Other children may ask directly if they can start going to an overnight camp or may bring home brochures to show their parents. It is not uncommon for children to be ready to attend overnight camp before their parents or guardians feel ready to let them go.

Successful sleepovers with friends and/or family. Progressing from one night away with friends or relatives to two or more nights is a good confidence builder for future campers. This way, they know they can be successful sleeping away from home before they leave for camp.

Enjoying group events like sleepovers and school trips is a positive sign of overnight camp readiness. Is it increasingly difficult to get your child to stay home? Does your child find it appealing to spend overnights in groups of peers—either at sleepovers or on school or club trips? It's often great fun to bunk with a group of children and spend "fun" time together. This is a major reason why summer camps exist!

Boredom with past summer pursuits. Children will sometimes let you know that they don't want to do what they did last summer. If they act bored with the idea of returning, it is probably time for something new—either at the same camp or at a different one. Resident camp presents a whole new world for a child to discover. There is no "magical" age when resident camp is the right fit for a child's needs and interests. Children as young as six or seven can be ready for overnight camp, especially if the child has seen how important summer camp experiences were with other family members. Other children wait as long as age 13 to attend sleepaway camp for the first time. But, typically most first time campers are between the ages of 8 and 12. Attending residential summer camp is one of the most independence-boosting and empowering experiences a child can have. Parents are wise to pay attention to signs of camp readiness and act accordingly!

OUR VIEW

Always buckle up

Today we are used to hearing and reading about tragedies. It is not all that often that we have the chance to report on a tragedy averted.

We are indeed lucky to report that Hingham's Courtney Monnich, her four children and two of her sister's kids, are safe today – apart from bumps and bruises and a nasty gash on Courtney's chin – thanks in large part to seatbelts and proper child restraints (see Cohasset accident story, page 4).

A few years ago, another Hingham mom, Courtney Palek, and her three children, avoided serious injury in an accident on Summer Street near the Rotary in Hingham because of the proper use of seatbelts and child restraints.

While the circumstances of the two accidents are quite different – the message is the same. Both mothers were heading home and did not expect that, literally out of the blue, they would be hit by another vehicle.

Following both accidents, police said that seatbelts and child restraints helped avert serious injury.

It is hard to believe that some motorists still balk at wearing seatbelts

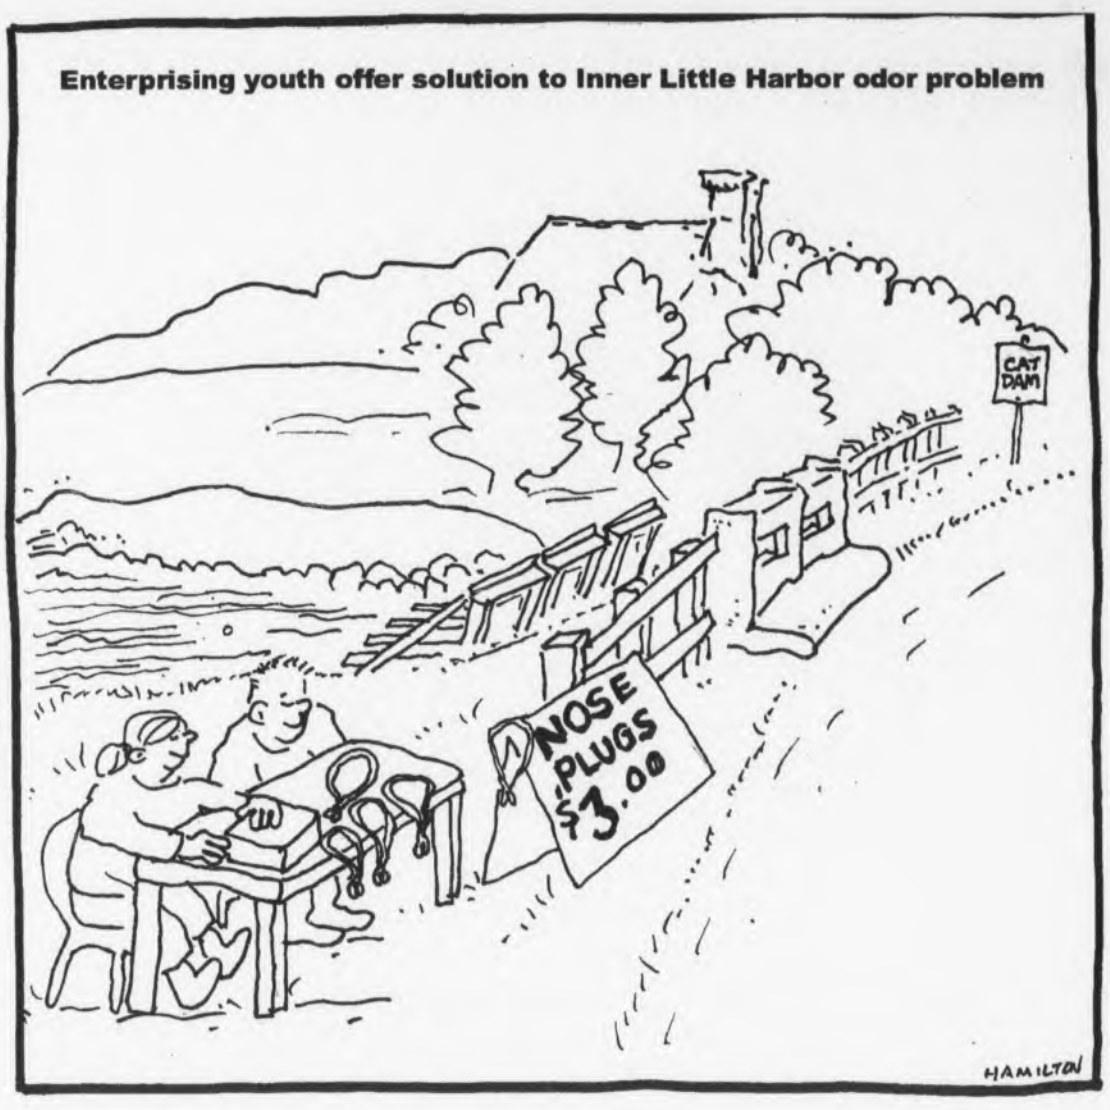
It is also very important that proper child restraints are used and the safety seats are properly installed.

The Cohasset Police Department is also a child safety seat inspection station that residents should take advantage of. Call 781-383-1055 to make an appointment for help with the installation of, or inspection of the installation, of a child safety seat.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration offers the following:

For car seats:

- Select a car seat based on your child's age, height, and weight.
- Keep your child in the car seat for as long as possible, as long as your child fits the seat's height and weight requirements.
- All children under 13 should ride in the back seat.
- Crashes are the leading cause of death for children 3 to 14 years old.



For seat belts:

- Buckling up is the single most effective thing you can do to protect yourself in a crash.
- Air bags are designed to work with seat belts, not replace them

Buckling up should be automatic.

Don't become a negative statistic: Seat belts and child safety restraints save lives.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Huge success

On behalf of the Cohasset Board of Health and the Cohasset Recreation Department we would like to thank all of our vendors, community organizations and volunteers for their support at this first annual Cohasset Health and Recreation Fair. The event was a huge success with many residents taking part in a variety of health screens and recreation offers.

We'd like to thank our sponsors, Pilgrim Bank whose generous donation offset the cost of the cholesterol, glucose and PSA screening, and Goodwin Graphics who generously donated our new logo, banners and pens.

We'd also like to thank Dana Farber Cancer Institute, Hingham Lion's Club, South Shore Hospital, Dr. Robin Lawrence, Norwell VNA, Scituate Chiropractic, Paula Pozniak, Children's Melanoma Prevention Foundation, Old Colony Hospice, Peggy Chapman, Cohasset Elder Affairs, Coral Grande, TRIAD, Gregg Hartnett, Tara Tradd, Steve Bobo, Relay for Life, Cohasset Family Chiropractic, All the Best, Whole New U Health & Wellness Counseling, Strecker Eye Center, Santi Holistic Health – Jeff Spratt, Health Watch, Care Giver Home, Visiting Angels, Sportobin, Cohasset Road Race by the Sea, Taffy Nothnagle and the Special Olympics, Mariposa Massage and Body Therapy, Jade Forest, Bikram Yoga, CC4CC, Conservation Trust, Cohasset Veterans Agent Joe McElroy, One Life at a Time, Carriage House Nursery School, Mathnasium, River Wind Farms, Dance Force, Caroline Carr, Playwell Teknologies, Jim Dow, United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Cohasset Sailing Club, Boston Blazers, Cohasset Sports Complex, Beantown Jumpers, Thundercat Sports, CYSBA, Cohasset Yoga Center, Sci-Coh Football, Perfect Touch Soccer Camp, CHS Hockey Boosters, Cohasset Swim Center, Games2U, Adventures in Space and the Cohasset Police and Fire Departments for their participation in this year's event.

We would also personally like to thank Jenna McCarthy, Dan McCarthy, Margaret Goodwin, Ron Goodwin, Tara Goodwin, Kelly Grech, Linda Bolster, Paulina McDonald, Dan Piepenbrink, and Rich Lamb for all their work in helping to make this event a success.

Remember to save the date for next year, which is March 25, 2012.

MAKING TRACKS

Cooperation hallmark of Jacobs Meadow project

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project —Last week we showed two photos of the channel next to the Legion building, one before the project started the other when it is nearly complete. We promised that we'd take you through some of the steps that were required to get from the start of construction in the first photo to the near-completion stage shown in the second. As you might imagine it took a lot of creativity to reconstruct an active drainage channel that carries about 20 percent of the Town's stormwater to the harbor, especially during one of the worst winters most of us can remember.

The first photo shows how a temporary dam was erected across James Brook as it leaves Jacobs Meadow. A large steel plate was placed across the waterway so that the flow of water from the meadow was completely blocked. Two large pumps were set up to pump the water from Jacobs Meadow side of the culvert to the harbor via a separate storm drain located at the curb in Elm Street. The pipes under Elm Street and Veteran's Park that normally carry this water to the harbor were also blocked. Under these conditions, the entire channel could be maintained in a dry condition since no water could enter from either the harbor or the meadow.

If you look carefully in the first photo, on the right hand side of the channel at the edge of the snow there are large wire baskets barely visible. These empty wire baskets will be filled later with stone and are called "gabions". The gabions will form the channel wall in the transition space between the end of new concrete channel walls and the marsh proper. (Gabions were also used in a project several years ago to form the edge of James Brook where it enters Jacobs Meadow from the west near the Masonic building downtown.)

The next photo shows the new channel as construction started adjacent to Elm Street. There are a number of things we'd like to call your attention to in this photo. At the upper right is the supporting structure for the handicap ramp into the Legion. The ramp is located very close to our work area and it was initially debated whether the ramp needed to be removed or whether it could be worked around. Finally, it was decided to leave the ramp in place and excavate the channel very carefully to avoid collapse of the ramp. Extreme care was the by-word during this digging.

Temporary dam in James Brook. COURTESY PHOTOS

Adding culvert sections.

In the background, the first section of the new culvert has already been placed. This first section is unique in that is a concrete structure that is fully enclosed, top, bottom and sides. The balance of the concrete sections will be "U" shaped, open at the top. The photo shows the first "U" shaped channel section being lowered into place. The remaining sections will be placed end to end all the way to the gabions. You may also notice, if you look at the site, that the new channel is not straight, but curves a bit. This is so the channel walls will clear the existing Legion foundation, thus avoiding potential structural damage to the Legion during construction.

As an aside, we'd also like to remind you that this project is an excellent example of cooperation between Cohasset, the Commonwealth and Federal organizations. Keep in mind that the majority of the costs are being paid for by a substantial grant from the Commonwealth, rather than Town funds. Our project liaison, Jason Burtner, is with the Scituate office of Coastal Zone Management. He has been extremely supportive and helpful before and during the project.

DTC movie night is tonight

This month's documentary feature will be "No Impact Man," a thought-provoking story of an unusual family's efforts to do their part to help protect their environment. This Fifth Avenue family goes very green when writer Coilin Beavan leads his wife, Michelle Conlin, and their baby daughter on a year-long crusade to make no net impact on the environment. Among their activities: eating only locally grown organic food, generating no trash except for compost and using no carbon-fueled transportation. This film, produced by Laura Gabbert and Justin Schein, premiered at the 2009 Sundance Film Festival.

Each month films of topical interest are presented on the third Friday at 7 p.m. at the library by the Cohasset Democratic Town Committee. Please join us this month for an interesting and informative evening at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, April 15th at 7:00 in the Meeting Room. All are welcome; refreshments are served.

Get hazards out of the house

South Shore Recycling Cooperative will host a household hazardous waste collection this spring. Materials will be accepted from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. , June 18 at the Scituate Highway Garage, 68 Captain Peirce Road (partnering with Cohasset).

Bring: Oil based paint and stains, solvents, gasoline, automotive fluids, pesticides, photography and pool chemicals, acids, bases, and poisons in secure, labeled containers.

Do not bring: Industrial, pathological and medical waste, radioactive materials, pressurized gas cylinders or explosives.

Propane tanks, motor oil, antifreeze, auto and rechargeable batteries, and fluorescent lamps are collected regularly by many towns. Residents should use those services if available. Go to ssrcoop.info.

Residents who turn in a toxic mercury thermometer, thermostat or other mercury item may swap it for a digital thermometer. Sponsored by Covanta at SEMASS.

PSC Environmental will conduct the collection. For more information and direction, call South Shore Recycling Cooperative at 781-329-8318 or go to ssrcoop.info.

FOR THE RECORD

School coverage that goes beyond budgets

GREGORY MATHIS

Amazing things are happening in our schools every day, every week, every year.

That can sometimes get lost in the shuffle, especially during this time of year when so much of the talk involving schools has to do with budgets, teacher salaries, Proposition 2 1/2 overrides, and other issues involving money.

The school budget certainly warrants a lot of attention as it accounts for more than half of the town's overall budget. It's your tax dollars at work and that shouldn't be underestimated. There has been and will be a lot of discussion about where money is spent and where it's not being spent in the schools. We know there are a lot of fixed costs in a school budget, namely the salaries and expenses associated with staffing. Special education costs are a moving target and those state mandated costs can decimate a budget.

Covering school committee meetings is not the same as covering what happens within the school system as far as education is concerned. Budgets, MCAS scores and other data driven statistics might be the nuts and bolts of a school system, but what happens in the classroom between teacher and student is the heart and soul.

We've made a big push lately for readers to provide us with content and now have a Your News page dedicated to feature photos and other community contributed information. Nowhere is that concept more useful to us than in the school community.

Beyond school lunch menus and honor rolls, which have been staples of the community newspaper for decades, there is so much more to cover that we just don't have the time and resources to get to. With all that happens each and every day in the schools, we rely on principals, teachers, parents, and even students to be our eyes and ears.

If you don't see coverage of your school, there's something you can do about it. Take a picture or two of the science fair or spelling bee and send it along. Send a write up detailing the student of the month recipients or the students who have just completed worthy community service projects.

We get calls from time to time from frustrated parents of students complaining that all we cover is high school sports. What about the marching band, they'll argue. What about the drama club? How about some coverage of the National Honor Society students? We do devote space and resources to covering local sports, so those are indeed valid points, especially if you're child isn't a star varsity athlete. While our resources are limited in terms of dedicated coverage to schools, we certainly would make the space available in the newspaper and on the website if a representative of the school or a parent from a PTO were to provide us with photos and information from each of the schools in the community.

So let's continue to work together to make sure the entire community is aware of all the wonderful things happening in classrooms all across town. Contact your local editor if you have any questions about getting your school information into the local newspaper or on the Wicked Local website, or send me an email at gmathis@wickedlocal.com and I can help get those questions answered.

HEALTH NOTES

Choose your health expert wisely

STEVE BOBO

Most experts know much about their subject even though some sound like idiots. Most media pundits sound like experts even if they are idiots. Reporters, on the other hand, only have to be on time – and accurate.

Recently, the press has covered with considerable depth, the story about the theft of a bicycle, recovery of which was facilitated by postings on Facebook. The article implied that a new use for Facebook was to possibly catch crooks. Such implication assumes a change of character from gathering a larger circle of "friends" to something more public spirited and useful. Aside from being generally healthy exercise if one is able to keep them vertical, bicycles are an important element of Cohasset fitness development. The one; Facebook is, at best neutral where the other is positive. One often sees groups of bicycles speeding their way down our thoroughfares, depending upon the strength of the propelling legs.

It seems however that the combination of Facebook and bicycles not only support our health, but assist our police force in stamping out crime. Many felons intent on relatively unnoticed crime apparently choose bicycles as the target, to the extent that Facebook has a special section covering bicycles (for advertising purposes).

Advertisements are another source of information which, by use of experts, simulated or real, profess to help us, when their most important issue is to help the user remain solvent and grow, sometimes even pointing us in the wrong direction. One of the most egregious examples of distortion of the healthy use of advertising is the use of narcotics and nsaids to promote relaxation. Non-steroidal anti-inflammatory, nsaids for short, lazy luminescent butterflies floating through windows aside, we're dealing with a powerful drug here.

Nsaids are drugs with analgesic, antipyretic (lowering an elevated body temperature and relieving pain without impairing consciousness) and, in higher doses, with anti-inflammatory effects (reducing inflammation). The term "non-steroidal" is used to distinguish these drugs from steroids, which, among a broad range of other effects, have a similar anti-inflammatory action but with some complex side effects. As analgesics, nsaids are unusual in that they are non-narcotic. Recently nsaids, such as Tylenol, which employ ibuprophen, are now being reassessed for several reasons: Some new studies have begun to indicate that the widespread and casual use of nsaids is probably linked to kidney damage and an increasing incidence of ulcers by interfering with the stomach's ability to protect itself from acidic stomach juices. A side effect is the reduction of platelet development and blood clotting, and therefore, nsaid's can cause ulcers in the stomach and promote bleeding.

Talk with the experts: Doctors and pharmacists are busy, but they can and will take time to answer your questions.

- Be clear about the medications you are taking and how they may affect you.
- Write down your questions and take them to your appointment.
- Ask the questions for each drug you take, and write down the answers.
- Bring both your questions and answers to your doctor and pharmacist.

Ask questions like: What is the name of this medication? What is it supposed to do? What are the side effects? Will this medication work with others I am taking? How do I take the stuff? Is it safe? What are the pitfalls?

Tell your doctor about all the medications you take: Prescription, over-the-counter and herbal. Create a list, or personal medication record. A form is available free from AARP. Include everything you take, the doses and how you take them. Include the following: Name and contact details; your physician's names and emergency contact information, pharmacy contact information, name of your medications, reason for use, form, dose, start and stop date.

The moral to this story is that if you want to consult an expert, not only should you be selective about his sources, but you should know the purpose for which the source is supplied. Experts don't always have the answer. Other sources exist. A majority of the information on the Internet has some bias in its content. It takes a real expert to find it.

PSO Tele-a-thon seeks donations for auction

The seventh annual Cohasset PSO Tele-a-thon and On-Line Auction Fundraiser will take place in April. The Tele-a-thon committee is seeking donations for sponsorship opportunities, raffle and on-line auction items. The on-line auction will run from Friday, April 22 through Friday, April 29, the live broadcast of the Tele-a-thon will take place on Thursday, April 28, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium or viewed on Comcast Cable channel 22.

The Tele-a-thon proceeds support and enhance PSO sponsored programs, teacher grants, curriculum development and other school district wide events. At the last event, more than $22,000 was raised for the kids in Cohasset public schools.

Would your business like to support a great cause and enhance your current advertising and marketing campaigns? If so, consider becoming a sponsor of the Tele-a-thon. Sponsors receive numerous benefits and advertising opportunities before and during the Tele-a-thon. If you are interested in this advertising opportunity, send an e-mail to psotelethondonations@yahoo.com

The Cohasset PSO Tele-a-thon committee is requesting raffle prizes and on line auction donations. If you have a product or service that you would like to donate send an e-mail to psotelethondonations@yahoo.com. Include in your information, the name of the item, its value and where it can be picked-up.

Holly Hill Farm honors volunteers

By Janice McPhillips
Special to the Mariner

April 10 through 16 is National Volunteer Appreciation week. Holly Hill Farm, 236 Jerusalem Road, would like an opportunity to recognize and thank the many volunteers who help the farm by performing countless chores as well as those who help the Friends of Holly Hill Farm, the nonprofit education center that uses the farm as its outdoor classroom, teaches school children and adults and families in workshops.

The farm and the Friends both have paid staff members, but the amount of work to be done far exceeds the amount of work that these hard-working people can do on their own. The farm staff consists of farm manager Fred Beddall and assistant manager Deanna Levanti. There is a small army of volunteers who help Fred and Deanna plant, grow, harvest and sell the vegetables, flowers and herbs grown on 4 1/2 acres of land currently under cultivation. Fred keeps a list so he can keep in touch with his crew and as of right now, there are 37 people on his list, ranging from 17 to 77 years of age.

Mimi White of Cohasset started volunteering over a decade ago when she was 65 years old. She had been spending time visiting food co-ops and farmers markets with her daughter-in-law in Seattle and was looking to do some non-traditional volunteer work that involved getting back to nature and eating healthy food. She started by harvesting and washing vegetables with farm owners Jean and Frank White. "Frank and I would wash vegetables and discuss politics, it was terrific."

Jude Sonder of Hingham has also been a farm volunteer for the past 10 years. She also started by doing fieldwork, but for the past several years Jude has worked in the flower room creating lovely flower bouquets that are for sale each week. Jude says volunteering at the farm is like no other volunteer experience she's ever had. "For me, doing farm work is a meditative experience that is about being connected to the land. It allows me to be outside and enjoy nature in a quiet and reflective way."

Volunteers also play a critical role teaching children who visit the farm during the school year. A field trip to the farm is meant to be a hands-on opportunity for children to learn about soil and what it takes to grow food, or to learn about ecosystems and plant life cycles. Friends of Holly Hill Farm education director Jon Belber has two part-time assistants, Janice McPhillips and Sally Rossi-Ormon, but like the farm, the Friends rely on the help of 15 teaching volunteers. Extra volunteer teachers allow for smaller groups that helps teachers gain a connection with students for a more meaningful tour of the farm. Children learn by feeling different types of soil, digging in the compost pile, planting seeds, and harvesting and tasting something that is growing. In 2010, nearly 2,000 school children visited the farm.

Some volunteers come to the farm to help as part of community service work through school, work or a community organization. Currently, Ben Curley and Tony Sestito, both Cohasset High School juniors, come to the farm three times a week as part of a community service class at CHS. They've been busy pushing heavy wheelbarrows filled with soil, clearing brush, building tables, chopping wood and establishing trails and paths.

It would be impossible to run the farm and the Friends of Holly Hill Farm without the consistent help of our volunteers. Our favorite way to say thank you is to share a meal with our volunteers that we do as often as we can, always with as much delicious and fresh organically grown produce as possible. We can't thank you all enough.

If you are interested in volunteering for the farm or helping teach with the Friends of Holly Hill Farm, contact Jon Belber at jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com.

Renaissance music coming to First Parish

Schola Cantorum, a highly acclaimed 12-voice Renaissance choir, will perform a stunning a cappella program of early music at First Parish Cohasset at 3 pm on Sunday, April 17. First Parish is located on the green at North Main Street. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children.

This is Schola Cantorum's 25th anniversary year, and all year they have been bringing back performances of their most beloved programs and pieces from over the years. This concert will feature Dufay's Missa Ecce Ancilla Domini, as well as motets by Victoria, Josquin, and Lassus. This is an extended version of the program they will have performed one week prior at the Rhode Island School of Design in honor of the re-opening of their Renaissance galleries. First Parish Cohasset music director Allegra Martin is a vocalist with the ensemble.

Schola Cantorum is directed by Fred Jodry, who holds a degree from NEC, and has studied with Lorna Cooke de Varon and Donald Teeters. He was awarded the Chadwick Medal, given to a promising graduate for distinction in musical performance and academic excellence. He received a Master's degree in the Performance of Early Music in 1987, as a voice student of Laurie Monahan. Jodry is currently Director of Choral Activities at Brown University, where he teaches music history, theory and conducting. Since 2001 he has also served as Music Director for the First Unitarian Church of Providence. He previously held posts as Assistant Organist at the Church of the Advent, Boston, and as Music Director at historic Trinity Church, Newport, RI. He performs widely as an organist, harpsichordist, vocalist, and conductor.

While at conservatory, Mr. Jodry founded the Schola Cantorum of Boston, a 12-voice ensemble dedicated to the performance of Renaissance sacred music. For over 20 years, the group has been recognized for their lively and stylish performances of vocal polyphony. They have performed throughout New England, and have performed in numerous Boston Early Music Festival concerts. The Schola was invited to perform for the American Renaissance Society, and has often been recorded for broadcast on NPR. The Schola has collaborated with the Boston Camerata in recording 7 CDs, ranging from Nueva Espa-a: Music from the New World, to French Baroque works of Gilles and Charpentier, and American shape-note and Shaker Music.

Under the direction of Joel Cohen, Schola Cantorum Boston has been featured with the Boston Camerata for performances at Tanglewood and Merkin Hall, New York.

For more information about the concert, please contact Allegra Martin at (617) 872-0461.

Volume 37 - Report No. 14 April 4-8, 2011

Senator Robert L. Hedlund (R-Weymouth) (617) 722-1646 Room 413F

Representative Garrett J. Bradley (D-Hingham) (617) 722-2120 Room 472

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records the votes of local representatives and senators on one roll call from the week of April 4-8.

$200 MILLION FOR ROAD AND BRIDGE REPAIRS (H 3324)

House 153-0, Senate 39-0, approved and sent to Gov. Deval Patrick a bill that would borrow $200 million for road and bridge repairs in cities and towns across the state.

Supporters said many roads and bridges are unsafe and in dangerous disrepair. They noted communities desperately need to make these repairs yet many do not have the money to do so.

(A "Yes" vote is for the $200 million package.)

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

SALES TAX ON INTERNET SALES (S 1554) - The Revenue Committee heard testimony on a bill, backed by local retailers and unions, that would impose the state's 6.25 percent sales tax on many goods consumers buy on the Internet. Currently, Amazon.com, Overstock.com and other Internet companies are exempt from collecting the tax under a 1992 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that Internet retailers only have to charge sales tax in states in which they have a "physical presence."

The bill would expand the definition of physical presence to include some 5,000 affiliates, with physical offices in Massachusetts, that are associated with the large online retailers. This would result in these online retailers being required to collect the sales tax.

Supporters of imposing the tax testified that retailers in Massachusetts are losing millions of dollars in annual sales and the state is missing out on millions in tax revenue. They said consumers often go to brick-and-mortar retail stores to see items and then buy them on the Internet in order to get a lower price and also save the sales tax.

Opponents said imposing the tax on Internet sales will simply result in many of the 5,000 affiliates closing up shop in Massachusetts and the loss of many jobs. And the out-of-state retailers would still be exempt from the sales tax.

GRADUATED INCOME TAX (S 18) - The Revenue Committee's agenda also included a proposed constitutional amendment that would establish a graduated income tax, allowing the Legislature to impose higher tax rates on taxpayers in higher income brackets and lower rates on those in lower ones. This controversial tax, similar to the federal government's income tax, would replace the state's current flat 5.3 percent tax.

PENSIONS (H 35) - The Public Service Committee held a hearing on Gov. Patrick's proposal making changes in the state's pension system. Provisions include eliminating the right to receive a pension while receiving compensation for service in an elected position; increasing from 55 to 60 the minimum retirement age for close to 90 percent of state workers; requiring that pensions for state workers be based on the average salary of their five highest years instead of three; and allowing retirees who married a person of the same sex within one year after it became legal to change their retirement option in order to provide a benefit to their spouse.

Another measure being considered by the committee would ban convicted felons from receiving their state pensions during their period of incarceration (H 2467).

HIV/AIDS TESTING (S 1108 and H 2906) - The Public Health Committee heard testimony on two bills that would require doctors to offer all their patients an HIV test and allow them to order and perform the test with only verbal agreement from the patient.

Supporters said there are an estimated 8,000 people in the state who are unknowingly living with HIV. They noted that many patients have never asked for the test and many doctors only suggest it infrequently. They argued that patients often stick their head in the sand and want nothing to do with the entire topic of HIV - leading to delays in treatment and enabling the disease to spread.

OTHER HEALTH BILLS - The Public Health Committee's hearing also included proposals requiring all public and private schools and early education providers to distribute to parents information about the benefits of a flu shot for children; investigate and study the incidence and impact of Lyme disease (S 1129); requiring persons convicted of sexual assault to take an HIV test (H 1485); and creating a 20-member special commission to devise a statewide strategy to modernize HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment (H 2908).

LOCAL AID RESOLUTIONS - The Senate has agreed to let cities and towns know by April 14 the minimum amount of local aid each community will receive in the fiscal 2012 state budget.

Question of the Week

Candidates for Selectmen were asked the following question (responses were limited to 250 words):

This week's question: The town anticipates a significant increase of fresh water entering Cohasset Harbor resulting from the hook-up of additional homes utilizing the Water Treatment Plant. What cost-effective steps, both short and long term, would you recommend to stop further inner harbor deterioration caused by declining salinity levels?

SELECTMAN/ Mary Snow

After numerous conversations with many well qualified people and actual plant personnel, I have come to the conclusion that this question is somewhat flawed. My issue is with the word "significant" when referring to the additional wastewater being pumped through the Waste Water Treatment Plant. As it stands now, almost half of all 440 homes have been connected and the additional water discharge has had little increase in the overall plant discharge MGD.

According to EPA standards, this increase would not substantially change the salinity level in the harbor. I would also add that the many regulatory boards would not have granted permits for the additional sewer tie-ins as well as the wastewater plant upgrades. The real problem is the storm-water runoff that comes from all sections of town and drains into Cohasset's tributaries and empties into the harbor through James Brook. Many believe this decreases salinity and causes more damage than treated wastewater. The installation of over 40 Rain Gardens and BMP's that act as filtration for storm-water, have been a major, long-term, cost-effective solution. Another solution may be the repair or possible replacement of the Water Re-Use Mechanism that is located within the Waste Water treatment plant depending on the cost and benefits. Those waters may be able to be sold for irrigation systems. For the short term, I would encourage water conservation and the use of organics on lawns and trees thus removing harmful pollutants from entering the harbor.

SELECTMAN/ Diane Kennedy

My approach to answering this question best exemplifies how I will address issues as a member of the Board of Selectmen. I do not have a scientific background, nor do I know all the facts or have all the answers without doing homework and reaching out to experts. I read Cohasset's 2009 Flood Control Master Plan and contacted experts with extensive experience on the subjects of harbor health, freshwater flows and salinity levels, including sewer commissioners, harbor remediation professionals and Cohasset's Center for Student Coastal Research, which has been instrumental in collecting harbor salinity data.

Stormwater runoff, both natural and from new development, is a particular concern for Cohasset. The 2009 Plan offered recommendations for reducing freshwater influences and pollution in the harbor. It details Best Management Practices for addressing harbor and watershed issues throughout town.

In the short-term, I would work with local regulatory boards and citizens (including CSCR) to re-examine these goals. With the help of independent analysis from the scientific community, we need to assess the impact of declining salinity in the harbor and offer a research-based plan of action, if necessary. There are many communities in Massachusetts dealing with similar issues that can offer guidance and existing best practices. Long-term, we must coordinate efforts to manage these issues and actively seek funding through state, federal and private grants to preserve the vitality of our harbor and surrounding watershed. Cohasset Harbor is a precious resource that we must be vigilant about protecting.

SELECTMAN/ Fred Koed

The underlying question is "What has been the effect on Cohasset's Inner Harbor since placing the sewer outflow in the Cove?" There has been a noticeable decrease in rock seaweed, and a deterioration of the natural coastal habitat. Mooring chains that used to last decades and are attached to granite mooring blocks now are corroding in just a few years. Cohasset's Center for Student Coastal Research (http://www.ccscr.org/) has been researching these and other issues.

I was one of the few town government officials to attend CCSCR's "State of the Harbor" forum on Jan. 28, 2010, at the Lighthouse Keeper's Hall. Many of the panelists concluded the influx of fresh water from the sewer outflow was most likely a major contributing factor.

Cohasset's original plan was to extend the sewer outflow out the harbor mouth, around Whitehead left to a location known as "Sutton's Hole," which is on the inshore side of Sutton's Rock, which can be seen off of Sandy Cove. Financial considerations ended up shortening the outflow way back to inside the cove.

There isn't enough space here to go into why maintaining the harbor is so vitally important to the citizen's of Cohasset. Short term the sewer commission should continue to eliminate I&I (Groundwater Inflow and Infiltration leaking into sewer pipes). Long term the town should look for a partnership with the state and federal governments to extend the outflow to off Sutton's Hole. The bottom line is that someday the outfall needs to move out of the Cove.

SELECTMAN/ Karen Quigley

Fundamental to this issue is the premise that the Harbor fully flushes with each tide and, therefore, can absorb an unlimited influx of fresh water without degrading the marine environment. Both the premise and conclusion are incorrect.

As the chair of the Harbor Health Committee, I obtained technical expertise on the sources of freshwater and complex tidal flushing dynamics. We learned the Harbor doesn't flush in a multiple of tides, and a fresh water plume extends throughout the Inner Harbor out past the lobster cars.

I've been a defender of the Harbor and a key player in projects to restore tidal flushing, reestablish connectivity, and also in obtaining funding to defray associated costs. I was an early proponent of rain gardens and other stormwater best management practices and a strong advocate for the stormwater bylaw.

The fresh water discharge from the sewer plant will increase to 450,000 gallons per day, and it's estimated that 75 percent of stormwater ends up in the Harbor. There may be some marginal utility in lessening stormwater and discharge from infiltration to sewer pipes, but the only true relief I see for the beleaguered Harbor is to extend the discharge pipe from the sewer plant out into open waters. While this appears to be increasingly necessary, only overwhelming public outcry and support will cause it to happen.

NEXT WEEK'S QUESTION:

Next week's question:
Does the town need a new Senior Center building and can it afford it?

Candidates are reminded their responses should be brief — no more than 250 words — and must be received by noon, Wednesday. Candidates are asked to be specific and make every word count. Submissions will be cut if they exceed the word limit.

Candidates may reply by e-mail at mford@wickedlocal.com; by fax at 781-741-2931, or by dropping off their responses at the Mariner office in the Hingham Journal Building, 73 South St. However they choose to deliver their answers, candidates should adhere to the noon, Wednesday deadline.

We will also publish a weekly Candidates' Corner, which will be limited to a few paragraphs (about 150 words), from any candidate who chooses to submit dates of coffees, fund-raisers, short position statements and the like.

Candidates for any elected office are invited to submit formal statements of their candidacy with a photo.

The Mariner will not accept letters to the editor from candidates or letters endorsing or attacking particular candidates. The Mariner will publish letters about campaign issues from citizens not seeking election.

If you would like to suggest a question of the week, email Mary Ford at:

Koed campaign launches website

This week the Koed Campaign announces the launch of a new website at http://fred.koed.towns.org. This site will be expanding over the next three weeks with issues of concern to Cohasset Voters.

Fred Koed believes that all of us as Cohasset citizens — all neighborhoods and all individual concerns — have "a seat at the table" in what needs to remain an open town government.

"We can only get through the challenges we face for Cohasset by recognizing that each of us deserves to be listened to at Town Hall, and treated with respect," said Koed. "Fundamental reform of town government starts where it always has, with every Cohasset citizen and neighborhood having a seat at the table of open local decision making."

If you are interested in learning more about Fred's positions, or wish to become involved in his campaign, please contact Fred directly at 781-383-6640 or you can e-mail Selectman Koed at fred.koed@gmail.com.

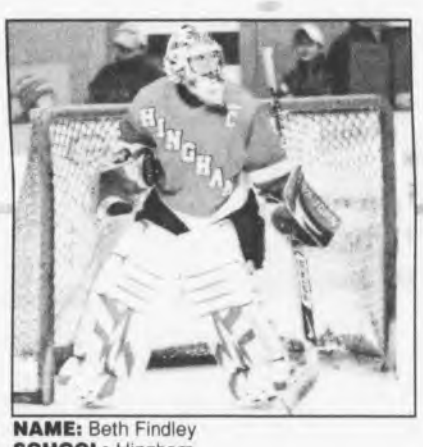
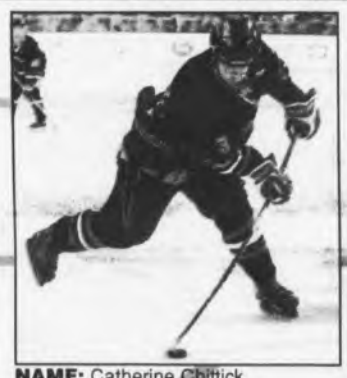
STATS: Schwenzfeier led Hingham with 23 goals in the regular season and continued her dominance in the playoffs with a hat trick against Medford, two goals against Winthrop-Lynn and a goal against St. Mary's.

NAME: Rachel Myette
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Freshman
STATS: Myette, a league-all star as a freshman this season, posted nine shutouts, including two in the poseason. She went 4-0 in the tournament (allowing only two goals), and she made 20 saves in the Division 2 state finals to win the championship. She finished with a 1.07 goals against average and a .936 save percentage.



NAME: Martha Findley
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Junior
STATS: Findley, one of the top defenseman in the area, had five goals and 12 assists this season. A force at the blue line, also earned her third straight appearance on the league all-star team, and she was voted her team's most valuable player.

NAME: Katie Walsh
SCHOOL: Hingham
YEAR: Senior
STATS: A senior captain and leader, Walsh notched 22 goals and 20 assists during the regular season, and was outstanding in the tournament, helping Hingham to a Div. 1 State Championship. In one of the biggest games of her career, Walsh shadowed St. Mary's star Sabrina Iannetti and took her out of her game, helping Hingham to a 3-2 overtime win in a quarterfinal game that broke the defending champions' unbeaten streak at 100 games.



NAME: Keira Flaherty
SCHOOL: Braintree
YEAR: Senior
STATS: One of the toughest blueliners in the Bay State Conference. She earned All-Star honors for shutting down so many of her opposing team's prolific scorers. Know by her teammates for her optimistic attitude.

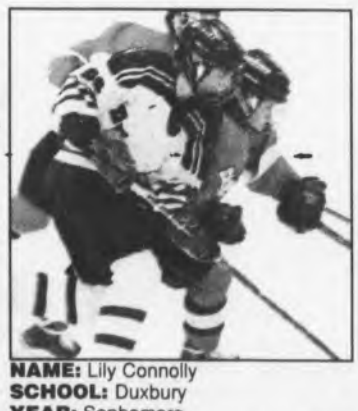
STATS: The senior captain led Hingham's defense with stellar play all-around. She scored six goals and had 13 assists to help Hingham to the title. Chittick connected for one of Hingham's three shootout goals in the Harborwomen's semifinal win over Winthrop-Lynn.

NAME: Amanda Abromson,
SCHOOL: Braintree
YEAR: Senior
STATS: A two-year captain, a three-sport star and a four-year member of the hockey team, she had 49 points this year, giving her school record for career points (111).She is a standout in the classroom, earning National Honor Society membership. She was the Bay State Carey Division MVP.



NAME: Briana Connolly
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Connolly's postseason performance was nearly unmatched. The senior captain, league all-star, and first-line forward scored goals at will, and when she didn't score, her vision on the ice made for heads-up decisions. Her tenacity frustrated team's defenses. She finished the season as Duxbury's third-leading scorer (23 goals, 23 assists, 46 points).

NAME: Hannah Murphy
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Sophomore
STATS: Of the team-leading 27 goals that Murphy scored this season, perhaps the most memorable for this two-time league all-star came during the Division 2 state championship. She scored the game-winning goal to win the championship for Duxbury. Murphy also led the team in assists (31) and points (58).

NAME: Brianna Fountain
SCHOOL: Marshfield
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Fountain and her linemate Conlon formed one of the best one-two punches on the first line. Fountain, who earned yet another league all-star recognition, scored 11 goals to go with 13 assists for 24 points to help pace the Lady Rams on offense this winter.

NAME: Lily Connolly
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Sophomore
STATS: Lily Connolly's sophomore season was one to remember. The forward ended the season as Duxbury's second-leading scorer. Connolly scored 26 goals to go with 25 assists for 51 points. Her presence in front of the goal couldn't be matched.

NAME: Katie Conlon
SCHOOL: Marshfield
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Conlon formed a lethal front line for Marshfield. Her and linemate Brianna Fountain have been dangerous for the Lady Rams ever since they've taken the ice. This year, Conlon, a league all-star, scored 22 goals and added 14 assists for 36 points to lead the team.

NAME: Nikki O'Brien
SCHOOL: Braintree

Skippers have mound presence

Hurlers mowing down opponents

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Through their first four games of the season, the Cohasset baseball team has shown that they have the one most important thing a team can have when they're looking for any kind of championship.

That would be pitching, and heart.

So far, Cohasset has shown both.

After four games, Cohasset was 3-1, with their only loss an opening-day 3-1 non-league loss to Scituate.

Since then, the Skippers have won three straight games, all of them South Shore League contests.

Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw has been pleased with his team and the way the Skippers have been winning.

After the Scituate game, Cohasset went to Harwich and picked up a 7-0 victory.

They followed that with a 5-4 comeback win over Norwell on Monday and then notched a 10-1 win over Hull on Tuesday at Cohasset.

When it comes to edge-of-the seat excitement, the Norwell game may be the big winner.

Cohasset won it with three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning.

"It was awesome," Afanasiw said. "I don't know if the kids really understood the impact that game had on the season because it is so early in the season. We were 1-1, and 1-0 in the league. Now we're 3-0 in the league. It does make a difference in the early part of the season."

Part of the benefit of the victory was beating a league opponent and a pitcher (Jordan Jenkins) who had stifled Cohasset when he pitched against them last year (with Scituate).

"I think that was in the back of their minds," Afanasiw said of Jenkins. "He had completely shut us down last year. To get to him in a critical part of the game like we did was uplifting for our confidence."

Drew Cobin, who pitched very well in the season-opening loss to Scituate, was outstanding again, allowing 4 runs, 3 of them earned, while fanning 8 and walking only one in the complete game.

Jeff Cavanaro was 3-for-3 at the plate and had three stolen bases.

Heading into the bottom of the seventh, trailing 4-2, it wasn't looking great for Cohasset

The comeback started with triples by Shane Haggerty and Anders Goetz to cut the lead to 4-3.

Cavanaro tied the game with a single and stole second. Jamie Faber singled with a hard shot to left, and took second when Norwell had to throw to third to hold Cavanaro.

Jamie Timothy cleaned up with a single up the middle to give the Skippers the big win.

"There are games that you go in and feel you're going to win,

Cohasset girls find good in tough loss

Nobody likes losing, but there are times when a team can take positives out of a loss and use them to build on the rest of the way.

That was a big part of the story when the Cohasset girls lacrosse team played undefeated Notre Dame Academy on Tuesday.

emy on Tuesday at NDA, there are lots of smiles and good feelings throughout the Cohasset girls lacrosse team.

For one thing, NDA is an undefeated elite team, and in the loss, Cohasset had a lead at the half, proving to everyone that they in fact can play top teams and that if they continue to work and improve, there will be victories against the top squads.

Cohasset is very close, and with their attack and cohesiveness as a squad, they will do damage this season.

"We were up at the half. We played a strong first half," Cohasset coach MaryEllen O'Neill said about the NDA game, where Cohasset had a 7-5 halftime advantage. "The girls played well. I think the Cohasset girls gained a little confidence. They know they can play well together. We're looking forward now."

Much of Cohasset's success in the NDA game came from the center, where Hope Kissick had a typically strong game, especially on the draws.

"Hope Kissick has been running the field as center," O'Neill said. "She's winning draws and controlling the attack. She's been great."

Kelsey Erler scored five goals for Cohasset, adding to her school-record total. She entered the record books by netting four goals in the Skippers' 17-10, season-opening victory over Hull.

"Kelsey has played great," O'Neill said. "She's scored quite a few goals."

Angela Cipolla added two goals for Cohasset on Tuesday. Whitney Jaffe and Hope Kissick also scored. Stephanie Brierley made six saves.

Jaffe is also an elite scorer and is close to Erler in the all-time points race.

"Stephanie Brierly has done well in goal," O'Neill said. "She's building confidence and has stepped to the plate. I'm proud of her."

O'Neill is pleased with the way things are going for her team.

"It's going great," she said. "I am absolutely happy with the way the girls have been working. They work hard and have great dedication. They're constantly asking questions about what they can do better, what they might have done differently on a play. They always work hard and they're constantly working to improve. They're a very coachable team."

Cohasset was in action yesterday in a non-league game at Hingham (Results were unavailable at press time).

"We're just working hard and focusing on the fundamentals," O'Neill said of Cohasset's preparation for their neighbors. "Hingham graduated a lot of seniors, but they have a brand new coaching staff and we know they're a very strong team. Anything can happen."

and there are games you play that you know there are two good pitchers and two good offensive teams that you hope to win," Afanasiw said. "Norwell was one of those. We knew it could come down to one hit or a stolen base. It felt great to beat a quality opponent that is also a local rival."

The previous game at Harwich, Cavanaro put on a clinic on the mound in the 7-0 win against the team Cohasset beat in last year's South Sectional Final.

"Jeff struck out 12, walked one, allowed just three hits and only threw 90 pitches in a complete game shutout," Afanasiw said. "He was absolutely dominant. I'm anticipating a monster year for him. To only throw 90 pitches averages to 13 pitches an inning. For a high school pitcher that's unbelievable."

The win at Harwich was rare.

"That was the first time we've won there since I've been the coach," Afanasiw said. "Harwich is a very tough place to play. It always seems five or 10 degrees colder there, and there's the long ride. It was a great win."

Afanasiw said Cavanaro had everything working.

"Jeff had tremendous command of his fastball and curveball," he said. "He had pinpoint location. If you have control over two different pitches at any level and you can locate them, you can confuse hitters."

Afanasiw said he had saved Cavanaro for the Harwich game because it was a league contest.

"Last year at Harwich Jeff pitched very well," Afanasiw said. "He had been up 4-3 and we lost 5-4 in the bottom of the seventh. That game seemed like a game out of old Red Sox history. When I told Jeff I was going to pitch Drew against Scituate at first he was bummed. Then I told him he was starting at Harwich and he felt better."

Along with Cavanaro and Cobin, Shane Haggerty and Jamie Faber stepped up with a gem against Hull in their 10-1 win.

Haggerty pitched four no-hit innings before he was replaced by Faber, following a plan Afanasiw set before the game.

"When we have three games in a week we can't use Jeff and Drew every game," Afanasiw said. "For that third game we'll use Haggerty and Jamie. They'll be our No. 1 and 2 starters next year. It's good to be able to get them on the hill without having to overwork them."

In the win, faber struck out 7 in three innings.

"It was his first time on the mound this season," Afanasiw said of Faber. "I didn't pull Shane for anything he did. It was part of the plan. They were both fantastic."

Cohasset was scheduled to play at East Bridgewater yesterday.

Waves conclude most successful season ever

Cohasset's Spicer fares well at New England Championships

The Weymouth Waves have recently completed their most successful Short Course season ever as four members of the team qualified for the Junior Nationals.

For the team that competes out of the Weymouth Club, it marked the first time any members had qualified for this meet that attracts to nation's top 18-and-under swimmers. At this year's Junior Nationals that were held in Orlando, FL, more than 1,000 youngsters from around the nation competed. In the past, swimmers such as 16-time Olympic medalist and world-record holder Michael Phelps have competed in this meet.

Representing the Waves at this year's Junior Nationals were Colleen O'Neil (Abington), Katie Kenney (Dedham), Samantha Sliwinski (Weymouth), and Janelle McDonald (Middleboro).

A sophomore at Abington High School, O'Neil also has also qualified in the 100 breaststroke for the United States Short Course Nationals, which will be held next December in Atlanta.

At the recent Junior Nationals, O'Neil swam in four events—the 100 and 200 breaststroke as well as the 200 and 400 individual medley.

Kenney, who will be a freshman at Boston University in September and compete on the Terrier women's swim team, swam in the 50 and 100 freestyle as well as the 100 fly at the Junior Nationals.

Sliwinski, who will swim for Tufts as a freshman this fall, also qualified for the 50 and 100 free at Junior Nationals, while McDonald was entered in the 400 medley relay along with O'Neil, Kenney, and Sliwinski.

It was this medley relay team that just two weeks before the Junior Nationals swam at the New England Championships and won the event in 3:53.78. That time was good enough to win the event marking the first time the Waves had won a New England title.

"I was extremely proud of how these women swam this year," said Waves head coach Marshall Goldman, who took over the program last May. "For example, Colleen dropped four seconds off her 100 breast time, while Sam lowered her 200 free time by eight seconds.

"For 16- and 17-year-olds to drop that kind of time is unprecedented," Goldman continued.

The women weren't the only Waves who enjoyed outstanding success this year.

Peter McDonald (Norwell) qualified in the 5000-yard freestyle for the Open Water Championships that will be held in June in Fort Myers, FL, while Taylor Lueck (Weymouth) finished fourth in the 100 freestyle at the New Englands.

"The team worked really hard this year," said Goldman pointing to the fact that 25 swimmers went to the New England Championships and nine qualified for the Eastern Sectionals.

"When I came here last May, I brought in a new training style," he continued. "The swimmers, many of whom had competed for the Waves for years, had to adjust to this new style. Not only did they adjust to it but they embraced it.

"They needed the belief that they could swim better than they ever have," he said. "They set high goals for themselves and they went after it."

One of Goldman's goals when he took over the Waves program was to help develop a strong program for the younger swimmers.

Here, too, in a short period of time there has been marked improvement.

Competing against 10-year-olds in the 10-and-under age group, nine-year-olds Dean Spicer (Cohasset) and Will Barao (Abington), finished in the top five in their specialties at the New England Championships.

Spicer took fifth in the 500 free, while Barao was fourth in the 500, while he took fifth in the 100 and 200 free and the 100 backstroke.

Also, Leigh Spicer turned in the top time among eight-year-olds in the 500 free at the New Englands with a time of 6:53.

"Jack Folcarelli has been coaching the younger kids, and he has done an outstanding job," said Goldman. "You can tell by the times they have turned in just how excellent a job he has done, and how hard the youngsters have worked.

"It is always exciting when a team ends its season on a successful note," he concluded.

FROM DEER HILL TO THE RUSTY SKIPPERS:

A Celebration of Band Music

By Sally Sisson
Special to the Mariner

The players ranged in age from 8 to 80-something; the music ranged from classical to jazz and blues to Broadway musicals. The eighth annual Evening of Band Music drew hundreds of people to Cohasset High School last Thursday night for what many are calling "the best Band Night yet."

"I think the whole experience really made you see that music is a lifetime experience, a lifetime gift. And that's why music education is so important."
Betts Murray, longtime member of the Rusty Skippers

Parents, family members and friends packed the bleachers of the CHS gymnasium to hear performances by musicians in grades 4–12, along with the Rusty Skippers. The Skippers were a new addition to the lineup this year, making it a true community event that spanned the ages.

Steve Biagini directed the Deer Hill School bands and the Rusty Skippers band; John DeWaal directed the Middle School bands; and Stephanie Moriarty directed the High School bands. Bands played individually and then joined together to form increasingly larger bands with larger sound. The event culminated with all the bands playing a rousing rendition of "When the Saints Go Marching In," followed by a long round of applause.

The Grades 6, 7 & 8 Band members joined together to perform a spirited version of "Circle of Life" from the Lion King.

7th Grade Band members play the "Black Forest Overture."

Afterward, concertgoers praised the level of professionalism of all the bands, from the youngest grades to the oldest. Several people said it was eye-opening to watch the progression of musicianship and commented on the rising popularity of the Middle School band and the level of complexity of the High School pieces. As one parent put it, "I had no idea the students could play that well!"

Betts Murray, a longtime member of the Rusty Skippers, said the thing she loved best was seeing the look on musicians' faces, as one band watched another: younger watching older and older watching younger. "I think the whole experience really made you see that music is a lifetime experience, a lifetime gift. And that's why music education is so important."

She later commented that many of the Rusty Skippers are "literally using their instruments from high school" — further making the case that music education is a solid investment!

Wrap-up

A quick wrap-up with Steve Biagini, director of the Deer Hill School and Rusty Skippers bands.

- What do you think the students took away from this experience?
As well as having an opportunity to perform, the Deer Hill students were able to hear the more experienced players and understand what they can accomplish in the future.

- What do you feel was the highlight of the evening?
The excitement of the grand finale, When the Saints Go Marching In, with a band of 350+ musicians.

- What does the Rusty Skippers band symbolize to you?
Community with a capital C. Volunteers coming together for a common goal.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF APRIL 25, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Impatience is still somewhat of a problem. But a sign of progress should soothe the anxious Aries heart. Meanwhile, invest some of that waiting time in preparing for the change ahead.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bovines tend to excel at solving problems, not creating them. But you risk doing just that if you're slow to respond to a timely situation. If necessary, seek advice from someone you trust.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The Gemini Twin might need to do more than a routine check of both a job-linked and home-based situation. Dig deeper for more data on both fronts to avoid unwanted surprises later.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Moon Children facing an important workplace decision are encouraged to use their perceptiveness to see through any attempt to win them over with a supercharge of fawning and flattery.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Good news catapults Leos and Leonas into reconsidering a deferred decision. But time has moved on, and it's a good idea to recheck your plans and make adjustments where necessary.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The week favors relationships, both personal and professional. Take the time to look for and immediately repair any vulnerable areas caused by unresolved misunderstandings.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A friend's problems bring out your protective instincts. Be careful to keep a balance between meeting the obligations of friendship without being overwhelmed by them.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The temptation to take an extreme position on an issue is strong, but moderation is favored both in personal and professional dealings. Move toward finding areas of agreement.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Getting another boss or teacher? Try to see the person behind the image. It will help you adjust more easily to the changes that new authority figures inevitably bring.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Much as you might dislike the idea, keep an open mind about using the assistance of a third party to help resolve problems that threaten to unravel an important agreement.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Music helps restore the Aquarian's spiritual energies this week. Take someone you care for to a concert of your musical choice. Also, expect news about a workplace matter.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A challenge that seems easy enough at first could take an unexpected turn that might test your resolve. Decide if you feel you should stay with it, or if it's better to move in another direction.

(c) 2011 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can be strong when standing up for justice, both for yourself and for others.

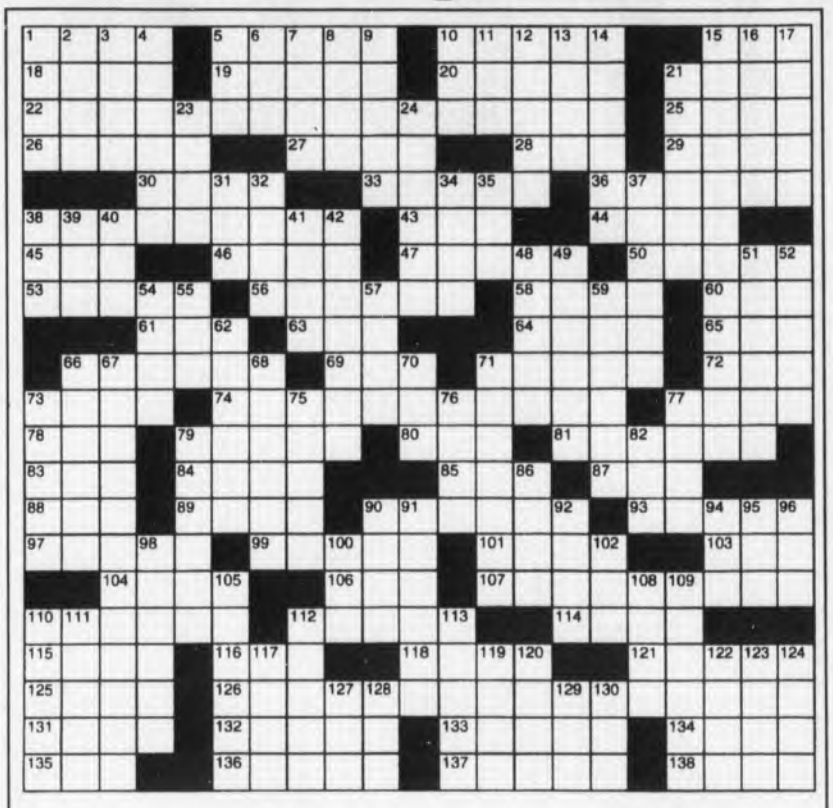
Fun By The Numbers



Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Hoo Boy!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

WORSHIP NOTES

Exploring Bob Dylan's Jewish roots

Congregation Sha'aray Shalom invites the public to its final lecture of the season. Seth Rogovoy will speak about Bob Dylan's Jewish Roots at 5 p.m., on Saturday, April 16. Cost is $15 for members and $20 for non-members, with Havdalah, lecture and dinner included. Call 781-749-8103 or email the Temple at execdir@shaaray.org to reserve a seat. Send checks to Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main St., Hingham, MA 02043.

Rogovoy is editor-in-chief of Berkshire Living, an award-winning regional lifestyle and culture magazine serving the greater Berkshire region of western Massachusetts, southwestern Vermont, eastern New York and northwestern Connecticut. Rogovoy is also the author of "The Essential Klezmer: A Music Lover's Guide to Jewish Roots and Soul Music." Rogovoy frequently writes about Jewish music and culture for publications including Forward, Hadassah magazine and the Berkshire Jewish Voice.

In Rogovoy's book on Dylan, he unearths the various strands of Judaism that appear throughout Dylan's songs, revealing the ways in which Dylan walks in the footsteps of the Jewish prophets. Rogovoy explains the depth of Jewish content – drawn from the Bible, Talmud, and Kabbalah – at the heart of Dylan's music, and demonstrates how his songs can only be fully appreciated in light of Dylan's relationship to Judaism and the Jewish themes that inform them.
